will be held at St. Paul's church on Friday night, December 2. See the mighty man! the flying sparks! and the flaming forge! A large Male Voice Choir will make the village smithy very realistic, and the anvil's crash will again proclaim, "He owes not any man." But you owe it to yourself to be there. Tickets 50c each. By your attendance you will directly benefit four worthy causes in Peterborough. 1d-123-3617

IN MEMORIAM.

CAMPBELL.—In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, who died on November 23rd, 1921:

The flowers we placed upon her grave
May wither and decay,
But our love for her who sleeps beneath
Will never fade away.

AROUND THE CITY.

Another false alarm was turned in last night at 7.10 o'clock. This is a serious offence, and the perpetrators, if apprehended, will be punished to the limit of the law. A fine of $50.00, or six months in jail, is provided by law for anyone convicted of tampering with fire alarm boxes.

Ten minutes later a call came from 571 Chamberlain Street. At 7.26 the department was called to 571 Romaine Street. This morning, at 8.09, a call came from 133 Stewart Street. These three fires were all of a minor nature and caused small damage.

Bank clearings for the week amounted to $886,632.

Hickory, thoroughly seasoned for two years, has proved to best of wood for shafts of golf clubs, and blocks of persimmon wood best for the heads.

According to the 1920 census, the bachelors in the United States numbered 12,967,565. And there were 12,550,129 spinsters.

A.Y.P.A. HEARS TALK ON WORK BY PRESIDENT

A. S. McConnell, Dominion President, Tells District Branches of Task.

TO LIVE UP TO MOTTO.

Members of Various Branches Gather in Omemee for Annual Banquet.

Cecil Hope, president of the Peterborough District Council of the A.Y.P.A. occupied the chair at the annual banquet held in Omemee on Thursday night. As toastmaster, Mr. Hope proposed the toast to the King.

John Gist, of Omemee, proposed the toast to the Church, and in replying, Dr. Blagrave of St. John's, spoke of our mother church and compared mother church with earthly mothers. A mother is anxious for her child, concerned for him, wants to guide him. A mother sometimes has her faults, as her children do also, and a child is inclined to think he knows more than mother does. A child is more up-to-date than mother, but one sure thing about her, is her desire for guidance comes from her love for her child.

The children of mother church are young and old, but she is mother to them all. Although the children of the church sometimes think mother church is out-of-date, when they grow in experience they find she knows more than they do. Behind all her demands is the sincerity of a mother heart, and the invisible thing in the church is the love of the Father in heaven.

The pastor also comes in for a great deal of criticism, but those who criticize forget he is responsible for the people of his church ,and he also works and acts for the good of the church, and for the love of his people. All have a responsibility in the church, the Sunday school, and the A.Y.P.A., and do nothing for praise or blame, but for the love of mother church.

Rev. Mr. Weir of Omemee, welcomed the guests. A piano duet was given by Miss Stevenson and Miss Jamieson. Mr. Stephenson gave a well received vocal solo.

Rev. Archdeacon Davidson was called on to propose the toast to the A.Y.P.A. "Next to the king and the church," said the speaker, "the toast to the A.Y.P.A. is the toast of the evening." He said he was particularly interested in two societies of the church, first the Women's Auxiliary, because it stood nobly and grandly for missionary work, and second the A.Y.P.A., which stands for the general welfare of the church.

A. S. McConnal, president of the Dominion A.Y.P.A., was the guest of the Local Council and the special speaker of the evening. His address was in response to the toast to the A.Y.P.A. Looking at the banner Mr. McConnal said the letters A.Y.P.A. really meant little; the members must examine them and get as much out of them as possible.

Taking the first letter, A might stand for the Latin word meaning to build. "We are all builders of our church. A building is seldom criticized in the building, but when it is completed. We can't criticize our church because it is always in the building."

"Y" stands for "yoke-fellows," people who co-operate. One plank of the platform, "fellowship," means more than ourselves, it means bringing others in.

"P" would be Promotion. It is our duty to help to promote Christianity. There was, perhaps, the speaker said, never a time when religion was needed more than today. Not that the young people are any worse, but religion and prayer are more mechanical. The young people think they are not good enough to take part in the activities, but even though we make mistakes, our mistakes may be made into something worth while by our Lord Jesus Christ.

"'A' for Ambition. We have a real Canadian-wide organization. We will never fail as long as there are young people in our church." The speaker mentioned the ambition which showed so plainly at the conference held in Peterborough in October.

The motto is "Christ and the Church," and if the members forget it they might as well give up the organization. Like Peter, who healed the beggar at the gate called Beautiful, there is a crippled world to be helped with its selfishness, its immortality, its superficiality. The greatest example of all is our Lord. He fed the 5,000. In every walk of life there are people to be fed. There are opportunities to comfort the sorrowful, the same as Christ helped Martha and Mary and restored Lazarus.

"By our example we can help to clean the world when we hear the name of God or the House of God desecrated. We can do much by our faith, by prayer and devotion. This world is one of self-sacrifice and service, not a world to rest in. We want to know our church and realize we are members of the Christian church. It is up to us to show the world the Anglican Young People are on the road, and work, not for gain, but love

Thompson Is Classed With American Myths

LONDON November 25.—United Press. — "Mayor Big Bill Thompson, is one of the myths of the United States that Europe entertains which is hindering disarmament," according to Prof. George Catlin. Some parts of the continent think Thompson represents American public opinion toward Europe, he told the war danger conference.

Another myth is that the United States is becoming an aggressive grasping race, while still another is that the United States has become tremendously wealthy because of the war, he said.

LOCAL DOGS ARE WINNERS

Four of Six Exhibited From This City Awarded Prizes.

FAIR GREAT SUCCESS.

Peterborough exhibitors in the Dog Show at the Royal Winter Fair acquitted themselves with great credit, and the closing down of the Fair last night found four of the six exhibitors from this city included in the prize list.

Two first prizes were awarded to Herbert S. Routley on his Springer Spaniel bitch, Trent Valley Firelight, bred by the owner in Peterborough, which won the verdict of the judge in the open class of bitches in the competition. Mr. Routley's entry also gained the first award in the Springer Spaniel variety class of bitches, in which it was pitted against the other female winners of its breed.

The winner in the Limit Dogs Class of Springer Spaniels, Trent Valley Handsome, now owned by Roy Rymer of St. Catharines, was bred in Mr. Routleys kennels.

Local contenders also did remarkably well in the competitions among American Foxhounds.

Second prize among Canadian Bred American Foxhound dogs was gained by Model's Swampy Jack, belonging to William Thompson. Mr. Thompon's animal was also awarded second prize both in the open and limit classes of American Foxhounds. Model's Swampy Jack was placed as reserve in the Winners' Class.

Mrs. Doughty's Rowdy was placed first in the limit and the open classes.

Second in Collies.

Mrs. E. Ecobichon's Quarrybrae Countess carried off the second award in Rough Collie puppy bitches of any color.

Outstanding quality in every breed faced the judges. Some of the animals are considered to be worth a small fortune. Lessue, the imported dog from Syracuse, U.S.A., which was awarded the Toronto Kennel Club prize, for best in the show, is valued at $5000.

Record Crowds.

Officials are confident that this year's figures surpass all previous records. Accommodation was not adequate to cope with the huge crowds seeking admission on Saturday evening. Chief of Police Dickson estimates that hundreds were turned away from the doors. At all of the evening performances this week every available seat was taken.

The fact that a larger percentage of out of town visitors than ever before were on hand, is regarded very favorably by the management. It is considered an indication that the popularity of the Royal Winter Fair is spreading throughout the whole Dominion.

A hotel in Charlotte, N. C., has ordered 20 special beds six inches longer than the average, in the hope that tall guests will stop complaining about having to sleep with their legs drawn up.

Thanksgiving Day Is Celebrated In States

WASHINGTON, D.C., November 25. — Canadian Press. — In keeping with the call of President Coolidge, the nation gave thanks again yesterday for another year of divine favor.

In Washington as elsewhere, the people assembled in their churches for appropriate thanksgiving day religious services. The President and Mrs. Coolidge participated in those of the First Congregational church.

Other government officials and members of the diplomatic corps went to the churches of their faiths.

Returning from the thanksgiving day services, Mr. Coolidge was serenaded by the army band on the front lawn of the white house, several thousand having gathered there for the programme.

The Rev. Jason Noble Pierce, pastor of the president's church, before beginning his sermon read from Mr. Coolidge's thanksgiving day proclamation.

As at the executive offices other government departments gave themselves over to the holiday. Many Washingtonians spent the afternoon at the George Washington - Catholic University football game.

GILES WOULD TAKE ACTION TO PROVE STORY

Force Weather Bureau Officials To Retract Their Statements.

WILL REPAIR PLANE.

Backer Sends Aviator Sharp Message—Demands Performance Instead of Publicity.

SAN FRANCISCO, November 25 (Associated Press). — Captain Frederick A. Giles, British aviator, said yesterday that he planned taking action through Government channels in Washington, if necessary, to force Weather Bureau officials in San Francisco to retract their statements reflecting on the veracity of his story that foul weather forced him to abandon his San Francisco-Hawaii flight 480 miles out at sea on Tuesday.

"I shall decide later whether I will leave my plane at the San Simeon Ranch, where I landed, until Clarence Young, director of aeronautics, Department of Commerce, can name a Government official to inspect the damage," Captain Giles declared.

He said, further:

"I plan to discuss the matter with aviator friends. If they believe my story, and I think that my story is accepted by fliers of California, I shall consider that sufficient and will repair the broken braces and bring the ship to San Francisco. Otherwise I shall ask for an official inspection.

"If Government aeronautic experts inspect the ship I believe they will gain valuable information about atmospheric forces encountered at sea by fliers and possibly this data can be used to prevent future disasters such as must have wrecked the three lost Dale planes."

When asked about taking action against Major E. H. Bowie, forecaster for the local United States Weather Bureau, for saying that the weather conditions which Giles said flipped his plane upside down and dumped his charts, food, and emergency equipment and broke parts of the aircraft did not exist, he replied:

"Certainly, he has no business to call me a liar without learning something of the conditions not recorded on his charts."

Take Bowie on Flight.

"I would like to take Major Bowie on a flight over the sea," Giles said. "The foul weather I had and which turned my plane upside down and dumped all my charts, food and flares into the ocean and wrenched the braces of my plane, would never show on a weather chart, nor would it be observed by the ships from whom the Weather Bureau received its reports. But those conditions exist, just as I described."

"Would I fly to sea with Captain Giles?" Major Bowie declared yesterday. "Well, I've flown to sea before in an airplane, and I expect to fly again—but not with Captain Giles."

Want Performance.

DETROIT November 25. — Performance in place of "cheap and vulgar publicity," was the demand wired Captain Frederick A. Giles, a British airman, now in California on a projected flight to Australia by his backers here, William H. Rosenwarne a native of New Zealand.

"Get back to 'Frisco, check her over and get ready to go again," Rosenwarne telegraphed the flier after receiving a report from the U. S. Weather Bureau at San Francisco that Giles had encountered no storm when he turned back from his flight to Honolulu Tuesday.

Has Spent $150,000.

There was the first public intimation of friction between the flier and his backer in Rosenwarne's telegram. The former New Zealander has already spent more than $150,000 in financing the project.

Referring to a report that Captain Giles had lost his navigation instruments, Rosenwarne said that he could not understand this unless the flier also had lost his instrument board.

Resents Attitude.

His telegram said: "Your controversy with officials of the weather bureau I consider unfortunate. This is not in the interests of good sportsmanship. I resent my name being used as not playing the game."

Snappy Wire.

"Get back to 'Frisco, check her over and get ready to go again. Reports here state you lost your navigation instruments. In that case you must have lost your instrument board. Performance in place of cheap and vulgar publicity is the goal of true sportsmanship."

Rosenwarne indicated he resented an alleged statement by Giles, issued several days prior to the take off, in which the flier said "I will leave tomorrow if my backer so orders." At the same time Giles indicated such a move was against his better judgment "in view of weather conditions."

Cosmetics, including sticks of graphite, possibly used as eyebrow pencils, lumps of ochre, and receptacles containing rouge used by women centuries ago, have been found in excavations in lower Austria.

Needed—A Sense of Humor

To-day at 3 o'clock.

Sidewalks covered with snow.

People who wouldn't clean their sidewalks because their neighbors didn't.

Neighbors who wouldn't clean their sidewalks because other people didn't.

All the uptown sidewalks clean of snow ,but all the street crossings ankle deep in slush —because the City Council insists on merchants clearing the sidewalks, but there's no one to see that the City Council cleans the crossings.

Pray for a sense of humor!

SNOW BY-LAW TO BE ENFORCED

Householders Must Clean Walks in Front of Their Houses.

IN ENTIRE CITY.

So that the streets of this city might be free of snow, the City Council last spring amended the snow by-law and now every householder is responsible for the shovelling of the snow from the sidewalk in front of his lot. Formerly it was only the people in the centre of the city who had to clean the sidewalk, but now the law includes the whole city. The householders are given until ten o'clock in the morning to clean off their sidewalks and if it is not done the Chief of Police has the authority to bring them before the magistrate, where, according to the by-law, a $50 fine can be levied. Owners of vacant lots are given 24 hours to clean the snow away, and if it is not done then the city engineer will hire men to shovel it off and charge the account against the owner of the lot.

This afternoon the slush was bad on George Street and in a census taken between Edinburgh and McDonnel Streets it was found that at least half the householders had failed to shovel the snow in front of their homes.

HUNDREDS KILLED IN STREET FIGHTING

Revolution in Ukraine Reported In Despatch To Bucharest.

BUCHAREST Rumania, Nov. 25.—Canadian Press.—A special despatch to the newspaper Dimineata to-day, says that chaos and anarchy are reigning in the Ukraine, with hundreds killed in street fighting.

The despatch says that hundreds of civilians and soldiers were killed in fierce street fighting in the town of Kamentz Podolsk.

The firing of cannon could be heard all along the Dniester River, the despatch said, while a meeting at Kishineff of the Rumanian Russian mixed commission was cancelled because of the trouble .

The Dimineatas despatch says that the garrisons at Odessa, Tiraspol, Nochiley and other cities, have passed into the hands of the "revolutionists, who everywhere are gaining ground in Southern Russia."

Daily struggles between the revolutionists and the troops who remained loyal to the government, were reported in a despatch.

At Kamentz Podolsk, the authorities were stated to be barricaded in all the public institutions. The revolutionists held power for two days but upon the arrival of Soviet reinforcements, the government reconquered the town. The streets were said to be strewn with hundreds of dead and wounded.

Believed That New Wireless Convention Will Be Given Approval By Delegates

WASHINGTON, D.C., Nov. 25 (Canadian Press).—A new wireless convention, the fruit of more than seven weeks of negotiations on the part of delegates from 79 nations and territories to the international radio conference here is ready for signature by the various governmental representatives. The second reading of the convention will take place at to-day's plenary session of the conference, but delegates believed yesterday that this would be almost perfunctory and that its unanimous approval by formal signature would be completed before noon.

Satisfaction with the conference's accomplishments was expressed on all sides. Two principal United States objects have been achieved without abandonment of any other principle in exchange.

With the allocation of wave lengths to the various international radio services and the acceptance by the conference of the principle of not forcing governmental interference in private radio operation, United States representatives said that they could not ask for more.

The documents which the delegates will be called on to approve to-day will consist of three distinct parts: The convention proper, radio regulations regarding the actual operation and procedure in international radio communications and a set of regulations which, owing to the interference they involve in the internal management of radio business, will not be subscribed to by the United States or Canada.

CALIFORNIA PRISON FIGHT COMES TO END

Convicts Surrender Without Terms To Warden Smith.

HOSTAGES RELEASED.

Troops Had Threatened To Flood Buildings Held By Armed Inmates.

FOLSOM PRISON, Calif., Nov. 25. —One of the most spectacular rebellions in the history of California came to a peaceful end here at 7.30 a.m., to-day, when the several hundred convicts who yesterday barricaded themselves in a cell house and fought national guardsmen and civil officers in a pitched battle that resulted in the loss of nine lives, surrendered to Warden Court Smith. The revolting convicts laid down the guns with which they stood off the besieging force of more than five hundred men and released the four guards they had held as hostages.

The warden declared that no concessions were made to the convicts, except that he had assured them of safe conduct to their respective cells. He expressed the belief that the weapons used in the outbreak has been smuggled in through "trusties."

The national guard and prison officers had announced that they would flood the building where upwards of four hundred convicts had barricaded themselves, unless the prisoners surrendered, virtually without conditions. The commanding officers of the small army of guardsmen ,armed with rifles and tear gas, and with airplanes and tanks at their disposal, said the water system at the prison was capable of flooding the buildings quickly.

They also said they could shut off the supply of drinking water in the cell house, and could use starvation as another weapon to force surrender.

The trouble started shortly before noon yesterday while the convicts were watching a Thanksgiving entertainment. At a given signal, they overwhelmed the eight guards in the hall of the old cell house and started a break for liberty. The break was frustrated by sheer luck because the key to the cell house door had been transferred from one turnkey to another. One guard was killed on the spot, three others were wounded and four were held as hostages.

Hostages Threatened.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 25.—(Canadian Press.)—The Examiner to-day quoted Dr. T. W. Day, physician at Folsom prison, as saying the besieged convicts there had threatened to kill the guards whom they were holding as hostages unless firing on their cell house stopped.

The threat which Dr. Day brought out of the cell house after having entered to attend the dying and wounded convicts was said to have made an impression on the mobilized forces which were considering measures for dislodging the convicts. Fear that the men would be put to death in the event of an attack, the Examiner said, caused the officials at the scene to delay plans for advancing again.

Dr. Day was the only official who was able to move through the grounds without fear of being mowed down by bullets from the guns held by the convicts. He was admitted to the cell house without question and allowed to return to the administration building in safety. He brought no word of how well armed the convicts were. The Examiner also published a statement under the name of General Mittelstaedt, commander of the National Guard saying two aeroplanes would circle over the cell house and rake it with machine gun fire at the first sign of an outbreak.

Mine workers endure heat in the shafts more easily when salt is added to their drinking water. Excessive perspiration causes a loss of salt from the body and the replacing of this element helped to prevent exhaustion.

Whole Nine Lives Go in One "Bung"

DUNDALK, Nov. 24.—A cat belonging to the McMullen home, near Ceylon, had its life snuffed out quicker than you could say "scat." Mrs. McMullen was scalding out the churn with boiling water and fastened down the lid without thining what the consequences would be. The cat was snoozing near the churn at the time. The pressure of the steam blew the bung out and the cat was hit squarely behind the ear. It died instantly.

NO OTHER CASES OF DIPHTHERIA

Source of Infection of Smith Family Not Known To M.O.H.

SICK CHILDREN IMPROVING.

There are no further cases of diphtheria in Percy township, and Dr C. C. Armstrong, M.O.H., is puzzled to know where the family of Amos Smith of Norham contracted the disease, he told The Examiner. There are still four members of the family ill, he added, but they are progressing favorably.

Meanwhile the Smith household is in strict quarantine, and the school at Norham has been closed until danger of infection has passed.

Dr. Armstrong things that the disease got such a start in the case of the two children who died because it was at first thought to be tonsilitis or some other minor throat malady, and medical treatment was not sought until the children became seriously ill.

PASSES TREATY WITH FRANCE

Cabinpt Crisis Predicted as Socialists Demand Economic Enquiry.

TRADE AGREEMENT.

BERLIN, November 25. — The Franco-German trade treaty passed its third reading in the Reichstag without a debate, the first and second readings having been completed at a short session on Wednesday, when Parliament opened for the winter session.

Committees are now rushing through with all possible speed a number of bills, including those for national school reorganization, the increase of civil servants' salaries, and the indemnification of German citizens for the loss of property confiscated by enemy countries during the war. These three bills were mentioned in the criticisms of Mr. S. Gilbert Parker, Agent-General for Reparations, and their handling by Parliamentarians is regarded as a delicate matater. In addition, there is the Budget Bill, which, it is hoped, will have passed its first reading before the Christmas recess .

Practically all political circles predict a Government crisis, with the dissolution of the Reichstag, before the New Year, repeating the Cabinet crisis which has arisen during the holidays in the past three seasons. Vorwarts, the Socialist organ, even sets the limits when the Government will fall, saying it will occur at the earliest in February and at the latest in May, and it believes the School Bill will prove an insurmountable obstacle. There is an agitation to have the national elections next spring at the same time as the Prussian and other State elections.

Another difficult situation for the Government is prophesied when the Socialists' demand to have economic policies clarified comes up for debate next Thursday. It was postponed until then in order to give the committees a chance to complete their work. The Socialists based their demands for an inquiry into the economic situation on Mr. Parker Gilbert's warning note.

FAMILY QUARREL ENDS IN SHOOTING

P. E. I. Man Succumbs To Wounds Believed Self Inflicted.

CHARLOTTETOWN, P.E.I., Nov 25.—(Canadian Press).—W. L. Gray, 54, died yesterday at his home in Alberton, in the western part of the island, from gunshot wounds said to have been self inflicted, and his wife is suffering from probably fatal wounds, alleged to have been caused by her husband when he seized the gun and shot her before turning the weapon on himself. The shooting is said to have followed a quarrel at the breakfast table.

FEARED ANY SUGGESTIONS FOR PREPARATORY CONVERSATIONS WOULD BE MISINTERPRETED

Answer To Criticism of Failure of Parley Due To Inadequate Preparation.

NAVAL CENSURE DEBATE.

Chamberlain Takes Part of the Blame Himself For Failure of Conference.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—(A.P.)— Fear that any suggestion for preparatory conversations as a preliminary to the eneva naval conference would be misinterpreted in the United States is the British government's answer to critimism that failure of the parley was due to inadequate preparation.

Sir Austen Chamberlain, foreign secretary, assumed the role of official apologist last night in the debate in commons precipitation by the persistent laborite criticism of the Geneva breakdown. He admitted that he himself was partly to blame and offered as excuse his own fear that the United States might read into an invitation for preliminary discussions a desire of the British government to avoid participation altogether.

A large part of Sir Austen's speech was devoted to an academic talk about the covenant and protocol and arbitration. He maintained that even if Great Britain did not sign the protocol she had led the nations to have recourse to arbitration for the settlement of international disputes. He mentioned several of these.

House in Darkness.

The debate was interrupted for nearly an hour by the failure of the electric lights. Commander Kenworthy who was speaking at the moment, had to wait until the lights were restored. He argued that the government should have announced its intention to drop the building of two cruisers before instead of after the Geneva conference, and declared that Great Britain's position was intolerable if it was going to stand out for the old right of capture at sea and refuse all approaches from the United States to re-organize and agree to an re-arrangement of the martial law on this subject.

"We cannot afford a navy that will make us absolutely secure at sea," said Commander Kenworthy, "and I suggest that we should meet America half way in this matter. We want a maritime Locarno, and I would like to see Japan taking the initiative in calling another conference at Tokyo."

Former Premier Lloyd-George dilated on his now familiar theme of the danger of Europe through there being 15,000,000 men in training for war with equipment such as the world had never seen before in its capacity for horror and devastation.

Declaring that until conscription was brought to an end in Europe nothing could be achieved, he said that the disarmament commission had simply become an algebraical farce. The two countries which had done the most blathering about peace—Great Britain and the United States—were the only two which had increased their expenditure on armaments, and people would say "before you start lecturing us, cut down your own expenditure."

Great Britain, Mr. Lloyd George asserted, was not in a position to enforce disarmament until she had cut her own expenditures.

The first Lord of the Admiralty, Hon. W. C. Bridgeman, said the British cabinet had decided to adhere to the six inch gun limit, because if it had consented to eight inch guns it would not be signing an agreement for limitation of armaments, but for their increase. The Cabinet took the decision, for which all the ministers were responsible, and it was a vital decision, from which there was no intention to depart.

Opened Debate.

LONDON, Nov. 25. — (Canadian Press Cable.)—A debate on the recent Geneva Naval Conference was initiated in the House of Commons yesterday by the Rt. Hon. Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the Labor party, when he declared that Viscount Cecil had resigned rather than play a double part. The Foreign Secretary ought to tell the House why he failed to scout the field before hand, said Mr. MacDonald.

Sir Austen Chamberlain, British Foreign Secretary, following Mr. MacDonald on the floor, repudiated the suggestion that the British delegation to the Geneva conference had been military, for it had included two Cabinet Ministers.

Continuing Sir Austen said: "Crit-

New Bellanca Plane Ready For Test Trip

NEW YORK, Nov. 25. — Its wings spreading fifty feet and a stubby fuselage only twenty-four feet nine inches, the first creation of Giuseppe M. Bellanca, since he opened his own factory, will be ready for its initial test flight next week.

In appearance the camel-backed plane resembles the Columbia, which Clarence Chamberlin flew to Germany. It is slightly shorter and the wing span is three feet less.

The main gasoline tank, built in the plane, will hold 360 gallons, forty more than the Columbia.

A. R. Martine has purchased the plane. Roger Williams, veteran Curtiss pilot, will test it.

RADIO CHIEF PASSES AWAY

Admiral Bullard One of Important Figures in Radio Development.

RETIRED NAVAL OFFICER.

WASHINGTON, D.C., November 25. — Rear Admiral William H. G. Bullard, retired, chairman of the Federal Radio Commission, and one of the important figures in the development of radio in the United States, died suddenly to-day at his home here. Death, which occurred at 5.30 a.m., was caused by heart trouble.

His tireless struggle to solve the complex problems of radio is believed to have so lowered Admiral Bullard's vitality as to produce the condition which resulted in his death.

He has been actively identified with radio development for a quarter of a century and this has earned him the name of "Father of American radio." It was Admiral Bullard who in 1919 awakened the government officials to the necessity of acquiring patent rights to the Alexenderson alternator, the most reliable instrument for radio communication over water; the rights were secured over spirited competition from other countries and out of this acquisition was created the Radio Corporation of America. President Wilson released Admiral Bullard from his naval duties in order that he might become a member of the board of directors of the new company.

Bullard is credited with having been largely responsible for the arrangement by which press messages could be sent by navy transmitters, making it possible for news from the United States to be printed in Hawaii and the Philippines to which other means of rapid communication were lacking. He aided in defending the interests of the United States at the international radio conference, which has been in session here since Octoer 4, and at which seventy nations are represented

IN POLICE COURT.

John Fawkes who pleaded guilty last week to driving a car while intoxicated, was sentenced to seven days in the common jail. J. A. O'Brien, who represented the prisoner, asked that a suspended sentence be granted or that the prisoner be given a heavy fine, but His Worship said he believed that it never was intended by the Legislature that suspended sentence be given to men who pleaded guilty to driving a car while intoxicated.

Political Crisis Is Further Complicated

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Nov. 25 (A.P.). — The Rumanian political crisis created by the death of Premier Bratiano is further complicated by the serious illness of Nicholas Titiulescu, Minister of Foreign Affairs, who has double pneumonia.

Titulescu's doctors are greatly concerned over his condition, which has prevented him from carrying out a proposed visit to Rome to "warm up" the present cool relations existing between Italy and Roumania.

Titulescu's illness also may prevent his carrying out his task as Rumania's chief delegate in a land dispute with Hungary which will come before the League of Nations early in December.

Fortune to Widow

The will of Premier Bratiano, opened yesterday, gives a life interest in his fortune to his widow. After her death the fortune passes to their son, Georges Bratiano.

The will relates only to family matters, giving no suggestion of political legacies.

GUARD KILLED IN JAIL BREAK AT SACRAMENTO

Two Thousand Convicts Revolt in California State Prison.

PRISONERS ARMED.

All Available Military Units Ordered To Scene of Disorder.

FOLSOM PRISON Calif., November 25. — Two thousand convicts were in revolt late yesterday in the main cell house of the state prison here, while prison guards augmented by more than 200 national guardsmen and peace officers from Sacramento and adjoining towns prepared to attack the main cell house in an effort to smother the revolt and drive the prisoners back into their cells.

All danger of the wholesale prison break, which apparently was carefully planned appeared to be past. One prison guard was killed, two were wounded, and Warden Court Smith, while safe from injury, was virtually a prisoner in his office.

Two machine guns belonging to the Sacramento national guard companies, were secured and it was reported two machine guns were being rushed from San Francisco by aeroplane.

As soon as the additional machine guns and more national guardsmen arrive, it was planned to storm the cell house where the convicts rioted.

A. R. Heron, state director of finance who was at the prison together with Keith Carlin, the governor's secretary, and other state officials, declared that at least 2000 prisoners were involved in the revolt.

Inside Guards Held.

It was not known how many rifles the convicts had. How they were obtained is a mystery, as the guards on the inside of the cell house were unarmed.

How long the revolting convicts could hold out was a question. If they gained access to the dining hall the guards believed that they could keep well fed for possibly weeks. The guards believed however that the dining hall doors were locked and the rioters will be unable to open them.

Eight guards were in the cell house at the time the riot broke out. All were captives of the rioting convicts but presumably were alive.

Captain Larkin of the guards, with a posse of Sacramento policemen, were reconnoitering along the river and hoped to be able to throw tear bombs into the cell house in aiding in stamping out the riot.

Late yesterday the governor ordered out the rifle company at Woodland, the Machine gun company at Yuba City and secured four more machine guns from the 143rd Field Artillery at Stockton.

As rapidly as guardsmen arrived outside the prison walls they were issued rifles and ammunition.

An order was issued that no one with fire arms will be allowed inside the walls and no one with or without arms will be allowed on top of the walls.

The power companies rushed crews to the prison to install flood lights in anticipation of an all-night siege.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 25 (Canadian Press).—An "S O S" message sent at 7.25 a.m. yesterday by the Japanese steamer Tentaisan Maru was picked up by the Seattle Harbor radio. The message reported that she was stranded off Gray's Harbor on the Washington coast, and was in need of immediate assistance.

BOYD HEREFORDS WIN MANY PRIZES

Take Three More Regular Awards and Three Specials at Toronto.

Continuing in the winning vein of previous days at the Live Stock Competition in the Royal Winter Fair, Toronto, the Mossom Boyd Co., of Bobcaygeon, has carried off three additional regular prizes and three special awards, gained in the face of opposition from some of the best animals in the Dominion. All the awards were gained in the Hereford division.

The Bobcaygeon company was placed second on the list of Herefords, in the class comprised of three animals got off one sire. Second place was also secured by two animals, the progeny of one cow. In the class restricted to pairs of calves —a bull and a heifer owned and bred by the exhibitor—the entries of Mossom Boyd Company topped the list over five competitors.

Three first-class special prizes go to Bobcaygeon—a special prize contributed by the Canadian Hereford Breeders' Association for the best Canadian-bred bull; another was for four calves of either sex recorded in the Canadian Hereford Herd Book, and the third was for the best pair of Hereford calves of either sex, bred in Ontario and exhibited by a member of the Ontario Hereford Breeders' Association.

The judge was John Wilson of Innisfail, Alberta.

Following the completion of the judging, a start was made with the sales of cattle. There was a large attendance of spectators, but bids came slowly, and prices were disappointing to the cattle breeders. At the Shorthorn sale the average for females was $120. A female belonging to the Prince of Wales was sold for $165. Four hundred dollars was the highest price recorded on the first day's sale.

WINNIPEG WHEAT.

WINNIPEG, Man., November 25 (Canadian Press). — The holiday in the United States, coupled with inactivity on the part of exporting interests, imparted a sluggish tone to the Winnipeg grain market yesterday. Sentiment was bearishly inclined throughout the session, values slumping ¾c to 1¼c at the close.

A sharp break in prices at Buenos Aires was construed by the trade here as an indication that all was well with the crop in the southern republic.

With the exception of barley, which encountered fair export demand, the coarse grain markets were inactive and weak.

Prince Supports Fund For Children

LONDON, November 25. — (Canadian Press Cable). — The Prince of Wales attended a luncheon yesterday in aid of the "Children's Country Holiday Fund," at which three thousand pounds sterling was spontaneously subscribed. Commending the fund, the Prince said: "If it were a children's higher education fund it would be a different matter, but anybody who says children can do without holidays, why he is just one of those persons one doesn't argue with."

COWS SPOILING CAMPBELLFORD SCHOOL LAWNS

Cars Also Being Driven Across Property, Board is Told.

POLICE NOTIFIED.

Board Orders That Further Breaches of Law By Pupils Be Reported at Once.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 25. — The regular meeting of the Campbellford School Board was held in the Council Chambers in the Public Library Building last night. The trustees present were Dr. O. C. Watson, chairman; Wesley Stevens, secretary, and Messrs. O'Sullivan, Benor, William Stevens, Birmingham, Richardson, Cock, Linton. The High School principal, E. H. Greig was in attendance, as were also James and Clarence Massey, the caretakers of the school.

Dr. H. O. Richardson, Internal Committee, reported that the members of that committee had spoken to the principal of the Public School with regard to the internal trouble there, which had been brought before the board at their last meeting. When interviewed, the principal stated that the boy who had been dismissed from the school, had made satisfactory arrangements with his teacher, and had been allowed to return to his class. He also was of the opinion that while there were other pupils who were troublesome, they were not really bad enough to be brought before the board for expulsion. The teacher was of the same opinion as the principal and the committee left instructions that any future violent breach of school law on the part of the pupils was to be brought to the attention of the trustees without delay, and through the proper channels.

Trustee Birmingham, grounds committee, drew the attention of the board to the fact that motorists were driving over the school lawn and ruining it. This was something which he thought should be stopped at once, as the grounds were very carefully prepared and were the finest in town. He thought there should be a law to deal with such offenders.

Before the board could give this matter any consideration, James Massey informed them that cows were being allowed to run on the grounds during the night hours. Their hoof prints were six inches deep in many places, and there was other objectionable evidence as well. Mr. Massey did not know who was the owner of the cattle, since they are never allowed on the premises or seen near them during the hours when he is on duty.

Trustee William Stevens suggested that the police be notified and instructed to take the usual action. Dr. Watson thought that a notice in the paper ought to have some effect. Mr. Birmingham asked if there was

DICTATOR'S RULE MENACE TO PEACE

Former Italian Premier Nitti Scores Mussolini at Conference.

LONDON, Nov. 25 (United Press). —A bitter attack on European dictators in general and Premier Mussolini of Italy in particular was made yesterday by former Italian Premier Nitti, at the opening of a "no-more-war" conference.

Reiterating statements he had made regarding grave danger of a new European war, Nitti declared: "The League of Nations now is only a show in which dictatorial governments participate so they can wreck it.

Danger to Peace

"The ignoble post-war phenomenon of dictatorships has shamed civilization, and endangers the peace of Europe and the prosperity of the world.

"Italy is a prison, where life has become intolerable and everything is artificial.

"Bluff and Fantasy"

"Mussolini's boast of empire-making is pure bluff and fantasy, worthy of a good pupil of Baron Munchausen and of the vanity of a madman.

"We must make the League of Nations the powerful and respected mechanism of peace. Europe, to save herself, must form large economic unions and permanent peace agreements—and soon, if it is possible, big political unions."

JUBILEE BAZAAR IS GREAT SUCCESS

Ladies of Christ Church, Campbellford, Have Well Patronized Sale.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 25.— It is readily conceded that the high light of all the local attractions yesterday was the Jubilee Bazaar held in the Parish Hall under the auspices of the ladies of Christ church. The bazaar was opened last night and will continue throughout this afternoon and evening. Many of the townspeople are availing themselves of the opportunity which thus presents itself to purchase very acceptable Christmas gifts at unusually moderate prices. This was, no doubt, the main attraction for the ladies, but the men found that they could get a real good buffet supper for very little money and that probably accounts for the large number which were present. The fortune teller seemed to be kept busy and most of her clients were men. Whether or not they really believe what they were told, can only be guessed. They will not commit themselves on the matter.

Along the aisles, the booths are beautifully and attractively decorated and are representative of every province in the Dominion and of the British Isles. If a purchaser were to buy everything which was attractive, the bazaar would be a thing of the past now. As it is, the booths were pretty well sold out when closing time arrived, but there is a definite assurance of many new attractions when opening time arrives Friday afternoon.

Home cooking, toys, novelties, plain and fancy needle work, candy, post office and every other booth seemed to be doing a capacity business. And there is every reason why they should. The wares which are offered for sale are all of the best which domestic art is able to produce. The atmosphere which prevails throughout the entire bazaar is of the most cordial.

If our local representative has not called on you, be sure you get in touch with him. We are offering a remarkable attractive advertising scheme to assist you in the coming rush shopping season.

CUP IS PRESENTED TO VIRGINIA LOBB

Birdsalls School Girl Winner of Most Points at School Fair.

A pleasant event took place at School Section No. 12, Asphodel, when the Agricultural Representative, J. B. Nelson, presented Virginia Lobb with the T. Eaton Company's special silver cup for the pupil gaining the largest number of points at the Rural School Fair at Westwood. Mr. Nelson made a short speech in presenting the prize, and Virginia responded suitably. Virginia is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Lobb, and a pupil of Miss Wilma Humphries, Birdsall's School. She has the highest number of points in Peterborough county.

BRITISH LINES BUILDING BIG NEW VESSELS

Great Revival of Ship Building Industry Is Now Expected.

MINERS DISQUIETED.

Two New Luxury Liners Under Consideration Will Be Oil Burners.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—(United Press) —The British shipbuilding industry is on the eve of a great revival. Transportation competition for trans Atlantic luxury passenger traffic is about to result on the construction of a new fleet of super liners and the British shipyards expect to build the bulk of them.

It is now announced that the Cunard Steamship Company is preparing for the construction of the world's largest steamship. According to present plans the tonnage of the new liner is to be 60,000 tons and its cost will be approximately $30,000,000. It will be built either on the Clyde or on the Tyne, giving employment to thousands of shipbuilding hands.

The chief interest of the announcement lies in the fact that this is a bold bid for the retention of British leadership on the Atlantic, which has been threatened by the plans of the North German Lloyd to build two more huge passenger steamers and by the reported intention of the American Shipping Board to construct ten high speed liners, six knots faster than the Mauretania.

Another indication of shipbuilding expansion is found in the report that the White Star Line has ordered a new 56,000 tons steamship from the Belfast yard of Harland and Wolf. The new ship is to be larger than the Majestic, which is at present the biggest on the Atlantic.

Both the new Cunarder and the new White Star liners will be oil burners, which is another indication disquieting to British coal operators of the passing of coal burning ships in luxury sea traffic.

OBITUARY

EDWARD ALLEN.

DOURO, Nov. 25.—The funeral of the late Edward Allen took place on Tuesday morning from his late residence, adjoining the village, to St. Joseph's church and cemetery. The mass of requiem was sung by Rev. J. McGuire, assistant pastor, while the graveside prayers were said by Rev. M. J. McGuire, pastor.

The pall bearers were Hubert and Emmett Allen (sons), William and Austin Allen (brothers) and George Whibbs and William Quinlan (brothers-in-law). Besides his widow, three sons, and a daughter, deceased is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Frank Kennedy of Douro, Mrs. Edward O'Toole of Peterboorugh, and Mrs. Frank Moher of Edmonton, and by four brothers, William and Austin of Douro, John of Edmonton, Albert and Joseph of Ethelwyn, Alberta.

Those from a distance who attended the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. Edward O'Toole, sons Leonard and Joseph and daughters Anna and Helen, Mrs. M. Kylie, Mrs. Amelia Guerin, Mrs. Bridget Sullivan, Mrs. Michael Carroll, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McMurray, Mr. and Mrs. Brioux, Mr. Patrick Allen and children. Miss Catherine Allen and Mr. McKenzie, all of Peterborough; Mrs. B. Beach and son Bertie of Hamilton, and Mr. and Mrs. Neil Quinlan of Asphodel.

TIMOTHY GARVEY.

DOURO, Nov. 25.—The funeral of the late Timothy Garvey took place on Friday morning from his late residence in the village to St. Joseph's church and cemetery. The solemn requiem mass was sung by Rev. J. J. Garvey of Lakefield, with Rev. V. McFadden of Trout Creek, deacon, Rev. J. Powers of Kearney, subdeacon, and Rev. P. Butler of Cobourg, master of ceremonies. Other clergy present in the sanctuary were His Lordship Bishop O'Brien of Peterborough, Rev. J. J. O'Brien and Rev. Father Maloney of the Sacred Heart parish, Peterborough, Rev. J. Guiry and Rev. Father Carroll of the Immaculate Conception parish, Peterborough, Rev. P. Costello of St. Peter's Cathedral, Peterborough, and Rev. M. J. McGuire, pastor, Rev. Father McAuley of Ennismore and Rev. J. McGuire, assistant pastor, assisted the choir.

His Lordship Bishop O'Brien gave a brief sermon on death and the need of constant preparedness therefor and mentioned the sacrifices made by deceased in giving a son to the church and two daughters for the convent. He exhorted parents to pray for and encourage religious vocations in their children as it is a consolation at the hour of death to know that one has given a child to the church to carry on God's great work.

The pall-bearers were David Garvey of Asphodel (nephew), Timothy Garvey of Lakefield (nephew), Patrick Farley (brother-in-law), and P. G. Towns, William Allen and Patrick O'Brien.

Most of the clergy present took part in the graveside prayers and exercises.

The Holy Name Society of which deceased was a member marched in a body to the cemetery, carrying their banner, and wearing their badges.

MAN BORN HERE DIES IN AFRICA

Dr. V. H. Brennan Was Well Known as Athlete While Living in Canada.

DISTINGUISHED SOLDIER.

W. J. Kearns has received word of the death of his cousin, Dr. F. H. Brennan, in the Lady Dudley Nursing Home, in Johannesburg, South Africa, on July 7. Dr. Brennan was born 65 years ago at the corner of Simcoe and Water streets, where his parents then resided. He is survived by his mother, in New York, who is now in her ninetieth year, also by his wife and one daughter, Maureen.

The interesting story of Dr. Brennan's life as told by one of the Johannesburg papers, reads as follows:

Dr. F. H. Brennan, sportsman, soldier, and for over thirty years a great figure in the life of the Witwatersrand, died in a Johannesburg nursing home on July 7. Dr. Brennan was 65 years old. His health had been failing for some months, and on Friday he entered the Lady Dudley Nursing Home.

Forty-six years a volunteer and a soldier, Dr. Brennan had fought through four campaigns and a Canadian rebellion. He had taken part in almost every form of athletics known to English-speaking peoples; and had excelled in boxing, running and baseball. A staunch Roman Catholic, a keen worker in the organisation of charity, and for many years Assistant Commissioner of the St. John Ambulance Brigade, he was one of the best known social workers on the Witwatersrand.

Born in Canada of Irish parents, Frederick Holles Brennan did not leave the land of his birth until he had completed his education. As a schoolboy he achieved as great fame on the sports field as in the classroom. At the age of 14 he had developed into such a strong baseball player that he was picked to represent the local team as first baseman and change pitcher in almost all their important engagements. Within the next two years he won numerous prizes for athletics and was always well to the fore in the college sports. He represented his university at the inter-university competitions, and often won honor for the university and fame for himself. He excelled in running, jumping and boxing. He continued his successful athletic career until he graduated at Ontario in 1886. Three years before, while at Trinity Medical College, he was elected president of the gymnastic and athletic society. He had not been in training as a boxer for more than twelve months when he won the championship of the university and was classed as the leading middle-weight of the Toronto Fencing Club.

After obtaining the degrees of M.D. and M.S.U. at Toronto and M.C.P.S. at Ontario, Dr. Brennan practised in Canada for the next nine years. During that time he was a committee member of the Amateur Athletic Association, president and captain of the city baseball team, the lacrosse club, and the hockey and soccer clubs. He was, furthermore, a fair speed skater and an official and a player in the local rugby team. Until he left Canada he was president of the Baseball Association.

Soon after his arrival on the Rand, he found the call of the game to be irresistible, and in 1896 he took part in the baseball games played on the Simmer and Jack mine. In 1905 he joined the Wanderers Club. For twenty-one years he was a regular player in the Wanderers baseball team, and only gave up taking an active part in the game at the end of last season. He was recently created a life member of the club.

Dr. Brennan held a distinguished war record. He first took part in active military operations when still a young man in Canada. Then he worked his way up to the rank of a Captain in the Great North-Western Rebellions. During the Boer war he acted in a medical capacity until the close of hostilities. When the call came in 1914, Dr. Brennan was one of the first to volunteer from South Africa. He was appointed Lieutenant-Colonel of the South African Irish Regiment. He led his troops in South-West Africa during the first year of the Great War, and then, when they demobilised, he joined the South African Medical Corps. During the fateful years between 1914 and 1919 he did sterling work amongst the wounded in East Africa. For his services he was awarded a Volunteer Officer's Decoration and the long-service medal.

At the conclusion of the Anglo-Boer war, Dr. Brennan, together with the late Father de Lacy, Mr. George O'Meara, and other prominent Irishmen, founded the Irish Club, with which the then existing Catholic Club became incorporated. He was always to the fore in doing something for the good of the club, and the Irish community in general, and had consequently won the esteem of all who knew him. Since the club's inception, Dr. Brennan had been a member of the committee and was elected president on numerous occasions.

The part played by Dr. Brennan in the St. John Ambulance Brigade, overseas, is best known to the Railway Headquarters branch, with which he has been connected for many years, and by whom he is affectionately referred to as "Doc."

As soon as the Boer War was over he started a band of nurses called "The Daughters of the Transvaal." In 1906, when the Transvaal branch of the brigade was formed, the "Dots" were co-opted with the women's section. Seven years later Dr. Brennan was promoted to the rank of Assistant Commissioner of the Transvaal District. Soon after this promotion, one of the highest honors possible was conferred upon him. He was decorated by the King with the rank of Esquire of the Order of St. John.

Among the many other activities with which the doctor was closely connected were the Transvaal Boxing Board of Control, the Marists Soccer Club, and the Rand Aid Association.

For many years Dr. Brennan has been practising at Temple Court in Eloff street.

The funeral was held with full military honors. More than 300 men and women members of St. John's Ambulance Brigade, and many representatives of the S.A. Medical Corps, the Wit. Rifles, the Rand Light Infantry, the Transvaal Scottish, the Imperial Light Horse and the Railway and Harbors Brigade were present. The coffin was draped with a huge Union Jack, and on it were placed the late Dr. Brennan's helmet, sword and belt. The popularity Dr. Brennan enjoyed was further evidenced by the large number of mourners who followed the hearse. A short service was conducted by Father O'Shea at the Kerk Street Catholic church, this being attended by members of the S.A.M.C., detachments of St. John and Red Cross V.A.D.'s, and officers and men of St. John's Ambulance Brigade (Overseas).

The pallbearers were Colonel D. Horwich (Army Director of Medical Services), Captain Allen, M.C. (representing Colonel Burne, District Staff Officer), Major W. H. Palmer, Captain A. H. Scott-Taylor (in charge of the St. John's Ambulance Brigade), Corps Superintendent J. A. Calder, and District Officer W. G. Kirk. Father O'Shea officiated at the graveside. The firing party was provided by the Wit. Rifles, and at the conclusion of the service buglers from the Imperial Light Horse sounded the "Last Post" and the "Reveille." Civilian mourners included representatives of the Wanderers' Club, the Baseball Club, the Irish Club, the National Sporting Club, and the Rand Aid Association.

ics said the failure of the conference was due to new diplomacy and the failure to prepare through diplomatic channels before the meeting. I frankly say that I take some blame to myself that we did not try further diplomatic preparation but remember we did not summon the conference. It was the United States who had asked us if we would join the conference of five, as it was then hoped it would be and of three as it proved to be. I did consider that we should have said to the United States at that moment: 'Would it not be well before you make that proposal formally, to consider on what basis the conference should meet and whether there is such a general agreement as will likely make the conference fruitful.' In the British government refraining from so speaking, it was lest it should appear we were seeking to avoid acceptance of the invitation and opposed to such an attempt for the further limitation of naval armament.

Preparation Necessary.

"I think it is a lesson of the conference," said Sir Austen, "that such preliminary preparation is necessary before such a conference is held.

"I have been asked," said the Foreign Secretary, "whether I am prepared to define 'a war aggression.' I am not. It would be a mistake to lay down far in advance any definition for we have arbitrated more, and on more important issues than any other country in the world. In ordinary arbitration treaties we reserve matters touching our independence, our vital interests and touching our honor, but in particular cases we have referred even such to arbitration.

"We arbitrated on "The Alabama," he said. "We arbitrated on the destruction of the fishing fleets on the Dogger Bank, and on the Alaska boundary. I have heard Canadians say that arbitration had sacrificed something of their vital interests."

Sir Austen, in alluding to Mr. MacDonald's assertion that Britain should go further, asked how much further did he want the Government to go. What fresh obligation was he ready to undertake.

"I understand the Rt. Hon. gentleman MacDonald to say that the opposition by the Australian Government to the Protocol was prompted by His Majesty's Government and Canada," said Sir Austen. He explained that such government in the British Empire stated its own objections to the protocol. He believed that none had changed its attitude.

Concluding Mr. Chamberlain said: "We shall have to reserve anything concerning the Dominions and make it perfectly clear we would not arbitrate on any matters in the sovereign jurisdiction of a state itself. If we are unprepared to take any engagement in advance which might require concurrent legislation in the parliaments of the Empire that does not mean we are not ready to use the fullest possible measure in arbitration for the settlement of disputes."

COWS SPOILING

the usual single wire barrier around the lawns. Mr. Massey replied that there was. After some discussion it was decided to place the matter in the hands of the police.

The next matter for discussion was who was responsible for the renting of the High School Assembly Hall? Recently there was some misunderstanding along this line and considerable inconvenience was caused to a great many persons. Had there been a definite understanding at that time, matters might have been much more pleasant and simplified for all concerned. This was on the occasion of the convention of the Boys' Parliament here. A meeting was scheduled to take place in the High School auditorium at a certain hour and Mr. Massey was not notified till about two hours before the meeting. It was almost impossible for him to make the necessary preparation in such a short time. Brief investigation disclosed the fact that this was another of the duties of the internal committee, and it was definitely agreed that Wesley Stevens would be the one responsible for notifying the caretaker in future.

This matter having been satisfactorily adjusted, Dr. Watson brought the matter of transportation of the out-of-town students before the board. Charles Palliser, who has the contract for supplying a conveyance for the purpose, claimed that he had only a one-ton truck, and two tons load of children. It had become an impossibility to accommodate all the pupils. His trailer was not a suitable conveyance as it was at present, but could be made suitable and pressed into service, but he thought he ought to be granted an extra fifty cents a day for its use. He also wanted some protection in case of injury to any of his passengers, and suggested that the parents of the pupils be asked to sign an agreement relieving him of all responsibility. Mr. Greig, when asked, agreed to write the parents of these pupils and ask them to sign a form to that effect which he would have drafted and mailed to them. Regarding the transportation of these pupils, Mr. Greig thought the money was spent to the best advantage of any money which the board had ever spent.

Trustee Cock stated that he was very much in favor of the idea, not for the sake of those who were being afforded this convenience, but for those who were already in class when the out-of-town students arrived late. Coming in a body, as they did, there would not be the prolonged disturbance which was bound to be the case when the pupils walked from the station and arrived at the school singly or in small groups. Also they would be able to arrive a few minutes earlier. He said he had watched this feature very carefully since its institution a few weeks ago.

The property committee was asked to look into the matter of latches for the outer doors of the public schools. It was impossible for the caretaker to keep these doors closed and for that reason the halls and corridors of the school were usually very cold. Mr. Greig had nothing to bring before the board, so the accounts were read and passed. A brief, unofficial discussion of a minor accident to one of the pupils followed.

PATTE AND WOLFF FOXES WIN PRIZES

Peterborough Men Have Four Winners in Sixteen Exhibited.

Four prizes for foxes were gained by Patte & Wolff Foxes of Peterborough at the Winter Fair. A second prize was gained for an adult male with a recorded litter in the dark silver class, in which there were six entrants from Ontario and Prince Edward Island; another male was awarded fourth place in dark medium silver class. Fifth prize was for a young female whelped in 1927, and sixth prize was for a dark silver male also whelped in this year. Sixteen animals were exhibited by Patte & Wolff.

George Colbeck of Prince Edward Island and Vincent Phail of Toronto were the judges.

Three hundred and twenty-two foxes were on exhibition, comprising the finest animals of their kind in the world. The competition was keen, the standard being very high. Wins this year bring the total number of prizes gained by Patte & Wolff up to eleven. The Peterborough ranch did not show any animals at the Winter Fair last year, but took part in the contest in 1924 and 1925.

Messrs. Patte & Wolff were also exhibitors of the products of the Peterborough Fox Supplies, showing pelts, wire fencing, and essentials in the rearing of foxes. Prominently displayed was a large picture, with the prize ribbons fastened on the frame, showing views of the Peterborough Fox Ranch, a photo of Jack Patte with some cubs, one of the head rancher, several cubs whelped in 1924, and a view of the keeper's house, the cook's kitchen, and the feed building.

FRIDAY NOV. 25, 1927.

LAST NIGHT'S BANQUET.

The banquet tendered by the City Council last night to Peterborough's baseball teams was a happy reunion that was a fitting climax to a very successful season.

It was a happy thought to invite the players of all the clubs that distinguished themselves during the season, from the bantams up to the seniors.

The players enjoyed the opportunity to fraternize, and the presence of so many athletes was a recognition on the part of the Council that sport has a very important part in the community life of Peterborough.

Although no Provincial championships came to Peterborough as a result of the past summer's campaign, the seniors won the Lakeshore League title and reached the Ontario finals; the Kiwanis bantams also got to the final stage in their series; the Belmont softball team were finalists in the Ontario senior race, and other clubs honoured last night did well in their respective classes.

The city fathers, in officially recognizing what these teams have accomplished, have paid a tribute to the good work of Peterborough's athletes that will be approved by the citizens generally.

FALSE ALARMS.

Several times recently the Peterborough Fire Department has been the victim of a false alarm, the whole equipment being turned out when an alarm came in from one of the boxes.

There is a heavy penalty for this needlessly calling upon the services of the department, and it is right that there should be in view of the danger and inconvenience involved.

It should not be forgotten that every time the fire brigade answers a call in these days of rapidly moving motor apparatus there is the risk of a bad accident, especially when the streets are slippery as they have been for the past week or two.

This danger the firemen are ready to assume when life and property are threatened, but they should not have to face injury in speeding to a box that has been operated by somebody with a distorted sense of humour.

Again there is always the chance that while the department is thus making a futile journey to one section of the city a genuine alarm may come in from some other section, and much valuable time might be lost before it arrived at the spot where its services were really needed.

BRICKER'S GREAT WIN.

Canada's chances for premier honours in the marathon, one of the biggest features of the Olympic competitions, are considerably enhanced by the great victory of Clifford Bricker, the splendid Galt long distance runner, in yesterday's famous Berwick, Pa., marathon.

Running over a course made slippery and treacherous by recent rains, Bricker won the race in close to record time for the second year in succession.

He faced a track field, the largest in the history of the event, and comprising the premier long distance runners in the United States, for the records made in yesterday's event were looked upon as a test by which the composition of the marathon section of the American Olympic team would be decided.

Bricker's splendid victory will be a source of great encouragement to the Canadian Olympic Committee, and will serve to send a thrill of enthusiasm through every Olympic prospect in this country.

It assures Canada of a worthy representative in an event that has always been regarded as outstanding in the Olympic programme.

THE NEED OF A STADIUM.

Out of last night's successful baseball banquet came assurances from members of the Council that there was no intention of doing away with an enclosed athletic field at James Stevenson Park, and from His Worship Mayor Holloway an interesting proposal in regard to the building of a proper stadium there.

The Mayor felt that the city itself could not finance the construction of such an athletic plant, but he was firmly of the opinion that enough $5 subscriptions could be secured in Peterborough to make a stadium possible.

His idea is that the names of all citizens who subscribed might be placed on a parchment to be buried under the home plate of the new grounds.

Furthermore, Mayor Holloway showed his faith in the proposal by offering to devote a great deal of his time toward furthering the scheme.

There is not the slightest doubt that His Worship has uncovered a very real need.

Peterborough lacks an adequate enclosed playing field, with modern substantial stands, proper dressing-rooms, shower-baths and other facilities.

James Stevenson Park is the logical site for such an athletic field, and before long steps will have to be taken to bring about the improvements outlined by Mayor Holloway.

That is inevitable if Peterborough is to continue to hold the place on the baseball map that her teams, old and young, have won for her in recent years in Provincial competition.

GREAT BRITAIN'S CREDIT.

British sterling on Saturday reached its highest peak in New York since 1924. Big Bill Thompson and the other tall twisters of the lion had better take note. For the plain meaning of the rise of sterling is that whatever certain polling precincts in Chicago may think, the people of the United States who know how to think do not share Big Bill's fantastic nonsense. Their estimate of Britain and the British is their faith in British credit. And their faith in British credit is expressed in their confidence in sterling.

It might be a good thing for the United States if all its Big Bills could be got to study Britain's financial relations with their country since the close of the war. Perhaps if they studied those relations and compared them with the record of other countries that also owe Uncle Sam money they might be induced to conclude that "Perfidious Albion" is not quite so perfidious as her enemies sometimes hold. They might even come to realize that a people who are paying out their gold now to keep their word just as magnificently as they poured out their blood ten years ago to honor a "scrap of paper" cannot be so bad, after all. That, precisely, is what Britain is doing; and that is why, among thinking people, in the United States and all the world over, British credit mounts higher and higher. For the credit of a nation, in the last analysis, rests upon a nation's character.—Ottawa Journal.

QUEBEC AND THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE.

Hon. Athanase David, Provincial Secretary of Quebec, spoke a good passage for Canada the other day when he said to a gathering of his compatriots:

"I do insist that our young French-Canadians be armed with the weapon with which they will be able to fight their way through the domain of industry and commerce. They must be given a perfect command of the English language."

This, in addition to being good Canadianism, is good sense. Much is heard in Ontario about the folly of English-speaking Canadians not learning French. Much less is heard of the fact that a vast proportion of French-Canadians in Quebec do not learn English. True, their public men speak English perfectly, much more perfectly, in fact, than most of us in Ontario speak it; but there is a wide gulf between the Quebec public man and many of his constituents. The truth, in fact, is that there are whole counties in Quebec, particularly in the Quebec district, where English is never spoken, and where, to the majority of the inhabitants, it is an unknown language.

This is unfair, and harmful, to the young men of Quebec. English, to a very wide extent, has become the language of commerce and of this continent; and by not knowing the language, the young French-Canadian shuts himself out from any great business career in his own country. All of which is a pity, not only for French-Canadians, but for Canada.

Nobody wants to Anglicize Quebec. They couldn't do it, even if they wanted to. But all of us should be interested in having the natural talent and ability of the young men of Quebec made more useful in the national life by a growth among them of a knowledge of English. Mr. David, it is evident, clearly perceives this fact.—Ottawa Journal.

"BEWARE THE FLAG FLAPPERS."

The general opinion expressed at the time Mayor Thompson of Chicago made his attacks upon King George and the British people would do more good than harm has been proved to be correct. Our columns have contained many quotations from the United States press showing how his efforts to stir up mischief between the two countries have been ridiculed, resented and deplored; and so far as the Motherland is concerned, we believe the people simply say "Silly ass," and let it go at that, while they appreciate what the American press says almost without exception on the matter.

As an instance of what the United States press does say we wish to refer to the able and thoughtful editorial which appeared in this week's "Collier's." It is so good that we should like to produce it here fully, but not being able to do that we will quote a few telling sentences from it. Thus the paper begins by saying:

"Love of our own country can't be proved by expressing hatred for some other country. Yet at the present time a great many politicians and leaders of various sorts are seeking to win public favor by shouting aloud their opposition to foreigners in general and to England in particular. Chicago is the centre of this anti-English campaign, merely because Chicago's boisterous Mayor thinks the agitation politically profitable. A similar campaign might be started almost anywhere. All of us have sleeping suspicions of foreigners. Only a loud voice is needed to awaken them. The Chicago controversy actually hinges on the control of the city schools. Simple folks think that schools are for the education of the young, but politicians know otherwise; schools are to provide jobs and contracts for politicians and their friends. When Mayor Thompson's friends decide that the superintendent of education permitted history books too friendly to England to be used in the school-rooms, they are looking for the loaves and fishes. They expect their patriotism to pay nice profits."

The above can be considered to be a universal opinion in the United States. But Collier's also points out that the tragedy of this consists in not only there being men who are willing to delude the people, but that the people allow themselves to be so easily deluded. Then this paper draws attention to the absurdity of trying in these days "to keep at white heat the embers of these ancient grudges." This point is very ably argued and should be studied, as also the one as to the manner in which the population of the United States has been built up. Then it winds up by saying:

"We have no quarrel with any people. No foreign Government is seeking our injury. On the contrary, by the very richness of our destiny, we are drawing closer to all foreign peoples. Distances have been shortened. Communication has been widened and made instantaneous, and our prosperity has driven us to seek foreign opportunities for our investments. These things will go on and relations will become more intimate. You will send your money to Europe as in the past Europeans sent their savings here to build our railroads and public utilities. So when you hear office seekers raving about issues which do not exist and see them playing upon dormant hatreds, ask them what it is they really want. The chances are that while diverting attention by waving the flag of patriotism they are themselves endeavoring to carry off your precious possessions."

—Kingston Whig-Standard.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Ontario Agricultural College freshment are sentenced to stay in at nights because of the hazing of one of their number. But what else could they do anyway in Guelph?

Premier Ferguson has been beaten at horseshoes by Hon. W. D. Ross. The Premier knows what it's all about. He might have overthrown the constitution if he had beaten the Lieutenant-Governor.

The early shopper is both helpful and wise. He makes conditions easier for store staffs, and at the same time he ensures good selection and attentive service.

Quebec has banned heavy motor traffic for the present to save the Provincial roads from destruction. It is a wise move that may have to be followed here if the weather conditions do not improve.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, November 26.—There were but three or four loads of fresh stock in yesterday, and nothing of special quality. In order to effect a clearing of the week's heavy run of cattle, the carry-over consisting almost entirely of stale and the lower grade offerings, some slight concessions were made as to prices averaging perhaps 25c per cwt. on the poorest quality stuff.

For anything of good to choice quality, butchers or feeding stock, the market remains steady and the prices unchanged.

Hogs are 25c lower, packers succeeding in getting yesterday's hogs at bid prices.

Calves firmer, with a light run.

Lambs easy and a quarter lower.

Hogs unsettled. Bids 25c lower.

Heavy beef steers, choice, $8.75 to $9.50. Choice handy butcher steers, $8.50 to $9.25. Choice heifers, $8.25 to $8.75.

Stockers and feeders, strong with a demand for choice heavy feeders for export, from $7.50 to $8.00.

Baby steers firm, choice $12.00 to $13.00.

Comomn steers and heifers, $5.50 to $7.50; medium, $4.50 to $5.00.

Canners and cutters, $2.75 to $4.50.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Nov. 25 (Canadian Press).—The foreign demand for Canadian grain here yesterday was again quiet owing to the fact that buyers show little disposition to follow the high prices asked of late.

A steady feeling prevailed in the market for coarse grains, but the volume of business was small.

The flour market was without any special feature to note, prices for Spring and Winter wheat grades being well maintained under a moderate demand.

An active business was transacted in all lines of millfeed and the undertone of the market was firm. A firm feeling prevailed in the market for standard grades of rolled oats and the inquiry was fair.

The local and foreign demand for Canadian baled hay was quieter but prices ruled steady.

The egg trade was fairly active and prices for fresh and storage grades ruled firm. The receipts were 796 cases.

The demand for potatoes was confined to odd cars but prices were unchanged. Sales of car lots of Prince Edward Island Whites were made at $1.25 to $1.30 per bag of 90 pound; Green Mountains at $1.30 to $1.35 per bag of 90 pounds; New Brunswick Green Mountains at $1.25 to $1.30 per bag in bulk; Cobblers at $1.05 to $1.10 per bag in bulk, and Quebec varieties at $1.00 to $1.05 per bag in bulk, ex-track.

The tone of the market for beans was steady under moderate demand. Sales of car lots of imported beans on spot were made at $2.50 per bushel, and to arrive at $2.60 per bushel, ex-track with smaller quantities selling at $2.75 per bushel, ex-store.

An easier feeling developed in the butter market and prices were reduced ¼c to ½c per pound. This was attributed to the limited demand of late. The receipts were 513 packages.

Extreme dullness again marked the local and export trade in cheese, but values were unchanged. The receipts were 850 boxes.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

ABOUT ARMISTICE DAY

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

Sir—In your issue of the 19th inst. you published a letter which was signed "Lakefield Reader." This same letter was also published in a recent issue of the Lakefield News and there, was signed, "Indignant"—evidently a dual personality!

Although I do not think a writer who makes an attack on a man or a body of men, without having sand enough to sign his own name deserves any notice, yet as statements are made in that letter which call for reply, I ask you to kindly grant me such space as necessary to do so.

"L.R." takes exception to our ceremony because "not a hymn was sung, not a prayer offered up". I wonder what "L.R." was doing during the Two Minutes Silence. Was he not saying a prayer? If he was not, then he should have been. As to the effect of our ceremony on the young, I think it will probably have the effect desired by the Legion—that of bringing to remembrance the Dead Soldiers on that date, November 11th, something that has been lacking in this community for some years.

"L.R." takes it on himself to state what he calls "a few facts." He is labouring under a delusion. The facts of the case are as follows:

The Local Branch of the Legion, wishing to call attention to the lack of observance of this date, i.e., Nov. 11th—arranged for a ceremony on that date consisting of a parade of all the School children, the cadets of the high school and the Grove school, and such veterans as were able to attend the ceremony, to celebrate in what they thought was a fitting manner.

A community committee was formed to work in conjunction with the Legion. The chairman of this committee was referred to in the letter recently published by you. He is a returned man, a member of the Legion, and one of the clergy of the village. He was asked to have all the denominations represented at the meeting, and at any Service they proposed holding. This the Committee were apparently unable to do, and the Chairman of this committee resigned; so the Legion went ahead with their own arrangements for a ceremony that would include all, and I think that anyone that was present, and wishes to be fair, will say our ceremony was a representative gathering of the community.

As for a few "arbitrary members"—rejecting the programme of the community, I wish to state in fairness to myself and the other officers of the Legion, that this matter was brought before a meeting of the Branch, at which most of the Members were present, a vote was taken and passed.

"L.R." says "he will not deny the right of the Veterans to a prominent place in an affair of this kind." Very kind of him—it being their own affair.

In conclusion, I wish to say that the so-called community committee could have carried on as they saw fit on that day; indeed we asked that they do so, if they wished a church service of any kind at the Cenotaph, after our ceremony.

The Legion does not wish to censor the work of anybody other than themselves; nor will they allow any other body to dictate to them as to how they shall honour their own dead. If "L.R." has anything further to say, let him be man enough to sign his name, otherwise any further hedge-sniping will be ignored, and receive the silent contempt it deserves.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for this space in your paper, I am,

Yours truly,

M. P. KENNEDY,
President, Lakefield Branch.

A Thought For To-day

IF YOU GET IN THE WAY.

Most men are anxious to get ahead, but so few have the ambition to keep ahead.

They start in on a new job with wild enthusiasm and naturally make a good showing; but as soon as they feel secure in that new position, they seem to slow down and discount all of that beginning ambition.

They seem to feel so secure, so sure, so satisfied with their start, but remember, a good start sets an example and then, if you fail to keep up the example, you unconsciously show that you are a good starter, but a poor finisher.

Success is like ascending a flight of stairs. When you stop climbing and stand still, you stand still, but the worst thing about this situation is that, on the stairs of success, if you stand still, you get in the way of the other members of the organization, so keep on going up or come down.

She Coughed Night and Day Could Not Sleep

Mrs. Leonard Haywood, Victoria Corner, N.B., writes:—"Last fall I took an awful cold which I caught while driving in an open car on a cold day.

"I coughed night and day, could not sleep at night, and my eyes ran water so that I could hardly see a thing.

"My husband got me a bottle of

and before I had taken the whole of it my cold had disappeared."

"Dr. Wood's" has been on the market for the past 39 years; price 35c. a bottle, large family size 60c.; put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

THE NATURE OF TRUE WORSHIP

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for November 27. The Nature of True Worship. Isa. 1:10-20.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
The Editor of The Congregationalist.

That Micah's explicit and profound definition of religion, as doing justly, loving kindness, and walking humbly with God, was not an isolated instance of real and vital religious experience and outlook, in an age and religious environment that attached much importance to ritual and sacrifice, is evident in this lesson, taken from the introduction to the prophecy of Isaiah.

The book of Isaiah is now commonly supposed by Biblical scholars to be the work of at least two hands. The latter part of the book, from the fortieth chapter on, is regarded as coming out of the period following the Exile to Babylon. It deals manifestly with that phase of Israel's life. The former part of the book of Isaiah is regarded as dating from almost two hundred years earlier.

The writer of the earlier prophecies associated with the name of Isaiah, was practically contemporary with Micah. So that when we set the teaching of this lesson side by side with that of the last lesson taken from Micah, we have strongly enforced the impression of that age as one of religious revival in Israel.

Stressing Reality.

The greatest revival and progress of religion have always come from a new emphasis upon reality. This means sometimes a going back to an early experience or teaching that may have become corrupted or neglected. Surely every man who has read the New Testament with intelligence and sincerity has often felt, as he has read, the impulse for a return to a keener and more practical following of the example and teaching of Jesus!

The later rleigion of theology and form becomes quickened in such moods of exaltation in an impulse of deep allegiance to the personal Christ.

At other times this revival comes through a going back, through form and ritual, to the spiritual experiences and meanings that form and ritual are intended to express. It is so easy for experiences that were vital to become merely formal, and most of us follow religious custom without thinking out and following the realities for ourselves.

So it was that Micah challenged a religion of formal offerings and sacrifices in which the heart itself was not concerned. Worship in good living, the surrender of the soul to God, is depicted as the only sacrifice in which God has pleasure.

The Drama of Isaiah.

It is this teaching of Micah that finds equal enforcement in this introduction to the prophecies of Isaiah. Isaiah persents the truth in dramatic form. It is a trial scene in which heaven and earth are the judges. It reminds us of Micah's figure of the Lord's controversy with his people.

Here God himself is represented as saying to Israel, "What unto me is the multitude of your sacrifices?" Considering the fact that animal sacrifices were still an important ritual fact of the religion of Israel, it is almost impossible for us to grasp the full significance of the revolutionary character of the words of Micah and Isaiah.

It is almost as if one should say today that forms and creeds areunimportant and that it is the real life that counts. It is as if one were to set Christianity over against merechurchianity. Those who have done so in our own day have often been accused of being unorthodox in faith or disloyal to the Church. May they not often represent, however, in our own age very much what Micah and Isaiah represented in theirs?

The words that Isaiah attributes to the Lord are tremendous and sweeping in their quality. "Bring no more vain oblations; incense is an abomination unto me; the new moons and sabbaths, the calling of assemblies, I cannot away with; it is iniquity, even the solemn meeting. Your new moons and your appointed feasts my soul hateth; they are a trouble unto me; I am weary to hear them."

There is only one way of life, and Isaiah in the words that he attributes to God finds it with equal insistence, "Wash you, make you clean; put away the evil of your doings from before mine eyes; cease to do evil; learn to do well; seek justice, relieve the oppressed, judge the fatherless, plead for the widow."

But this not all. Isaiah represents the Lord as not merely condemning but as appealing and luring men to grace and righteousness. "Come now, and let us reason together, saith Jehovah; though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool."

The Teaching.

What wonderful teachings are these? In what a magnificent way they scale the heights and ascend to the very depths of the realities of soul life and social and national religion! If the preachers and prophets of religion had all been equally open-minded and fearless, and practical and definite, how much further would the world be along the road of true religion and the attainment of social justice, and how much more triumphant would be the power of the church in the modern world?

What is the teaching of the lesson? It is that these things come home to the individual soul, that our religious life does not depend upon others, but that to-day in earnestness, simplicity, and sincerity we can begin to practise these great things of religion in our own lives in all our relations to God and to our fellow men.

Text: Isa. 1:10-20.

Hear the word of the Lord, ye rulers of Sodom; give ear unto the law of our God, ye people of Gomorrah:

To what purpose is the multitude of your sacrifices unto me? saith the Lord: I am full of the burnt offerings of rams, and the fat of fed beasts; and I delight not in the blood of bullocks, or of lambs, or of he goats.

When ye come to appear before me, who hath required this at your hand to tread my courts?

Bring no more vain oblations: incense is an abomination unto me; the new moons and sabbaths, the calling of assemblies, I cannot away with: it is iniquity, even the solemn meeting.

Your new moons and your appointed feasts my soul hateth: they are a trouble unto me; I am weary to bear them.

And when ye spread forth your hands, I will hide mine eyes from you; yea, when ye make many prayers, I will not hear: your hands are full of blood.

Wash you, make you clean; put away the evil of your doings from before mine eyes; cease to do evil;

Learn to do well; seek judgment, relieve the oppressed; judge the fatherless; plead for the widow.

Come now, and let us reason together, saith the Lord: Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool.

If ye be willing and obedient, ye shall eat the good of the land:

But if ye refuse and rebel, ye shall be devoured with the sword: for the mouth of the Lord htath spoken it.

PRESBYTERY MEETS FOR FALL SESSION

Rev. Dr. P. Bryce is Speaker at Meeting of Cobourg District.

WARKWORTH, Nov. 25.—The fall meeting of the Cobourg Presbytery was held in Grafton on Thursday, November 17, with sessions morning and afternoon. Rev. J. S. I. Wilson, chairman of the Presbytery, had charge.

After the opening devotional exercises Rev. W. H. Tanton of Cobourg gave a very helpful and interesting devotional address. The Presbytery then began its business and many matters of interest were discussed and decisions reached.

At the noon hour the different committees met and prepared their reports for the afternoon session.

Reports of the maintenance and extension fund were presented by the Rev. T. Anderson of Port Hope, Rev. W. W. Jones of Warkworth, and Rev. J. S. I. Wilson.

Following the reports Rev. Dr. P. Bryce of Toronto gave a very helpful talk on the work of the church throughout its entire constituency.

The Religious Education committee presented its report in four sections. The general report was presented by Rev. H. B. Neal of Wooler; Rev. C. D. Daniel of Campbellford spoke on Young People's Work; Rev. John E. Glover of Smithfield spoke on Temperance Problems, while Rev. J. E. Beckel presented the work of the Standard Training School. The third report was from the committee on Evangelism and Social Service given by Rev. Andrew McLaughlin, Grafton.

It was conceded by all that this was one of the best Presbytery meetings ever held.

The Ladies' Aid of the Grafton United church served dinner and supper in the Town Hall under the direction of the president, Mrs. P. C. Brown.

The spring Presbytery meeting will be held at Warkworth with date to be arranged by the executive.

The boys' election will be held on Saturday, November 26 for the Older Boys' Parliament which is to convene in Toronto the week between Christmas and New Years. Polls are to be opened from two p.m. until eight p.m. Where it is found necessary an advance poll can be held Friday evening, November twenty-fifth. There are seven hundred and twenty-five names on the voters' list and the interest grows keener as the candidates continue their speaking tour from place to place.

The candidates are Lloyd Dorland, Wooler, and Gerald Wright, Brighton. The deputy returning officers are as follows:

Wooler, Rev H. B. Neal; Brighton, Howard Rundle; Smithfield, Rev. John E. Glover; Campbellford and Seymour, Rev. C. D. Daniel; Hastings, Rev. A. C. Hie; Hilton, Rev. W. H Clarke; Morganston, C. D. Massey; Castleton, George Brown; Colborne, Fred Brintnell; Roseneath, Rev. R. Brown; Warkworth, W. Bowen; Norham, Rev. D. R. Clarke; Orland, R. Ryckman; Meyersburg, John Ibey; Stockdale, G. W. Irvin; Oak Heights, W. Covert; Havelock, Rev. W. R. Archer; Sharon, E. N. Hinman; Cramahe Baptist, Moran Grills; Castleton-Dartford, Leslie Hardy.

MADOC DRUG STORE CHANGES OWNERS

Madoc Man Buys Shop in Which He Has Worked For Six Years.

MADOC, November 25. — The drug and stationery business formerly owned by Col. W. R. Rierdon, has been purchased by T. H. Rupert of Madoc.

Mr Rupert is a graduate of the Ontario College of Pharmacy, and has had eight years' experience in the drug business, of which six years have been spent in Madoc in the Red Cross Drug Store.

MILLBROOK NEWS

MILLBROOK, Nov. 24.—The Continuation School is presenting its annual entertainment in the town hall on Thursday, December 1, when, in addition to two plays, and some school choruses, the diplomas will be presented, and the Norman Allen scholarship awarded.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Cameron have gone to Ottawa for the winter. Mrs. Cameron spent the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Clarry, Mr. Cameron being absent in connection with his duties as an employee of the government survey department.

The boy candidates from the Tuxis Squares in this section of the county are now presenting their respective platforms, and seeking election as representatives for East Durham in the Seventh Older Boys' Parliament, which meets in Queen's Park in December, Archie Deyell, of the Victor Square, Bailieboro, and Lawrence Dunbar, of Garden Hill, are two candidates appealing for support. Nelles Rowland, of Millbrook, was elected for East Durham last year.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. H. Johnston, Mr. H. A. Elson, and L. J. Hutchinson are among those from here attending the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto this week.

Considerable local interest was taken in the clock contest which has been featured at Ivan L. H. Gray's drug-store recently; the clock was wound up on October 29, at 11 a.m., and stopped at 4:58 a.m. on Thursday, November 10. Estimations as to what time the clock would actually cease running have been made by scores of customers, the winners being: First, Mrs. F. P. Stinson, the prize being $10.00 worth of goods from the store; second, Mrs. W. H. Lunn; third, Mrs. Floyd McMahon; fourth, Mrs. J. J. Lunn.

Councillor T. J. Lang was in Toronto this week looking after the shipment of hogs and other stock which had been shipped from here on Monday.

Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Fierheller, of Bethany, were in town on Wednesday and attended the play in the town hall given by the Bethany Dramatic Club. Misses Gladys and Vera Fierheller, the rector's daughters, took leading parts in the entertainment.

Mr. McGregor, of Ottawa, has been in town this week taking up with the Reeve and council the claims of his company in connection with the proposed drainage and paving program which has been under consideration for some time.

Councillors P. Stinson and J. R. Eakins made a business trip to Montreal last week.

Mrs. Havelock C. Graham, who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Smith, for two or three weeks past, has returned to her home in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Wright, of Peterborough, were week-end guests of her parents, Councillor and Mrs. T. J. Lang.

Rev. P. C. and Mrs. Howard, Misses Gladys Gray and M. Christie, and Mr. A. A. Needler represented the local A. Y. P. A. at the recent district meeting held at Omemee.

Rev. Dr. P. Bryce, of Toronto, who addressed the laymen at the banquet in the United Church on Thursday evening, was the guest of Rev. F. H. and Mrs. Howard at the parsonage during his stay in town. Dr. Bryce spoke to the delegates at the Presbyterial meeting at Grafton in the afternoon.

Miss M. E. Needham is in Toronto this week attending the Royal Winter Fair.

Mr. F. W. Burnham, of Peterborough, visited his mother, Mrs. E. S. Burnham, on Wednesday this week.

V. C. Lambert and W. Whyte returned on Wednesday from their ten days' deer hunt in the Muskoka district; there were six in the party, and three deer were secured among them.

Miss Falconer, of Peterborough, is spending a few days this week with her cousin, Mrs. C. M. Westmacott.

Rev. F. H. Howard, Messrs. M. McDowell and A. J. Brown motored to Grafton on Thursday and attended the meeting of the Cobourg Presbyterial of the United Church.

REMOVE BODIES FROM SCENE OF BLAST

What is described as Pittsburgh's greatest disaster occurred early this month when the huge gas tank of the Equitable Gas Company exploded with terrific force. Witnesses said the tank, which extended seventy-five feet above the ground, rose high in the air and was rent asunder. There was a puff of smoke, then the sky was illuminated by a big ball of fire and the remnants of the tank crashed to the ground. The above picture shows rescuers removing bodies from the blast wreckage.

LADIES WILL BUY LAMPS FOR CHURCH

Warsaw Presbyterian Church To Be Improved—Two Plays Given.

WARSAW, Nov. 25.—The Presbyterian Ladies' Aid met on Tuesday afternoon at Mrs. Bruce Douglas' home. The inclement weather lessened the number, but the ladies decided to get two Coleman quick-lite lamps for the church. The present lamps give a poor light.

The plays, "Mr. Bob, or when Brown Came Down", and a shorter one, "Box and Cox", presented by the Dramatic Club of St. Luke's church and put on by the Ladies' Guild of St. Mark's church, in Warsaw Town Hall on Tuesday evening, were much appreciated by those who were present. The hall was quite well filled and many who wished to attended did not because of the bad weather. There would likely have been a packed house. The St. Luke's people expressed themselves as pleased with the number present.

Warsaw Orchestra assisted with the music.

The Ladies' Guild served refreshments to those who gave the program or assisted.

There was a dance after the play.

Mrs. Atkinson (nee Ada Payne) from Roseneath was in the village on Sunday.

Mrs. Thomas Cooper returned from Toronto on Saturday. She is very enthusiastic over the convention.

Miss Elsie Cooper was home on Tuesday evening and was accompanist for the dance.

Hilliard Edwards, Harold Rae, Melville Miller and Earl Drain are among the young men who attended the Winter Fair.

CHRISTMAS SEALS HAVE BEEN MAILED

Peterborough Health Association Does Good Work With Dollars Returned.

The Christmas seals, got out by the Peterborough Health Association, are in the mail. Those cheery little reminders of the holiday season will soon be received by those whose names are on the list that has been made up. One hundred seals, a dollar's worth of Christmas greetings will be found in the envelope addressed to you. The Christmas Seals will be for your use, and the dollar you send back will be for the use of those whose Christmas season, in any event will be none too happy.

If any sender could but follow the dollar he sends and sees the work it does in relieving sickness and distress, under the guidance of the Health Association, they would only regret they had not sent more. The dollar works among the ailing, not only at the Christmas season, but all the year round, coupled with free service and treatment it can accomplish much.

When you receive your envelope of Christmas seals, put the dollar in the return envelope which accompanies them and drop it in the mail, with a feeling of thankfulness that you have been given an opportunity to share in this work. If on the other hand, you do not receive a letter, because it would have been an impossible task for the ladies of the committee to put every name on the list, you are at liberty to contribute just the same. Call up Mrs. G. S. Cameron at 318 Stewart Street, and explain that you would like to aid in the work and purchase some Seals, and they will be gratefully sent you.

Through snowy blizzards or driving rain the district nurse guides her car around the city on its errand of mercy. Surely no one would want the visits to be curtailed for lack of funds.

CAVAN PERSONALS

CAVAN, Nov. 25.—The Cavan Rural Telephone Co. held its annual meeting on Monday evening at the home of Mr. D. J. Hunter.

Mrs. Howson went to Toronto on Tuesday, intending to reside there with her children, Muriel and Earl, who have positions there.

Mr. Earl McGill, who was married to Miss Lorraine Page on Wednesday, November 16, has, with his bride, taken up residence on his farm near Carmel.

Mrs. I. Keegan spent a few days this week, the guest of Mrs. F. M. Staples.

There was a holiday in S.S. No. 7 on Friday. Miss Staples spent the week end in Toronto, going on Friday.

Mr. James Paul on Tuesday accompanied an engineer on a trip of inspection of the gravel pits along the route through Cavan and Cartwright, which the highway between Port Perry and Peterborough would be likely to take.

There was no service in Cavan United church on Sunday evening on account of the anniversary services in Mount Pleasant church. A number from Cavan appointment motored over.

Messrs. Wilfred Reynolds and Morris Williamson are spending a week in the north country hunting.

Miss Ruth Staples spent the week end with friends at Janetville.

Miss Ruth Keegan is spending some time in Rochester.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Kennedy attended the funeral of the former's aunt, the late Mrs. Robinson, in Peterborough on Tuesday.

On Tuesday at noon, Mrs. F. M. Staples was hostess at a pot-luck dinner at her home.

There were fourteen ladies present. The dinner was abundant and appetising. Each lady contributed one article to the menu, sufficient for all present. Likewise each lady contributed a coin toward the Ladies' Aid fund. Three dollars and fifty-five cents was contributed. After the dinner a very pleasant social hour was enjoyed in music and conversation before the guests went to their homes.

Rev. J. O. Totten and Mr. T. Madill kindly brought a number of the ladies in their cars, remaining as guests of Mr. Staples.

Among the ladies present were Mrs. James Douglas, Mrs. J. W. Perrin, Mrs. Rowen, Mrs. T. Madill, Mrs. H. Braithwaite, Miss Frances Hunter, Mrs. John Staples, Mrs. E. Syer, Mrs. A. Tinney, Mrs. William Nill, Mrs. I. Keegan, Mrs. D. Nill, Mrs Totten and Mrs. F. M. Staples.

Mr. and Mrs. Austin Hall and daughter, Margaret, Toronto, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Matchett, this week.

They, with Mrs. Matchett, visited their aunts, Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Staples, in Bethany, on Tuesday.

Rev. J. O. Totten and Ralph Staples visited the Bailieboro boys at their regular meeting last week. Messrs. Staples, Deyell and Dunbar, the three candidates in this riding for the Boys' Paliament, addressed the boys.

COURT STANLEY IS 38 YEARS OLD

Local A.O.F. Lodge Holds "Jiggs Dinner" in Honor of Anniversary.

GOOD PROGRAM.

Court Stanley A.O.F. celebrated its 38th anniversary on Tuesday evening in the Knights of Pythias Hall, when about sixty-five of the members partook of a real "Jiggs" dinner. Of course the corned beef and cabbage took pride of place on the menu with the necessary trimmings for the occasion, not forgetting the well known rolling pin, which luckily was not put into action. The room was decorated with cartoons of "Maggie and Jiggs" in different poses. After all had the splendid banquet provided, the following program was carried through, under the capable chairmanship of Bro. George Record, who proposed the toast, "To the King." Then followed an instrumental solo by T. Taylor. The toast to "Court Stanley" was proposed by Bro. J. C. Hamilton, and responded to by Bro. H. McWha, who gave a brief review of the court and its different branches. A vocal solo by Bro. I. Luther and cornet solo by Bro. A. Simmonds followed.

The toast to the A.O.F. was proposed by Bro. E. Ray, C.R., and responded to by Bro. A. Day, H.C.S.B., who spoke of the different branches of the Order, especially the insurance branch, which covers both male and female members and children in all classes of policies. He also touched on the juvenile branches and companions of the Forest. The sick and funeral of the High Court is in the happy position of being 100 per cent solvent, which meets with the Dominion Government's requirements. A vocal solo by Bro. A. Pink followed, after which Mr. McDermott gave a demonstration of sleight of hand and ventriloquism, which was heartily applauded. Bro. T. Henry toasted "City and Country", followed by a song by Bro. C. Cole. The toast to "Absent Brethren" was proposed by Bro. S. J. Mason, D.C.R., and responded to by standing with bowed heads. With the formation of the Foresters' Circle the evening was brought to a close by the singing of "Auld Lang Syne." The committee who carried through the evening of enjoyment consisted of Bros. T. Henry, A. Pink, and S. Whittaker, to whom great credit is due for the able manner in which they performed their duties.

INCREASE CAPITAL.

British Columbia Electric Company Plans Increase of Capital Stock.

LONDON, November 25 (Canadian Press Cable). — The British Columbia Electric Company at its forthcoming meeting, proposes to increase the capital of the company by one million shares, valued at one pound sterling each share. The net profits of the company are increased from £393,000 to £431,000. The final dividend amounted to £6 4s for the year (tax free). A sum of £130,000 has been transferred to reserve.

The first session of Congress held in Washington was in 1800, when the north section of the original capitol was completed.

Count de Lesseps, son of the late Count de Lesseps of Suez Canal fame, and son-in-law of the late Sir William Mackenzie, is reported missing in an airplane mishap in Eastern Quebec, where he had been engaged during the summer in aerial mapping work. Count de Lesseps is shown here, together with Countess (Grace) de Lesseps, daughter of the late railway magnate, and their children, this photograph being taken some years ago. They were married in 1911. The Count's photograph, showing him in French aviation togs, was taken during the war.

GEORGE MUNRO GRANT

(A Retrospect by Alfred Fitzpatrick.)

In the spring of 1901 the writer visited the "Limestone City" to pay his respects to his alma mater, Queen's. In the corridor of the Old Arts Building, between lectures, I happened to meet, with his all-conquering smile, the breezy, inspiring, towering man, who was then its principal, George Monro Grant, endearingly known to his students as "Geordie." Holding out his left hand, his only one, he said, "Hello, Fitz, what are you doing now? Come along into the Senate Room and tell me, it is quiet there." I mentioned that I had spent over a year in the California redwoods and another year amongst the pineries of Algoma, that I had discovered a new "America" where adult education was practically unknown, and had started a work in the interest of frontier labourers.

The chief features of my work, as I pointed out, were: a separate tent, car, log or frame building where men could read and be entertained; books, magazines, and papers; and more important —a teacher, an unselfish, clean-living college man of any creed—as a fellow toiler, and as a leavening force amongst them. It took some of my friends in the Church many years to realize the significance of the Frontier College. Although I had withdrawn from its active ministry, they invariably referred to me as a "lumberman's missionary." Principal Grant soon grasped my point of view, that any work which would benefit the great illiterate masses of many creeds and tongues, living together in crowded sleep-camps and bunkhouses, should be primarily educational. "Splendid!" was his immediate pronouncement, as he hurried to his class: "Come to the house, stay with me to-night, and tell more about it."

Knowing Geordie's unselfish love of serving the "other fellow," and especially out-at-the-elbow graduates like the writer, I wondered whether he really approved of the work I had at heart or whether he was simply treating me the way he did the other alumni. My mind, however, was soon at rest that evening as we chatted before the open fire in his library. I saw the manner in which he reacted to my account of the life of the lumberjack and navvy, as I pictured to him the bunkhouses of the Pacific Coast, Ontario, and Quebec—dark, badly ventilated and insanitary; no books, not even a newspaper, only the wrappings of medicine bottles for reading matter.

It was natural that such a man would be keenly interested. Only a few years previously he had lost his younger son from typhoid fever. Realizing that fever epidemics could be avoided, he had had himself appointed to the Kingston Board of Health and succeeded in effecting great improvements in the water and sewerage systems of the city. He was much moved by the recital of conditions existing in camps, and his handsome face shone with compassion as he fired question after question about the shantymen of Northern Ontario and the loggers of the Pacific Coast. He was fully in accord with me as I advocated a reasonable day's work, a fair wage, and a modicum of educational facilities, under wholesome conditions for the men in isolated places. Reiterating and emphasizing his sympathy with the work I had undertaken, he rose from his chair, took down many books from his well-stocked shelves, and gave them to me to add to the small number of travelling libraries I had already circulating in a few of the Algoma lumber camps. I felt that, however radical my plan then seemed for the betterment of the neglected frontier labourers, I had the greatest Canadian of the nineteenth century whole-heartedly with me.

Next morning, as the Principal graciously allowed me to do most of the talking at breakfast, he beat me on the first course. In the midst of one of my sentence he blurted out: "But how do you finance your work?" On telling him that I had as yet no organization and was depending largely on my own small resources, he suddenly exclaimed: "I'll ask Shaughnessy to give you a pass." At the same time he told the maid to bring him pen and paper.

He at once started writing with his left hand, for as a small lad of eight he had lost the fingers of his right hand. He and his little chum had attempted to operate a new haycutter intended to do duty for the horses underground in the coal mines at Albion, near his father's farm in Pictou County, Nova Scotia. "Principal," I volunteered, "let me write and you sign it." "I can write as well as you can," was his reply.

Most people familiar with the history of the Canadian Pacific Railway will recall that George Monro Grant was twice invited by his friend, Sanford Fleming, Chief Engineer of the expeditions bearing his name, to act as his secretary, and especially, to indulge in an anachronism, in the capacity of 'Cheer leader.' Never was a greater game played in Canada than pathfinding a suitable mountain way for the projected new railroad—in the Yellowhead in 1872, and again in the Kicking Horse Pass in 1883. Pulling bronchos out of muskegs, fording swift streams, climbing mountain ledges, negotiating impassable canyons, all tended but to increase his ardour. Grant was the life of the party. Mosquitoes, muskegs, and mountains held no terrors for this great pioneer. His "Canada from Ocean to Ocean," which is a record of the first Fleming Expedition, serves to remind the people of Canada of the heritage that is theirs, and is a plea, also, that the promise of a transcontinental railway made to British Columbia was practicable and would have to be kept.

While Grant was never a paid agent of the Canadian Pacific, it was a foregone conclusion that when he asked anything from Shaughnessy, another great leader of men, he got it. In a few days the pass arrived. This was the beginning of more than a quarter of a century of co-operation in the work of the Frontier College on the part of the railways of Canada.

There was one additional incident at the breakfast table that morning, I now recall, that shows the unselfishness so characteristic of the man. Not only did he voluntarily give me his own subscription to assist in my work, but also, although Queen's, herself, was then bleeding her patrons for money, wrote a few of his well-to-do friends asking them to contribute.

But Dr. Grant's kindness to the writer did not indicate that I was any special favourite. This brilliant and big-hearted principal knew every graduate and helped them all alike. He interested himself always in their advancement. When John Smith had preached in Brimstone for a few years without any apparent success, Grant would always be more disposed to blame the town than the son of Queen's. He would write the presiding moderator of a vacant congregation in Plymouth, a much better place, and ask him to give Smith a hearing. To assist a worthy Queen's man, underpaid in the civil service, he would pack his grip, go to Ottawa, and sit on the doorstep of the head of the department in which this particular man was working, with the plea: "Stannington Jones has been in your office for five years and his salary is only nominal. He is, as you know, an honour graduate. His mother long helped him, give the man a chance to help her." So saying, smiling in his captivating manner, and poking the Minister in the ribs, the matter would be practically settled. Pleading for another was vastly easier for him than pleading for his own Queen's. And so he would often go through the long gamut of graduates, launched out into professions and businesses throughout Canada, wondering what he could do for them.

Although Grant was an excellent scholar, having headed all his classes at Pictou Academy and Glasgow University, he was also a masterly executive. He, perhaps, touch high water mark in his efforts when in one year he raised a quarter of a million dollars. On the occasion of Queen's golden jubilee, Sir John A. Macdonald, an honoured guest, in a congratulatory address, emphasized Grant's persistence in raising money, and added that he, himself, lost no opportunity to put in a good word for Queen's. Among other things he related the following: "On one occasion I was in the office of a well-to-do business man in the City of Toronto, and who should come in but the irrepressible Principal, and, of course, he was after money. Seeking to evade his persistency, my friend said, "Now, Dr. Grant, I gave you a subscription a year ago and that was for all time." Knowing the need of Queen's, I took my friend by the arm and said, 'Tut, tut, man! give the Principal a little for eternity'."

But the raising of funds, then as now, was a herculean task. Even with his outstanding personality and popular gifts it was always arduous, and it, perhaps more than anything else, undermined his constitution. The writer has heard him say: "It is killing not to be able to look one's friends in the face without giving the impression you are after money."

Gratitude and service were the guiding principles of Grant's life. He believed that there is nothing on earth or in heaven greater than self-sacrifice for others. He felt he could accomplish most for Canada and the world by personally schooling young men at Queen's, yes, and young women too. When Miss Eliza S. Fitzgerald was refused admission to the University of Toronto in the fall of 1880, she turned her footsteps to Queen's, and was admitted by its chivalrous principal, who believed in the absolute equality of man and woman.

While head of Queen's, he declined several tempting offers from colleges in the United States, because, staunch imperialist that he was, he believed in serving in his own country. He declined during these same years the editorship of the Toronto Globe. He was offered, too, the portfolio of Education of the Province of Ontario, which he declined, because he would not suffer his hands to be tied by any political party on the important subject of education, in which he, himself, was always a radical. He refused, also, the presidency of the University of Toronto that he might devote his life to the upbuilding of Queen's, a struggling institution, and that he might combat with the whole strength of his ardent soul, the principle of centralization in education —a trend that even to-day, forty years later, is still ominous in our provincial systems.

Although strongly urged to do so, Grant, while doubtless conscious of the fact that his personality, brains, initiative and cheeriness fitted him, above all others, for the position of leader, disregarded the entreaties of his many friends throughout Canada to enter politics and to allow his name to go before the nominating committee of the Conservative organization in Kingston. This, too, despite the fact that it was common knowledge that had he so desired he could have succeeded Sir John A. Macdonald, then in failing health, as premier.

He was an independent not only in education and in politics, but also in religion, and often drew fire from the other side of the house. The writer was present at a meeting of Synod in Toronto, when the late Professor McLaren accused Grant of sympathizing with higher criticism. But he was always able to defend his own laurels. Amongst other things the professor had charged him with adhering to the belief that there were two Isaiahs. In his reply, Grant showed that the differences in style and the historical setting pointed unmistakably to a second writer of the same name. In a brilliant peroration he exclaimed: "A second Isaiah! What difference does it make? Would to God there had been forty Isaiahs!"

Like Henry Ward Beecher, Grant was one hundred years ahead of his time, and led his generation. But he was at his best in fighting for another. Pleading in 1877 at the General Assembly held in Montreal, in defence of his friend, the Rev. D. J. McDonnell of New St. Andrew's, Toronto, who was being tried for heresy, he flayed the men of his own church who could not see any sun shining for the great masses of the world beyond the bounds of Christendom. His impassioned eloquence on that occasion brought the General Assembly to its feet, and his triumph there will go down in history as one of the most striking instances of the power of a master mind to sway, at will, the highest assembly of a great church.

His breadth of mind is also shown in his sympathy for all creeds. In class, at Queen's, he told us that when minister of St. Andrew's Church, Halifax, he used to spend occasionally a quiet hour in the Roman Catholic Cathedral near by, and he found that he could say the majority of the prayers and sing the greater number of the hymns in use by his co-religionists. When on a trip around the world he met a missionary who extolled the praises of a Japanese adherent of one of the native religions. The missionary related many of the man's beneficiaries and took him through a beautiful hospital for the blind, built by this same philanthropist. On leaving the institution, he added mournfully, "Alas! he is not a Christian." Grant immediately exclaimed, "He not a Christian! I hope I may have as high a place in heaven as that 'heathen'."

Will any one tell us how it is that a man of Grant's breadth of vision, tolerance, and great kindness of heart appears but once in a century or more to benefit and bless our common humanity? Personally, the writer thinks, on Grant's account alone, Canada owes Queen's a generous endowment. His far-reaching influence, his broad patriotism, and the unequalled service of this great educator to the whole country, call for recognition. The question: "Where are the nine?" should be specially irrelevant if applied to Queen's graduates. Those who had the honour and privilege of knowing Principal Grant and sitting at his feet, ought to be grateful and try to make in return some sacrifice in order to increase their contribution to the great university, hallowed by a thousand memories of the most unselfish and patriotic Canadian of his time.

SERIES OF SERMONS FOR YOUNG STARTED

Rev. A. H. McConnachie Addresses Children on Lord's Prayer.

SPRINGVILLE, Nov. 25.—On Sunday, Nov. 20th, the usual morning service was held in Springville Church with the pastor, Rev. Mr. McConnachie, in charge.

Previous to the sermon Mr. McConnachie began a series of short talks to the children, taking as his subject "The Lord's Prayer." Great interest was shown by the little ones and also the older members of the congregation in listening to the explanation of the meaning of the words "Our Father."

Mr. McConnachie is endeavoring to teach as he preaches, and has asked the children to listen very attentively to each of their morning discourses, and when the series is completed they are asked to write an essay on the subject to show him what they have learned from his teaching.

This little talk did not interfere with the usual good sermont, but acted as a fore-runner to it.

At the close of the service envelopes were distributed by the women for the Junior and Senior W.M.S. Thankoffering, which takes place Sunday evening, Nov. 27.

On Monday evening the young people of Springville and Fairmount met in the basement of Springville Church to discuss plans for a social and educational time together during the winter months.

It was decided that a literary society be organized and a committee was appointed to act until the general organization should take place. This committee met on Wednesday night and made plans for their first meeting, which is to be held a week from to-night, December 2. This meeting will take the form of a social evening. Programs of debates, plays, etc., will also be arranged for at a later date.

We hope, and are quite confident, that all the young people of the communities concerned will show their interest by rallying to the meetings, and doing their "bit" to make this literary society one of the best of its kind.

The following men from this district left on Monday for Toronto to spend a few days attending the Winter Fair: Harold Cathcart, Orville Young, George Hooten, Walter Brown, and Walter Bowles

GEORGE YOUNG RETURNS.

Swimmer and Mother Back in Toronto From California.

TORONTO, Nov. 24 (Canadian Press).—George Young, the marathon swimmer who lost his world's championship here last August, returned to Toronto to-day. He arrived with his mother from Santa Monica, Calif., and will reside here in future. George has no definite plans for the future, but, believing that his collapse in the 1927 marathon was an accident, he will keep in condition and await further swimming opportunities.

StaYoung is the new bed spring—the most outstanding development in bed spring construction by manufacturers who have devoted over forty years to the problem of improving sleeping comfort. Inspect the StaYoung spring. Ask for it by name. The sturdiest—most comfortable—long-living bed spring ever built.

LEGION FUNDS ARE INCREASING

Poppy Day Sale and Recent Play Success, Branch Learns.

CAMPBELLFORD VETS.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 25.— The business before the local branch of the Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., was quite routine in nature last night. There were no new members to be accepted and a lengthy discussion arose as to notices of meetings to be sent out through the mails. The only item of unfinished business was a check from G. A. Ironsides which represented the proceeds from the sacred concert held in connection with the presentation of the charter recently in the Regent theatre. The proceeds from the play, "When a Feller Needs a Friend," the treasurer stated, would net the legion almost one hundred dollars. In support of his statement, he submitted a rough draft of the proceeds and expenditures. The financial statement showed a marked increase and was accepted as being entirely satisfactory. The only item of correspondence to be read was a letter of appreciation and gratitude from the family of the late George Thomas Dickson which, upon motion, was accepted and placed on file.

There are apparently no members out of employment since none responded when the question was put. There were no committees which wished to report save the Poppy Day committee. Comrade Morgan's report sounded more like a tale from modern fiction than the plain truth. He said that he had called at one home to leave tickets for the two little girls who had sold tickets on Armistice Day. These tickets were for the play, "When a Feller Needs a Friend," which was staged under the auspices of the legion here. Naturally the girls had been given poppies on that day and as Mr. Morgan was leaving, they gave him a coin which they said was the proceeds of the sale of their own two poppies. Comrade Morgan stepped forward and laid a twenty-five cent piece on the treasurer's desk. This may be only a small matter, but the Legion in Campbellford certainly appreciate the splendid spirit which was so clearly manifest.

Considerable discussion arose as to future activities of the legion along the line of sports particularly. The majority were of the opinion that the returned men could not play hockey well enough to be allowed to carry a stick, but the minority group were die hards and stuck to their guns. They claimed that the Legion could at least get some publicity out of the venture and the players at least would derive considerable amusement along with the abuse which was sure to come their way. The idea was to play the game whether they won or lost. The result was that a motion to form a sports committee was left as the only item of unfinished business.

The next meeting of the Legion is set for Thursday, December 1st at eight o'clock. This meeting has as its main item of business the election of officers for the year 1928. It is hoped that every member and every ex-soldier in the district will attend and do his part to assist with the affairs of the Legion. The local branch is still in its infancy. It has only been in existence for a few months and has already assumed a place of importance among the organizations of the town. Next year promises to be one of concentrated activity and the progress which the Legion will make will be an item of interest to every citizen in the district. The best plan for any ex-service man to follow is to get his application in early and rub shoulders with his cronies of thirteen years ago while he assists the cause of their mutual interest.

WHERE FLOODS WERE WORST

Waters in the stricken flood area of the New England States continue to recede, the situation rapidly returning to normal in many formerly inundated districts, but in the fertile Winooski Valley, a view of which is shown here, the populace is still struggling against stubbornly swirling waters and heaped up debris. The crisis has been passed in the valley, however, and from now on it will be a matter of rehabilitation. The Winooski is a comparatively small river running from east to west, emptying into Lake Champlain at Burlington. The Green Mountains of Vermont rise on both sides of it and in this valley lie the towns of Montpelier and Waterbury. The panorama shows the Camel's Hump of the Green Mountains, the Winooski river, which is now a raging torrent, and Montpelier Junction railway station.

DRUGS EXCITE THE KIDNEYS, DRINK WATER

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache.

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble because we often eat too much rich food. Our blood is filled with acids which the kidneys strive to filter out; they weaken from overwork, become sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache, or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or if you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, begin drinking lots of good soft water and get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jads Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

ROMANCE RUMORED

Hospital Changes

WARSAW, Nov. 24.—A few chance words, uttered by a nurse in Nicholls hospital, during a recent sojourn there, brought to mind many changes that have taken place during the last quarter of a century, in everything, and hospitals are no exception.

Now, no matter where we are, we realize the difference and the young people growing up fail to see how the world went along, as things were then, and twenty-five years hence others will likely wonder how we got along just now.

Prior to the time when I first saw Nicholls Hospital I had known several of the nurses, and heard of their splendid work, also I had heard of the hospital and the staff of medical men, and a noble band they were.

When first I saw the Nicholls Hospital, twenty-five years ago, there happened to be only eleven patients. There were forty-five beds and all had often, indeed generally, been pretty well filled. There were but three private wards. Three rooms, over what was then the laundry, were used as contagious wards. Wood and other things were kept in the lower room beyond the stairway, and the upper room was known as the drying room.

The nurses dormitory was at the east end of the third floor, and a few had single rooms tucked away in odd corners. They had a tiny "parlor" in the tower, cold in winter, hot in summer. The superintendent's and assistants' rooms were over the kitchen. Quite close to the assistants' room was a door in which was a slide through which food and medicine were passed to the nurse in charge of contagous patients—when they were there. Frequently the hospital reception room was pressed into service for a private patient, at times the superintendent's little parlor, beyond the office, had to be so used, and even the linen room had to be given up when need arose.

The hospital had gas lights. In the operating room there was one hand electric light, so that night work was not easy.

The only sterilizer was an Arnold, and much of the sterilizing was done, for dressings, by simply using bichloride solution—but the work done was wonderful.

The plumbing was getting old; matched lumber enclosed some of it. Even in the operating room matched lumber appeared. Nearly every year, one or two nurses came down with typhoid. There were cracks in the laundry tubs, and when the Board members were inspecting the hospital to see what plumbing was required, one of them asked the laundress if her tubs leaked; her reply was, "Sure, sor, especially when they has water in them."

Maternity cases were not accepted in the hospital; what maternity training the nurses received was obtained by going out with the doctors, and perhaps remaining a few days with the patient.

Nurses were often put on to care for some patient steadily for two or even three days, with just what rest they could snatch while the patient was quiet. The idea was that it was better for the patient, to have only one nurse. She would know exactly what had happened, would have the doctor's orders exactly, and there would be no change of hands. This was finally changed, but not without a struggle, for some of the doctors thought their patients would not fare so well. Those doctors were absolutely untiring themselves.

Many orders were given verbally, and some were never written, except in the charts. When the regulation came to have all orders written, and then read and signed by the doctor, again there was a little objection.

The hospital staff consisted of the superintendent and assistant, and fifteen undergraduates. The superintendent took some of the classes. The assistant did the urinalysis and had charge of the drug room and operating room. The doctors took turns in giving lectures.

The nurses' course was three years, twelve hours day and night duty, an hour off daily, sometimes two, if work were slack; an afternoon off each week, and part of Sunday off.

There was one janitor and a gardener, who often helped the janitor or relieved him. There were a cook, a waitress, a diet kitchen maid and three ward maids; a laundress, assisted by an elderly man, a sort of pensioner of the hospital, who worked the mangle.

When built, Nicholls' Hospital was considered, and was, an up-to-date building. Light, plumbing and equipment were the best. Doctors and nurses were untiring. The board was liberal, though often severely criticised, and several members took a very personal interest in the hospital.

From the first Nicholls' Hospital has been a boon to the town, now City of Peterborough, and also to the surrounding country.

Times and conditions change. Very few of our homes would be recognized, especially in the interiors, by people who saw them twenty-five years ago, and in methods of dealing with the sick, changes have been rapid and radical. Then, few people went to a hospital unless there was no avoiding it. Now, if a person needs medical or surgical care, there is not much hesitation about entering a hospital.

Changes had to come to Nicholls' hospital, as to any other place. Within three years from the time I have described, good plumbing (for that time) was installed. There was then no more reason for nurses contracting typhoid in the hospital. A good steam pressure and vaccuum sterilizer was procured; it has since been discarded for a newer and better one. Electric lighting was installed throughout the building, with a good set of lights over the operating table. The fixtures were not pretty, just incandescent bulbs with little white shades, but they were infinitely better than the gas lights. A few years later nice fixtures were substituted.

Maternity cases were taken into the hospital and several doctors were glad to send their patients there, though there could be no special ward. Nurses were not allowed to go out. The old contagious wards were thoroughly overhauled and used as private wards. The drying room was converted into a semi-private room and shortly after the nurses had a nice reception room developed from the old lower room. But these few changes were as nothing to what has happened within the last twenty years.

A large new wing has been built. There are more private, semi-private and public wards. There is a good new operating room, with all necessary conveniences. There is a maternity ward, a delivery room and a nursery. No one would dream of sending a contagious case to the hospital. There is a splendid isolation hospital north of the city. A regular pathologist attends the hospital. There is an X-ray room, and all electric conveniences. A well-equipped laundry is across the street from the hospital proper.

There is a well and beautifully furnished nurses' residence with reception room, kitchen and laundry for the nurses' own use, also a class room. The hours on duty are shortened.

There are regular courses of lectures for the nurses, which they attend along with the nurses of St. Joseph's Hospital. By the time a nurse is graduated and registered, she holds not only her own hospital diploma, but a certificate from the Ontario Board of Health.

Graduate nurses are in charge of wards, and a dietitian looks after the diets.

Already more room is needed to supply the city's growing needs.

The standard of the hospital has always been high, and that has been, and is now, an incentive for all concerned to do the very best possible.

Twenty-five classes of nurses have graduated in that quarter of a century and there have been four superintendents. One cannot help looking for the familiar faces of the old doctors, many of whom have passed to their reward. Still, when one is attended by those who are not so familiar, one finds they, too, are holding up the standard of kindness, efficiency and thoroughness that characterized the older ones, so that putting oneself into the hands of strangers, one soon feels safe and content.

Changes unnumbered have taken place. Who can tell but what in another quarter century our present methods and equipment may not be equally obsolete?

POWER PROJECTS INFLUENCE BIRTH OF CANADIAN TOWNS

New Towns Springing Up Wherever Electricity is Available

SOME INSTANCES

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 25 (by the Canadian Press).—Continued development of the power resources of Canada and its influence on the birth and growth of new towns in various parts of the Dominion, is drawn to the attention in a striking manner in the following article from The Ottawa Citizen:—

Water-power is one of Canada's greatest natural resources and is available in large quantities near practically all the centres of industry from coast to coast. It is now established from the experience of many years that wherever water-power is developed, industry and population inevitably follow. Furthermore, the modern tendency is for the large industries to locate at the power site, because the cost of power is lower, the land for factory sites is cheaper, the cost of living for employes, taxes and other items are lessened and thereby the general costs of production are reduced.

New towns spring up wherever large water-powers are developed and older towns take on new life and growth—for instance the towns of Three Rivers, Sorel, Grand 'Mere, Shawinigan Falls, Donnaconna, and Cap de la Madeleine, Quebec, in the area supplied from the power development on the St. Maurice river; in the Eastern Townships of Quebec where power development over an area of 6,000 square miles has resulted in the locating there of 27 new industries, representing over $20,000,000 in factory equipment, and the employment of 6,000 persons; on the Saguenay river, 200 miles north of Quebec, the development of 360,000 horse-power has led to the establishment of the new model town of Arvida which is expected to shortly have a population of 5,000; at Outarde Falls, the development of a site with an ultimate capacity of 50,000 horse-power is taking place and the new model town of Outarde Falls is already far advanced with hospitals, schools, convent and town hall. Other towns that have been created by water-power in conjunction with pulp resources are Chicoutimi, Bromptonville, La Tuque, Windsor Mills, Kenogami and Clark City.

In the province of Ontario, in addition to the vast industry and employment resulting from power industry development at Niagara, Nipigon and other sites, the whole mining industry of the province is carried on with the aid of water-power, without which the large production of gold, silver, nickel and copper would be impossible. Water-power in conjunction with forests has not only made possible a large pulp and paper industry, but is responsible for the creation of new communities such as Iroquois Falls, Kapuskasing, Smooth Rock Falls, Espanola, Dryden and Sturgeon Falls and has also added largely to the industrial welfare of many other Ontario cities and towns.

In Manitoba, Winnipeg and district owes much of its healthy expansion to the low-cost power provided by the mills at Fort Alexander. In British Columbia, where water-power makes heavy contribution to the prosperity of the coast and inland cities, new towns have been created by the pulp and paper industries at Powell river and Ocean Falls; whereas on the Atlantic coast a new community in Nova Scotia has come into being in connection with a pulp and paper enterprise at Sheet Harbour, and the development at Grand Falls on the St. John river in New Brunswick will have a beneficial effect on the centres of population in that part of the latter province.

It is surprising how quickly the population of such a new centre grows and takes upon itself the functions of modern city life. In the beginning there is the erection of factories and of dwellings for the work people and superintendents. This is usually followed by the erection of retail shops, repair shops, garages, etc.

How to Play BRIDGE

Series 1927-28 by Wynne Ferguson

Author of "PRACTICAL AUCTION BRIDGE"

Copyright 1927, by Hoyle, Jr.

ARTICLE No. 11

There is one fine point of the bidding in auction bridge that most players overlook. For example, suppose your partner, as dealer, bids one spade and second hand either passes or doubles one spade (informatory). In such cases there are a number of hands where you have a fine opportunity to make a big gain. The following hand is a fine example:

Hand No. 1

Hearts — 8
Clubs — K, 8, 3, 2
Diamonds — A, K, 7, 4
Spades — J, 10, 7, 3

A		B
	Z

No score, rubber game. If Z dealt, bid one spade and A passed, what should Y bid? With this hand, Y should bid four spades, to shut out, if possible, a heart bid by B. Unless B has an overwhelming hand, he probably will be unable to bid five hearts. Y's hand is so strong that his partner has a fine chance to make four spades, so his bid does two things; First, shuts out adverse bidding; second, offers a fine chance for game. In this particular hand, Y's clever bid was a big winner, for A-B could have made a little slam at hearts, but Y's bold bid prevented B from showing his hearts. A-B, moreover, made four spades and so won the rubber.

Hand No. 2

Hearts — 7, 6, 2
Clubs — 10
Diamonds — A, K, 7, 4, 3
Spades — J, 7, 6, 2

A		B
	Z

No score, rubber game. Z dealt, bid one spade and A doubled (informatory). What should Y bid? With this hand Y should bid three spades over the double in the hope of shutting out a club or heart bid. It takes a four bid in either to overbid three spades; so Y has a good chance to win the bid at three spades. The hand is not strong enough to bid four and there is not the same necessity of shutting out hearts as in Hand No. 1. Be on the lookout for hands of this type and don't hesitate to jump the bid when holding four or more trumps and a void suit that may cause trouble. Many a game is won in this way by shutting out adverse information.

Here is another type of hand which was played recently in a championship team match and which caused considerable discussion:

Problem No. 13

Hearts — Q, J, 10, 9, 7
Clubs — A
Diamonds — A, 10, 7
Spades — 8, 6, 5, 2

A		B
	Z

No score, first game. Z dealt and bid one no-trump. Should A pass, double (informatory) or bid two hearts? The match in question was won on this hand so think it over and see how your conclusions agree with the analysis that will be given in the next article.

Problem No. 14

Hearts — none
Clubs — 4, 3
Diamonds — 3, 2
Spades — 9, 4, 3, 2

Hearts — K
Clubs — Q, J, 8, 6
Diamonds — Q, J, 5
Spades — none

Hearts — Q, 10, 7, 5
Clubs — 10, 9
Diamonds — 10, 8
Spades — none

Hearts — A, J, 9, 6
Clubs — K, 5
Diamonds — A, 4
Spades — none

	Y
A		B
	Z

Spades are trumps and Z is in the lead. How can Y-Z win all the tricks against any defense? Solution in the next article.

REPORTS PRESENTED TO CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY

The following is the report submitted by the agent, Mr. John Edgar, at the annual meeting of the Children's Aid Society, held this week:

To the President and Board of the Children's Aid Society:

Ladies and Gentlemen.—In presenting my second annual report of the work of the Society for the year 1926-27, there is nothing to report that has not already been reported at the monthly meetings, most of this you know.

The number of children involved shows a slight decrease from last year, the complaints and investigations an increase, mail sent out an increase, mileage an increase, places visited an increase, wards visited an increase, wards placed out a decrease. Nine boys were sent to the Industrial School, of these only two were wards of the Society, the other seven were from the Police Court. Nine children were made wards of the Society, three of these have been returned to their parents, two placed out in foster homes, and four are in the Shelter. The number made wards is very small compared with the number involved, one out of every forty-six. The number made wards, does not mean that only nine were neglected. More might have been made wards, but my interpretation of the work of the Society is, that it is better to improve conditions, to make the parents feel their responsibility to their children, to make the home a better place, than to take the children out of it. Why should the state bear the responsibility and expense, if the parents can be made to properly look after their children? During the year we had thirteen applications for adoption, six of these have finally been adopted, and one returned. At the last meeting of the Provincial Legislature the Adoption Act was amended, the foster parents now have to be 21 years older than the child; this was the reason for the return of one child.

One hundred and six wards were visited during the year. These are all in splendid homes, happy contented, going to school, well clothed, and well treated.

During the past year sixteen were released from the Society, one by death, three by adoption, ten by majority, and two married.

Only one child was removed from its foster parents, on account of poor treatment.

There were 21 cases under the Unmarried Parents' Act.

I wish to thank the President and Members of the Board for their advice and help during the year, and particularly to Mr. Wearing, who is always ready to advise. I have found his advice of great value and very helpful.

We are also indebted to the following for much valuable help: Dr. Clark, Dr. Wood, and Dr. Craig of this city; Dr. Thompson and Dr. Holdcroft, of Havelock; Mrs. (Dr.) Thompson, Havelock; Mrs. Buck, Norwood; Mrs. Lawrence Graham, Lakefield; Rev. C. A. G. Spence, Apsley; The Chief of Police; the Provincial and County Constables.

There were two special and ten regular meetings held during the year, with an average attendance of fourteen.

With the exception of Pheobe Martin, who died in March, we have had no serious illness at the Shelter. I have made several visits to the Shelter, and have always found everything in good order.

We have much for which to be thankful to our eHavenly Father for His goodness to us all during the past year. We have had enough for all our wants.

In my work I have always tried to do what I thought was right, and my endeavors have been in every case, "what is best for the child." All of which is respectfully submitted.

CHURCH BEING RAZED

LINDSAY.—Methodism in Lindsay dates back almost a century ago and one of the old landmarks of early days is being demolished. Here the early Methodists worshipped, sitting on benches hewed out of logs and in a building which was for the time quite pretentious.

In 1832 Rev. C. Vandurren rode in from Cavan and held the first service in a small log cabin. Several missionaries followed in rapid succession and a few years later Rev. John Sanderson built the first church on Wellington street.

The building, which was later used as a parsonage, is still standing, and is the oldest church building in Lindsay or this section of the country. It became the parsonage when the new frame church was erected.

A name connected with early Methodism here is that of William Gourlay, who for over forty years unceasingly helped to advance the church. The first resident minister was Rev. Thomas Hannah.

In this church the choir and congregation started the hymns by means of a tuning fork, the candles were used before lamps came into style. Edmund Gregory, one time druggist, was choir leader and William Skitch, who owned the building, and still owns the property, was a member of the choir and is still living in Lindsay.

The sexton used to walk around the church during the service lighting and snuffing the candles. The old building is being razed to the ground to make way for a couple of new residences.

Uncle Wiggily

By HOWARD R. GARIS

To-day's Bedtime Story

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE TURKEY.

(Copyright, 1927, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Uncle Wiggily was sitting alone in his hollow stump bungalow the day after Thanksgiving, for Nurse Jane and Mrs. Longears had taken the forty 'leven little rabbit children off to the movies.

"And I suppose," said Uncle Wiggily, speaking to himself sort of free and easy like, "I suppose I had better go out and look for an adventure. But I don't feel much like it. I guess I ate too much carrot shortcake for my Thanksgiving dinner yesterday. I wish an adventure would come here to me."

Hardly had he said these words, than the rabbit gentleman heard a tapping at the side kitchen door. At first Uncle Wiggily thought it was the wind, but again came the tapping sound, louder than before.

In came a big turkey gobbler.

"Ha! Perhaps this is an adventure!" exclaimed the rabbit. "Come in!" he called. And then he wished he hadn't for he thought it might be the Woozie Wolf or the Fuzzy Fox tapping. But it was too late.

There was a rattling of the door latch and in came a big turkey gobbler, with his red necktie hanging down over his beak.

"Gobble, obble, obble!" softly cried the big bird. "Can you hide me somewhere, Uncle Wiggily?"

"Hide you somewhere?" asked the rabbit gentleman in surprise. "Why do you want to be hidden now? Thanksgiving is past—no one will want you for dinner until Christmas and that is a month off. You are in no danger that you need to be hidden."

"Oh, yes I am!" cried the turkey. "Thanksgiving isn't over for me! He is still looking for me.

"Who is looking for you?" inquired the rabbit gentleman as he closed the door which the big bird had left open.

"The Farmer is looking for me!" said the Turkey. "You see he had me shut up in a coop ready for Thanksgiving. I was to have been at his dinner table yesterday. But the night before last I broke out of the coop and ran away. I didn't want to be eaten for Thanksgiving. I could see nothing in that for me to be thankful for. So I ran away and hid in the woods. But I knew I couldn't stay there long. So just now I slipped out and came over here. You'll hide me, won't you? The Farmer may be coming along any moment."

"Yes, I'll hide you," kindly offered Uncle Wiggily.

"Down cellar or up in the attic?" asked the big Turkey.

"In neither of those places," answered the rabbit. "Some of my forty 'leven little bunnies, or Baby Bunty, would be sure to find you down cellar or up in the attic. They are always playing hide and go seek in those places. And if they found you they would talk about it and the Farmer might hear and come to get you."

"That's so," agreed the Turkey. "But where can you hide me?"

"Out in the woods where I have adventures," said Mr. Longears. "In the woods is a cute little log cabin where I sometimes hop to get out of the rain. No one knows about it except me. The Farmer does not dream it is there. In my cabin you can hide as long as you like."

"If I can hide away until after New Year's Day I shall be safe," sighed the Turkey. "The holidays are over then and they won't think of turkey dinners until next Thanksgiving. By that time I will be so old and tough they won't want to roast me. Thank you, Uncle Wiggily. Please hide me in the little cabin."

So Uncle Wiggily put on his mittens and tall silk hat to hop out in the woods and hide the Thanksgiving turkey who had run away just in time. As the two friends were going through the woods, all of a sudden the Bob Cat jumped out from behind a sassafras bush.

"Wurra! Wurra!" howled the bad chap. "I've got you now, Uncle Wiggily! You can't get away! I've got you now!"

He made a grab for the rabbit gentleman's ears, but the Turkey, with a loud "Gobble, obble, obble!" made a jump and caught, in his sharp beak, the silly little tail of the Bob Cat.

"Wow! Ouch! Let go!" howled the Bob Cat. "Let go my tail!"

"I will when you let go of Uncle Wiggily's ears!" said the Turkey in a sort of mumbling voice, for he dared not open his beak or the Bob Cat would have pulled his tail away. "Let go of Uncle Wiggily's ears!"

"All right! I will!" howled the bad chap, and he did.

Then the Turkey let go of the Bob Cat's silly little tail and away the unpleasant creature slithered through the woods.

"Thank you!" said Uncle Wiggily to the Gobbler. "You saved my life!"

"And you are going to save mine, so we are even!" chuckled the big bird. So he was hidden in the little log cabin, and each day Mr. Longears took him some popcorn to eat. And the Turkey may be there yet if some one hasn't eaten him for Thanksgiving.

NEW LIGHT-VAPOR BEAUTY BATH

Light and vapor baths are the latest idea in Paris for beautifying the face. Beauty experts have introduced a cabinet that gives both at the same time. The steam is said to open the pores, while blue rays from the special lamps stimulate the circulation. The treatment is said to be very soothing as well as beneficial.

JUNIOR HUMANE SOCIETY MEETS

President Appeals For Larger Attendance of Members.

PROGRAM ARRANGED.

The Junior Humane Society held its bi-weekly meeting Thursday, November 24. The president, Warren Turner, was in the chair. The opening song was "Ring the Bells of Mercy," sung to the tune of "Onward Christian Soldiers." The Society's pledge was then said. Two kind acts were reported.

The attendance was poor. A membership campaign was started about a month ago and the president announced that all boys and girls were welcome to become active members. Children between the ages of 10 and 18 years are preferred. The society has a membership of about 60, but more than half of the members seem to have forgotten about the meetings. They also are welcome at the meetings, it was announced.

A new program committee was appointed, consisting of Don Howson, convenor, Miss Freda Kilshire, Miss Lily Bull and the president.

The song, "Don't Kill the Birds," was then sung, the tune of this song being "Auld Lang Syne." The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

After the meeting the Program committee arranged an interesting program for Dec. 8, the next meeting day. The committee hopes to have a speaker for the next meeting.

Ex-Kaiser's Protest Holds Up Drama

BERLIN, Nov. 25. — (United Press.) — The District Court issued an injunction yesterday against the production of Tolstoy's drama, "Rasputin"because of a protest by the former Kaiser. Erwin Piscator, the producer, was determined to go ahead with the play, which depicts the former Kaiser as praying with the Austrian Emperor and the Russian Czar for victory.

Wilhelm claimed his part of the play was not contained in Tolstoy's original version.

A Word From Santa Claus

WELL! WELL! WELL!

Dear Boys and Girls:

And how are you all keeping, and are you being good, and how do you like the Toys we have made this year? Better than last year? Just a bit.

Well, they're all finished now, though there are several sleigh-loads and train-loads to be packed up and sent away—so that poor old Santy won't have much of a quiet time between now and Christmas. But, bless you, I never feel so happy as when my toys are bright and shiny and ready for my boys and girls on Christmas morning.

Now, there's just one thing I would like you to do for me—just to give old Santy a hint. Won't you go down to Toyland, see what you like best, and then write me a little note saying what it is? If you give your note to anyone in the Toy Department of Canadian Department Stores they will see that I get it.

You know my name, don't you?

SANTA CLAUS,

The kindest, jolliest, reddest, lovingest old man in the world.

Get Weight on Your Skinny Body

New YEAST with IRON adds pounds of weight

Quick results—or pay nothing

If you are many pounds underweight, have a pimply, poor complexion, tire easily and have little appetite, then you need the good solid flesh and healthful vigor that IRONIZED YEAST can give. With IRONIZED YEAST thousands of men and women have built themselves up from skinny weaklings to strong, healthy people. It can do the same for you.

You Need Yeast to Gain Weight

IRONIZED YEAST is two tonics in one—weight-building Yeast and strength-creating Iron. The yeast is the same used in making malt, and which makes malt so beneficial.

This yeast is treated with iron taken from fresh vegetables—spinach, lettuce and celery. In this form Iron is easily assimilated by the body, making rich, red blood and toning up nerves and muscles.

Only when Yeast is Ironized in this way is it most effective—for Iron is needed to bring out the weight-building values of Yeast. By this formula IRONIZED YEAST gives you results in half the time required by yeast and iron taken separately.

No wonder you get pounds of solid flesh in 2 or 3 weeks and look more attractive and youthful. Begin to get this new weight today by getting IRONIZED YEAST from the druggist. See how it tones up the blood, brings strength and richness to the blood. Ugly pimples vanish and you get a nice, healthy color. IRONIZED YEAST tablets are pleasant-tasting—60 to a bottle. Safe for everybody. Does not upset the stomach, nor cause gas or bloating.

Results from first treatment —or your money back

Get just a single course treatment from your druggist today. If you are not absolutely satisfied with the weight and health benefits, money for the bottle will be promptly refunded. If inconvenient to buy at the druggist, send $1.25 to the CANADIAN IRONIZED YEAST CO., Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont., Dept 149-V.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

Faith entered the outer office of Bob's suite, saw that Cherry was not at her desk, and, without thinking of knocking, for she was too excited to be concerned with fine points of etiquet, opened the door of her husband's private office.

Bob was leaning back in his swivel chair, his hands locked behind his head, his handsome face alight with laughter. Cherry, notebook opened before her but no shorthand marks upon the page, was leaning upon the extension leaf of his desk, her face cupped in her little useless-looking white hands, delighted laughter bubbling from her geranium-tinted mouth—

"Oh, I beg your pardon——" Faith gasped, taking an involuntary step backward into the other room.

"Oh, hello, darling! Come in! I was just telling Cherry a story that Ben Hemingway told me when he was here this morning. I'm working on plans for his country home, you know," Bob greeted her heartily. "What's the matter, honey? Didn't the audition go off well? You look queer."

Faith advanced slowly into the room, her eyes upon the handbag she was holding so tightly. She had thought thought she was over her foolish jealousy, and now—just the sight of them sitting together chummily, laughing together, sharing jokes and business secrets which she herself was entirely ignorant of—

"The audition went off both well and badly," she said, her voice sounding cold and queer in her own ears.

"Oh, tell us all about it! We've been dying to know," Cherry cried, springing from her chair and offering it to Faith. "Is it so cold outside? You look so positively blue and pinched. What did San Remo say? Where's Rhoda?"

"Rhoda's gone home to cook lunch. Aunt Hattie's there with Hope, you know," Faith answered, without looking at Cherry. "There isn't much to tell. San Remo went into ecstasies over Rhoda's voice when she sang with the phonograph record, but he nearly tore his hair out when he found she couldn't sing a note alone. He tried to make her sing scales and she doesn't even know what they are. I explained that she has never had a music lesson of any kind in her life, that she can only imitate the voices of other lyric sopranos."

"And how!" Cherry broke in. "Didn't the idiot have sense enough to see that she has one of the most marvelous voices in the world? Fancy her being able to sing like that without any training!"

"That's the trouble," Faith conceded coldly. "He's afraid she is a musical freak, that she has no ability except as a mimic."

"The man's crazy!" Cherry stamped her foot.

"He has told me what to do," Faith interrupted, still in that cold, even voice. "He recommends for her to have lessons under Madame Renaud, who used to sing with the Metropolitan, you know. She's living here with her married son and giving singing lessons. He says if she shows sufficient promise, can learn to read music and sing by note, he'll see that she has her chance in New York."

"Then let's send for that awful Nils brother of hers," Cherry cried, excitement banishing her anger against San Remo. "I'll write him myself."

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1927.

Good and evil planetary influences contend to-day, according to astrology. The afternoon is much more favorable in planetary direction than the morning.

There is a sign of much promise for commerce, which will extend widely in the next year.

Much traffic with the Orient, or, at least, many vessels assembling in oriental waters, is foreseen.

Oil and oil interests again come under the most stimulating aspects, making for tremendous expansion.

Under this direction of the stars the mind should be keen and far-seeing. This is a day in which to plan future big enterprises.

This is not an auspicious sway for looking into one's financial status or for dealing with banks.

It is not a fortunate rule for signing contracts and leases made while this configuration prevails may be most unsatisfactory.

There is an aspect menacing to those who start on journeys by rail and aviation may be peculiarly perilous.

Music is subject to lucky influences that promise much to American artists.

Great Britain may have serious misunderstands with France and the United States, it is prophesied.

Powerful alliances between Germany, Austria, Russia and Turkey are foretold by the seers.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a lucky year in which they will be shielded from most misfortunes.

Children born on this day probably will be rather modest and hard-working. The subjects of this sign make good employees.

STILL UNCONSCIOUS.

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 25.—(Canadian Press.)—Sixty hours after an attack on him had been made by persons unknown, Sidney Otley, an express clerk here, is still unconscious and unable to give police any information that might aid them in their search for the guilty ones. Otley, police state, was attacked by robbers, who used a 15-inch spike as a weapon in their effort to rob the man. Hope is held out for his recovery.

SYDNEY IRISH MOB THEATRE

Protest Against Showing of "The Callahans and the Murphys."

STOPPED BY POLICE.

Sydney, Australia ,November 25 — (United Press.) — Several hundred men and women of Irish descent stormed a movie theatre at Brunswick, a suburb of Melbourne, in protest against the American film "The Callahans and the Murphys." The mob demanded that the management withdraw the picture from the program. When the request was refused, the crowd stoned the theatre until they were dispersed by the mounted police.

CABLE QUARREL BECOMES SERIOUS

Sydney Herald Says Feeling of Irritation Between Dominion Growing.

SYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 25 (United Press).—A despatch to The Sydney Morning Herald from the Federal Capital at Canberra indicates that the Government expects that the prolonged feeling of irritation between Canada and Australia regarding the Pacific cable will shortly become a serious dispute. The Herald learns that Canada's hesitation before agreeing to the recent dpulication of the Pacific cable was not due to fear of the adverse effect of beam wireless competition, but to Canada's demand for guarantees that any profits expected to accrue from the duplication should be devoted to the repayment of the capital invested.

It is declared that Canada has failed to answer communications from Australia and New Zealand in this connection. Meanwhile, Premier Bruce defends the newly inaugurated beam wireless system from prevalent criticism of its inefficiency, declaring that the system has not yet been sufficiently long in operation to warrant condemnation and claiming that it has performed admirably considering the circumstances.

JOLLY JINGLES By Graham Hunter

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

Protected feet in rainy weather no longer need mean clumsy feet. The rubber overshoe shown above has a checked cuff. The one in the center is of tweed while below is shown a shapely rubber sandal which may be worn on rainy days as much for the sake of the shoes as for the health.

Many supe -MensW le olk like to that the prevailing fashion, whatever it is, is injurious. Some women like too feel that the reason they do not dress in fashion is because to do so would be to injure their health.

But honestly, now, is there anything in the present-day mode that isn't perfectly suitable and hygienic? There is or need be absolutely no constriction anywhere. No skirts trailing on the pavements, no tight corsets or choking collars. Our heads are covered against the winds and cold of winter far better than those of men. The only score upon which women might still be called foolish in their winter dress is their footgear. They will wear light-soled shoes and they won't protect their ankles in cold and wet weather.

But now even that score has been removed since really smartly dressed women are perfectly willing to wear overshoes of a sort that gives ample protection without in the least detracting from a smart ensemble. It is too much to ask a woman to wear high shoes—when high shoes are as out of fashion as bustles and hooped skrts. Heavy stockings deWract from th smartness of a dainty costume. But somewhow these new overshoes, cut on shapely lines and made of light or attractive materials, call for no heroic disregard of fashion. And young women who dislike the idea of wearing them just for the sake of their health, don them willingly enough when they realize that they are smart in themselves and protect their dainty shoes and slippers from mud and dampness.

Still, those who like to find fault will say—women still wear impossibly thin stockings in very cold weather. They might as well go with their legs bare—sure to have rheumatism, they'll be sorry when they are older. And yet as a matter of fact you never know—you ought not to venture to say—because it is perfectly possible that the flesh tints you see so clearly beneath the cobwebby stockings on a cold winter day belong to the fine nude-colored wool stocking worn beneath.

Hints On Etiquette

1. If a divorcee specifically asks to have her maiden name restored, how does she have her new cards printed?

2. Is it ever proper for a divorced woman to continue using her huaband's full name, as "Mrs. John Smith"?

3. If she retains his surname, how should she be known?

The Answers.

1. Her maiden name, plus "Mrs."

2. No, unless in business under it.

3. Her given name, her family name and her married name, as "Mrs. Martha Jones Smith."

FASHION NOTES.

ELABORATE GIRDLE.

A very wide, tightly draped girdle with flower entwined bow, in deep fuchsia velvet, is very decorative on a crepe frock in paler tone.

RIDING TOGS.

Raisin colored tweed or homespun, with a lavender cast, is popular for juniors in new riding togs. Shirts and ties are lavender.

COLLARLESS WRAP.

An evening cape of gorgeous sable strikes a new note by having its smooth-ly fitting shoulders run to a collarless neckline.

TAILORED CHECKS.

Black and white, brown and beige, and two shades of purple, in checked patterns in fine woolens fashion stylish autumn tailleurs.

GRAPE SHADES.

Grape shades are in high favor this fall, with every tone represented from Concord blue to catawba wine.

SHOULDER PINS.

The shoulder flower has yielded its enviable place in fashion's realm to shoulder pins. An elaborate onyx and crystal one is a twig with leaves hanging.

SHOE BUCKLES.

Now that Fashion says "One, two, buckle my shoe," a pair of pink brocaded evening slippers has real diamond and platinum bow-knot buckles.

HOSIERY ANKLES.

A double, diamond-shaped slipper heel stocking further elaborates itself by having diamond dotted clocks up the sides.

LOSING GRAYS.

Beiges and browns outweigh grays in popularity for costuming this fall, but grays are waging a battle by coming out in lovely soft, new tones.

NEW FLARES.

Afternoon coats, whether they are of cloth or fur, show a penchant for flared skirts, achieved by inserts or unpressed pleats depending on the material.

DESIRES TO REMOVE EVANGELIST'S BODY

English Preacher Would Take Whitefield's Remains to Old Country

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 25 (by the Canadian Press).—Rev. Albert D. Belden, pastor of Whitefield's Tabernacle, London, England, who is on this continent to fulfil speaking engagements in the interests of Anglo-American understanding, has re-discovered the tomb of George Whitefield, the famous 18th century evangelist, in a crypt at Newburyport, Mass., and hopes to have the remains taken home to England, if possible, for reinterment in ground suited to this evangelistic servant of the two peoples.

"At a time when the old statecraft has failed to bring Anglo-Saxons out of the armament race, surely some lofty recognition of one who brought religion to the multitude in both the Motherland and the American colonies is worth thinking of," said Rev. Mr. Belden, during a recent visit to Toronto. "Nothing could more strikingly recognize our essential oneness than to see Whitefield beside the Wesleys in Westminster Abbey. Living and dying a clerk in holy orders, he nevertheless made Methodism possible, is buried in a Presbyterian Church and is commemorated in a Congregational Church."

On returning to England Mr. Belden hopes to awaken public interest in the man after whom his new charge was named.

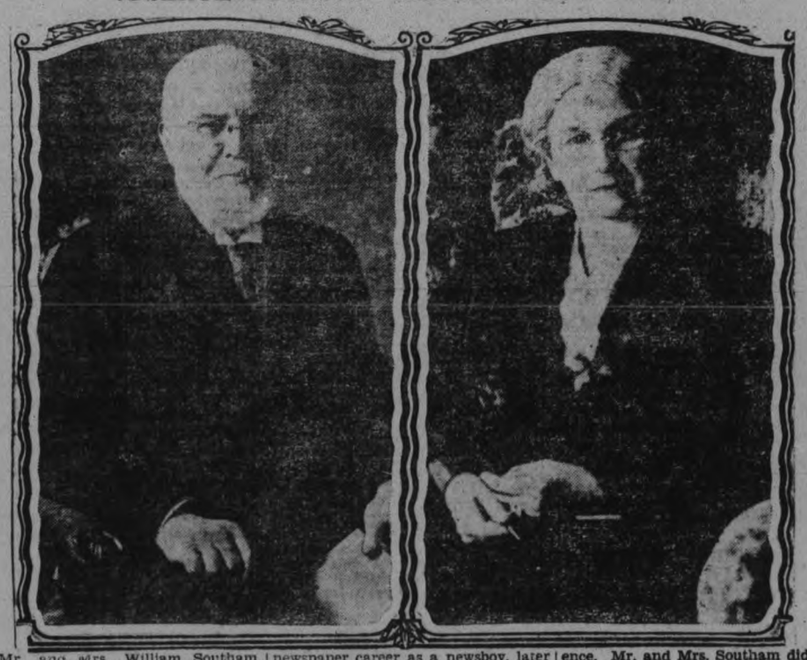
OBSERVE DIAMOND WEDDING ANNIVERSARY



Mr. and Mrs. William Southam, who observed their diamond wedding anniversary quietly at their Hamilton residence recently. Mr. Southam is president of the Southam Press, controlling the largest chain of newspapers in Canada. He started his newspaper career as a newsboy, later passing through the various stages of the printing trade from "devil" to "master." His next step was to the editorial department as a "cub" and from there on he advanced steadily to his present position of pre-eminence. Mr. and Mrs. Southam did not have any celeration in connection with their diamond jubilee. Just ten years ago one of Mr. and Mrs. Southam's six sons, Gordon, was killed in action overseas.

BISHOP AND ASSAILANT

Seldom has the Anglican Church been stirred to the same extent as it has by the latest attacks of Bishop Barnes on transubstantiation and the real presence at the holy communion service. A storm of comment has followed Bishop Barnes' charges. Photo above shows, on the left, Bishop Barnes, and on the right, Canon Bullock-Webster in the attack that followed Bishop Barnes' statements.

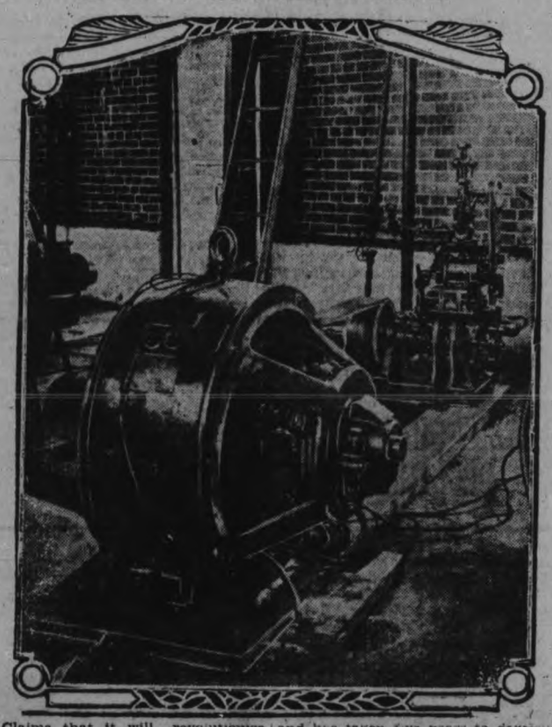
DEPUTY AIR MINISTER

Sir Philip Sassoon, under-secretary for the air, paid a flying visit to Ottawa in both the literal and metaphorical sense. Arriving from Buffalo in a big Fokker machine lent by the United States government, Sir Philip, after lunching at Rideau Hall and conferring with Premier King and Col. Ralston, minister of national defence, on Canadian aviation matters, departed later for New York by train. Sir Philip is seen above at the left with Wing Commander T. G. Hetherington, R.A.F.

TO REVOLUTIONIZE ENGINES



Claims that it will revolutionize present types of both steam and internal engine, the invention of William Elbrick, Toronto, Ont. It is set up in the C.N.R. shops at Leaside, and has taken five years to develop, being built three times. It combines, it is said, the principles of the turbine and reciprocating engines in an entirely new design.

BURNED CHILDREN'S HANDS

Police court officials in Toronto faced an unusual case when William Pelletier, a jeweller, appeared on a charge of assault in connection with the burning of the hands of his two five-year-old boys, twins. The case was remanded. "I didn't intend to hurt them," the father said, "but they had a few lice to things in the house with matches six times. I did it to teach them a lesson against matches. The last time, I took the kettle off the stove, and held their hands over the fire." He says they have learned their lesson, and when they are shown a match, run away

NEW C.P.R. HOTEL

Above is an architect's drawing of the Lord Nelson, the 200-room hotel which the C.P.R. plans to construct at Halifax. That the C.P.R. is to control the project was admitted recently in advertisements appearing in maritime newspapers announcing a bond issue in connection with the venture. That Halifax is now likely to possess two large new hotels is indicated by the statement from Canadian National Railway headquarters in Montreal that the hostelry of the chateau type promised by the C.N.R. is actually under way.

MOTHER GOOSE FAIR IS OPENED

Novel Setting Arranged For Annual Bazaar at All Saints'.

LADIES IN COSTUME.

Something quite out of the ordinary in the way of a bazaar is being held at All Saints' parish hall, under the auspices of the Women's Guild. The bazaar was opened yesterday afternoon by Rev. J. D. Paterson and continues until this evening.

The big hall resounds with merriment occasioned by the original and humorous spectacles presented in the various booths and the costumes worn, in keeping with the idea of a "Mother Goose" Fair, which departs from the usual routine formula in bazaars and fairs, sufficiently to make it very interesting and attractive.

Mother Goose nursery rhymes have been used to signify the different sales in the pretty booths and the attendants are costumes in keeping with the rhymes portrayed. Mrs. N. H. Sutton, president of the Women's Guild, is Mother Goose herself, in a short quilted skirt, black cape, bright blouse and high pointed black hat with white ruffles over the brow. Mrs. Joseph Crowe is another notable figure, as Mother Hubbard, in an old-fashioned flowered print dress, black mittens and schoop shovel, beplumed bonnet.

A pretty tea-room is arranged with red, white and blue bunting, the Queen of Hearts, in traditional costume, presiding over the table with its lighted red candles. Floor lamps and evergreens contribute a Christmas note to the interior.

"Little Bo-Peep" has a latticed pink and white booth, conducted by the Evening branch of the W.A., with attendants in shepherdess attire, and Mrs. J. Black, the "Old Lady in the Shoe" has a family of children in her booth where novelties are sold. She wears an old-fashioned shawl that creates a great deal of admiring comment, while Mrs. P. Fitzgerald, as the "queen in her counting room," with long robe and tinsel crown, is another outstanding figure in the gay assemblage At the "Goosie, Goosie, Gander" booth, Mrs. Ottewell wears a wonderful outfit of stimulated white feathers with a white cap finished by a yellow bill. "Jack and Jill," the former in striking get-up of black breeks and orange smock, sell ice cream, and "Sing a Song of Sixpence," where the queen has her place, makes a handkerchief booth, with a blackbird pie holding a variety of pretty handkerchiefs. Simple Simon has a fish pond, Mrs. C. Seymour appearing here in a fisher-boy outfit of much ingenuity in its fashioning, while home-made cooking and other eatables are sold at the country store, with its green and red adornments. "Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary" has another interesting booth, with Mrs. L. G. Dobbin in flower panniers and white wig. Another red and green booth is that of Red Riding Hood, and striped papers ornament the booth where candy is sold, entitled "Hippity, hop, to the barber shop." "Little Miss Muffet" has a spider web booth and there are gypsy-clad attendants in the fortune-telling corner.

Music by the Sunday school orchestra and by Hawaiian players adds to the interest of the evening programs.

Those taking part in this unique and attractive bazaar are as follows: Mrs. N. H. Sutton, president, as "Mother Goose," Country Store; Mesdames Thomas, Fisher, Rollow, Gibson. "Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary"; Mesdames L. G. Dobbin, Burns, Benor. "Red Riding Hood"; Mesdames T. Sabin and Meek; "Hippity, hop to the Barber Shop"; Mesdames Clee, Holmes, Barrie, Wigg. "Sing a Song of Sixpence," Mesdames F. Roberts, Fitzgerald, Seaman. Christmas booth for fancy work sale, Mesdames J. Davidson, Carvolth, Robinson, Fisher; "Simple Simon," Mesdames Milne and Seymour; "Jac kand Jill," Mesdames Price and Burnham; "Goosie, Goosie Gander," Mesdames F. Pakenham, Ottewell, Wolstenholm; "Old Woman in the Shoe," Mesdames J. Black, Stewart, Hutchinson, Busby, Thompson; Mrs. Joseph Crowe as Mother Hubbard; "Little Po Beep," Mrs. E. LeBarr; Fortune tellers, the Misses Mamie Benor, Detcher, Maconomy, also Mesdames Dillon and Howard. In the tea room, the "Queen of Hearts," Mrs. A. Moffatt, is assisted by Mesdames McLeod, Hawkins, Strickland, Nancarrow, Beatty, Johnson. A Bible class sale of fancy work is conducted by Mesdames Hilliard and Spargo.

Mine Market Begins Upward Climb Again

TORONTO, Nov. 25 (Canadian Press).—The temporary set-back on the Standard Mining Exchange was checked this morning and most of the list, with the exception of occasional high-priced issues, scored moderately substantial gains. Trading was boosted to a million and six hundred thousand shares. Good gains were shown by Bidgood, Crown Reserve, Kirkland Lake, Tough Oakes, Amity Copper, and others. Dome weakened 35 cents from its recent advance, selling at 13.60 at noon after soaring to 14.20 during the session, while Amulet and Area jointly eased about four points. Potter Doal and McIntyre had trifling recessions. The heaviest turnover was in Gold Hill, which gained half at 39.

Wheat Drops Sharply After Opening Weak

CHICAGO, November 25 (Canadian (Canadian Press). — Decided setbacks in Liverpool wheat quotations led to an early downturn to-day in the wheat market here. Reports of favorable weather in Argentina and of increased offerings from there were current. Opening at ½c to 1⅛c decline ,Chicago wheat soon underwent a further drop. Corn, oats, and provisions were steady, corn starting at ½c to ⅞c off, and showing but little power to rally.

Opening prices were:

Wheat, December 127¾, March 131⅞. Corn, December 85⅞, March 90½. Oats, December 49⅛, March 51.

Peterborough Has Two Teams

Not much is known about the Peterborough Juniors, but the Lift Lock City has always had strong teams, and J. Percy Bond and his fellow-citizens who are connected with hockey in that city can be depended to line up a real strong aggregation of youngsters. There is said to be enough material in the Lift Lock City for two good junior teams this winter.

In the second game, University of Toronto Schools and University of Toronto Juniors will battle. Both teams have been practicing hard, and the game promises to be well contested. Gene Dopp will handle the bell.

Dutch Artist Shows His Work in the Peterborough Y.M.C.A.

A very interesting small exhibit of paintings is being made today and to-morrow in the Y.M.C.A. by L. Van Hoven, the Dutch painter, who is in Canada to do the decorating of the new church of Ste. Anne de Beaupre. The selection includes only a few of the canvases by this well-known European artist, who is making his first call on Canada this month, but these well repay a visit by anyone interested in art.

Hon. J. M. Kenworthy, British Labor M.P., who predicts another European war and a battle for naval supremacy between Great Britain and the United States. He is the eldest son of Lord Strabolgi.

FINE PICTURES ARE ON DISPLAY

Mynheer L. Van Hoven, of Rotterdam, Sends Painting To City.

SECRETARY HERE.

Something very interesting in the way of a peep at the art of other lands will be afforded the chance visitor who cares to make a visit to the Young Men's Christian Association between seven and ten o'clock to-night and to-morrow evening to see a few examples of the work of a Dutch artist L. van Hoven, of Rotterdam whose secretary is in the city for a few days, bringing with him half a dozen pieces of his employer's work.

Mynheer van Hoven has been commissioned to do the paintings in the new church at Ste. Anne de Beaupre and is in Canada for the purpose of seeing some of the Dominion and especially the Rocky Mountains. He has spent some time in Kingston, where his paintings attracted much notice, and is now in Toronto. His secretary is in Peterborough for the purpose of arranging a visit of his employer here some time within the next six months.

These paintings are very interesting in their unusual treatment and style. They appear to be harking back to the older, flat style of painting that has been superseded of late by the more impressionistic type that requires a distance to observe properly. One can stand close to these pictures and admire them as well as at a distance, and it is worthy of note that the larger exhibitions are showing many examples of their type.

These pictures are of a decorative order, with a strong use of contrasting color. The flat, grey sky, overcast by light clouds, of a beach lapped by blue water has its contrasting note of color in the strongly-accented reds and yellows of the flowers over which their vendors bend, a young boy and girl whose figures stand out against the grey background. "The Midnight Sun" casting its orange rays over a Norwegian fjord is another odd example of the use of a predominating hue, and there is a great deal of swift movement in the tiny reproduction of a four-horse sleigh with the animals trooting over a snowy road.

A sketch of a Dutch interior is a very interesting piece of work, with a superb handling of materials in its setting, and again the touch of gorgeous color in the yellow satin of the chair seat. The source of light is not indicated in this picture, but the lights and shades of "A Market Place in Rotterdam" leave no doubt as to their source, from a sunny sky. The perspective values in this picture are very fine, the whole giving the impression of a meticulously-executed mental picture of a busy thoroughfare. The effect of enamel is evident in another pastel-like bit that represents fowl in a barnyard, and a seascape glows with the vivid hue of ultramarine.

CHRISTMAS FAIR WELL PATRONIZED

George Street Ladies' Aid Responsible For Successful Bazaar.

The big new Sunday School auditorium of George Street United Church is the scene of much activity just now. The annual Christmas Fair of the Ladies' Aid Society of the church opened there yesterday afternoon, with Rev. J. E. Todd officiating. The Fair continued last evening and to-day, with the closing to-night. Quantities of useful and pretty things are on sale.

The various booths, arranged around the walls ,are decorated with paper in various colors, the towel booth, with its artificial flowers of yellow and mauve, and its lighted floor lamp ,also the candy section, a pagoda-like affair, in purple, mauve, and gold, with candy in dainty purple paper baskets, being especially attractive. The tables for supper, thronged last night by over two hundred and fifty people, were arranged with colored candles and potted plants.

The auditorium stage has been converted into a charming little tea-room, with palms, ferns, and artificial flowers on latticed sections, as decorations. There are shaded lights and flower-centred tables here, and soft music is provided during the tea hour.

Mesdames H. F. Foote and B. Shortley are general convenors of the bazaar, with Mrs. C. E. Smith, president of the society. Mesdames T. N. D. Kelly, E. E. Harvey, and H. O. Fisk have charge of the Fern Garden tea-room, assisted by Misses Gwen Kelly, Pearl Carruthers, and Helen Fisk.

The sale of whitewear is in charge of Mrs. P. Hetherington and Miss E. Wiggins, assisted by Mesdames Lowes, Lindsay, Bithray, Lord, Frogett, McFarlane, McMillan, Rutherford, Long, McKim, Mather, while Mesdames C. B. Adair and E. H .Bartlett have the sale of novelties, assisted by Mesdames Allison, McIntyre, S. A. Oke, Elliott, Eyres, Froom

Miss Sarah Miller sells aprons, assisted by Mrs. Tinney and Miss Cooper ,and Mr. George Robertson has the pillow-cases and towels, assisted by Mesdames Hagerman, Harris, Gray, and Fitzgerald.

Mrs. H. M. Dulmage and Mrs. Gunsolus have the handkerchief sale, with Mesdames McKee, Melson. Copp, Coon, Buck, Wood, Brownscombe, Thornton, and Miss E. Mitchell; and candy is sold by Mrs .W. Belleghem and Miss Jean Kelly, assisted by Mesdames V. Walker, F. S. Schneider, H. Borland, C. Layfield, A. Metheral, Cullen.

A pretty Christmas tree, with mystery packages tied to its green branches, and a background in a lighted fireplace, is in charge of Miss Mary Elliott and Mrs. J. Staples, assisted by Miss L. Morrow, Mesdames A. M. Weldon, George Elliott, Harold Elliott, J. E. Middleton, J. F. H. Wallace, F. C. McBride, and Miss T. Paxman.

Mrs. H. M. Yelland and Mrs. J. E. Todd have the sale of plants, with Mrs. G. Carruthers and Mrs. J. Stubbs sells home-made cooking, with Mrs. F. Sanderson and Miss Lottie Allan.

Convenors of the supper room are Mesdames Spencer and Redpath, assisted by Mesdames Hales, Cunningham, Wiley, Rutherofrd, Frederick Strong, Gray, Copp, Hanbidge, McHoul, Miller, Morgan, Buck, in charge of tables ,with their energetic corps of men and women assistants.

TALK ON WEST IS GIVEN WOMEN

Canadian Club Ladies Addressed By H. E. Spencer, M. P.

TELLS OF PROBLEMS.

A very comprehensive, concise summary of the problems and resources of Western Canada, with particular reference to the speaker's home province, was given last evening at the meeting in the auditorium of the Public Library of the Women's Canadian Club, when Herbert E. Spencer, M.P., of Battle River, Alberta, spoke on "Western Canada's Point of View." The audience was small, but appreciative. The president, Miss S. A. Tomkins, introduced the speaker as one with a wide experience of various phases of life. Before coming to Western Canada in 1908, Mr. Spencer, who was born and educated in England, was a banker in Stratford-on-Avon, and later conducted a printing and publishing business in France.

Mr. Spencer referred to the early settlement of Western Canada, referring to the mistakes in early days and the promises, still unfulfilled, of better railway transportation.

"We probably made the mistake of opening up one-half of that country, when we should have opened only one third of it," he said. "And we made an error in opening up only every other section, so that when a large number of people went in, they spread out and covered two hundred miles, instead of one hundred miles of territory. Thus we re-doubled the railway problem and made it difficult for the school district. The problem of roads is also another enormous one. We have a right of way north and south every mile and east and west every two miles.

"In the early days the people had to go great distances for supplies. A great deal of credit is due the women of those pioneer times, whose work was largely bounded, as someone has said, 'by four walls and a dishpan.' Recognition of their efforts at that time have come later, for Alberta was one of the first provinces of Canada to give women the franchise and to place them in Parliament and in the Cabinet."

Mr. Spencer went on to outline in interesting fashion the advantages of Western Canada, speaking especially of Alberta. The climate, which is erratic, gives a severe winter, but a wonderful summer, with long days, cool nights and much sun, tending to splendid growth. A vine under his own supervision grew as much as four and one-half inches per day for an entire week during one such summer. "You can almost see things grow out there."

"In no other part of the world, except possibly in the Western States, can you find as much farm produce per man. We produce in that country forty-five per cent of the entire produce of the Dominion. But often a monkey wrench is thrown in the machinery by the climate and economic conditions." Mr. Spencer also referred to the high standard of the wheat and oats grown in Alberta, also of the cattle and dairy produce.

In a brief review, he gave a graphic idea of some of the conditions prevailing in recent years in the West, since 1915, when a magnificent crop gave an impetus to all types of business there, on through the bad years which followed, and the next splendid year in 1927. He spoke of the cheapness with which goods can be transported from Alberta to the Pacific coast ports, which were at one time considered only open for use to transport goods to the Orient, but which have become a gateway to England, via the Panama Canal. He referred to the opening up of the Peace River country as an error, on account of lack of proper transportation facilities. The people who went there "produced themselves poor," and 12,000 of the original 25,000 settlers were forced to withdraw, because they had no way to get their produce to the markets. With regard to the building of the Edmonton, Dunvegan and British Columbia Railway, commonly referred to in the West, he said, as "an extraordinary, dangerous and badly constructed railway," he also spoke, and went on to say that investigation had proven that goods could be transported, in many instances, more cheaply from London, England, to Vancouver, than from Vancouver to Edmonton.

Referring briefly to three factors worked out by the clubs of the West, he spoke of them as interested in problems having to do with education, independent political action and economic difficulties that arose from time to time, outlining the scope of each effort. His address concluded with a hope that much might be done in future toward a better understanding between the various sections of the Dominion.

JUNIOR PETES PLAY TO-NIGHT

Meet Newmarket in Junior S. P. A. Match at Arena.

IN OPENING GAME.

TORONTO, Nov 25. — Local fans who have been following the S.P.A. series will see two junior teams from out-of-town perform in to-night's double bill at Arena Grdens. The first game will bring together Newmarket and Peterborough, with Stan. Burgoyne officating. The contest starts at 7.30 o'clock.

Newmarket's great little junior team of last season, which lost out in the O.H.A. finals to Owen Sound, is well remembered locally. It was Newmarket that put the crimp in the hope of St. Michael's College for an O.H.A. Junior title. Although Newmarket lost three of its star players, including young Townley and Goalkeeper Corbett, Bill Hancock promises another strong contender this season, and the fans will get a

Baseball Season Brought To Successful Close

Local Ball Teams Honored at Banquet Given By Council

Guests of Evening Composed of Senior Team, Crescents, Kiwanis Juniors, All Saints' Juveniles, Kiwanis Bantams and Many Citizens Interested in City Sport.

MAYOR HOLLOWAY TELLS OF PLAN WHEREBY STADIUM COULD BE BUILT AT BALL PARK

Peterborough honored her baseball players last night at a banquet held in the Empress Hotel. The guests of the evening were the members of the Senior team, Crescents, Kiwanis Juniors, All Saints Juveniles, Kiwanis Bantams and many citizens who are represented in city sport.

The name of Peterborough during the past year has spread through the length and breadth of this province as being one of the leading sporting cities in the Dominion of Canada, and it was as a token of esteem and honor rather than that of remuneration that the banquet was given by the city fathers.

Although no championships were brought to this city during the season of 1927, two teams entered the finals of the Ontario Baseball Association. one went into the semi-finals and the other two did credit to this city in the Eastern Ontario play-offs. The Seniors were put out in the finals by Hamilton; the Crescents lost to Deloro; Oshawa defeated the Kiwanis Juniors; the Juveniles lost to Ottawa, but forced the winners into a third game, and the Toronto champions defeated the Bantams in the finals.

Alderman George Macdonald was the chairman for the occasion and he extended a welcome to all the players who had made such a successful showing during the year. "The Council is glad to welcome you this evening, for you have done credit to this city during the past year."

Ball Park to Remain

Mayor Holloway, in proposing the toast "Baseball in Peterborough," declared that the present Council did not contemplate taking baseball away from James Stevenson Park. He submitted a plan whereby money could be raised to build a stadium at the park. We are always glad to do what we can do to help sport in the city. It has often been said about the Council that they did not help sport in this city, but this banquet tonight is not in the nature of a reward or pay for what you have done, it is merely to show you that our hearts are in the right place," said His Worship. "I hope the boys of this city will continue to develop in sporting lines, for the more sport a city has the better it is for it. Peterborough is the most notorious sporting city in the Dominion of Canada and the credit for this is greatly due to men who are here tonight, who perhaps never played ball, but they have financed teams in order that the name of Peterborough might be broadcasted throughout the country.

It has always been a handicap for a city the size of Peterborough to finance teams. Two things are badly needed in this city in order that sport might be made more successful. One is a stadium at James Stevenson Park, and the second is an arena at the Exhibition Grounds, so that it might serve the dual purpose of accommodating hockey and aiding the Peterborough Exhibition. I have been thinking of a scheme for some time whereby a stadium could be financed. I propose that a scroll be gotten ready, whereby a person could have his name written on it for $5.00 and if 4,000 or 5,000 citizens would sign this scrool a stadium would be made possible in this city. I am willing to devote my time in trying to raise this money. The Council never had the idea of trying to close up James Stevenson Park, for we have not enough recreation grounds at present," declared His Worship.

Gordon Matthews, in reply to the toast "The baseball of Peterborough," thanked the Mayor and Council for the splendid banquet, and he paid a tribute to Manager Swanston and Sheriff Hall for the way in which they had handled the Peterborough Senior team during the season. "I am glad to hear the Mayor declare that the Council are not going to take baseball from James Stevenson Park. Next year we will have a Senior baseball team, for it is necessary that this city has both Senior baseball and hockey," said Mr. Matthews.

J. F. Coursey thanked the city for the banquet in behalf of the East Peterborough League which in the last year gave exhibitions of splendid baseball at the Exhibition Park.

William Prindible, who has done so much to help the City Baseball League carry on, expressed his thanks to the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs for their help during the season. He emphasized the need of a strong City League so that in years to come there might be senior ball in this city. He asked for more playing grounds and hoped that next year many men of the city would take an interest in looking after teams as every year there is plenty of material but none to finance or coach the players.

Dr. J. J. Craig, president of the City League, promised to do everything in his power to develop baseball in the public schools of the city and leave softball for the girls of the school to play. He asked, that men who have played senior ball and who are contemplating retiring, to take an interest in coaching the boys in the City League. "It is in the public schools that baseball players are made and great credit for the success of the league is due to William Prindible and Jack Deannard," said Dr. Craig.

Sergeant Deannard, in a short speech, told of how the City League last year was handicapped for playing grounds, and he made several suggestions whereby King Edward Park and playgrounds could be made an excellent diamond for baseball. Bevis of All Saints' juveniles and Hunt of the Kiwanis bantams thanked the Council for the banquet and the interest being taken in baseball in the city.

Softball Has a Place.

J. E. Sullivan, past president of the Peterborough Softball Association, told of the strides that game had made in the city in the past six years until last year the Firemen went into the Ontario semi-finals and this year the Belmonts entered the finals. "Softball has a place in this city, but it was never intended to interfere with other sport. It is a healthful recreation for men who have found the going in baseball too strenuous for them. There is no greater work in any city than that of providing good clean sport, and all we need in this city is men to organize and help it along for co-operation is the bulwark of any organization."

S. D. Haskill, manager of the Belmont softball team, thanked the Council for the invitation to be present at the banquet.

Alex. Kay, veteran umpire of Peterborough and Eastern Ontario, declared that the city should not handle James Stevenson Park, but that it should be given to the City Trust.

"Four years ago Peterborough banqueted four Ontario championship teams and this year we have teams that have made a splendid record. This city is known all over the province as being a mecca for baseball players, and one thing that is always said of those who come from Peterborough is they know the rules," said Mr. Kay.

Toast to Canada.

Joseph Wearing, city solicitor, moved the toast to this fair Dominion. "We love Canada because of its greatness. She has successfully solved many problems. We have in this country two great nations and the people to-day are better off for it. The same National Anthem is sung whether in French or English, and I am not afraid to-day of the future of Canada as long as the British race predominate. We have always done our best in sport simply because our players were not out to win but to give the best that was in them. I came to Peterborough to practice law because her name as a sporting centre has spread far and wide. With good sport in a city there will be progress, and may the future hold in store the same as it held for those who went before us."

City Clerk S. R. Armstrong replied to the toast to Canada, in which he compared the size of Canada with many countries in Europe. Canada to-day is as large as seventeen Germany's; there is also enough left over for an Italy, a Greece and a republic of Portugal, and then there will be some left over," said Mr. Armstrong.

R. M. Glover, the last speaker of the evening, on behalf of the senior baseball team, presented club bags to Sheriff Hall, F. D. Craig, and V. Hamilton, and a tantalus to Gordon Matthews.

The De Laval Orchestra, under the leadership of W. Nichols, supplied the music during the evening.

TIGERS STRONG FOR SATURDAY

Gordon French Back in the Line-up—New Plays Mapped Out.

ANNOUNCE LINE-UP.

HAMILTON Ont., Nov. 25. — Gordon French, Tigers' only casualty, has rejoined the squad, and it was announced following a workout that the husky inside wing would start as a regular against Balmy Beach in the C.R.U. final at Varsity Stadium on Saturday. French only played for twenty minutes against Queens, and a bad bump aggravated the injured leg, but proper attention this week has done wonders and he worked hard for two full hours with the regular squad last night. Coach Rodden introduced several new plays that will be used against the O. R. F.U. champs and they should be ground gainers if the boys work them as well under fire as they did in the work out.

The Tigers indulged in another lengthy work out last night in spite of the unfavorable weather.

Following the work out Rodden announced that the team for Saturday would be as follows:

Flying wing, Small; backs, Leadley Languay and Wright; quarter, McKelvey; snap, Cox; inside wings, Denman and French; middles, Baker and Timmis; outsides, Veale and Bowman.

DOURO SCHOOL WINS.

S. S. No. 5, Not Warsaw, Highest Scoring School at Douro —Dummer Fair.

DOURO, November 25. — The silver cup donated by Mr. Cutcliffe, manager of the Royal Bank, Norwood, to the school winning the highest average of points in the Dummer-Douro School Fair, was won by S.S. No. 5, Douro, of which Miss Frances Fitzgerald is teacher. Through some misunderstanding the cup was claimed by Warsaw School, and they were announced as winners, and just recently the correct award was made.

Much credit is due Miss Fitzgerald and her pupils. During her five years as teacher, Miss Fitzgerald has been an exceptionally successful teacher.

MONDAY'S BOUT OF TITLE NATURE

Winner Between Genaro and Belanger Will Meet Ernie Jarvis.

TORONTO, Nov. 25.—There is better than an even chance that a world's championship bout will be served up to Toronto fans before the end of the year as a result of the pronouncement of the National Boxing Association recognizing the ten-round contest here on Monday night between Frankie Genaro of New York and French Belanger of Toronto as a semi-final in the elimination series.

It all hinges upon Dave Garrity's little fighting man whether the Queen City or Chicago is the scene of a titular tilt. If Belanger whips the former American champion at the Coliseum there is little doubt but that he will elect to meet Ernie Jarvis ,the English contender, in Toronto, but if Genaro is the winner the Windy City will probably get the final fracas.

That's the way the situation stands to-day.

The edict of the N.B.A. has had the effect of considerably enhancing the importance of Monday's midget melee. It was a fine break for Playfair Brown and his Shamrock Club associates. The announcement of the action of the governing body, of which T. W. Murphy, M.P.P., of Toronto, is the vice-president, could not have come at a better time. Incidentally the chairman of the Ontario athletic commission was a prime factor in the matter. It was largely as a consequence of his activities that the association of which he is a leading figure ignored the pretensions of Brown and Schwartz and selected Genaro, Belanger and Jarvis as the candidates for the crown.

Advices are to the effect that Genaro is back in the form that made him the terorr not only of the tadpole section, but of the bantam brigade as well, and if that is the case Frenchy will have to swing his fists in lively fashion on Monday night. Genaro is a harder hittter than Belanger and fully as clever. He has absorbed the punches of much more formidable boxers than the newsboy ever met and finished with colors flying ,all of which means that the local sensation has a job of sorts on his hands.

GALT RUNNER WINS MARATHON

Clifford Bricker First in Berwick Race For Second Successive Year.

RAIN-SOAKED COURSE.

BERWICK, Pa., November 25 (Associated Press). — Showing his heels to a field of 37 starters, including some of the best distance runners in the United States and Canada, Clifford Bricker, Galt, Ont., mechanic, yesterday won the Berwick Marathon for the second successive year.

His time for the 9¼ mile mountain course was 48 minutes 22 seconds, 25 1-5 seconds behind the record established by Willie Ritola in 1922. In view of the rain-soaked and muddy course, Bricker's performance was considered remarkable.

John Bell, St. Bonaventure College, finished second in 49m. 47s, and Bill Cox, Pennsylvania State College, intercollegiate cross-country champion, third in 50m. 20s. Two other Canadians, Harold Webster, Hamilton, Ont., and Charles Snell, Toronto, finished sixth and tenth respectively.

Webster's time was 50m. 34s and Snell's 52m. 30 3-5s. Johnny Miles, of Sydney Mines, N.S., who had been one of the favorites, did not start in the race.

Cox set the pace for the first 2½ miles, but he could not stand the pace set by Bricker and Bell going up the first of the two long hills, and both passed him. Bricker gradually pulled out in the lead and retained it to the end of the long grind.

Ten of the starters failed to finish.

Several thousand persons stood in a downpour of rain to watch the race.

Ove Anderson, Finland, pulled up in fourth place, 4 4-5 seconds behind Cox.

ATTACK IN SECOND TO DEFEAT CORNELL

Pennsylvanians Mop Up Ithacans By One-sided Score of 35-0.

(By Alan J. Gould (Associated Press Sports Editor.)

FRANKLIN FIELD, Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 25 (A.P.).—Launching a series of bombs that came out of the sky with particularly devastating effect in the second period, Pennsylvania's air raiders mopped up Cornell yesterday by the one-sided score of 35 to 0 before a colorful Thanksgiving Day crowd of 75,000.

Few dead line sorties had been conducted by any college gridiron this season than the attack that Pennsylvania's backfield engendered to give the Ithacans the worst beating they have sustained in the eight years that Gloomy Gil Dadie has been bringing big Red teams to Franklin Field.

This astonishing aerial offensive, made more bewildering by being coupled with sleight of hand hidden tricks didn't hold its effectiveness very long, but while it was geared to high speed, Pennsylvania scored five touchdowns, four of them in the second period drive that had Cornell's defence completely demoralized. Half-back Paul Murphy and Quarter-back Johnny Shaber were the chief figures in the passing combination that upset the Ithacans and put them to rout before the first half was ended. The work of these two aerial artists contributed largely to four of the five touchdowns.

The astonishing, if not record-breaking effectiveness of Pennsylvania's passing game is shown by the fact that the Quakers averaged close to 23 yards for each of 15 completed tosses.

GILES PREPARES THIRD ATTEMPT

Defends Himself Against Criticism of Backers and Weather Experts.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 25.—(Canadian Press).—With his financial backers in Detroit demanding "performance instead of cheap and vulgar publicity" and weather bureau officials here discounting his story of a narrow escape from bad flying weather at sea during an attempt to fly to Honolul, Capt. Frederick A. Giles, British aviator, was back here yesterday defending himself against criticism and making plans to take off again on his proposed Golden Gate-New Zealand flight.

Giles left here early on Tuesday, ostensibly for Honolulu, his first stop en route to New Zealand, but turned up later in the day in San Luis Obispo county, about four hundred miles from here, whence he telephoned to Los Angeles announcing that his plane had narrowly escaped being wrecked in an "air pocket" 480 miles off the California shore.

THREE WORKMEN KILLED IN TRAIN

Central Vermont Work Train Derailed at Scene of Recent Washout.

WILLISTON, Vermont, Nov. 24. — Three men lost their lives and two others were critically injured to-day when a work train of the Central Vermont Railroad here was derailed and the caboose caught fire. Fifteen workmen were in the caboose at the time and nine of them were caught when another car telescoped it, setting fire to the car.

Details were lacking but it was reported that the wreck occurred on a stretch of track recently replaced after having been washed away by the floods.

The dead and injured were workmen employed in repairing the tracks and were on a work train when the wreck occurred. According to reports to the railroad's offices a section of the track gave way as the train was returning to this city.

NOW PLAYING THE GREAT BARBARY COAST MYSTERY

"Old San Francisco"

Starring

DOLORES COSTELLO — WARNER OLAND.

A Romance of the days when 'Frisco was the Paris of America. Ominous, Sinister — an octopus whose undulating tentacles were for ever groping—for youth, for beauty—and she had sworn to avenge the underworld stain on her father's honor.

SERIES NO. 2 - - "THE WISE CRACKERS."

VISITING BIRTHPLACE.

Sir Gordon Guggisberg, governor of British West Africa, who is visiting in Canada. He is a Canadian by birth, being born in Galt 58 years ago.

lain. He is the pirate chieftain, Don Balthasar, and the whole tale revolves around the story of Serafina, the heroine, and Jose Armand (Ramon Novarro) who becomes involved with the pirates and are captured by them and held prisoner.

The setting of "The Road to Romance" is in Cuba, in the early days of the nineteenth century, and the story is adapted from the novel entitled "Romance," by Joseph Conrad. Novarro is the adventurous Spanish don and swashbuckling hero, a scion of an aristocratic family who sails from Madrid to rescue his cousin, Serafina, who is about to fall into the hands of Don Balthasar, a piratical chieftain, head of a group of sea robbers operating on the Caribbean Sea and in the West Indies.

Jose is captured and imprisoned, but escapes through the power of his quick wits and eventually rescues Serafina from the hands of the rogues, who also hold her imprisoned. The two fall in love at once and there is a great deal of interest in the unfolding of the story of their romance.

Marc McDermott, well known veteran of the screen, has a place on the cast, which is excellently chosen.

AT THE REGENT.

"TEXAS TOMMY" DANCED IN OLD 'FRISCO FILM.

"Texas Tommy," the Barbary Coast dance, which swept the country in the nineties, is reproduced with lightning-like vivacity in "Old San Francisco," the Warren Bros.' starring vehicle for Dolores Costello. "Old San Francisco" is a thrilling melodrama of old San Francisco's Chinatown and Barbary Coast, ending with the earthquake and fire of 1906.

The creator and introducer of the "Texas Tommy," a cabaret dancer and singer, later fell from the stage of the old Midway Theatre. He was never again able to walk.

Featured in support of Miss Costello is Warner Oland. The cast includes Charles Emmett Mack, William Demarest, Sojin, John Miljan, Josef Swickard, Anders Randloph, Angelo Rositto, Anna May Wong, Rose Dione, Otto Mattieson, Martha Mattox, Walter McGrail and Tom Santschi. Alan Crosland, directed.

BAILEY SCORES WINNING GOAL

Puts Toronto Leafs in Lead in Second Period on Pass From Cox.

AMERICANS BEATEN.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—The New York Americans have still to get started in the race for the championship of the National Hockey League. The Toronto Maple Leafs came to town last night and for the third time Shorty Green's lads took the short end of the score. They started a goal to the bad in the first period, when their goalie tried to block a shot with one hand, caught up early in the second when Barry, a youngster, skimmed a puck into Toronto's net and then they allowed the Leafs to go ahead in the closing minutes with a neat goal on fine team play. In the last the Americans made a furious finish, showing that they can go hard when they have to, but their shooting, while fast and desperate, was wild. The final score was 2 to 1.

Roach, the Maple Leafs' veteran goalkeeper, decided the battle for his side. He withstood a perfect rain of shots in the three spasms of fighting. But for his classy work the Americans might have gained their first victory for they were the busier team. Red Green, McKinnon and Eddie Bouchard were their best chargers. Leo Reise was back in the line-up at defence and he and Conacher did well, until the latter was injured in the second period.

Teams:

Referees—Mickey Ion, Montreal, and Bill O'Hara, Ottawa.

The Summary.

First Period:
1—Maple Leafs, Day, 4.17.
Second Period:
2—Americans, Barry, 10.27.
3—Maple Leafs, Bailey (Cox), 6.18.
Third Period:
No score.
Final score—Maple Leafs, 2; Americans, 1.

Penalties—First period: McCaffery (major); second period, Gorman, Patterson, Conacher, Green, Bailey; third period, Gorman, Patterson, C. Bowcher, Keeling, W. Boucher, Day. Total, Maple Leafs 8 minutes; Americans 19 minutes.

John Barrymore in "WHEN A MAN LOVES" is a Warner Bros. Picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Fabien, good and handsome youth of France, trains for the priesthood; but meets and loves Manon Lescaut, beauteous orphan, whose rascally brother, realizing her worldly value, barters her for gold to Ravoir, rich connoisseur of women. Fabien saves her and carries her off to Paris, where they wander into a boarding house and, in a great and sacred love, live happily together, though poor. While Fabien is out Manon's brother comes and bullies her into going with him. He changes her farewell note, so that it is cruel and final. Fabien returns.

CHAPTER VIII.—Continued.

In answer to Fabien's frenzied call, Marie, the maid, appeared, immediately, on the landing below and came up with a twisted, mocking smile on her face. Marie rejoiced in Fabien's anguish.

"Where is Manon?" Fabien's face was white, his eyes blood shot.

"Gone, likely with the rich gentleman who called for her." Marie's eyes were crafty.

"You lie!" came from Fabien through set jaw.

His face was livid and Marie ducked out of reach from upraised arms that threatened to strike her to the floor.

Gradually Fabien's awful rage ebbed away, leaving him weak and dazed. He was so pitifully young and deeply in love with Manon that Marie's implication had made him see red. Still he dared not recall the content of that note. It seemed impossible to Fabien that Manon had been unfaithful. He adored her, and had she not given sufficient proof of her love? She had hardly been out of his sight since their arrival in Paris—how could she know another man? In a flash Fabien was convinced that the Comte had discovered Manon's whereabouts and forced her to go away with him. Even this was a deathblow, because if true her fate would be unthinkable.

Fabien reread the note and was more distressed than ever. What a cruel message for Manon to leave! There was no doubt about it being her own writing. Apparently she had grown tired of him and their poverty. No, no, she had too recently lavished her caresses upon him for that to be true. Yet, the reality of her note remained to taunt him. Fabien paced the floor as though bereft of all reason.

He tossed the silver chain on the table beside his slipper buckles. What a celebration to end their first week of love together!

Unable to endure the solitary loneliness of their once happy abode, Fabien strode from the room and slammed the door.

The love nest was deserted.

Would the world prove a kind place for the young ones who had gone forth so poorly prepared to meet the adventure and problems that awaited them?

Only Time would tell!

CHAPTER IX.

When Lescaut finally succeeded in getting Manon out of the pension he welcomed the sight of a coach and quickly shoved her within its seclusion as Fabien passed by. It was a narrow escape. Besides Manon's protestations and tears were embarrassing and he did not want to attract attention. Also, he had to prepare her mind for what was to follow and he could not do it walking along the street.

"How silly to regret leaving a hovel like that! Dry your eyes and be ready to see the beautiful place I am taking you to. I have come into a little money and am living so handsomely that I want my little sister to share it with me." Lescaut spoke consolingly but he did not dare explain that the handsome hon e he referred to was the Comte's quarters and the money had been advanced by the amorous banker at the promise of Manon's deliverance into his hands.

When they arrived at the great mansion, Manon was so impressed with its splendor that for a few moments she forgot all about her unceremonious farewell from Fabien. Never had she imagined there was so much wealth in the world. There seemed to be a cohort of liveried servants passing here and there through the great marble halls.

Manon thought that it was fortunate for her brother to have inherited or acquired so much money. She did not stop to think just where it came from or that such sudden affluence was impossible. Her mind was again on Fabien and she thought how happy they would be in a place like this. Manon was terribly hurt and angry that Andre was selfish enough not to include him.

The boudoir that proved to be Manon's was a dream of loveliness. Tall mirrors about the walls told her that she was very out of place in her crude wash dress, amid so much silken elegance. It added to her loneliness and, sinking down on the chaise longue she buried her head among the soft silk pillows and cried.

It was here that the Comte found her when he tiptoed into the room, impatient to claim his prize without further delay.

Brought to a consciousness of present surroundings by the Comte's devouring gaze, Manon lifted her head from the pillows. When she saw who was there she sat bolt upright with terror and covered her mouth to keep from screaming.

"Welcome my pretty little bird, to the nest I have prepared for you," said the Comte as his hand reached out and cupped Manon's chin.

"Don't!" she shuddered, striking his hand away and springing to her feet.

"Perhaps you like this better," and the Comte's arm went over Manon's shoulder, down her back and around her waist as he stepped closer.

With a heartrending cry Manon pulled away and retreated to a far corner of the room.

The arrival of Lescaut, attracted by her screams, only added to her hysteria. "You have told terrible lies to get me here. You are beasts—both of you. My own brother has tricked me!" Manon's hands went up to her eyes, to wipe away the blinding tears, and when she took them away she saw the Comte approaching, nearer and nearer with that same terrible devouring expression on his face.

"Let me alone!" she cried pleadingly

"Why should I? Don't you know that I have paid for you?" The Comte watched her greedily as he advanced.

Unable to stand the proximity of either man for another moment, Manon dodged away from the Comte and picking up her skirts ran out on to the balcony. Without a moment's hesitation she jumped over the low railing and raced across the lawn. Her only plan was to return to the comfort and happiness of Fabien's arms.

It was dark night time when Manon reached the pension. Fear of being pursued and caught had prompted a cautious trip along unfrequented streets, so that when she reached their attic room and opened the door she almost collapsed with fatigue and anxiety.

A great flood of moonlight coming in through the dormer window showed Manon that Fabien was not waiting for her. She looked about hopelessly and called his name again and again.

Aroused from a long quiet sleep by the sound of her mistress' voice Pitou climbed out of her basket and demanded recognition. Manon happily gathered the little pet in her arms.

Sick at heart over Manon's departure, Fabien walked the streets. Finally he was drawn back to the pension in the hope that she had returned. But looking up he saw their little windows all dark.

Should he go up there and wait for her? He started for the door, then stopped. It would be hopeless and a waste of time, besides he could not endure the room without her.

Fabien tragically turned away, little dreaming that at that very moment Manon was back in their love nest, calling his name, looking and longing for him with such a great need that it seems he should have known and gone to her, in spite of the deceiving darkness.

Why was it that Fate again drew the lovers near: but played with her power and their future by keeping them in cruel ignorance of each other?

Marie was making her nightly rounds when she chanced to notice the attic door ajar, peering curiously in she was shocked to see Manon.

"What you doing back here?" she asked.

"Oh, Marie, where is Fabien—I have come back to him."

THE CONQUEST OF THE AIR — XVII — by Nicholas Afonsky

Men were beginning to work toward the idea of a practicable flying machine. Several men devised unsuccessful flying machines, one that was sent aloft by a balloon attached to it. In 1811 Thomas Walker of Hull, England, designed a flying machine with a sail. But it wouldn't fly.

Other men were working along the lines of the dirigible. One of these was Leppig, who constructed a long balloon, from which hung a fin propeller, worked by hand by means of complicated ropes. This was not a practicable apparatus, but it was another step toward the eventual perfection of it.

It was a little later than this that Charles Green, in 1836, on a fine autumn day, started on a long journey. His balloon, the famous "Great Nassau," was provisioned for several days. Green was going as long as he could stay up. He floated across the channel, and darkness overtook him.

All through the night Green and his companion floated in the darkness, anxiously trying to see from the big basket hung under the balloon where they were. When dawn broke, they saw that they were safe over the land, and in the course of the morning brought their balloon down in Germany.

THIS GREAT HEALING OIL MUST BANISH ECZEMA AND SKIN TROUBLES

Or Your Money Back. That's the Plan on Which Emerald Oil Is Sold By Bond's Drug Store, C. M. Moncur, Bert McLeod, McDermid Drug Co., Ltd., McDermid & Jury, and All Good Druggists.

This wonderful preparation now known all over America as Moone's Emerald Oil is so efficient in the treatment of skin diseases that the itching of eczema stops with one application.

A few applications and the most persistent case of Eczema stops with one application.

A few applications and the most persistent case of Eczema is healed never to return; even old chronic cases of long standing quickly show remarkable results.

Moone's Emerald Oil is safe and pleasant to use; it doesn't stain or leave a greasy residue. It is so powerfully antiseptic that even odors arising from cancers and gangrene are instantly killed.

Be patient, don't expect a single bottle to do it all at once but one bottle we know will show you beyond all question that you have at last discovered the way to restore your skin to perfect health.

Ask your druggist today for a 2 ounce original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil. Almost every druggist in the country can supply you.

For sale at Bond's Drug Store, Bert McLeod, C. M. Moncur, McDermid Drug Co., Ltd. and McDermid & Jury.

MISCONCEPTION WITHIN EMPIRE IS WIDESPREAD

Rev. J. Douglas Paterson Gives Address To Y's Men's Club.

TELLS OF WRONG IDEAS.

People in Old Country and in Dominions Not Familiar With Each Other.

The necessity of clearing up some misconceptions existing in various parts of the Empire about other parts was stressed by the Rev. J. Douglas Paterson, Rector of All Saints' Church, addressing the members of the Y's Men's Club at their weekly luncheon at the Y.M.C.A. last night.

Mr. Paterson stated that on his recent visit to Scotland he had met many people who thought that Canada was as good as part of the United States and that the British connection was not very strong. He had met others, tourists from Canada who had spent their whole holiday in hotels, who said that Great Britain was on the verge of ruin.

Discussing the matter of British immigration, the speaker said that the idea has got abroad in Britain that Canada does not welcome settlers as do Australia, New Zealand, and East Africa. A domestic can come to Canada for $10, but she will be taken to Australia or New Zealand, a much longer journey, free and advanced money for an outfit if she needs it. The people do not realize that there is a difference in circumstances. Canada cannot afford to spend as much money on each immigrant, because the fare back to the old country is not high and many of them, after a few years here, return home. Others go to the United States, which is a loss to Canada of the effort put out in bringing them here.

To Australia and New Zealand is a much longer journey and there are few who are able to return to England, unless it is in old age. These Dominions consequently retain their immigrants and can spend more on them. East Africa advertises only for people who have capital to buy and operate farms, and an English social life is being built up there. These same men could be attracted to Canadian farms, said Mr. Paterson, and it might be better to build up a social life more like that of the old country.

In the British Isles, continued Mr. Paterson, turning to misconceptions held here, the spirit of the people will for years continue to be dominated by the remembrance of those killed in the war. The sacrifices of men are not realized here. The people are now, he said, writing off eight years of life, and starting anew. One great firm, whose shares were approved as suitable for the investment of trust funds, wrote off $85,000,000 of its capital. Another is on the verge of bankruptcy, but none of its creditors is big enough to handle the task. They are therefore struggling along, and the speaker predicted that in ten years it will be well on the way back to its former eminence.

One of the saddest sights in the old country during Mr. Paterson's visit was the sight of miners near Newcastle idle while coal from Europe was coming into the port. This was because the European mine owners had demanded contracts for a year when British firms sought coal during the big strike. An element of progress on the other hand was seen in the large number of houses being constructed. Recently, the millionth new house since the war was finished.

The inherent respect for law and order and the sportsmanship of the British people was illustrated by Mr. Paterson with reference to the great place which the King and Queen hold in their hearts. The example of Their Majesties, although seemingly overshadowed by that of the Prince of Wales in the stories sent to this side, is pre-eminent, and their prestige has increased during the years of the war and he told of the mob of 20,000 people which was on the way to pull down the American Embassy on the night of the Sacco-Vanzetti execution. They had been inflamed by orators at Hyde Park, and marched towards the embassy, singing "Onward Christian Soldiers." They stopped in a square on the way for a further meeting, but when someone called for cheers for the King they were given with a will, and the crowd, after singing the National Anthem, dispersed.

The meeting was in charge of President Roy White. Bill Hamilton tendered the thanks of the club to the speaker.

FINE MEETING OF POULTRY EXECUTIVE

Special Effort To Be Made This Year For a Great Poultry Show—Will Have Special Features.

An executive meeting of the Peterborough Poultry Association was held last evening at the office of President Frank H. Dawson Water street, to start preparations for the annual poultry show to be held early in January. The meeting was full-o-pep and if it is any indication of the show and the features that will be put on this year the public generally as well as those directly interested in poultry will be greatly pleased with the advance that is being made by those in charge of poultry affairs in this city.

There has not been as much enthusiasm for a long time as now permeates the executive of the Association and it will be their endeavor to get the public and all poultry breeders behind this great industry and make it successful.

NURSES ELECT OFFICERS.

Alumnae of Nicholls Hospital Hold Twentieth Annual Meeting.

The twentieth annual meeting of the Nicholls Hospital Alumnae was held at the Nurses' Residence, Argyle Street, on Wednesday afternoon, November 23, with an attendance of thirty-five members.

The following officers for the coming year were elected: President, Miss F. Dixon. 1st VicePresident, Miss E. B. Walsh. 2nd Vice-President, Miss H. Anderson. Treasurer, Mrs. E. Taylor. Secretary, Miss B. Smith. Corresponding Secretary, Miss M. Reid. Convenor Social Committee, Miss O. Dawson. Convenor Flower Committee, Miss D. Stalker.

Misses L. Simpson, H. Anderson, and T. Armstrong were appointed representatives to the Local Council of Women.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Miss Leeson and staff for their kind and never-failing hospitality during the year, after which little Shirley Pringle, on behalf of the Alumnae, presented Miss F. Dixon, the popular president of the Association, with a lovely bouquet of roses, in which a diamond bar-pin was cunningly concealed.

Miss Dixon, although completely taken by surprise, acknowledged the gift in a suitable manner.

Dr. Fraser of the Peterborough branch of the Provincial Laboratory, gave a most interesting and instructive address on the Social Side of Venereal Diseases.

At the conclusion of the address, tea was served by Mrs. Leeson, assisted by a number of pupil nurses.

of our Church." Mr. McCannal read the poem, "If." by Rudyard Kipling, and said the spirit expressed there is the spirit wanted in the organization, thinking of others and working "For Christ and the Church."

Miss Jamieson then gave a piano solo. Mr. Nesbitt of Lindsay spoke in flowery terms of the ladies when called on to propose a toast to the fair sex. Miss Pammett, of St. Luke's responded in a most enjoyable manner.

A vote of thanks was moved to the Omemee branch by Bert Graham. Mr. Bent and Miss M. E. Dawson thanked Mr. McCannal for his inspiring address, which was well endorsed by three cheers.

IN MEMORIAM.

CROWE. — In fond and loving memory of Rhoda Olive Reed, beloved wife of Melville Crowe, who died November 25, 1926:

November brings back sad memories
Of a loved one gone to rest;
She will ever be remembered
By the ones who loved her best.

In my heart your memory lingers,
Sweetly tender, fond and true;
There is not a day, dear daughter,
That I do not think of you.

Deacon Dubbs

Knox Lecture Hall was well filled last night, when a three act play entitled "Deacon Dubbs" was presented by amateur talent under the auspices of the Centre Sewing Circle of Knox United Church. The play was under the direction of Mrs. Roy Laing and Miss Annie Crocker, who are to be complimented upon the manner in which the entire cast played their respective roles.

The story concerns itself with a brave little schoolma'am, who has been the victim of a cruel fate. Her husband turned out to be a crook and she leads a miserable life with him until he is forced to flee from her to escape falling into the clutches of the law. She returns to her home and assumes her maiden name. Her father dies and leaves a heavily mortgaged farm on her hands.

She is happy, however, in a new found love, and arrangements are made for marriage with her true affinity. All goes serenely until the time comes to pay the motgage. Having learned that there is iron ore on her property the company decides to foreclose and sends an agent to buy up the farm on the day of the auction.

Just then Deacon Dubbs appears on the scene and by a neat bit of strategy keeps the agent out of the bidding, and the farm is saved. It turns out that the agent is the heroine's former husband who had been reported dead. This put the monkey wrench into the works, and the wedding is called off. The husband is taken captive by the police who have a warrant for him. This temporarily does away with that menace.

While he is in prison his wife becomes rich through the development of an iron mine on her property. He escapes from prison, is shot, but finally comes on the scene again. Extorting some money from his wife he leaves the vicinity to catch a freight and thus evade his pursuers. At last retribution overtakes him and while trying to jump the train he falls beneath the wheels and is killed.

From then on everything is "munkydory" and it is presumed that all live happily ever afterward.

Throughout all this, Deacon Dubbs, from Sorghum Centre, West Virginny, plays a conspicuous part and averts disastrous occurrences time and again. His courtship with an elderly spinster provides an opportunity for Trixie Coleman, a mischievous niece, to play numerous pranks on him. Other humor is injected by the determined efforts on the part of Yennie Yenson ,the hired girl from Sweden, to lure Deuteronomy Jones into matrimony. The part of Emily Dale, the richest girl in town, is perfectly filled by Mrs. D. V. Canning.

A solo by Mrs. E. G. Johnston was well received. M. N. Clark gave a reading which evoked considerable mirth. It remained, however, for D. A. Bayne to provoke a tempestuous storm of laughter, through his interpretation of how a song would be sung by a tremulous voiced beginner who had still to learn the rudiments of that singing.

The play, which will be repeated tonight, includes this cast of characters:

Deacon Dubbs, from Sorghum Centre, West Virginny, Mr. C. M. Watson; Amos Coleman, his nephew, a young lawyer, Mr. Bob Allen; Rawdon Crawley, a wolf in sheep's clothing, Mr. Don Gillespie; Major McNutt, auctioneer and Justice of Peace, Mr. John Herd; Deuteronomy Jones, a country product, Mr. Jack Morrison; Rose Rawlegh, the brave little school ma'am, Miss Beatrice Whitfield; Miss Philipera Popover, with both eyes on the deacon, Mrs. Roy Laing; Emily Dale, the richest girl in town, Mrs. D. V. Canning; Trixie Coleman, full of mischief, Miss Vera Foster; Yennie Yenser, the hired girl from Sweden, Miss Annie Crocker.

MANY ENTRIES ARE LISTED AT CHICAGO SHOW

Dominion Well Represented in Sheep and Horse Exhibits.

CATTLE SMALLER.

University of Toronto is Again Entered in Judging Contests.

UNION STOCK YARDS, CHICAGO, Ills., Nov. 26, Canadian Press —The largest and greatest international livestock show of history opened its gates here yesterday. With more entries, and with entries of a higher class than ever before, all records are expected to be broken.

Manager B. K. Heide, said yesterday, that every one of the eleven thousand five hundred head of cattle, horses, sheep and swine and the five thousand samples of hay, small seeds and grain entered in the international hay and grain show which is run in conjunction with the exposition, was in place.

The inter-collegiate judging contest was the feature of yesterday, one hundred and nine boys and one girl student from twenty-two colleges doing the work. The girl is Miss Mary Whelan, from the University of Wyoming, the first girl ever to represent a college team in the judging.

Varsity Entered

The University of Ontario is entered again, and intends to repeat its wins of 1905, 1906, the first two years of the contests, and of 1918 when it took the grand prize. Ontario has won something in this class nearly every year, but weakness in the judging of hogs for the past few years has kept the general average down.

Youths from the farms of nineteen States also competed in the non-collegiate judging contest, as a preliminary feature. The boys, from twelve to fifteen years old, picked with vim and vigor all day long, and judges are figuring which was the winner.

Well Represented

Canada shows a great representation in sheep and horses, and a fair one in cattle. Twenty-one of the twenty-nine exhibitors in the Clydesdale horse class are from the Dominion, and five Canadians are showing Belgians.

Alexander Galbraith of Edmonton, will once more be the judge in the Suffolk horse class. Before him will parade the twelve entries that Samuel Insull, utilities magnate, and one of the richest men in the world, has nominated.

Many of the Canadian cattle entries that were expected, failed to score at the Canadian Royal at Toronto last week, and so are not coming. However, nearly all of the winners from there will compete here.

There are three or four Canadian entries which are considered possibilities as grand champion steer of the show. Walted Bigger of Dalbeattie, Scotland, chosen foreign judge this year, as he was in 1924, will select the grand champion steer. Canadian entries won this honor in 1912 and 1913, but never since then.

HAS BONE BROKEN UNDER BIG WAGON

Cavan Boy Fortunate in Escaping More Serious Injury.

On Monday Roy Hooten, of Fairmount, while driving the team on a waggon heavily loaded with peas, dismounted to drive the horses through a gate where the road was exceptionally muddy. He slipped on the soft mud ,and was pulled between the front and rear wheels of the waggon ,the latter running over both his legs just below the knee. The load was estimated at about 3,000 pounds . He was taken to the doctor, but examination showed that only a small bone in one leg was fractured.

This seemed such a miraculous escape that investigation was made at the place of the accident, and it is thought that the weight of the load was broken by a small stone which was found on the road near the spot where the boy fell.

Youthful Bandit Given Prison Term

MOOSE JAW, Sask., Nov. 26.—(Canadian Press.)—Robert Campbell, local youth, was sentenced by Judge Buckles, in district court, here yesterday afternoon to 18 months' imprisonment, for his part in the robbery of Carruthers Hide and Fur Company, on December 28, 1926. Campbell created a stir in local police circles following his arrest a year ago, when he broke from the custody of a constable at the very door of the station, made good his escape and remained at large until October 9, 1927, when he was re-arrested.

Jack Cross, an accomplice, was arrested when the pair were found in a deserted barn along with a cache of stolen furs. Cross was sentenced in January 1927 to four years in jail. A term later reduced by the Appeal Court to 23 months.

LOCAL PUPPY ALSO WINNER

D. C. Grant's Gloria's Sensation Omitted in Last Night's Account.

WON TWO PRIZES.

Gloria's Sensation, a red and white cocker spaniel puppy aged nine months, owned by D. C. Grant of Peterborough, was one of the outstanding dogs shown at the Royal Winter Fair Dog Show. This puppy, going into the novice bitches class against full grown animals, some of them imported from England and the United States, won first prize, an exceptionally fine feat. In the puppy bitches class, any color, she also won first prize, beating among others a dog from New York.

This puppy was bred in Peterborough, her mother and father being among the winners at the Peterborough Exhibition Dog Show. She is of the cocker spaniel hunter type so much sought after at present.

In the report in last night's Examiner of the American Foxhound class, the dogs entered by W. Thompson and T. Doughty were wrongly placed. Mr. Thompson's dog was second in the class and Mr. Doughty's third.

Mrs. E. Ecobichon's collie won third prize in Canadian bred dogs and fourth in the limit class.

Major Cruikshank's Mail Plane Missing on Yukon Route.

JUNEAU Alaska, November 26. — Canadian Press. — A despatch published by the Empire to-day from Skagway, Alaska, said that the Ryan monoplane, "Spirit of the Yukon," carrying A. D. Cruikshank, Canadian pilot, and a passenger, was long overdue at Mayo, Y. T. from White Horse. The plane with a five hour gasoline supply left White horse on Thursday, on the three hundred mile journey.

Major Cruikshank came north this fall to operate a mail and passenger service between Mayo, White Horse and Dawson.

CALEDONIAN CLUB HOLDS ST. ANDREW'S CELEBRATION

Many Attend Annual Celebration of Scotland's Patron Saint.

SOLOS RENDERED.

Rev. W. S. Edgar, of Gilmour Memorial Church Gives Address.

The Peterborough Caledonian Club held their annual St. Andrew's celebration on Friday night, Nov. 25 with George Lowe, President of the club, in the chair, and about one hundred and twenty members and friends present.

The president opened with a few appropriate remarks. "Some say the Scottish race are deteriorating, others say they have advanced, but we know from history that when the Romans came, they were ahead in the use of metals than the Romans themselves were."

The Caledonian Choir, under the leadership of Mr. Alex. Clark opened the program with Scotland's national song, "Scots Wae Hae," other numbers were: Solo, "My Ain Countree," and encore "Smilin' Through" by Mrs. Jackson. Solo and encore, "Jessie, the Flower o' Dunblane and "Duna," John Anderson. Two Violin Solos by Robert Wyllie, "In a Monastery Garden," and "One Fleeting Hour." Mrs. French was heard in the lovely number, "The Rosary." "The Angelus" from "Maritana" was the next number by the choir. Mrs. Jackson and Mr. Grieves sang a duet "Somewhere a Voice is Calling." A Pianoforte solo by Jack Wyllie „The Wild Rose." "The Scottish Bluebell" was sung by John Anderson. The choir sang "Scotland Yet," and "Awake, Awake, Awake, the Morning Bells are Ringing." The address on St. Andrew was given by Rev. W. S. Edgar. "Mr. Chairman: It is a great pleasure for me to be here tonight. I feel highly honored in being asked to give the address to Saint Andrew. I always enjoy getting back into a Scottish atmosphere, to meet friends from the Old Country and to hear the music of the Scottish accent.

"We Scots are said to be the most clanish race. I believe it is true; the love of our country and of our kinsmen bind us together by links that are stronger than steel.

Patron Saint

St. Andrew, the Patron Saint of our country was one of the earliest disciples of our Lord, and later became one of the twelve apostles. He had previously attended the ministry of John the Baptist, but when John pointed out Jesus as the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world, Andrew left John and joined himself to Jesus. He was a fisherman of Bethsaida and the brother of Simon Peter, whom he was instrumental in bringing to Christ. Eventually both brothers left their regular occupation and gave themselves to constant attendance upon the ministry of Jesus. St. Andrew seems to have been of a more modest and retiring disposition than his big brother Peter, as he is not nearly so prominent in the picture as Simon

"He seems to have had a faculty for introducing people to Christ. He introduced his brother Simon, then he introduced the boy who had the five barley loaves and the two fishes, with which scant provision Jesus wrought the wondrous miracle of feeding the multitude; then Andrew introduced some Greeks who were anxious to see Jesus. He got some important people together, but kept himself in the background, seemed content if he got others into the limelight, to be himself forgotten. Along with Peter, James and John, Andrew had the honor of going privately to Jesus in order to get a fuller revelation of His mind respecting the destruction of the Temple.

"For anything further, we know simply that Andrew took part with the other disciples in spreading the Gospel over the then known world; he shared the labors and the common perils of their mission According to one fairly reliable tradition, he preached the Gospel in Greece and in Asia Minor and it is reported of him that he suffered martyrdom at Patrea in Achaia on the peculiar form of cross which we know today as St. Andrew's cross. Another tradition has it that he visited Scotland and preached to our forefathers at the spot where St. Andrew's University now stands.

The name St. Andrew meets you everywhere in Scotland. We have the City of St. Andrew's, with the university of the same name. Most cities have a St. Andrew's Square; there are also hundreds of St. Andrew's Societies and the emblem of our Scottish national flag is the St. Andrew's cross. It will be seen then that St. Andrew occupies a large place in our Scottish life and character and exercises an influence upon our race that is helpful and inspiring.

"Now, do Scotsmen in any way resemble their Patron Saint? I think they do. Like St. Andrew, they are very retiring and modest, having a humble opinion of themselves. They are the only race I know who need to use this prayer, "Lord, gie us a guid conceit o' ourse's." Other people

Executed Rebels Hailed As Martyrs

MEXICO CITY, November 26. Canadian Press. — Miguel Aguatin Projuarez, Catholic priest, who fell before the bullets of an execution squad on Wednesday, was buried with his three executed companions yesterday as a "martyr."

The men, who were executed on charges of being responsible for the attempt to assassinate former President Obregon Nov. 13th, were carried through great crowds that lined the route of the cortege, weeping and at times crying "viva the Martyrs."

When they were lowered into separate graves without ceremony or rites except for the praying and chanting of the thousands that lasted until night came and the cemetery gates were closed.

Probably the greatest crowds that ever gathered for the funerals of private persons in Mexico saw the bodies of the four men carried to their last resting places. At least 20,000 persons must have gathered along the line of march and at the cemetery.

NOTED EDITOR GIVES ADDRESS AT KIWANIS CLUB CHARTER NIGHT

ADDRESSES KIWANIS.

HECTOR CHARLESWORTH, Editor of Saturday Night, Toronto, who was the speaker at the Kiwanis Club's Charter Night celebration last night.

Hector Charlesworth, of Toronto Saturday Night, Gives Interesting Talk.

BIRTHDAY CAKE CUT.

Many Festivities Mark Sixth Anniversary of Formation of Local Club.

Charter Night, a "Ladies' Night" held to celebrate the sixth birthday anniversary of the local organization, was an extremely successful event in the annals of the Kiwanis Club, as it was staged last night at the Empress Hotel. One hundred and fifty-three guests were present, with a contingent from the Riverdale, Toronto, club, and the Lindsay Kiwanis clubs, and a number of members of the Rotary Club. Arrangements were carried out with smooth despatch, in the hands of the past presidents, who superseded the regular group for the occasion, and the final touch was the presence of a notable of the newspaper world, in the person of Hector Charlesworth, editor-in-chief of Toronto Saturday Night, and known throughout the Dominion also for his pre-eminence as a musical critic.

Another very welcome guest was W. Cockburn of Toronto, Governor of this District of the Kiwanis groups, who was on his way last night to Halifax to officiate at the opening of a Kiwanis Club on Monday night in that city.

The banquet which opened the entertainment was presided over by Past President J. R. Marshall, in happy vein, and was enlivened by community singing, led by Verne Morphet, with Carl McLean at the piano. The decorations were especially attractive, with long rose-paper shades over the electroliers, lighted yellow candles on the individual tables, and a birthday cake of pink and green icing, topped by six pink candles, forming, with vases of pink carnations, the decorations of the head table. The colored paper caps from the crackers, worn by men and women alike, added another touch of brilliance to the scene.

Boosters for the evening were Walter Oke, who provided a quantity of very fine grapes as a final touch to the dessert; Art Reynolds, Rev. J. D. Paterson, and Charlie Saunders, the latter acting as booster for the card games, prizes for which went later in the evening to Mrs. J. M. McCulloch and Mrs. J. R. Marshall, with consolation awards to Mrs. J. Chadwick and Mrs. T. Marks. Prizes donated by the two other boosters were won by Mrs. R. Harding, Mrs. T. H. Gillespie, Mrs. J. J. Turner, Mrs. H. Nesbitt of Lindsay, Mrs. Herbert McCannan and Mrs. R. Mackey.

Musical Program

During the evening, a very fine musical entertainment was given, with two songs by Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park, in "The Three Little Foxes," from the song cycle, "When We Were Very Young," by A. A. Milne, and an encore in "Hatfield Bells," also two pianoforte numbers by Miss Mary Agnes Logan, playing "Shepherds, Hey!" and, as an encore, the arrangement by Percy Grainger of "Londonderry Air." Arnold Spencer, violinist, played Drdla's "Souvenir" and its encore, variations of "The Last Rose of Summer." Miss Logan played accompaniments for the soloists. Another much-enjoyed musical interlude was the singing of "Men of Harlech" and its encore, an unaccompanied rendition of "Sweet and Low," by the Masonic Scottish Rite octette, with John Crane at the piano. This group is composed of Messrs. M. H. Park, H. W. Morphet, G. D. Carlisle, T. H. Gillespie, A. Barton, C. S. Brown, R. F. Downey, and Dr. J. S. Graham.

At the conclusion of the musical numbers, bouquets of flowers were presented to Mrs. Park and Miss Logan, and a beautiful bouquet of mums was also presented to Mrs. Cockburn, wife of the District Governor.

Speaking briefly, District Governor Cockburn thanked the members of the Peterborough Club for their support during the past year, mentioning in especial terms of praise of the work done by the secretary, Jack Heron.

"We have sponsored more clubs in this district during the past year than in any other year," he said, "and a great deal of the credit is due Jack Heron. I want to congratulate this club on the possession of such an energetic member as a secretary."

The Cake is Cut

President McNabb was then called to the head table and the District Governor read the very apt little verse received by him in his dinner cracker. Mr. McNabb then cut the birthday cake with great care, amid the plaudits of the club.

Introducing the speaker of the evening, Chairman Marshall spoke of his reputation as a leader in newspaper affairs. A little stunt of the type familiar to frequenters of Kiwanis Club meetings was then staged by several of the members, rising in turn to make vocal protests against Interesting Address Given Members of Women's Art Association.

"Women of the Victorian Era, and of To-day—A Contrast," with a reference to Einsteins Theory of Relativity was the theme of the address given to the members of the Women's Art Association at the studio of the Conservatory of Music yesterday afternoon, by Mr. J. H. Burnham, whose address was intensely interesting, and was listened to by audience that was larger than usual at these meetings.

Mrs. Wm. Blackwell, the president, introduced the speaker, and also expressed the appreciation of the society at the conclusion of his remarks. Miss Bertha Hill, with accompaniments by Miss Mary Agnes Logan sang two numbers: "Quiet" and "Baby Butterfly."

"Women of the Victorian era," said Mr. Burnham, "were goddesses. They were provided with all the materials of life, and it was supposed that if they looked pretty, and languished a bit, and cultivated the fine arts just enough for the gratification of their own luxurious tastes, that was enough for them. The crowning feature of the woman of that day was that she made the home while to-day she left the home, which is the shrine and temple of all culture and of the affections. The woman made the home, which no one else can make, and when she ceases to consider her obligations in this regard, the home fell to pieces.

"Music was cultivated then—and it was not canned music. You did not sit down and listen to it out of a box, and in this regard, women of the Victorian age put it all over the women of to-day. Conventions, which are guarding and safety provisions, barred them from rushing out into the streets. Now we have certain conventions but we don't respect them very much. In fact, I don't know what we respect to-day.

"As time proceeded, women became more daring. Some left their weaker sisters behind and soared into the loftier realm of experimental science, and some few still higher, into the realm of abstract thought, or that thought which we cannot make mental pictures of, and therefore must express by symbols or in general principles. It is the failure of people of this day to develop the idea of general principles which has landed us where we are.

"Women wanted the franchise, even if they broke the whole thing up and kicked it to pieces as they did in the Old Country, when they beat up the Prime Minister, and some other people like that.

"Then they demanded the single standard. God help us! The standard by which women might be just as bad as men, if they wished. And so they are now. They are down to man's level. That is the difference between the women of the Victorian age and of to-day. The franchise means simply the principle by which people who haven't any business of their own can go out and manage other people's business for them. Those who don't possess a red cent can go to the polls and say what shall be done with the public money, and demand that it be expended for anything they desire. That is democracy. Is it any wonder that it has broken down in Italy, and has led to the development of anarchy in the United States. Look at what it is doing in Russia!

Heaven does not consist in grasping with both hands at something, and pulling it towards you. The development of society depends upon the preservation of an ideal." Mr. Burnham here recommended to his hearers the reading of the book entitled "The Case against Evolution," by a great scientist of New York, with the imprimatur of a great Cardinal inside it. This book acknowledges for the first time in the history of the Catholic Church, the principle of the evolution of the body, said Mr. Burnham.

"You now have to face this fact; that you are all first cousins to our friend, the pig. The beautiful creatures that you imagined yourselves to be, just a few years ago, have turned out to be only the grandsons and granddaughters of a rhinoceros or almost identical with the anthropoid ape. In fact according to science, the human being is now considered inferior in intelligence to the anthropoid ape. That is why we are acting like animals, because it has been demonstrated that we are animals, and so we must treat ourselves, and act like animals. We are only following out a natural course in doing so. That is why the conventions have been thrown aside, and the motor car has become a curse, and that is why liquor is cursed, simply because people forget that their culture must be earned, and it depends upon ourselves as to how they will develop.

"And that is why we hear about all the mistakes God has made, especially in the Bible. The Rev. Mr. Godspeed will get up in the pulpit and say he cannot agree with the prophet James and all the people listening to him will agree and say, 'We must get rid of it.'

"You wonder what is the trouble in China. It is because you told the Chinese that everything in the Bible was right, and then you sent them a lot of self-sufficient humbugs filled with conceit, who say that God does not seem to know what to do with the world, and that He made plenty of mistakes in the Bible, and then the Chinese turn around and say: 'Get out of here or we will slay you.' And how can you expect young people who are sane, to go on believing in the word of God when you get up after all these years and tell them it is a hoax?

"Women are backing men up in this business of doing away with the Bible. Why can't they say — these people who have been singing for years, 'Stand up for Jesus'—why can't they say to the Bible-wreckers 'Please drop the Bible if you don't like it. Leave it for us. We have received a great deal of regeneration and redemption and consolation from the Bible. Leave it for us.

"A theological student who has graduated into the ministry will take advantage of his position, and of the salary that goes with the position to try to wreck the Bible for us.

"The Victorian age was a Christian age. This age is de-Christianized and by the women. That is the charge I make. It is women who fill the churches, and have always been considered their backbone. Now they are turning their back on

Lady Bullock Injured During Hunting Party

MELTON, Mowbray, Eng. November 26. — Lady Victoria Bullock, daughter of Lord Derby, who was injured yesterday at a hunt attended by the Prince of Wales and Prince Henry, was still unconscious last night, and it was feared that her skull had been fractured.

The exact extent of her injuries had not been determined last night, and Lord Dawson, the King's physician, was summoned from London to attend her.

No one was with Lady Victoria when the accident happened, but she was found afterwards by her brother, Lord Stanley, lying unconscious under a low archway, which apparently had caught her head. She had been following the famous Quarn hounds with others of the hunting party.

Lady Victoria was taken to Loseby Hall where she is the guest of the Marquis and Marchioness of Blandford.

MRS. SNYDER STILL FIGHTING

Considers Hiring Another Attroney For Legal Battle.

HAS REGAINED SPIRIT.

OSSINING, N.Y., Nov. 26 (Canadian Press).—With strengthened spirit and "ready to fight for her rights," Mrs. Ruth Brown Snyder to-day considered the retention of another attorney in the battle which has already cost her thirteen thousand dollars to escape electrocution the week of January 9. The ash blonde housewife and mother, who was convicted with her paramour, Henry Judd Gray, for the murder of her husband, Albert Snyder, magazine art editor, in his Queen's village, Long Island, home last March appeared yesterday to have regained her fighting nerve. "My spirit has been poor," she told prison attendants, but added that she was braver now. Mrs. Snyder said she did not see why she should have to go "in back" as the electric chair is carefully referred to in the death house at Sing-Sing Prison.

BOARD CLEANS PARK STREETS

City Employees Set Example To Householders in Moving Snow.

MANY WALKS COVERED.

The Board of Works set a good example yesterday in carrying out the new city snow bylaw. Early in the morning City Engineer Parsons had men at work cleaning the sidewalks around all the parks and in the afternoon a gang of men were busily engaged cleaning the slush from the crossings on the main streets. Many householders in the city are hoping that the sun beats the police as they have not cleaned the sidewalks and in many places they are covered with slush.

BOY IS FREED OF PERJURY CHARGE

Marcus Radley Acquitted By Police Court at Cobourg.

COBOURG, Nov. 26—Yesterday afternoon the case of Marcus Radley of Roseneath was tried by Lieut.-Col. Floyd, Police Magistrate for the County of Northumberland.

A short time ago Marcus Radley, who is a young boy of twenty, gave evidence against Charles Sandercock, and Sandercock was convicted of selling liquor and sentenced to two months in jail.

Later on, Sandercock laid a charge of perjury against Radley, but Police Magistrate Floyd acquitted Radley of the charge, and stated there was nothing against his character.

The Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., of Peterborough, appeared for Radley; Mr. Archie Cochrane, Assistant Crown Attorney, appeared for the Crown.

JUST A "CAN-OPENER"

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—"I lived with her for six months, and that was plenty," said Earl Cornell in applying for a divorce. Edna Cornell, it seemed, couldn't, or didn't cook. "She wasn't a wife," Earl said, "she was a can-opener. She'd get home ten minutes before I did and start opening cans."

PARIS AWAITS DEVELOPMENTS BORDER DISPUTE

Polish-Lithuanian Frontier Situation Stirs Interest in Foreign Office.

RUMORS OF WAR.

Recent Despatches Indicate Poland as Maintaining Moderate Attitude.

PARIS, Nov. 26 (Canadian Press).—The French Foreign Office is watching developments of the Polish-Lithuanian-Russian situation with the sharpest interest.

Despatches received from its Legation at Warsaw yesterday indicated that the Polish Government is maintaining a moderate attitude. Poland is declared as having no purpose either of making war itself or of committing any act with relation to Lithuania or Russia which would provoke these countries to acts of violence.

(Despatches from Moscow yesterday stated that a friendly remonstrance had been sent by the Soviet Government to Warsaw, pointing out the danger to world peace of any Polish act against Lithuania. Fear that Lithuanian independence might be menaced by an overt act brought about by Polish imperialists were expressed in Moscow which also advised the Lithuanian Government to keep calm to shape its foreign policies so that its anti-Polish edge might be dulled).

France's alliance with Poland does not bind France, it was said here, to give military aid to Poland, but only to examine the question of whether it would be the duty of France to support Poland in a war which might be forced upon her.

Cannot Use Loan.

No part of the American loan recently made to Poland can be used for military purposes, it was pointed out here. It is thought that the arrangement with the Bankers' Trust Company, representing the lenders, provides that the spending of the money shall be under the control of the American financial adviser, Charles S. Dewey, and provides that the money will not be available for any purpose except these specifically mentioned under the terms of the loan.

Advise New Government.

RIGA, Latvia, Nov. 26 (Associated Press).—In connection with disquiet at Kovno over the Lithuanian situation, representatives of Sweden, Finland and other friendly countries visited Premier Waldemare and are reported to have advised him to establish a more acceptable form of governmeit as soon as possible.

Unstable conditions, coupled with the aggravated Vilna question, it was said, are causing grave anxiety to Lithuania's neighbors.

Waldemare also conferred with his military chiefs who consider the position as threatening.

Alarming Possibilities.

BERLIN, November 26 (Associated Press).—The situation on the Polish-Lithuanian frontier stirs the Berlin press as being filled with alarming possibilities.

The Vossische Zeitung's correspondent at Kovno reports that the position of Premier Waldemare is secure as he is uncertain of loyalty.

LONDON, Nov. 26—With a disarmament conference five days away and a no-more-war congress meeting here, seven European nations were exchanging accusations yesterday, which, if true, meant Europe was returning rapidly to the situation that led up to the World War.

Threat of Enmity

A few days ago France and Jugo-Slavia signed a treaty of friendship and peace that Italy declared meant really a threat of enmity and war against her.

Italy followed by signing a similar treaty with her protege, Albania, across the Adriatic Sea, on the Jugo-Slavia frontier. This treaty—a 20-year alliance of mutual defence—was admitted to be a direct answer to the French-Jugo-Slavian treaty.

Both treaties are moves in a delicate, dangerous game of diplomacy, whose objective is control of the Adriatic Sea and influence over the Balkans.

Dangerous Game

In this game that its players say means peace if played their way,

ITALIAN PAPERS HIGHLY APPROVE DEFENSIVE PACT

Declare Treaty With Albania Is Move Toward Peace.

MAKE SHARP JIBES.

Believed May Prevent Disorders in the Balkan States.

ROME, November 26. — Canadian Press. — General satisfaction was expressed in the Italian papers this morning over the reecntly signed defensive treaty,' between Italy and Albania.

Trevere, in addition to emphasizing that the treaty should suit Jugo-Slavia because it guarantees a peaceful neighbor at her borders for 20 years also publishes a large cartoon on the treaty. This shows a black shirt erecting a 'danger' sign on the road being travelled by the Serbians in a two-wheeler horse-drawn vehicle.

Fling at France.

Brilliante takes a fling at France by merely printing the text of the treaty under a picture of Foreign Minister Briand, without comment.

All the papers comment that the treaty indicates that Italy is determined to have peace in the Adriatic and Balkan regions, and that this is another step in that direction.

Peaceful Move.

After recalling the signing of a treaty of friendship between Italy and Albania in November, a year ago, Il Messaggero says Premier Mussolini's entry into the field of international relations carries a strong practical contribution to the stabilization of peace. The treaty shows, the paper declares, Italy's determination to defend Albania against any attack. It is a logical development from the former pact, the paper adds.

THRONG MOURNS DEAD PATRIOT

Thousands View Remains of Premier Bratiano in Athenacum Palace.

FUNERAL ON SUNDAY.

BUCHAREST, November 26 (Associated Press). — Amid every sign of national grief and mourning, the body of Premier Iron Bratiano was removed yesterday to the Athenaeum Palace, where it will lie in state until the funeral on Sunday.

Despite wintry weather, the public flocked reverently to view the remains of the dead patriot, for he is recognized as a great patriot even by the newspapers that opposed his general policy. The press of all shades of opinion have voiced their profound grief over the death on Thursday of the man who had dominated Rumanian politics for so long a time.

Tranquility remains undisturbed everywhere, a sort of political truce being tacitly observed until after the funeral. This means only that no active steps are being taken to reorganize the Government, but this does not prevent many informal talks and conferences by the various party leaders and organizations on the subject of the future government, which seems to be spacing in the direction of a coalition.

Brother Takes Place.

The dead Premier's younger brother, Vintilla Bratiano, meantime is carrying on the necessary duties of the administration, and at a Cabinet Council yesterday, called for the purpose of arranging details of the funeral, he described negotiations that had been opened with leaders of the Opposition parties for the formation of such a coalition. When he left the Council M. Bratiano appeared optimistic. He told press representatives that negotiations for a national Cabinet were progressing favorably.

Dr. Julie Naniu, leader of the opposing National Peasants' Party, has demanded the dissolution of the Parliament and a new election, which he believes will terminate the domination of the incumbent Liberal Party. It is believed, however, that Dr. Naniu would be willing to allow the Government under Vintilla Bratiano to act until January so that it may dispose of the budget and other urgent business.

It is rumored that a number of Lithuanian general staff, who were responsible for last year's revolution, are ready to overthrow the dictator. Lithuania politicians who fled from Riga to Vilna are reported to be preparing, with Polish assistance, a new coup d'etat. Their leader is said to be a former deputy named Pletakaitia ,who is alleged to be negotiating with the Poles to march on Kevna.

Collisions have already occurred on the frontier, says the despatch, between police and revolutionary bands from Vilna.

TRACTORS BOUGHT FOR RURAL ROADS

County and Suburban Area Committees Buy Two Machines.

The County Road committee of the County of Peterborough and the Suburban Area Commission have purchased two Sawyer-Massey light tractor graders for maintenance of the roads in this county. The one purchased by the Commission is a caterpillar tractor grader and the other is similar to the on being used by the commission at present. These two tractors were demonstrated this week by the officials of the company, and gave splendid satisfaction. The two tractor graders will allow five patrol men to be taken off their beats and spend more time in patching and gravelling the roads.

Around the fire at home!

STIRLING YOUTH BADLY BURNED

Jack Bailey Hurt When Explosion Occurs in His Car.

STIRLING NEWS.

STIRLING, November 26. — Mrs. William Bailey's son Jack met with what might have been a serious accident. He had driven three young men who had returned from the West to their homes at West Huntingdon. While he was looking with a lantern to see if water was needed around the cylinder of his car, an explosion occurred. The full force of the blast struck Jack in the face, burning his face and one side of his head. Dr. Carleton attended to the injuries, and the injured man is doing as well as can be expected.

The ladies of St. John's Anglican Church held their annual fowl supper on Tuesday night last in the Opera House, with a large attendance. A splendid supper was served, and at the conclusion of the supper a dance was held.

Mr. E. G. Bailey is enlarging his garage accommodation by building up the space between his present garage and A .C. Connor's mill.

The local Rebekah Lodge, I.O.O.F., celebrated its seventh anniversary on Tuesday night last.

A largely attended card party, under the auspices of the Women's Institute, was held on Wednesday night in the Town Hall . Five hundred and euchre were played. The winners at five hundred were: Ladies, Mrs. James Legrow and Mrs. W. L. Anderson; Gentlemen: Mr. Ray Atkin and Mr. W. Fox; Consolation, Mr. G. Crookshanks.

The euchre winners were: Miss Whitton and Mrs. Kirby; Gentlemen, Mr. Ellis Hoard and Mr. P. McFadgen; Consolation, Mrs. Carl Conley.

After the service of refreshments, dancing was enjoyed by a large number. The hall decorations were 'mums. The music was furnished by local talent. Mr. Jack Butler kindly loaned his Orthophonic Victrola for the occasion. The receipts were $60.00.

PRESENTS DIFFICULTY.

Coolidge Says Constitution of United States in Way of Binding Treaty.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (Canadian Press).—Anxious to discuss with world powers, proposals for the outlawing of war, President Coolidge feels, nevertheless, that the constitution of the United States presents a serious difficulty in the way of a binding treaty.

It was recalled yesterday at the White House that the constitution places with Congress the responsibility of declaring war. Mr. Coolidge believes congress cannot, therefore, be deprived of this power by any treaty, but he does think a treaty expressing a declaration of policy is possible.

The president indicated a desire to engage in conversations with other nations about such treatics, believing considerable good would come from public concentration upon the subject.

JAPANESE WON'T CALL CONFERENCE

Newspapers Express Doubt That They Will Attend Another One.

TOKIO, Nov. 26 (United Press).—The newspapers Hochi Shimbun and Jiji Simpo quoted Japanese naval authorities today as saying Japan probably would not consider a proposal to attend a disarmament conference even if officially made.

Joseph Kenworthy, Laborite member of the British Parliament, in a speech before that body on Thursday, suggested that Japan call a conference for disarmament following the failure of President Coolidge's three-power conference at Geneva this year.

The papers said there was practically no possibility of the Japanese Government taking the initiative in calling a naval conference in 1928 to meet in Mexico.

OBITUARY

GEORGE W. EASON.

One of the old residents of Otonabee, in the person of George W. Eason, passed away at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Joseph Lancashire, 215 Rubidge Street, on Friday night, in his 88th year.

He leaves to mourn his loss two daughters, Mrs. George Hurl and Mrs. Joseph Lancashire, of this city, and three sons, Alex. of Plenty, Sask., and Gordon and Daniel of this city. Two brothers also survive him, James and Daniel of Otonabee.

The funeral will be held from the home of his son-in-law, 215 Rubidge Street, on Sunday afternoon ,at 2 o'clock, to Fife's Cemetery, Otonabee.

JOHN P. MADIGAN

HASTINGS, Nov. 26.—In the death of John P. Madigan which occurred in Toronto on Friday evening, November 18th, after a short illness of two weeks, Deseronto lost one of its most prominent citizens He was formerly of Hastings, where he spent his younger days. Mr. Madigan was well-known throughout this district, and had a host of friends who respected his staunch and sterling character.

He was the only surviving son of James Madigan and Ann Lamey and was born in Percy, on March 6, 1860. In 1890 he married Margaret Bibby, daughter of Nicholas Bibby of Seymour Township.

In 1902 they moved to Deseronto, where he was a merchant until 1911 when he retired from business and became a real estate agent in Toronto. In politics he was a life-long Liberal.

Besides his wife he leaves to mourn his death, an only daughter, Eilen, of Buffalo, and three sisters, Mrs. C. M. Hennessy, New York; Mrs. Frank Keenan, Hastings, and Mrs. John O'Keefe, Winnipeg, Man.

Numerous relatives and friends of all denominations attended the funeral, which was held on Monday, November 21st. The cortege left the home of his sister-in-law, Mrs. P. J. O'Connor, at 9 a.m. for Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church, where Requiem High Mass was chanted by Rev. C. J. Bretherton. The remains were then taken to Mount Carmel Cemetery for interment. The pallbearers were Messrs. John Jones, James Gibson, John Garman, John O'Sullivan and Daniel O'Sullivan Sr., all of Hastings; and Joan O'Sullivan of Campbellford.

Many spiritual offerings were an indication of the nigh esteem in which he was held by his many friends.

OLD-TIME DANCE PROVES POPULAR

Square Dances in Majority at Campbellford Community Hall.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 26.—The dancing at the Community Hall last night was of a particularly high class variety. Catering to the demands of the majority, the major portion of the evening was spent in the old-fashioned but now extremely popular square dance. For this dancing a three-piece orchestra from Trent River furnished the music, and such familiar old-time airs as "Kingdom Comin'" and "Finnigan's Reel" lent speed and mettle to the heel.

While the dancers were mostly of the younger generation, there was also a fair representation from the oldsters, and they too seemed to be enjoying the dances which were popular when they themselves were known as the irresponsible youth of the day. Usually there were five sets dancing but frequently as many as seven took the floor. Wilbert Reid and Robert McArthur 'called' the different figures and much credit is due them for the success of the venture in spite of dances being held in other neighboring towns and villages last night. By popular request, the matter of making this affair a weekly occurrence on Friday nights is being given favorable consideration. It will do much to revive the popularity of the old-time quadrille in Campbellford and vicinity.

CONVENTION IS GIVEN APPROVAL

Regulate International Radio For Five Years Beginning January 1st, 1929.

CONFERENCE ADJOURNED.

WASHINGTON, November 26. — A new wireless convention which will regulate international radio for five years beginning Jan. 1, 1929, was approved here yesterday. It was drafted by the international radio conference which adjourned after signatures of delegates from 79 nations and territories had been attached to the document.

In addition to the convention, which had been under negotiation since the conference convened here October 4, approval was given two sets of regulations.

The convention itself sets out in general lines the scope of the agreement and the duties devolving upon the signatory governments for its observance and for the maintenance of a secret and efficient service.

The first set of regulations, in addition to the allocation of wave lengths to the various services, includes a provision for the operation of radio communication. Land, ship, aircraft and all other kinds of wireless activities are contemplated, and standard procedure in each case is set up. Licensing of stations and operators also is defined.

The second act of regulations was agreed to by all countries except the United States and consisted of such regulations as the United States considered infringe upon the private management. These articles deal mostly with the fixing of radio charges.

Secretary Hoover, who presided over the conference, delivered an address in which he analyzed the major provisions of the convention, and remarked that the harmony and cooperation displayed by the delegates set 'another milestone in the progress of international relations."

The greatest problem facing radio, he said, namely the efficient utilization of the limited number of channels, had been solved by the convention, which was unanimously approved by the conference.

The next conference will be held in Madrid in 1932.

MUSINGS AT A MANSE WINDOW

THE other day I read, "Mah Jong is dead," and for a moment or two I thought I was reading the obituary of some Chinese general, or some Japanese diplomat. But that was only for a moment! For, almost on the same line, I found this additional news, "and a new game is taking its place." Then I remembered that "Mah Jong" was the name of a game which had occupied the stage in the World's Burlesque Show for a few fleeting hours before going the way of all silly, useless things. I have tried to find out what was responsible for the passing of "Mah Jong," but nobody seems to know. Maybe it was beaten to death by "bamboos," or swallowed by "a dragon," or borne out of life on the "East Wind." In any case it is dead and a new game is taking its place with those hostesses who are obsessed with the notion that they must provide entertainment for their friends and guests.

THE LATEST CRAZE.

Surely we are living in a craze-driven age! If it's not one craze it's another! The only redeeming feature is that none of them lasts long. Were it not so, life would not only be cheap but terribly monotonous.

Mr. E. V. Lucas, in one of his latest essays, points out that in many parts of America, as also in Great Britain, dinner is rushed through with unseemly haste, paper and pencils are handed around the eager company, and with tense brows the guests set themselves to answer the tests in general knowledge which the hostess has laboriously compiled.

Already the new craze is producing its own literature. Handbooks have been compiled, lists of questions are furnished on application. Mr. Lucas quotes some of the typical items in a published questionnaire. He prides himself on his inability to answer some of these queries.

And no wonder.

Here is one, for example: "What were the maiden names of Rudolf Valentino's wives?"

Possibly there are people who are able to remember the names of these persons, but there are others whose ignorance of such matters ministers to their self-respect, and frankly admitted ignorance of something one is expected to know does not often do that.

JUST AS FOOLISH.

Here is another.

"Who said, 'Queen, you've said a mouthful'?"

To the average individual it must sound apocryphal. But Lucas quotes the answer given in the published list. It is stated to be former Mayor Hylan of New York in reply to the Queen of Roumania, who was admiring the skyscrapers and had concluded that New York was a wonderful city. Possibly it is the correct answer, but a story is told to the effect that the same expressive remark was made by Mrs. Hylan to the Queen of the Belgians when she visited New York just after the war.

I can remember that a certain evangelist, in what was supposed to be a bid for popularity, said that such a remark had been charged against Mrs. Hylan but that all who knew her knew that she couldn't be guilty of such vulgarity!

WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

It is only fair to say that all the questions published are not so foolish as these two. Many of them demand a general knowledge of the widest kind.

As one writer says, one cannot help but wonder what this new craze indicates? Does it mean a return to seriousness—a reaction after a period of unexampled frivolity in a war-scarred world? Is it an uprush from the depths of man's sudden realization that he is an intellectual animal? Or is it a new fad in a world that prizes novelty above all things, and will tolerate anything, provided it is different and bizarre?

At present one has but little data which might supply the answer to these queries. One thing, however, is evident, that all these general knowledge papers are apt to be humiliating to people who are long past school age The London Evening Standard recently remarked: "They show what a lot we have forgotten."

It has been said that this new game will not be without its good effects if it will but lead those who play it to bring from the storehouse of remembrance facts which have long been tucked away and forgotten.

AN INTERESTING CHARACTER.

Compton Mackenzie, in one of his books, has drawn the character of a bespectacled youth by the name of Harold who had quite a passion for miscellaneous information. On some matters Harold was exceptionally well-informed. It came about in this way: On one occasion while visiting at a house in the country he discovered the first volume of an encyclopedia. In a few days by close reading he became the possessor of a mass of information, but unfortunately this information was limited by the fact that the encyclopedia covered only words whose initial letter ranged from A to C. Within this compass Harold was an authority and could enlighten all who happened his way. Indeed he developed quite a genius for turning almost any subject towards the range of his knowledge.

You who may have become interested in this sketch should not fail to notice that Harold's thirst for knowledge did not arise out of any desire to equip himself for the tasks and responsibilities of life, but rather that he might shine in the presence of others as a singularly well-informed young man. In no sense was it related to the problems of life. And it need scarcely be said, that a mass of knowledge used in this way is practically valueless.

While such a game may revive forgotten facts of general knowledge and lead to the acquisition of other facts, it can only remain an interesting pastime if this mass of knowledge remains unrelated to life.

TO WHAT IS YOUR KNOWLEDGE RELATED?

Knowledge, in order to fulfil its proper function, must be related to life, and its problems and responsibilities. A knowledge of the physical world, when it fulfils its right function, leads to reverence. And reverence is the first step to God. One can hardly imagine a man who has perceived the orderliness and beauty of nature being without a feeling of awe, and a sense of the majesty of the great scheme of which he himself is a part.

There are certain great facts bound up with Christianity, and apart from which there would be no Christianity, regarding which we cannot afford to be in ignorance. There is the fact of a divine revelation which sets forth the fact of the virgin birth, the sinless humanity, the vicarious atonement, the bodily resurrection, and the present ministry of the risen Christ in the immediate presence of God. There is the fact of salvation, here and now, for all who, in simple faith, accept Jesus Christ as Lord and Saviour.

FACTS AND FACTORS.

To accept, then, the facts which lie at the root of Christianity as bits of knowledge unrelated to life, in the same way as Compton Mackenzie's Harold did with the mass of knowledge he had gained from the first volume of the encyclopedia, is to nullify it.

Better far to have been born amid the darkness and ignorance of heathendom, and to have died without ever having heard the gospel of Jesus Christ, than to have got all that knowledge without relating it to life as I fear multitudes are doing.

—Allan Fairbairn.

Gratitude

WHO could not wish, that gratitude with all of us were a natural and never-failing overflow of life's experience as we have found it hitherto? But, is it! For the most part we are too hurried and too hustled by our cares and troubles, our plays and occupations, to be naturally and instinctively and continually given to praise. I don't think I am too severe when I say that few, if any, of us have within us overflowing springs of joy that bubble up like the unfailing fountains through every hindrance and experience. We have to remind ourselves as of a duty; to put on the pumps and labour for our thanksgiving because the springs of joy have sunk below the level of our every-day complaining.

Let Everybody Know!

WHEN, in obedience to the call of Jesus, Matthew decided to follow Him, he made a feast to which he invited his friends and neighbors. Probably several motives prompted the act.

He desired to honor the one who called him.

The ardent believer will find many ways of confessing the Lord before men. One of the strong safeguards which the young Christian may throw about himself is that of definitely committing himself in the presence of others.

Secret discipleship makes public disloyalty easy.

Evening Prelude

1. Do you think there is any truth in the statement, as it has appeared in the press, that in the realm of international Politics Europe is on the edge of a slumbering volcano? If such be the case and that volcano breaks out in war would it involve Canada?
2. If what you and other preachers say be true, how can you explain the indifference of a large part of mankind to 'the solemn questions of eternity?'

A Reasonable View of Life

WHEN a man persists in walking by sight and esteeming his existence to be Life and the end of his existence Death, he has fallen into the greatest blunder open to humanity; he has missed the one important point in the situation.

Our human years are only a mortal stage of which Death happens to be a part; but Death is a door with two sides, and the other side of it belongs to immortality which is more really ours than the present.

Each of us is a part of the infinite; each is a child of God, with the potentiality of final perfection actually within him, which gradually, through the experience forced upon him by error and discipline, will be developed into the full, free exercise of joyful action.

We are so made that we may grow into the likeness of God, but there is everything for us to learn, and to do before we arrive.

All of us, even the very best of us, are started out in life under a handicap. Because of our relationship to the federal head of the race we are, as the Bible says, "born in sin and shapen in iniquity." That means that we are born imperfect, and come into the world with a twist in our moral nature. This twist cannot be straightened out in the nature of things; hence the reason for Christ's words to Nicodemus, "Ye must be born from above."

When we enter into the experience implied in these words Life becomes most wonderful and Death is just the servant maid draped in black opening the door to the Father's house above.

Churches And Churchmen

Church Unity.

A very frank statement has been made by one who was present at the Lausanne Conference when he says: "I was not one of those who expected great things from Lausanne. When we were half through, I reproached myself that I had not expected more. At the end, I discovered that I had expected just about enough. No major obstacle to church union has been removed. No machinery has been set up for doing anything but to call another conference, which at present would seem about the most useless thing imaginable. But we found ourselves and each other more sensible men, and more honest men, and more truly Christian men than we had expected, and the pity is that we did not do more about it, and that we are not to do more about it.

"I do not think our churches will pay much attention to our findings. No one is committed to them. Even those who voted for them only voted for their submission to the churches, and can, with entire honesty and consistency, vote against them now. Not that anyone should care to do so. They are emasculated. . . .

"The newspapers have ignored us. The churches will little note nor long remember our vapid resolutions."

Genius and Demon.

SPURGEON, in his own story of his life, relates that, just before he left Cambridge to go to London, he went one day into the library to Trinity College, and noticed there a fine statute of Lord Byron. In describing the event, he wrote: "The librarian said to me, 'Stand here, sir.' I did as I was directed and as I looked at it I said, 'What a fine intellectual countenance! What a grand genius he was!' 'Come here,' said the librarian, 'and look at the other side of the statute!' I said: 'Oh! what a demon! There stands the man who could defy the Deity!' He seemed to have such a scowl and such a dreadful leer on his face as Milton would have painted upon Satan when he said, 'Better to reign in hell than to serve in heaven.' I turned away and asked the librarian, 'Do you think the artist designed this?' 'Yes,' he replied, 'he wished to picture the two characters — the great, the grand, the almost supernatural genius that Byron possessed, and yet the enormous mass of sin that was in his soul.'" And, as one has said, the statute of every man which might be fashioned, if the sculptor chose to be true to all the facts, would reveal a soul, sometimes good and sometimes bad, but always two-sided.

A Unique Service.

FROM the West Africa Mission, the Rev. W. C. Johnston sends news of a communion service at Bafia at which more than 3,000 people were present. "We had the people seated according to their language and I preached in Bulu and three young men translated into different native languages to their people—all speaking at once. Then the French administrator was seated on the platform and the French school teacher translated the sermon into French for him, so there were four interpreters going at the same time."

—I. Seewell.

A Protesting Preacher.

REV. ALLEN A. STOCKDALE, pastor of the First Congregational Church, Toledo, O., for nearly fourteen years, has resigned, partly as a protest against the "exacting program of executive details" that come to the modern preacher in a large city, and to provide opportunity for enlarging his mission by preaching, writing and lecturing.

Korean Liberality.

IN Sookchum, Korea, when the annual offering was made to cover the budget, the first man who made a pledge came forward and said: "The Lord has prospered me this year by giving me a big apple crop, and as I have promised to give one-tenth to Him, I will have to increase my regular Sabbath offering from thirty sen to fifty sen (about twenty-five cents) per Sunday." The next man said in effect: "I guess it's up to me to keep faith with the Lord, also. I gave fifty sen a Sunday last year, and this year I will be able to give one yen (about fifty cents) per Sunday. The liberality of those, who, a few years ago, were considered heathen, puts to shame the selfishness of many who have enjoyed far greater advantages.

An Editor Speaks.

THE editor of the Presbyterian Banner, Rev. James H. Snowdon, says: "Without the inner life all outer forms are only a vain show, or at best they are only means to this end. Church and Bible prayer and praise, creeds and professions, boards and agencies, are all nothing in themselves and have value and virtue only as they produce Christian disposition and life. If we have not the spirit of Christ we are none of his; we may be members of the church and preachers and prominent ones at that, but we are not Christians. But if we have this spirit, then all the activities of the church will proceed spontaneously from within and our whole spiritual life will be free and fruitful and joyous. It is easy to do what is the expression of our inner nature, and it is what we want to do. It is easy for the bird to sing and for sugar to be sweet and for the sun to shine. But it is difficult to do what goes against the grain or is done under the constriction of a harness strapped on the outside. If Christ dwells in us, then whatever we do, whether we eat or drink, buy or sell, pray or play, we shall do all in His spirit and in His service for His glory. Some people have only religion enough to make duty a drudgery and themselves uncomfortable, but when they are baptized and saturated with it their religious life is abundant and overflowing with interest and energy and becomes their pursuit and passion. The lack of spiritual life is the real root and cause of the inefficiency of our work, the crippled condition of our boards, the meagre results of our preaching in conversions, and the general impotency of Christianity in the world. All our theological difference and denominational divisions would be no more than mere waves and ripples on the surface of the sea if the deeps of our life were filled with the spirit. If we have the root we need not trouble much about the fruit: the buds will bloom and the fruit will ripen."

—I. Seewell.

A 16th Century Prayer

O LORD, support us all the day long of this troubled life, until the shades lengthen, and the evening comes and the busy world is hushed, and the fever of life is over and our work done. Then, Lord, in Thy mercy, grant us safe lodging, a holy rest, and peace at the last, through Jesus Christ our Lord.

A solitary man. Not in the wilderness; no, he is in the midst of a populous city. The noise of busy life fills the streets, and judging by the various costumes which we see and the different languages that we hear about us, we observe that this is no ordinary city, it must be a mart of commerce, a centre of activity.

Yet there is no greater solitude than a crowd if one be poor and unknown. But he cannot be poor, look at his dress. Come down with me into the courtyard of this grand house and you will find everyone talking about him. Let us go out into the streets, and even if we cannot understand the languages spoken by many in the crowd, we shall catch his name. It is evident then that he is not unknown—all unite in praising him.

Why then did he look sad when we saw him alone in that room? Ah, it is no common emotion that sweeps over his soul—memory has brought before him scene upon scene of long ago, his hands are firmly pressed together, his lip quivers, his eyes fill with tears—the sight of one face is the cause of it all.

VOTING ON LIQUOR STORES.

The United Farmers of Ontario will discuss among many other matters at their convention next month a motion from the Resolutions Committee condemning Government control in Ontario as a failure.

The discussion of the subject by such a body will be of peculiar interest at this time when a number of Ontario municipalities is preparing to vote on the question of whether or not they want liquor stores established in their midst.

Galt is the only city to apply for a vote, but Renfrew, Bracebridge and other towns will test the opinion of the people in the next few weeks.

These centres were under a system of local option when the Ontario Temperance Act came into effect, and consequently under the new Act liquor stores cannot be established unless the people by a three-fifth majority approve of the plan.

The result in these places will be awaited eagerly throughout the Province, especially in those other municipalities that were formerly under local option.

The vote in Galt, Matheson and Renfrew will be taken on December 5th.

MR. ROBB AS SANTA CLAUS.

Hon. Mr. Robb, Minister of Finance, is helping to make Canada's year of Diamond Jubilee a noteworthy one in the realm of Federal finance.

Mr. Robb may not dress in fur garments nor travel in a sleigh propelled through the air by reindeer, but he in every other respect bears a remarkable resemblance to Santa Claus inasmuch as he has developed a habit of showering gifts upon the people of Canada.

Thus the announcement that instead of having to make a public issue of securities to take care of the Victory Bonds maturing on the first of next month, he has made arrangements to borrow $45,000,000 from Canadian banks on three-year treasury notes at 4 per cent. interest and the balance will be paid out of funds in hand.

It is estimated that Mr. Robb's financing during the year will result in the saving of $3,607,800 annually in interest charges.

Obligations representing over $100,000,000 have been retired, over half of this amount by paying cash.

The bonds maturing next month have been paying 5½ per cent. interest, and have been exempt from taxation, so that the Finance Minister is killing two birds with one stone in the plan he has adopted for taking care of this issue.

THE SNOW BYLAW.

It may serve to save some citizens of Peterborough expense and annoyance this winter to remind the public of the bylaw passed last spring in regard to the cleaning of snow from the city's sidewalks.

This measure puts the onus for keeping the walks clear of snow, slush and ice upon the householder, or in case of vacant lots, upon the property-owner.

Householders are required to see that the sidewalks in front of their homes are cleared by 10 o'clock in the morning, while in the case of vacant lots, it is provided that where the owner has not had the snow removed within twenty-four hours after it has fallen, the City Engineer may have the work done and the expense charged against the property.

The snowfall of Thursday revealed the fact that many citizens were unaware that the bylaw was in force, the measure being complied with to the extent of but fifty per cent.

It should be understood that this regulation, which should ensure safer and more comfortable walking conditions, will be strictly enforced this winter, and that the fine provided for non-compliance is heavy enough to make it well worth while to keep the sidewalk in front of your home clear of snow.

A SPLENDID PLANT.

Some forty well-known citizens took advantage of the opportunity afforded them in the invitation extended by the De Laval Company to inspect the company's plant on Thursday, and it is safe to say that none of them regretted the time spent in looking over this fine industry.

Courteous guides saw to it that the visitors were given a chance to view everything of interest, shop foremen and workers were painstaking in explaining the different processes, and there was a very evident and commendable spirit of pride in the whole De Laval family over the completeness of the plant and the quality of the work done there.

Esprit de corps exists to a marked degree among the whole shop and office personnel, and that condition partially explains the splendid excellence of the De Laval products.

It is difficult to say whether the visitors were most amazed over the size and roominess of the plant or over the variety of the articles manufactured therein.

Only those connected with the dairying industry had any idea that so many different pieces of machinery used in that industry were made in this splendid Peterborough factory, and in that respect the inspection on Thursday was a revelation even to citizens who thought they knew everything worth knowing about their home city.

ONTARIO'S TOBACCO CROP.

Ontario set a new record this year in tobacco production—more than 35,000,000 pounds. Should this crop be sold at an average price as low as 20c per pound, it will bring a revenue of over $7,000,000 to the growers of the southwestern peninsula.

The crop estimate is one of the encouraging features of the preliminary report just issued by the Tobacco Division of the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

The year 1927 witnessed a large increase in the acreage planted to tobacco in Canada, and a good yield of excellent quality leaf, according to the chief of the Tobacco Division. "In Ontario," the report says, "Norfolk County planted 1,000 acres of new land to the flue-cured type, and Kent County had a large increase in acreage of Burley and dark types. In one township alone, in Kent County, 97 new curing barns were erected and over 500 throughout the district.

"Considering the crop as a whole, it may be said that while field growth in some districts was not large, the favorable harvest and curing weather allowed the growers to save and cure well the whole of their crop, so that the per acre yields are entirely satisfactory. The cured leaf, while not as spready as usual in some districts, is of excellent quality. In all growing districts, however, there are plenty of large-leafed, high-yielding crops. The 1927 tobacco crop is the largest in size, and undoubtedly one of the best in quality that Canada has grown."

The "flue-cured" tobacco referred to is the type used for cigarettes and brings the largest price. The average yield of flue-cured was 825 pounds per acre.

The report gives details of the 33,650 acres planted to tobacco in Ontario and states that "the total estimated production of 35,622,400 pounds is by far the largest tobacco crop yet grown in Ontario."—Brockville Recorder and Times.

AVIATION IN CANADA.

The offer of the Department of National Defense to assist bona fide aviation clubs by giving airplanes and engines in return for certain conditions as to supplying landing ports and shelters, appears to have taken well. It is reported from Ottawa that a score of organizations are already complying with the conditions, and have notified the department of their progress. These stretch across Canada, and it is added that Western Canada seems to be most enthusiastic. It is not necessary that there should be a club in existence. People interested in aviation may form one, and provided that they can show 30 actual members, and ability to meet the other terms, they will receive the preliminary gift of two airplanes. Others will be furnished where it can be shown that two are insufficient for those who are taking the courses of instruction.

Canadians have been accustomed to regard advances in aeronautics in other lands as being far ahead of their own. It may surprise many to know that in certain respects aviation in the Dominion can stand comparison. The air patrols of the forest lands, in various areas, are more and more passing into the realm of the aviator, and with splendid results. In Hudson Bay territory, even during the present month, Canadian airplanes have been carrying on their surveys of the Straits and surrounding waters. The season there has been exceptionally mild and open this fall, and that has helped some, but it is a fine commentary upon Canadian aviators and their skill just the same.

It is said that some of the airplanes built in Canada for the express purpose of forest patrol, and for journeys into northern mining regions, are not excelled by any others, and that there is a demand for them in parts of the United States. The experiment of meeting ocean liners on the St. Lawrence with airplanes and carrying their mail to the points of distribution, is saving a day, and sometimes more, in the delivery of letters from overseas. Airplanes, too, are to replace dog teams, in suitable weather, in carrying mail to northern Canadian points.

Aviation in Canada is past the experimental stage and has entered that of expansion.—Brantford Expositor.

AMERICANISM—IN CHICAGO.

It takes more than eight eye witnesses to convince a Chicago jury. Eight men testified at the trial of Harry J. Lewis, labor organizer and alleged terrorist, that they had seen Lewis shoot down Max Braverman, an obscure junk dealer, after Lewis and a gang of helpers had failed to scare Braverman into joining a junk dealers' union. But the jury was not convinced by this recital. It had some doubts about these witnesses, it seems; it preferred to give the benefit of those doubts to a man whose record includes a term for bank robbery, and forget about the slain father of seven children.

Here is what is said to have gone on in the jury room. After much argument and several votes, the tally stood 11 to 1 for acquittal. The lone juror for conviction held his ground. Then another juror advanced the final argument, "I'd hate to mark myself and my family for a gomb as you're doing." That was mighty effective, for this case has been marked by intimidation, threats and even the bombing of the home of a witness. The juror "caved in" and Lewis was free.

All this in Chicago, where they fight King George, uphold the hand of George Washington and keep a keen eye on other States to see that their citizens are good Americans. If anybody doesn't subscribe to the Chicago-Thompson ideas, he is pink, yellow, blue or pale around the gills. At any rate, he is not 100 per cent. American.

But Chicago really does have some Americans who ought to be commended in connection with this case. They did not happen to be born on the site of Fort Dearborn; in fact, they came from other shores. They are the men, the obscure men of foreign birth, who stood their ground in days of terror and said they would tell what they knew about the Braverman murder. One of them, recovering from bullet wounds he received when he failed to heed the warning of the gangsters, put it this way: "You see, we are good citizens. We are making an honest living and raising our children to be honest, hard working and upright. Should we be quitters now?" The junkmen held to this ideal even when Chicago citizens were dodging jury service in this case until 210 veniremen had to be called to get one juror. They held to it while jurors, in the jury room, were using the "bomb argument" on the man who stood for conviction.

Does one need to wonder, as he reads the history of this case, who the quitters really are?—Milwaukee Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

"Eventually, why not now?" applies just as well to Christmas shopping as to anything else.

Butter is being imported into Canada from Assyria. That is surely going too far.

Two Galt runners won long distance races across the border on Thursday. And Galt citizens as a result are "high-hatting" everybody else in Western Ontario.

Sarnia has captured the horseshoe championship. Well, we can't expect to get everything down this way.

General J. H. MacBrien is doing Canada a great service in endeavouring to arouse among the people of this country an interest in the development of aviation.

Armoured cars are being used in Chicago in the fight against the gangsters. Mayor Thompson's city seems to be a nice place to stay away from.

Gunmen in Canada find the going far from smooth. Long penitentiary sentences, accompanied with lashes, are discouraging to ambitious bandits.

CATTLE GRAIN, AND PRODUCE

LOCAL HOG MARKETS.

Live hogs thick smooth, $8.00 cwt.; select graded $8.50; dressed hogs, head on, $14.00; head off, $15.50 cwt.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, November 26. — A feature of the cattle trade of the past few weeks has been the active demand for stocker and feeder cattle. This feature perhaps has accounted more than anything else for the present firmness and apparent stability of cattle prices in practically all grades.

The demand for feeding stock is not confined to Ontario buyers. The "Americans" apparently have come over in force and are buying our cattle in large numbers. Not only on the current market, but looking to future needs they have gone through most important Western Canada ranches and have contracted at good prices for all the next season's calves and stocker cattle they could get hold of.

Prospective shortage of killing cattle in the principal corn feeding states over the line accounts for the demand for Canadian feeders.

Prices in the local market remain steady at recent advances.

For anything of good to choice quality butchers or feeding stock, the market remains steady and prices unchanged.

Hogs are 25c lower, packers succeeding in getting yesterday's hogs at bid prices.

Calves firmer, with a light run.

Lambs easy and a quarter lower.

Hogs unsettled. Bids 25c lower.

Heavy beef steers, choice, $8.75 to $9.50. Choice handy butcher steers, $8.50 to $9.25. Choice heifers, $8.25 to $8.75.

Stockers and feeders strong with a demand for choice heavy feeders for export, from $7.50 to $8.00.

Baby steers firm, choice $12.00 to $13.00.

Common steers and heifers, $5.50 to $7.50; medium, $4.50 to $5.00.

Canners and cutters, $2.75 to $4.50.

Bulls choice, $5.50 to $6.50.

Hogs 25c lower, at $8.25 f.o.b. selects, and $9.15 off cars, selects.

Lambs 25c lower at $11.50, tops.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Nov. 26 (Canadian Press).—The foreign demand for Canadian grain here yesterday was of a very limited character and the volume of business was small.

Owing to the above trade there was no demand from exporters for grain in the local market and the trade with domestic and country buyers was also slow. Prices were unchanged.

The undertone to the market for Spring wheat flour was easier owing to the further weakness in the Winnipeg cash wheat situation, but there was no change in prices announced. The local and foreign inquiry was quiet. A moderate amount of business was worked in Winter wheat flour and values were steady.

A feature of the milfeed trade continued to be the active demand and a large volume of business was done at firm prices. The trade in standard grades of rolled oats was fairly active and prices were unchanged.

The English demand for baled hay was again quiet and no new business was reported. The domestic demand was also of a very limited character but prices ruled steady.

Prices for all grades of eggs were firmly maintained under a continued good inquiry. The receipts were 706 cases.

The market for potatoes was without any special feature to note, prices being steady with an active business passing. Sales of car lots of Prince Edward Island Whites were made at $1.25 to $1.30 per bag of 90 pounds; Prince Edward Island Green Mountains at $1.30 to $1.35 peh bag of 90 pounds; New Brunswick Green Mountains at 1.25 to $1.30 per bag in bulk; Cobblers at $1.05 to $1.10 per bag in bulk, and Quebec varieties at 1.00 to $1.05 per bag in bulk, ex-track.

he market for imported beans was unchanged., prices being firmly maintained under a fair demand. Sales of car lots were made at $2.50 per bushel on spot, and to arrive at $2.60 per bushel, ex-track, while broken lots sold at $2.75 per bushel, ex-store.

here was little business transacted in butter, but prices were unchanged. The receipts were 405 packages.

The trade in cheese was dull owing to the fact that English importers did not respond to the offers made and in consequence there was little trading on spot. The tone of the market was steady. The receipts were 3,266 boxes

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 26 (Canadian Press) — General selling, prompted largely by bearish crop advices from Argentina, rought about a material break yesterday in wheat values here. Strength which developd in the corn market failed to act as much of a counterbalance.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 1 to 1⅜ cent net lower, with corn at ⅛ to ¼c advance; oats a shadow off to ¼c gain, and provisions unchanged to 15 and 17c down.

Reports at hand told of generally clear and favorable weather for the harvest both in North Argentina and in Australia, with cutting expected to start over the southerly section of Argentina inside of thirty days. Besides, offerings of new Argentine wheat were said to be larger, notwithstanding three to sixpence decline for December-January shipments. It was also pointed out that the Argentine wheat acreage this season is the largest on record and that exports last week from Argentine totalled 1,750,000 bushels, compared with 810,000 bushels the week before and 263,000 bushels a year ago.

Although clearance of wheat and flour from North America for the week were placed at 13,949,000 bushels, against only 9,246,000 bushels last year, assertions were made that Canada has been supplying the bulk of wheat exports from North America since November 1. Furthermore it was contended that breadstuff exports from the United States in November are much smaller than for October, and will be very small in December. Meanwhile, latest figures on Canadian country markets for one day 2,400,000 bushels, an amount nearly 1,000,000 bushels more than was the case a year ago.

Country offerings of corn to arrive were light, and with higher temperatures prevailing over a good part of the belt, buying on the part of strong commission houses lifted the corn market after an early decline. Husking returns remained disappointing. Oats rallied with corn.

Provisions were easier, despite an advance in hog values, he chief reason given was selling pressure from holders of nearby deliveries of lard.

A SPIRITUAL REVELATION

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir:

The progress of the storm which is rending evangelical christianity in pieces is not less interesting than terrible to those who see what it means and whither it leads. Your readers may remember that I have been endeavouring to recall to their notice the fact that the Bible is a collection of books written at the instigation and by the command of God not as a true and perfect revelation of physical nature but as a revelation of the spiritual nature of man with all his contradictions, false ideas, cross-purposes and spiritual needs so that mankind may understand the oneness for all time of humanity in its shortcomings and requirements as set down conscientiously and with all its errors by humanity itself, and what God thinks of it to the end that no more complete chronicle can be conceived both of what man really is and what God wishes him to be if he is to inherit the higher and eternal life.

To look, therefore, for errors and contradictions is to miss the fact and purport of the Book because being a true or inspired chronicle of man's nature and knowledge it must be full of error since man is full of error. To this complete exposure of man's sins and shortcomings God has, in the Bible, revealed His own relation to man and His remedy for man's fallen nature, limited knowledge and errors. Hence we have errancy and inerrancy side by side in the Scriptures, just such as one would expect. If on the other hand we start with the presumption that the Bible is not the work of man under God or if we examine it to test it with our own ideas of what it is or ought to be we find at once as the higher critics do that it will not meet our ideas in many parts and when we come to that conclusion we should say as the critics do, "Since this Book does not come up to our ideas therefore it cannot be of God or where it does not come up to our ideas it cannot be of God." Thus it will be seen the critics require God to satisfy them before they will admit that the Book is God's. Surely an impossible and absurd position. If the Bible be like that and such as the critics find it, it is not worthy of a moment's notice. In modern language it is a fake and not what it pretends to be. Therefore it must be rejected. But that is just where such critics and modernists as Professor Marshall will not let go. He still hangs on to the Bible while he hammers it. He asks people to follow him as a Christian and believe. How could such a thing be? However, Professor Marshall has at last put in print his position and the text he has chosen by which his position is to be tested. I wish, of course, to let him speak for himself and his letter in The Globe of November 8, and re-published below, shows his position and his teachings. If that is his idea of the Bible, viz: that it contains contradictions and absurdities such as he points out, how can those that follow him pretend to believe that the Bible is the Word of Almighty God? The true record of the life and death of His Son? And the consolation and hope of believers? How can Prof. Marshall's position and belief be called those of a true and believing Christian, a "humble follower of the Lamb", to whom we must trust absolutely without cause or criticism and with that implicit "faith" and confidence which the divine Being requires and demands for our salvation? The letter of Prof. Marshall is below.

J. H. BURNHAM.

PROFESSOR MARSHALL TO MR. O'BRIEN.

To the Editor of The Globe: I am very reluctant to intervene in a newspaper controversy, but I feel that Mr. O'Brien's remarks about myself are almost as unjust and unkind as his remarks about Dr. Jordan.

I do not ask for an apology, but merely request that Mr. O'Brien should deal with the problem out of which this controversy has arisen.

Whatever Dr. Dyson Hague may have said to the contrary, it is a fact that in both the Hebrew and Greek versions of the Old Testament II. Samuel 24:1 reads:

"And the anger of the Lord was kindled against Israel, and He moved David against them, saying, Go, number Israel and Judah."

Again, whatever Dr. Dyson Hague may have said to the contrary, it is a fact that I. Chronicles 21:1 reads (both in the Hebrew and in the Greek):

"And Satan stood up against Israel, and moved David to number Israel."

If language has any meaning at all, it is clear that the author of II. Samuel attributes the action of David to God, while the Chronicler attributes it to Satan. Mr. O'Brien therefore should explain this discrepancy in a way that harmonizes with the fundamentalists' theory of biblical inspiration. All readers of The Globe will be glad to hear what his explanation is.

In the meantime I will content myself with the suggestion that it is high time that fundamentalists began to regard intellectual honesty, charity and common decency as fundamental in the realm of Christian ethics.

GIRLS INJURED ON WAY TO SCHOOL

Firebox of Engine Explodes, Showering Them With Cinders.

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 26 (Canadian Press). — Violet Sherwin, Mabel Lloyd, and Edith Taylor, high school pupils of Prince Edward County, were injured this morning at Hilber Station. The firebox of the engine of the 8.50 train, proceeding from Trenton to Picton, exploded, showering the girls, who were standing on the platform, with hot cinders.

There were a number of other pupils on the platform at the time, but they were not as near to the engine as the three. Dr. Robertson and Dr. Scott of Wellington were called and first aid given. The girls were on their way to Wellington High School at the time.

SMILE THE WHILE YOU TRAVEL

The "Vancouver Express" is by no means a joke, but you cannot help smiling when its porters hand your baggage down because the smile has become a habit. It may be that the smile is infectious and you caught it from the porter when he showed you to your berth, but one thing certain is that having travelled on the "Vancouver Express" nothing has happened to take the smile away. The service, the cuisine, the equipment, the road-bed, the gentle-handling of this million-dollar train have all contributed to your happiness—that is if you have acquired the habit of travelling Canadian Pacific between Toronto and Vancouver.

The "Vancouver Express", the continent's standard of railway efficiency, leaves Union Station at 9.00 p.m. tonight and every night of the week.

For rates, reservations, tickets, etc., consult J. Skinner, Canadian Pacific Agent, 343 George street, or any Canadian Pacific ticket agent.

Child Found in Don River Not Drowned, Autopsy Reveals.

TORONTO, Nov. 26 (Canadian Press).—Fracture of the skull and not drowning was established today as the cause of death of a two-year-old boy whose body was found in the Don river yesterday tied in a sack. The body, rapidly becoming decomposed, has not been identified. The police today believe their theory that murder had been committed was borne out by the result of the autopsy.

Bad Backache Relieved After Seven Years

John Hallahan Now Praises Dodd's Kidney Pills

"I have been subject to a bad back for the last seven or eight years," states Mr. J. Hallahan, a well known resident of Princeton, Nfld. "I have tried all kinds of medicines but have found them no good. My wife was reading your Almanac and found where lots of people were relieved of complaints like mine, so I got two boxes and now I am feeling much better. I recommend your Dodd's Kidney Pills to all who suffer with backache like I did." Other sufferers tell of pains relieved and health restored through the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Dreadful Eczema

The awful itch, the unceasing, burning torment of this skin scourge, unbearable. To obtain relief you've probably tried everything under the sun—except D. D. D. Prescription, the pore-penetrating, healing, antiseptic lotion for all skin diseases. The moment you bathe your sick skin with this powerful liquid, itching and burning cease. Careful, persistent use of D. D. D. from then on conquers the disease. Your druggist has D. D. D., $1.00 a bottle. Try D. D. D. Soap, too.

PERSONALS

The following personal notice, clipped from the St. Catharines Standard, refers to Mr. H. V. Finnie, B.Sc., son of the late Mr. Edward Finnie, of this city:

"A very pleasant farewell dinner and presentation was tendered Mr. H. V. Finnie by his associates of the Canadian Crocker-Wheeler Co., Ltd., on the evening of November 8, at the Wentworth Arms, Hamilton. The staff of the general sales office motored from Toronto and met the works staff from St. Catharines. Dinner was served to a party of 26. After the dinner a toast to the success of Mr. Finnie in his new venture as the directing spirit and part owner of the Ampere Electric Co., at St. Catharines, was greeted with hearty applause. Mr. R. A. Hare as toastmaster then read telegrams from Mr. R. A. Stinson, president, and Mr. H. A. Burson ,regretting their inability to be present due to business engagements ,and wishing Mr. Finnie the fullest measure of success. The toastmaster then presented Mr. Finnie with a silver tea service of four pieces as a reminder of his long and pleasant association with the company. A number of the sales and works staffs made short speeches, touching upon Mr. Finnie's personal association with them in the work of the company, and individually tendering him their wishes for his success."

DRESS
By MARY MARSHALL

For the little girl with straight hair the "wind-blown" bob has much to be said in its favor.

If a census were taken of women and girls bearing on the length of their hair here and in France I feel sure that more short hair would be found on this side of the Atlantic. This despite the fact that there is a much stronger tendency among smart women here and among the younger young women generally to let their once-bobbed hair grow again.

Perhaps you would find a larger number of short-haired women at any really smart gathering in Paris than at any equally smart gathering in New York or Chicago or San Francisco, let us say. But there are so many more long-haired little girls in France than in this country! That, I think, is the impression of every recent traveler.

The long-haired little girl is rather unusual in this country, the little girl at school here with uncut hair is usually easily distinguished simply as "the girl with long hair." All the rest have it cut in one way or another. There is an almost infinite variety to the appearance of all these little bobbed heads. So much depends on the texture of the hair and the shape of the head.

The ideal hair-cut for the little girl is one that is short enough to keep her hair out of her eyes without the assistance of hair ribbons, unless she happens to be a very precise little girl who likes to wear hair ribbons. At the same time the hair should not be so short as to leave the ears, brows and nape of the neck too much exposed.

With the curly-haired little girl this sort of haircut is not difficult. But the straight-haired darling presents greater difficulties. For her the irregular haircut known in barber shops as the "wind-blown cut" has decided advantages. The irregular effect across brow and ears gives a softer line than would be possible with a straight cut, and is therefore much more becoming. A simple forward brushing is all that is needed to keep it in neat condition—and yet the hair is short enough to prevent its falling across the eyes.

By
MARJORIE HOWE DIXON

If the manual were written today on "The Perfect Hostess", there would be included so many suggestions on the gentle art of entertaining that the novice would feel her handicap of lack of knowledge more than ever. But no matter how much might be written therein, it would all come back to the one idea—thoughtful consideration and preparation for the comfort of the guest.

Supposing that one is privileged to have a distinguished guest for the holidays—one who has been so very busy and active that she has had to reserve a short hour in the day to herself in self defense—say the breakfast hour. This, she might enjoy in bed.

Here's An Attractive Dish

If you cannot buy just the right things for this, because your purse is already exhausted by Christmas purchases, you can always arrange an attractive tray with the dishes you have and add some little original touch—a show man of gum drops, a toy tree, or a sprig of holly, if that is all that is available.

If you can buy a breakfast set, and for it a cunning tray with sides made to hold magazines, you are indeed fortunate. What will you choose? Wedgewood in ivory with lavender knobs and bands? Or chintz pattern with flower knobs for handles? Or will you choose one with adorable rose buds scattered over it and flower clusters on the lids?—the sugar bowl has one, the coffee and chocolate pots, the hot water pitcher and the lid to the covered dish.

Coffee by the Fire.

While you are deciding this important question, you may remember you felt it would be so nice to have your after dinner coffee in front of the fireplace. A perfectly delightful set is waiting for you all arranged on a glass tray with silver handles. The charming coffee pot is banded with silver lustre on white. Bands of silver decorate the dainty cups and the cigarette box, which matches. A little glass compote of red candies could be added to make a little Christmas touch with some fragrant mints.

If you are having a house party, and guests are dashing in and out on Christmas errands before the day, and afterwards about the winter sports, lunch may have to be served quite informally on the bare table with lace mats under the plates.

Spanish Glass Sets.

On a refectory table for such lunch times, the crude Spanish glass sets would seem useful and particularly appropriate. A centerpiece of fruit in a large green bowl of this green, sturdy looking tumblers and fat red candles with silver holly tied to them would make any guest want to eat.

Then there is Christmas dinner to be considered. One can spend plenty of time on that, for it is one of the rare leisurely occasions in a busy world. All the little niceties, all the sophisticated bits of formality can be used for Christmas dinner.

Table Sets for Xmas.

A formal table of unusual dignity was set with beautiful serving plates on a bronze linen cloth with stags racing over it. Each plate had a lovely pheasant in natural colors in the centre, with a border of gold on red.

The tumblers were of amber cut glass, fat and squatty in shape. A stunning candelabra of crystal and bronze stood in the center with black candles in it. Large crystal boat-shaped bowls held fruit at either end.

A less formal setting more directly suggesting Christmas used fruit for a centerpiece—a lovely big bowl of it with large grapes tumbling over the edge. Tall, slim white candles in low green glass holders had loops of greenery tied to each pair, from candle to candle. Etched green glass plates were set in place, each with a stunning goblet on guard.

For the Yule Dinner.

Near each glass butter plate a tiny Christmas tree stood. Surely with such a setting the Christmas dinner would taste much better than usual.

Equelly precise and exquisite in its appointments was another table that used green Minton china on white damask. Its centerpiece was of red and silver with delicate glass flowers scattered through. Green glass vases on crystal standards held candles. Goblets in this table were of red with a white pattern cut in the glass.

A new color scheme for Christmas dinner was most effective in mulberry, silver, green and white. A handsome old mulberry dinner set suggested this idea. Each dish made you think of old Willow Ware, with its quaint, comfortable shapes, but each was decorated in mulberry with "vistas"—you know, formal and oil little scenes with trees that never grew, buildings with bulbous towers and stiff little figures.

The Pewter Idea.

Pewter seemed especially appropriate with mulberry, and an opportunity to bring out all the family heirlooms was afforded. White candles in old pewter candlesticks lighted this table.

An ancestral linen cloth was used to form a pleasing background. The center piece between the pewter candles was a mirror surrounded by wee pine branches. Tiny white figures coasted and slid on the ice mirror.

Words of Wisdom.

And no matter how you set your table or what color scheme you use, bear in mind the words of a little old lady of seventy-one:

"The very best way to entertain a guest, my dear, is to let him do exactly as he pleases." Then she sweetly added:

"No one really cares though, what the wisdom of seventy-one years has to teach."

SAINT and SINNER

"Well, Rhoda," Cherry cried, excitement pitching her voice high, "I've written that brother Nils of yours to come and talk things over. We're all so thrilled over San Remo's verdict that we don't know what to do! Aren't you excited? My heavens, to think you can calmly go on setting the table and worrying about dinner when you have a voice like that! What's the matter with you, Rhoda?"

Rhoda's hands, arranging a bowl of short-stemmed yellow roses in a jade bowl on the table, began to tremble violently and color flooded her plump face to the roots of her honey-colored hair.

"I—I wish you hadn't sent for Nils, Miss Cherry," she gasped in a low, shaken voice. "I asked you not to. He'll make me go back to the farm. And I want to live here and—and have a good time, like other girls."

Cherry stared at her incredulously, her golden eyes wide with bewilderment. "But, Rhoda, what are you afraid of? I wrote Nils that you have a gorgeous voice and that San Remo thinks so, too. Why, Faith said he kissed your hands and both cheeks in a transport of delight at discovering such a voice! Only a perfect beast of a brother could try to hold you back from your career now. He must be a dreadful person!"

"No, he isn't!" Rhoda insisted stubbornly. "Nils is wonderful. And I don't want to be a singer, really, or work like a slave trying to be one. San Remo said I'd have to study and practise for years and years——"

"But what of it?" Cherry puzzled. "Won't it be worth it—all the hard work, I mean? You don't seem to realise what a marvelous gift you have. Why, if I——"

"I wish I'd never let you and your sister and Mr. Hathaway hear me," Rhoda interrupted forlornly. "I'm not a genius, like you all say I am. I'm just a parrot, and I don't want to be a singer—honest, I don't! I didn't run away for that reason. I——"

"Then what do you want?"

"I just want to work here and—and find me a fellow and have a good time, and may be get married——" Rhoda's musical, plaintive voice died away on tears and she ran from the dining-room, slapping at her eyes with the back of her hand, like a heartbroken child.

"Can you beat that?" Cherry exclaimed in disgust to Faith and Bob who had come into the dining-room together.

"I'm afraid," Bob shook his head ruefully, "that we've all made a mistake, trying to play God for a girl who knows better than we do what she wants—and how to get it. If we'd let her alone, she'd have had her fellow in a week or so and have been snugly happy. I think we'd better drop it——"

"And let that Nils person take her back!" Cherry flamed. "Don't you all see? He's just browbeaten the poor child until she's afraid to call her soul her own! Oh, what I'll tell that big Swede when I see him!"

Rhoda had come back into the dining-room, steaming dishes of food in her hands. Her turqoise-blue eyes flashed an unaccustomed fire as she turned on Cherry:

"Nils is not a bully! He's just been trying to make me behave myself and I didn't want to! It's all my fault! He knows me better than you do, Miss Cherry! I've been a bad girl, and Nils was just trying to make me be good! I—I'm crazy about Nils, honest I am, and I wish I'd never run away."

"Well!" Cherry ejaculated helplessly.

1. No. 2. Yes. 3. No.

HOROSCOPE
The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 27, 1927.

Astrologers read this as rather an unimportant day in planetary government and for this reason a time to be quiet and cautious.

There is a good sign for churches and those who conduct services in them. Larger congregations and more interest in religion are forecast.

For old faiths and ancient forms of worship the seers prophesy renewed public interest, which may arouse antagonism.

All the aspects appear to presage bitter conflicts of opinion on politics as well as religion.

Persons of all classes will think seriously on many subjects which will disturb the public mind, it is foretold, and again teachers and lecturers will multiply.

Reactionary influences, so long predicted by astrologers, will be strong as the year dies and will effect many changes, if the stars are rightly interpreted.

The evening of this day is subject to a sinister direction of the stars, which appears to indicate wrong-thinking due to the acceptance of radical propaganda.

Educational institutions to-day may come in for serious criticism in which public school methods are attacked. Warning is given by astrologers that politicians will seek control of more than one city.

Letters to-day are subject to the best influences and even those that pledge the heart and hand may be fraught with little peril.

Science is to announce discoveries of amazing possibilities and the world is to make new strides forward, it is prognosticated.

Transportation is to achieve novel standards of speed, the seers prophesy, and the world will meet strange, compelling conditions that promote either unity or frightful wars.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a pleasant year in which there may be a few disappointments.

Children born on this day probably will be rarely fortunate in building their careers. The subjects of this sign generally are most attractive in personality.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 28, 1927.

Benefic aspects rule to-day, according to astrology, which finds the planetary government most auspicious for commercial projects.

Under this sway it is held most wise to trust to quick turnovers of money. Small profits are best in the end.

All labor that depends on brawn as well as brain is subject to a profitable direction of the stars to-day.

While there may be much employment later in the cold season, there should be comfortable profits now.

This should be a lucky sway for merchants and manufacturers, for buying is supposed to be stimulated by this configuration.

Building in many cities will be active and strange feats in engineering and architecture will be achieved, it is prognosticated.

The seers prophesy airplane stations on the roofs of skyscrapers and even hotels in mid-air.

Many sudden deaths are foretold as the year closes and men of note will meet sudden ends to brilliant careers.

Signs threatening to fire insurance companies are seen by those who read the stars. Great loss in an eastern city is indicated.

Betrayal of trust is forecast for a financier who is engaged in international affairs.

Persons whose birthdate it is may engage in successful speculation in the coming year, but there may be temptation to spend money recklessly.

Children born on this day may be restless and ambitious. They should be taught the value of stability of character.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germs growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis ,and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or 'flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Many Issues Score New Peak Prices

NEW YORK, November 26 (Canadian Press). — Stock prices gave another impressive display of strength in to-day's brief session. A further increase in brokers' loans to another new high record and the prospect of temporarily stiffer call money rates, due to heavy month-end withdrawals of funds, were disregarded by speculators for the rise, who succeeded in lifting more than a score of issues to new high peak prices. Coppers and rubbers gave a special demonstration of group strength, with strong support also noted for the tobaccos, chemicals, foods, and public utilities. Rails were rather sluggish, although a fair demand developed for Eastern coalers under the leadership of Delaware and Hudson.

Brazilian and City Dairy Strong Issues On Market

TORONTO, Nov. 26. — (Canadian Press).—Share advances in Brazilian and City Dairy were the features of a generally steadier list on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, Brazilian leading the regular issues, soared to 219 at the close. City Dairy, less active, climbed eight at 210. Twin City and Steel of Canada each gained two points, and International Nickel, Industrial Alcohol and Page Hersy issues were firmer. Liquors were unsteady, Seagrams firming and Carlings gaining one at 35, while Walkers and Malting eased. Oils generally firmed, International Petroleum gaining 5-8 at 33 1-8, Imperial Oil a quarter, and British American closing unchanged at 36.

Upturn Continues On Mining Exchange

TORONTO, November 26. — (Canadian Press. — There was no noticeable check on the resumed upturn on the Standard mining exchange this morning, but there was another increase in the volume of trading. This morning's sales were upwards of 1¾ million shares. Stadacona, after a long period of stagnancy, sold up more than 5 points at 24 and Amulet climbed 30 at 485; the big stock of the morning, Granada Rouyn, firmed 1½ at 34. There were also good gains in Argonaut, Bidgood, Barry Hollinger, Mining Corporation, Laval Quebec Kirkland Lake Tough Oakes and Teck Hughes.

MANY SYMPATHIZE.

Mrs. Snyder and Gray Get Fifty Letters Every Day.

OSSINING, N.Y., Nov. 28 (Canadian Press).—Letters at the rate of fifty a day are pouring into Sing Sing Prison for Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray, awaiting execution for murder, it was said today. Messages of sympathy far outnumber those of condemnation and many offer the consolations of religion. The prison authorities censor all mail before it reaches the prisoners, but nearly all the letters are delivered to the condemned. Most of the writers are unknown to Mrs. Snyder and Gray.

MANY CANDIDATES JOIN MOOSE LADIES

Refreshments Served Afterwards By Members of Men's Lodge.

The ladies of Mooseheart Legion completed thier campaign for membership in their order on November 22nd, with Mrs. Josephine Jackson(Deputy Grand Regent, in the chair, who made a special visit to the city for the initiation of a large class of candidates, also for installation of new officers.

A social evening was held after the business routine at which the Brother Moose attended, giving the ladies a rousing cheer of welcome. Refreshments were then served the ladies by the Loyal Order of Moose, with an address by Mrs. Jackson of Toronto and Past Dictator Sherett, of the Hamilton Lodge, who eulogized the method in which Moose activities are carried on at Mooseheart, Illinois, and throughout the world.

The Dictator of Peterborough Lodge made the announcement that Past Supreme Dictator Norman Heyd would address a public meeting to be held in the L.O.O.M. Hall on Nov. 28.

I.O.D.E. MAKES DONATION.

Cheque Sent By 57th Chapter To National Chapter For Memorial.

At the regular monthly meeting of the 57th Regimental Chapter, I.O.D.E., held at the Armouries, on Thursday afternoon, with the Regent, Mrs. R. Cottrell, presiding, a cheque for $25.00 was sent to the National Chapter as a donation toward the War Memorial Fund. Mr. Cottrell reported on the placing of the wreath on the Cenotaph on Armistice Day, and a letter was read from Miss S. A. Tomkins, Regent of the Otonabee Chapter, I.O.D.E., inviting the members to attend a meeting of that chapter on Wednesday next, November 30th, when Mr. J. F. H. Wallace will give an address on "Irish Wit and Humor."

London Fog Causes Street Accidents

LONDON, England, November 26 (Canadian Phess). — The worst fog of the season lay thick over London to-day. It was one of dense but light-hued surface character, giving the Metropolis a "white Saturday," only three days after its "black Wednesday" of this week, when an umbrella-like canopy blanketed the daylight almost completely. Traffic over a wide area was virtually paralyzed for a long period today, and there were many street accidents amidst the cloying atmosphere.

DUTCH DECLINE COMBINE OFFER

Agree To Co-operate With Cuban Interests To Prevent Crisis.

SUGAR INDUSTRY.

AMSTERDAM, Nov 26 (A.P.). — The Dutch Java sugar interests decided yesterday to remain outside of the recently formed Cuban-European sugar cartel, although they agreed to co-operate with Cuba as far as mutual interests permit to prevent a crisis in the sugar industry until consumption catches up with production.

Results of conferences between Col. Jose Tarefa of Cuba and Dutch sugar magnates are set forth in a communique made public today. The communique says that all conference have been of a mostly friendly character and that it is the intention of those who took part to meet again next year to discuss further co-operation.

The stipulation for another meeting next year is interpreted here as showing that while the Dutch Java interests want to remain independent of the agreement recently made in Paris between Col. Tarafa nd representatives of Poland, Germany and Czecho-Slovakia, they do not want to be isolated and will not be disposed to take advantage of the situation created by the restrictions of exports from other countries.

INJURIES FATAL.

Lady Victoria Bullock Succumbs To Fall From Horse.

MELTON MOWBRAY, Eng., Nov. 26 (Canadian Press).—Lady Victoria Bullock, only daughter of the Earl of Derby, died this afternoon without regaining consciousness after suffering injury while hunting with the Quorn hounds yesterday.

CUMMINGS RELEASED.

Was Held on Technical Charge Following Girl's Death.

ROCKVILLE CENTRE, N.Y., Nov. 26 (Canadian Press).—Walter Cummings, who claimed to be a member of a wealthy New Brunswick family, and who was arrested on a technical charge of disorderly conduct, following the suicide by poison of Anna Schulter and the finding of her body outside his apartment, was released yesterday.

JAPAN MAY ATTEMPT NEW PACIFIC HOP

Vancouver May Be Terminus of World's Largest Non-Stop Flight.

FROM TOKYO.

Imperial Aeronautic Association Plans 4,200 Mile Flight For Next Year.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 26. — (Canadian Press).—Vancouver may be the terminus of the world's longest non-stop flight—from Tokyo across 4,200 miles of the Pacific, which will be attempted next year by pilots of the Imperial Aeronautic Association of Japan. This was a possibility advanced by Y. G. Miawa, air attache to the Japanese Embassy at Washington who is in Vancouver investigating air port facilities here.

He arrived yesterday from Seattle, where he visited the municipal and Governmental airports.

"If airport facilities in Vancouver are as good as those in Seattle," he said, "there is an excellent chance that the trans-Pacific fliers may make this city the terminus of the flight." At the quest of the Imperial Aeronautical Association, which is building a giant air cruiser at Tokio, Mr. Miawa was relieved of his duties at Washington to come to the north-west to make a report on the facilities here.

"Although I have no power to make any decision in regard to the flight, I will forward my report to the authorities at Japan, who are now formulating plans for the flight," he said.

If this trans-Pacific flight is made it would be probably made in either May or June, which are the best two months on the North Pacific. Mr. Miawa stated that present plans call for land machines and that an adequate landing field was absolutely essential if the flight was to be ended here. It is pointed out by aviation experts that the airplanes could carry more gasoline than seaplanes and could make a better take off.

OLD ORKNEY WINS.

Donoghue Rides Winner in the Last Feature of English Season.

MANCHESTER, Eng., Nov. 26. — (Canadian Press).—Old Orkney today captured the November Handicap, the closing feature of the English flat racing season. Old Orkney is owned by J. J. Murphy. Adieu, owned by F. Horlick, was second, and Silver Lark, owned by Mrs. A. Bendir, was third. Steve Donoghue, noted British jockey, rode the winner. Six ran.

Old Orkney won by a length and a half, and a head was between the second and third. The stakes were fifteen hundred pounds sterling and the distance a mile and a half.

RACE DRIVER HURT.

Italian, Forresti, Slightly Injured, When Car Upsets.

CARMARTHEN Wales, November 26. — Canadian Press. — The Italian motor races, Jules Foresti, was making one hundred and fifty miles an hour on the Pendine Beach today in an effort to break the world's speed record, when his car skidded and rolled over twice. Foresti was only slightly injured but his car was wrecked.

Bachelor Gets Verse Predicting Singleness

Isaac McNabb, the bachelor president of the local Kiwanis Club, pulled a cracker at the banquet at the Empress Hotel, last night, in connection with Ladies' Night held to celebrate the Club's sixth birthday anniversary. His companions were considerably amused at the resulting verse, which was read aloud later to the assemblage. It said: "To me it will seem very funny, If ever I'm bound in matrimony."

HOLD-UP INSURANCE COST CUT IN HALF

Small Number of Hold-ups in Toronto Cause Decrease.

TORONTO, Nov. 26 (Canadian Press).—A fifty per cent decrease, the largest ever recorded in Canada, is announced by the bonding and insurance companies to take immediate effect on hold-up insurance in Toronto. The reason for the drop is that so few hold-ups have taken place in recent years that the coverage on this type of insurance has been found too high. Though a number of holdups have taken place, the amounts stolen were very light, since the famous battle with bank messengers four years ago when $85,000 was taken.

ROBBERS LOCK MARSHAL IN CAR

Five Men Steal $30,000 From Bank in Arkansas.

PINEBLUFF, Ark., Nov. 26 (Canadian Press).—Locking the town marshal in a box car, five men robbed the Bank of Bearden in Cuachita County early today of thirty thousand dollars and escaped.

WOMEN OF, ETC.

the church and accepting anything that is told them. It is terrifying. But don't blame your daughter or your son when they are full of that wild jungle music called 'jazz.' I know these McMaster men. I know them well. As far back as 1910 they were all—every blinking one of them—Modernists."

Here Mr. Burnham alluded to a declaration made last summer by Rev. Professor George Jackson, one of the most prominent of the Modernist group, who said that if he believed the gospels, that did not make it necessary for him to accept the Song of Songs.

"But it should be accepted, because it is in the Bible. If it isn't believable, then the Bible isn't believable. Then there are people like Dr. Shields who is making such a big fuss. He is not doing one thing to wreck the Bible, although God knows it is not necessary for him to defend it. It is the placid, sanctimonious, self-righteous, salary-seeking humbugs who are doing the damage.

"Christianity is the height of idealism. There is no power, it is said, in man or woman, to regenerate themselves. We are just the same now as we were ten thousand years ago, and we have found out that we are monkeys, in addition, so that we are in a very peculiar position.

"Art deals altogether with this world. It is the glorification of beauty and incidentally, of what usefulness may attach thereto, and it is a substitute, just as social service, which has been carried to a madness of excess, for the high forms of idealism. The foundation of Christianity is in this, not that you understand, because you cannot understand, but that, lending a believing ear, you hear the heavenly music.

"Women of the Victorian era were Christian. Women of to-day are anything. Of course, there are exceptions."

Going on to speak of scientific research and discovery, Mr. Burnham alluded to the finding of radium and its minutes particles, electrons, so much smaller than atoms of molecules, and the part played in its discovery by Madame Curie, who "showed that it was within the reign of woman to discover this second foundation of the temple of nature. But women pay no attention to these things. They run around and say how bad men are. I read in the reports of their meetings, the Local Council and others, just what they say of men, but they never say anything about women."

A reference was made to the discovery of the attraction of the earth by Galilio in the seventeenth century, and then Kepler discovered that the planets move about in ellipitical paths.

Some man will tell you that it is going to be a very cold winter, because the moon is so far north, just as if the moon went out of its orbit to go north."

Then Newton discovered the law of gravitation, but Newton, said Mr. Burnham, calculated everything from a fixed point. The theory of relativity, as recently formulated by Einstein, says that everything is moving and that nothing can be calculated from a fixed point. All is movement and therefore the rate or manner at which or in which bodies are moving is calculable only with relation to each other's notion. Hence the theory of relativity. Calculated from a fixed point rates of movements are called "absolute," that is to say they need not be considered as only relative to other bodies in motion, but considered from a moving point all motion is "relative." For example, where all bodies are moving it would not be possible to say how many miles an hour any one of them is moving at. All that could be said is that one is moving faster, slower, or at the same pace as the other. Moving bodies going at the same rate in the same direction appear to each other to be fixed and not moving. And yet the assumption that they are fixed and not moving would lead to a serious error.

'It may be said, therefore, that the assumption that bodies were fixed when they were actually in motion has not properly explained the system of the universe, but this new theory of Einstein's has been found to clear up many puzzling things heretofore inexplicable. And further when a man calculates from a fixed point he does so in terms of the usual three dimensions of length, breadth and height, or depth. But when all things are moving the element of time becomes a fourth dimension. Hence calculating from a moving, not a fixed, point, the element of time comes in and hence space is now a thing of four dimensions—length, breadth, height or depth—and time. This new theory cannot be represented by a mental picture, however, and it takes a great deal of scientific, technical knowledge to furnish the equipment and mathematical symbols necessary to outline it properly."

Speaking of the interest women should take in matters of this type, and alluding to many artists" as the lowest of the low," whereas there is immense culture to be gained from research into far realms of thought such as claimed the attention of Madame Curie, for example, Mr. Burnham concluded with an adjuration of his hearers to become interested in such things at once, rather than wait for later years to find them ignorant of great scientific truths.

A vote of thanks to Mr. Burnham was moved by Mrs. V. Eastwood, Senior, and presented by the president, Mrs. Blackwell, Mrs. J. Forbes Allan rose to remind Mr. Burnham of the great work done in years past by many notable women, instancing Florence Nightingale and the opposition which met her from men at the time she wished to go into the Crimea and help the soldiers, as an example of how women should act and how they should be commended, rather than attacked, for their assistance in such ways. "Women of the type pictured in Jane Austen's novels," said Mrs. Allan, alluding to the feminine ideal held up by Mr. Burnham, 'when confronted with an emergency, usually are pictured as able to do nothing but say, "Good heavens and swoon away."

"The very best thing they could do," asserted Mr. Burnham stoutly, retaining to the last his stand on a question which he dilated upon before an audience which was composed entirely of women with the exception of one lone man who accompanied a lady member.

Mrs. Blackwell announced the holding of an exhibition of work by the members, on December 8th, with the Christmas Musicale on December 9th, also the commencement of a French Conversation class at the studio next Thursday afternoon at half past three o'clock.

A request for pictures to be used to decorate the bare walls at the Children's Shelter was also made to the members.

WOMEN FURNISH HOSPITAL WARD

Bannockburn W. I. and Red Cross Society Aid Bancroft Institution.

DOUBLE BEDROOM.

MADOC, Nov. 25.— The Bancroft Times contains the following, which will greatly interest all Women's Institute readers of this district:

Only a comparatively few people are aware of the fact that the two bed ward in the sunny south-east corner of the Red Cross Hospital, Bancroft, is the gift of the Bannockburn Women's Institute and the Red Cross Society.

This splendid contribution to the local Red Cross Society was made possible by the progressive spirit, large vision, co-operation and generosity of the ladies of Bannockburn.

The project was started some months ago, but owing to various delays and disappointments the furnishing of the room has actually been completed just this week by the placing on the door the handsome brass plate upon which are artistically engraved letters which read as follows:

Bannockburn W. I. and Red Cross.

From this brass plate on the outside of the door to the farthest corner of the room the furnishings have been supplied by the ladies of Bannockburn. Not only has the room been furnished but most completely furnished, there being many articles and conveniences stored away which are for use in that room when needed—things designed to give extra comforts to the patients who may be assigned to that room.

There are two beds in the Bannockburn room and even those words mean more than one would at first imagine because that insures over and above the quilts, sheets blankets, pillows, pillow covers, etc., on the bed, all the extra supplies of sheets, blankets, pillows, etc., that go to make up the equipment of two beds in a hospital.

Two nice little bedside tables, pretty curtains on the windows, an easy chair, and a straight-backed chair with the ever useful screen comprise the furniture of the room.

Things that have been provided for the patients of this room that do not show on the superficial inspection are hot water bottles, ice bag, back rests, lounging robes, bed trays, table trays, water pitchers and glasses, etc.

Taken altogether the appointments of the room are most complete The gift of the Bannockburn ladies is one of the most important contributions that the local Red Cross Society has received, both from a practical and intrinsic viewpoint.

They are indeed to be congratulated on the practical working out of their wishes and the generosity which prompted this magnificent gift. The local Red Cross Society acknowledges its great obligation and sincere gratitude to the ladies of Bannockburn.

BADMINTON ARRANGED.

Ladies of Y. W. C. A. Appoint Committee To Draw Up Schedule.

An informal meeting of the Badminton Club of the Y.W.C.A. was held at the 'Y' on Wednesday evening attended by about twenty-five of the members. A committee was appointed consisting of Miss Phyllis Goldey, Miss 'Teddy' Conner Miss L. Wilson, Miss Mabel Walker, Miss Jean Anderson and Mrs. I. Miller.

Interest appears very keen in the badminton games this year and a very successful season is anticipated. The tournament games will commence shortly, after a schedule has been drawn up, and will be played on Wednesday and Saturday evenings.

GEOLOGISTS FEAR RUIN OF NIAGARA

Say Erosion at Present Rate Will Make it Rapids in 50 Years.

OTTAWA, Nov. 26.—One of the wonders of the world is in jeopardy. Niagara Falls, a cataract renowned throughout Christendom and seen by most European monarchs, is in danger of becoming only a rapids. During the past few years the erosion in the Horseshoe has tended to the arch of that line, where there is a depth at the brink of about fifteen feet, with the result that the two ends of the Horseshoe are at some periods practically dry. Geologists who have studied that curve and the extent and tendency of the erosion actually fear that within fifty years the falls will have developed into what is little more than a rapids.

Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, and J. T. Johnston, Director of the Water Power branch of that department, left yesterday afternoon for Washington, where today they will confer with Hon. Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, and officials of that department on the contents of an interim report prepared by the Joint Board appointed by the two Governments to study the tendency of the erosion at Niagara, and to devise some means by which the flow of water may be more equally distributed over the whole cataract.

There will be some talk, too, about water power development, but this, it is understood, has entirely to do with the local situation and has no Federal significance.

GAINED IN HEALTH AND IN WEIGHT

Now Gives All the Credit to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

When a young girl becomes pale, complains of exhaustion at the least exertion, has dizzy spells, headaches or stomach trouble, she should know that these are some of the many symptoms of anaemia, which means that her blood is thin and weak. In such conditions there is the most urgent need for a tonic that will promptly restore the missing qualities to the blood and thus bring back health and strength. For this purpose there is no tonic can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Thousands of weak and ailing girls have found new health and happiness through this medicine, Miss Gladys V. Bond, Kentville, N.S., used this treatment successfully, and says:—"I cannot praise Dr. Williams' Pink Pills too highly for the good they have done me. I was in a condition of very poor health, suffered from severe headaches and nervousness. My appetite was poor, and very little exertion would leave me tired out. On the advice of a friend I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. In a few weeks I began to feel better, my appetite improved, and the headaches were less frequent. I continued the use of the pills until I had taken six boxes, by which time I felt as well as ever, and I gained in weight from 98 pounds to 11 pounds. For this reason I advise all weak girls to try this medicine."

Try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for anaemia, rheumatism, neuralgia, nervousness and stomach trouble. Take them as a tonic and cultivate a resistance that will keep you well and strong. You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

have that conceit of themselves, and don't require to pray for it; but Scotsmen do.

Although we say it ourselves, we Scots are a modest and retiring race, we are quite content to let our big brother, the Englishman, get into the limelight as much as he likes. Two brothers went into an orchard, where there was a large plum tree, covered with ripe plums. The oldest brother climbed the tree, and threw down the plums, while the younger brother remained at the foot and gathered the plums. Some visitors who were present praised the elder brother for his skill in climbing the tree; then addressing the younger brother they said, "we cannot say much about your skill in climbing." "Oh," said the little fellow, "I am quite willing for George to get all the praise, so long as I get all the plums." So we Scots don't mind the Englishman getting all the praise, so long as we get all the plums, and we do get most of the plums, both in church and state. It's a well known fact that the English church and the British Empire are run largely by Scotsmen. That's why Englishmen are anxious for home rule for all parts of the British Isles in the hope that the Scotsmen will return home and give him a chance to run his own country. A Scotsman in London was twitted by an Englishman who said to him that he had to leave Scotland to get a decent job. The Scotsman said that was true. He said it was like this: "In Scotland I could not get much of a chance to show what I could do for all my neighbors were just as clever as myself, but since coming to London, he said, I am doing very well." Like our Patron Saint, we Scots are modest and retiring. Then, like St. Andrew, we have a knack of introducing people to the Great Matser Himself. What I mean by that is that many of our race have become eminent leaders in the work of the Christian church. In every branch of Christian service you will find Scotsmen in the very forefront. In the ministry, in the foreign mission field, in the work of translating the Scriptures, or in the exposition of the same in all branches of Christian litertaure, Scotland leads the world. For brilliant preachers what single country can produce the equal of John Knox, Thos. Guthrie, Dr. Chalmers, Alex. Whyte, Hugh Black, Norman McLeod, Ian McLaren, Dr. McLaren, Dr. Helman, Dr G. H. Morrison, Dr. Hutton and many others too numerous to mention. Why, Scotland made preaching a specialty, every Scottish mother had the ambition of one day seeing her son "waggin' his head in a fu' fit."

On the foreign mission field no country can come near us. Listen to these names of missionary heroes of the very front rank: Dr. Moffat, David Livingstone of Africa, James Chalmers of New Guinea, McKay of Uganda, John G. Paton, New Hebrides, Morrison of China, Duff of India, Mary Slessor of Calabar, Gilmour of Mongolia, Laws of Livingstonia, to mention only a few. Then, as for Scripture interpreters, translaters and expositors, Scotland has produced more than her share, Sir George Adam Smith, Professor Denny, Dr. Moffat, Dr. Marcus Dods, Dr. Hastings of Bible dictionary fame, Dr. A. B. Bruce, Principl McGregor; here we suffer from the embarrassment of riches. These are the leading theologians of the world. So that our countrymen have followed the example of our Patron Saint, in preaching the word and carrying it to others, as well as making it clear and plain to the understanding of men. These then are two things on which the Scots are like our Patron Saint, we are modest and retiring and we have succeeded in introducing many to the Great Master.

Now some may dispute these things and may say that instead of being modest and retiring and having a humble opinion of ourselves, we are vain and boastful. In fact some may say that in this very address of mine I am denying the very doctrine I am trying to teach and have been guilty of vanity and boastfulness, but a man is not boatsting when he is telling the plain unvarnished truth. A man is guilty of boasting when he makes claims which are not true and cannot be substantiated.

Then there is another thing about St. Andrew that I must mention; that is his steadiness; he never faltered in his allegiance to Christ, several of the others did, but so far as we know Andrew remained true. Judas Iscariot became a traitor and betrayed his Lord, Peter wobbled and denied his Master, James and John were vindictive and ambitious, Thomas doubted, but Andrew remained stead, neither turning to the right hand nor the left, keeping his eye on the goal and making straight for it.

This also is true of Scots in general, they are steady, except when the imbibe too freely in the mountain dew, they steer a straight, not an eratic course.

By steadiness, courage and determination we have climbed to the top, in every branch of industry and human enterprise, so much so that the State Ambasador Page describes us in his last book as the "most capable race in the world."

Miss Mary Hemphill was the accompanist for the evening.

A social hour and dance brought the evening's programme to a close. Music for dancing was supplied by Robert Gilmour, Miss Hemphill and Robert Wyllie.

MARKWORTH NEWS.

WARKWORTH, Nov. 26.—Mr. and Mrs. Jason Thompson have returned to Chesley after spending sometime with his brothers.

Messrs. G. L. Walker, William Snooker, Chat Sherwin, Donald Thompson, Bruce King, Harry Richardson, Milford McVety, William Allen and Roy Austin returned Wednesday evening after spending two weeks at Lake St. Peter on a hunting trip. Each brough back a deer.

Miss Sara McComb spent Wednesday at the parental home, Morganston.

HAS TO MAKE GOOD.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 26.—Heir to an estate variously estimated at from $2,000,000 to $25,000,000, Allison B. Stout, 26, and a graduate of Yale, holds down a job as stoker in an industrial plant here. If he proves himself capable of handling the fortune, he will get it when he is 35. So he's starting at the bottom with the intention of making good by himself.

Smith is the most common name in the United States, there being about 1,304,300 by that name. Johnson is second with 1,042,200.

ROBBERS SNATCH PAYROLL—OF IRON.

By NEA Service

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—For eighteen months, Thomas Reilly, private detective for a foundry company, carried payrolls from a bank. Each week, he carefully rehearsed with his two assistants, just what they would do if bandits ever attacked them. The other day they went through the program again—dumping the money into the bag, with much flourishing of revolvers, the trip to the automobile at the curb and the drive to the company offices.

This time their car was crowded to the curb by a big sedan carrying six men, who leaped out and demanded the payroll. They grabbed the bag and dashed away. Reilly, grinning despite the loss of the bag and several pounds of perfectly good scrap iron, drove on to the foundry with the money safely hidden under the back seat.

Juniors Lose The First Game In S. P. A. Series

NEWMARKET SHOWS TOO MUCH TEAM WORK AND CONDITION FOR JUNIOR PETES IN S.P.A. CLASH

Lew Lebarr's Youngsters Were Whitewashed 12 Goals to 0 at Toronto Arena.

FIRST TIME OUT.

Peterborough Kids Under Big Handicap in Tackling Last Year's Finalists.

(By F.D.C.)

Lew Lebarr's Peterborough Juniors playing without a minute's practice and on skates for the first time this season were blanked 12 to 0 by Newmarket in the Junior S.P.A. series in the Toronto Arena last night.

Bill Hancock's well-coached team who were finalists last year and have enough of their good outfit left in action to be formidable opposition for anybody's team, had too much condition for the Petes to have a chance. They have been making frequent trips to Toronto for practice, and showed the result of the work, as well as of plenty of drilling in the value of team play. They stuck to their positions, broke fast and together, and they passed unselfishly; in fact, they almost overdid the combination stuff in their efforts to carry out orders.

Against such opposition the young Petes made a better showing than the score indicates. They should not have had a dozen goals scored against them, and on the other hand they were unlucky that their persistent efforts were not rewarded with a marker or two. They came close on numerous occasions, but got no breaks around the nets, and finally had to be content with a dose of whitewash. The young Petes were leg weary early, but they stuck to the bitter end, and had the crowd pulling for them to score and avert a shut-out. The superior condition and team play of the Newmarket made the task of Lew Lebarr's a hopeless one from the start, but the blue and white kids had plenty of foot and determination despite the handicap they were working under, and their gameness under fire might well have earned them a closer score. They matched Newmarket in speed; in fact, it looked as if they had a margin in that respect; but speed alone, especially in the case of players not in shape, will rarely beat condition and team play, and it didn't last night.

Manager Lebarr trotted out his two goalers, Mein and Gillespie, and Jones, Lebarr, Kenneally, Cripps, and Allin of last year's team, while three new players were seen in action in Shields, a Fort William youngster, and Faulkner and Stevenson of Omemee. It is too early to judge of the capabilities of these new-comers. They did not show a great deal last night, but they will undoubtedly improve with practice, and may make valuable men for Manager Lebarr when the campaign gets under way.

Of the old guard, Kenneally and Ted Lebarr looked the best last night, although Cripps worked hard and turned in a useful game, and Bob Allin did some fine shooting. Kenneally's speed and good stick-handling made him a stand-out, and Lebarr contributed some nice rushing.

Mein guarded the nets in the first and third periods, and blocked a host of shots, many of them at close range. Gillespie was between the posts in the middle stanza, and had tough luck with a couple of soft shots.

For Newmarket, Collins, a big and rather awkward looking right wing player, was probably the star. He rattled the twine for four goals on his own account, and figured in at least that many more successful raids in which a team mate converted a Collins pass into a counter. Thoms, the centre player, was clever and aggressive and the defence pair, Perreault and Pringle ,were good going both ways.

Toronto experts declare that Newmarket are not as strong as last year. They have promising material,however, are being splendidly coached, and may make plenty of trouble for all and sundry later on.

The line-up:

Newmarket—Goal, Ames; defence, Pringle and Perreault; centre, Thoms; right wing, Collins; left wing, Murray; subs., Trivett and Teasdale, Waller, and McKelvey.

Peterborough — Goal, Mein and Gillespie; defence, Lebarr and Shields; centre, Jones; right wing, Allin; left wing, Kenneally; subs., Cripps, Faulkner, and Stevenson.

Referee—tSan. Burgoyne.

The first period was marked by indifferent hockey . Newmarket scored twice during the session and might have had half a dozen more if they had not balled up their plays at the last moment or Mein had not beat them with clever stops. The red and white team were passing nicely and getting in close, while the Petes, with no team work to help them, could not work into scoring position.

Three minutes after the game got under way Collins put his team in front by drilling a sizzling shot from the blue line that beat Mein completely. Newmarket had plenty of chances after that, but did not score again until the period was nearly over, when Thoms took a neat pass from Collins and scored from close in. A couple of hot shots from Allin cleverly blocked by Ames, were the Petes' best effort in the period.

Goals came thick and fast in the second session. Collins scored twice in succession inside the first three minutes. Jones nearly put Peterborough into the scoring column when he worked right inside, but Ames made a great stop.

Back came Newmarket with snappy goals by McKelvey and Waller. Cripps lost another good chance for a Peterborough score ,Ames blocking nicely. Before the period ended Newmarket increased their margin to eight on a neat Collins to Thoms play and on a good shot by Murray following a rush by Collins.

Early in the third session Pringle on one of the best individual rushes of the game, went close in to beat Mein for No. 9. The Peterborough resistance stiffened, and the Petes had a good share of the play for the next seven or eight minutes, until Collins went down alone to bang in his team's tenth counter. Waller and McKelvey combined for the next and Murray made it an even dozen before the period ended.

First Period.

Three Major Battles End Football Season

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 (Canadian Press).—Three major intersectional battles, headed by the Notre Dame-Southern California game at Chicago, and several traditional tussles, featured by the Army-Navy classic in New York, furnished a climax to the college football season to-day.

The intersectional contests also include two on the Pacific coast, one between Drake and California and the other between Oregon Aggies and Carnegie. Other traditional affairs include the game between Holy Cross and Boston College at Boston

The prospect is that only the championship races in the southern and Pacific coast conferences will remain to be settled after today. Four already have been decided, while a fifth, in the Rocky Mountain conference, likely will be settled when the two leaders, Colorado Aggies and Colorado College, meet.

SPORT BITS

SUNDAY MANAGER.

PHILADELPHIA Nov. 26.—The appointment of Burt Shotten as manager of the Phillies to succeed "Stuffy" McInnis, recalls the fact that the new pilot gained his first experience in directing the destinies of a big league club as Sunday manager of the St. Louis Browns.

Shotten, in his day a great outfielder, played with the St. Louis Americans under Branch Rickey as manager. Rickey's religious scruples kept him away from the ball park on Sunday and Shotten always acted in his stead. This job won for him the moniker of Sunday manager.

Two years at the head of the Syracuse club of the International League fits him for his new berth. He brought the club to second from seventh in that time.

PLAYER SUFFERS.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 26.—Making a big league manager out of a star player very often ruins his value to the team. The case of Catcher Bob O'Farrell is the most recent example of such a happening.

Bob O'Farrell was voted the most valuable player in the National League in 1926. He helped the Cardinals to the pennant and world series. Quiet, modest and retiring, he possessed none of the characteristics necessary for a successful manager.

Appointed to succeed Rogers Hornsby, his general play immediately slumped and the Cardinals were greatly handicapped because of his failure to work regularly and show his 1926 form.

With the appointment of Bill McKechnie as manager of the Cards, he goes back to the rank of player and his work should improve.

GENARO IS READY FOR BELANGER BOUT

Former American Champion in First Class Shape—Expects To Win.

TORONTO, Nov. 26.—Frankie Genaro, erstwhile monarch of all he surveyed in the flyweight division, who boxes French Belanger, latest sensation in the section on Monday night at the Coliseum, is on the battle ground. The little giant "blew in" yesterday morning accompanied by Nick Florio his trainer and lost no time in telling all and sundry that if he was in any better shape he would challenge Tunney.

And he certainly looks the part for all that the curly thatch which once adorned his top piece shows signs of the wear and tear of time and there is a new scar or two on his smiling visage. Not that Genaro is old as age goes in ordinary life—he is only 26— but he has been through the mill in a pugilistic sense and has had many a tough tussle since he first broke into the game some six or seven years ago

Genera expressed himself as tickled over the prospect of meeting somebody his own size and weight. It will be a decided novelty and he said to step into the ring with a genuine flyweight, as he had to mingle with bantams and near featherweights in most of his recent bouts. He looks for a hard fight with Belanger whom he says must be a real battler on his record. "He beat a high class fighter in Newsboy Brown and the news of the result caused something like a sensation in ring circles not only in New York but everywhere else."

PARIS AWAITS

but war if played the opponents' way, France is supporting Jugo-Slavia against Italian Premier Benito Mussolini's ambitious diplomatic program.

France is interested particularly because control of the Mediterranean Sea, as far as Latin nations are concerned, lies between herself and Italy.

There is little mention of peace in the Italia-Albanian treaty. It envisages frankly the possibility of an attack on Albania, and prescribes that all resources should be pooled to meet one.

In Berlin yesterday, Russian Foreign Under-Secretary Litvinoff, in a lenghty conference with German Foreign Minister Stresemann, expressed grave fear that Poland planned an attack on Lithuania.

Russia Uneasy

Russia has left little doubt that she might feel herself inevitably drawn into any such attack.

Litvioff irronically, is on his way to the meeting of the preparatory disarmament commission at Geneva next Wednesday.

Word has come from Geneva that League of Nations leaders feel the disarmament program must be held back for another year to permit continental conditions to clarify.

In London, liberal-minded diplomats at the no-more-war congress are urging disarmament and stressing the immediate danger of war. Coincidentally, British Liberal and Labor politicians are demanding that Britain take the lead to insure peace through arbitration treaties that will outlaw war. All have said frankly that Europe, with armies nearly as great as those of pre-war times, is preparing for another war.

General Elections

General parliamentary elections, that might mean much in a trend toward peace or war, are likely to be held during 1928 in France, Belgium, Poland, Germany and Great Britain.

CONSERVATIVES' MAJORITY LOWER

Wayland Wins Canterbury Seat By 3,400 Votes Over Carnegie.

CANTERBURY, England, Nov. 26 (Canadian Press).—The Conservative party retained its hold on the Canterbury constituency at a bye-election but with a much reduced majority. A tabulation of the vote made public yesterday showed that Sir W. Wayland, Conservative, was elected with 13,567 votes, against Col. B. Carnegie, Liberal, 10,175. The Conservative majority at the last election was more than nine thousand.

Griffith To Regret Passing of Schacht If Nats Are Not Up In the 1928 Race

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Nick Altrock, buffoon extraordinary of the Washington club again finds himself without a partner. It is understood Al Schacht, who for years has teamed up with Nick and by their pantomime made millions laugh, has been turned loose.

Altrock and Schaefer made up the first and original team of baseball clowns. Death removed "Germany" Schaefer from the picture. Fandom was sorry.

For a year Nick struggled along alone but it was a difficult task. Then along came Schacht. He joined the Washington club as a pitcher. Clark Griffith soon decided that as a pitcher Schacht would be a better clown, so he became a member of the team of Altrock and Schacht.

These two for a number of years have been an even greater hit than the old team of Altrock and Schaefer. The clever Schacht was always thinking up some new stunt that would prove different for the fans.

Their tennis burlesque on Suzanne Lenglen and Mary Browne was so good that it finally irritated the French miss, due to the fact that the pair were getting a bigger hand everywhere than the world's greatest woman player. They were turned loose by Cash and Carry Pyle at Lenglen's request.

After the recent Tunney-Dempsey fight, two put on a slow motion stunt, showing the knockout and the long count that was a classic.

It is to be regretted that these two great laughmakers are to be separated. Fandom enjoyed them. They often gave the public their money's worth when the contending clubs were putting on a dull exhibition.

Unless the Washington club is up in the race next season, the owners will realize their value.

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, with Mister Lebarr's jrs. stepping out in the S.P.A. serious and Mister Wright's srs. billed to play in the sr. finals of the Sportsmen's serious, it can't be long now. This here dope is being writ Thurs., so I can't tell how Mister Lebarr's kids get along against them Newmarketers, but no matter how she comes out you gotta admit the local youngsters was under a real handicap. Only a coupla lads had been on skates, and they bust through the ice and hadda do a Geo. Young to get out, and most of them will have the blades on for the 1st time Fri. Meanwhile their opposition has been in the big city 2 or 3 times for workouts.

I was among them present at the O.H.A. meeting last Sat., Mac. It was a quiet session with nothing much to fight over, and the delegates give away $5,000 to the Olympic team without even turning a hair. Even at that they ain't no danger the organization is going to go in the hands of a receiver. The big parade has about 24 grand in the bank or in bonds, so even with $5,000 to help advertise Canada across the bond next summer they is still $19,000 to keep the wolf from the door. And if they need any more jack, Mac, why they can put a tax on the referees. Them birds collect plenty every night they put their skates on, and many a team, after they has paid the other fellow's mileage and the rent of the rink, has found hardly enough left in the old sock for the boy with the bell. If they was paid according to what they know about hockey, too, some of them should oughta pay their way into the rink. Nowadays if a boy don't show enough promise to make a pro. hockey player the next best thing is to turn him into the refereeing business. No of them bell-ringers has to worry about where his next meal is coming from, if any.

Our fellow-citizen, Mister Bond, just naturally headed the poles for the executive Sat. Mister Bond oughta be due for a step up the ladder to 2nd vice-pres. next season, Mac, and from there it ain't so far to the top of the heap. Mister Dicky Butler will be boss next year, and the Lindsay mogul deserves it. He has stuck by hockey be the year lean or fat.

Well, Mister Sporting Editor, the boys will soon be at it in Brock st. rink, and the usual crop of hockey and curling widows will be with us again. Meanwhile we can listen to the hockey reports over the radio. Try and get 'em.

See you later.

Sportfully yours,

CARPETBALL GAME WON BY ALL SAINTS'

Return Game With Springville People Very Much Enjoyed.

SPRINGVILLE, November 26.—A very enjoyable evening's entertainment took place on Wednesday, Nov. 23rd, when several of the members of the Springville Christian Endeavour motored to Peterborough to play the return game of carpet ball with All Saints' church. The game was played in the parish hall, and the victory was gained by the home team.

After the game refreshments were served and a social time followed.

Towards the close of the evening Rev. Mr. McConnachie spoke on behalf of the Springville Endeavor and expressed his appreciation and his thanks for the delightful hospitality shown them by the All Saints' people.

Mr. Staples of Springville also spoke and seconded Mr. McConnachie's appreciation and thanks.

Mr. Wiggins, president, and Mr. Whaley, Vice-President of All Saints replied suitably on behalf of their church.

HAD WRIST BROKEN.

Abel will not be able to play again until next February. Abel was a member of the United States Olympic team in 1924, which was beaten by Canada 6-1 in the finals at Chamonix.

4TH PETERBOROUGH TROOP

The meeting opened with flag, and then inspection.

After inspection, Kim's game was played. In Kim's game twenty-four articles are placed on a table, and covered. The Scouts gather around the table in such a position that they can see clearly. The covering is then taken off and the objects are viewed for one minute. Five minutes are then given to write them down Eighteen out of twenty-four must be remembered to pass the test.

In the race which followed, each Scout had to run the length of the room and back twice, backwards. In this, the Kangaroos won.

Mr. John, President of the Boy Scouts' Association, came in and stayed for a while watching the games.

Then came the event of the evening, the indoor treasure hunt. Each patrol was given a sheet of paper with the directions on it. The three patrols started at a square, in the centre of the room. The first direction for one of the patrols was go twelve paces north-west. There were seven other directions and at last the three patrols were at the southern end of the building looking for the final directions. A keen-eyed Owl discovered the papers under the troop charter. They got the paper marked "first prize," the Kangaroos, the one marked "second prize," and the Crows the one marked "third prize." Finally each patrol got its prize. The Owls got two chocolate bars; the Kangaroos, one bar; and the Crows got a sucker apiece.

Each patrol had a ten-minute instruction period. A few more games were played before the meeting closed.

The meeting closed with the singing of "God Save the King," and the lowering of the flag.

In the troop competition the Kangaroos are leading with 142½, the Crows are second with 138½, and the Owls third with 138 points.

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S WINTER GARDEN.

(Copyright, 1927, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Boo hoo!" cried Jingle Longears, the little rabbit girl.

"Hoo boo!" cried Jangle, who was a twin sister to Jingle. Even though Jangle was a twin she thought she would cry a bit differently from her sister. So she cried "Hoo boo!"

"What's the matter?" asked Uncle Wiggily who was just combing out his whiskers and twinkling his pink nose, getting ready to seek an adventure. "What is wrong, my dears?"

"Oh, everything is wrong!" sobbed Jingle. "I gave the wrong answer in school and—and——"

"Ha! ha!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "You're wrong there, too! This is Saturday and there isn't any school! Ha! ha!"

"Well, I gave the wrong answer last week!" sighed Jingle. "But there is something more wrong than that. I've lost my dollie!" and she fairly howled these words.

"So have I!" howled Jangle. Then both the little rabbit twins howled together:

"We both lost our dollies in the snow!"

This seemed so dreadful that Uncle Wiggily stopped twinkling his pink nose, gave up all thoughts of going out adventuring and asked:

"Whereabouts did you lose your dollies in the snow?"

"Coming in from the front gate?" answered Jingle and Jangle together just like twins. In fact they were twins, but I guess I mentioned that before; didn't I?

Then the two little rabbit girls told their Daddicums, as they called Uncle Wiggily, they told him how, coming in from the front gate, up the walk to the bungalow, they had dropped their dollies which they were carrying under their paws.

"And my dollie, she's named Betsey Pasettsie, and she's only got one eye, but I love her just the same as if she had two eyes," sobbed Jingle, "my dollie, Betsey Pasettsie, dropped in the deep snow and I couldn't find her again. There's only the hole where she fell in! Boo hoo!"

"And my doll, Tootsie Lootsie, she dropped the same way, but she has two eyes and I love her a lot!" sobbed Jangle. "Hoo boo!"

"Boo hoo!" sobbed Jingle.

"Hush, my dears," said Uncle Wiggily kindly. "I'll go out in the snow and find your dolls. They must be buried deep under a drift, but I will get them out. You sit by the fire and warm your toes."

So the little rabbit twins sat beside the fire, like Polly Flinders, warming their toes, and Uncle Wiggily, with a shovel and rake, went out in the snow-covered yard.

Mr. Longears saw holes in the snow, but there were so many of them, some made by dropped dollies and some by Jackie and Peetie Bow Wow playing tag, that the rabbit gentleman could not tell just where Jingle and Jangle had dropped Betsey Pasettsie and Tootsie Lootsie. He didn't know which holes the dolls had fallen in.

"I'll just dig over the whole patch of snow," decided the bunny uncle. "In that way I'll find the dolls sooner or later."

He was digging away in the snow when, all of a sudden, a voice behind him asked:

"What are you doing?"

It was the Woozie Wolf.

"Making a snow garden!" chuckled Uncle Wiggily. He thought it was Mr. Twistytail, the pig, who asked this, and the bunny thought he would have some fun with him. "I'm making a winter garden to plant Christmas trees!" said the rabbit.

Now it was the Woozie Wolf and not Mr. Twistytail who had asked this question, but Mr. Longears didn't know it. And when the Wolf heard Uncle Wiggily say "winter garden," that Wolf thought:

"There isn't any such thing as a winter garden. Uncle Wiggily must be walking and talking in his sleep. Well, so much the easier to catch him. I'll show him a winter garden!"

The Wolf leaped up high to get on Uncle Wiggily's back. But just then the rabbit gentleman bent down low to look for the dolls. So the Wolf shot right over the rabbit's head into a deep drift of snow.

"Wow! Gow! Huffie Zow!" howled the bad chap, his mouth and nose filled with snow. And he kicked and scurried around so hard in the snow that, all of a sudden, he kicked out the two dolls from where they were hidden. Out of the snow onto the path the Wolf kicked Betsey Pasettsie and Tootsie Lootsie, and then he ran away.

"Ho! Ho!" laughed Mr. Longears. "The lost are found! It's a good thing I said I was making a winter garden." Then he took the dolls to Jingle and Jangle, who were made happy again.

NEW SCHOOL NEARLY READY

Exterior Completed of Fine Building at Braidwood and Park.

LAND BEING LEVELLED.

The new school for North Monaghan is at present a scene of much activity. Situated on the south corner of Braidwood and Park, it presents a majestic appearance, the imposing front with the name "Confederation" in bold letters drawing the attention of the many passers-by on Park Street. The structure of the building is complete, and a flag staff on which a Union Jack proudly floated on Armistice Day, has not been forgotten.

The four spacious rooms, two on each storey, are now in the hands of carpenters and electricians, who are busily engaged in the interior finishing. Outside, men with teams of horses are levelling up the land, and on all sides an evidence is given that the school will soon be ready to receive the scholars.

RETURN FROM HUNTING TRIP

Prince Sturdza, Roumanian Consul-General at Washington, is shown here with Princess Sturdza, snapped as they were returning from a hunting vacation in the Canadian West, where the princess bagged what was said to be a record moose, the horns measuring 61 inches from tip to tip. Roumanian news cables are greatly exaggerated, the prince claims. And the people do not want to have Prince Carol back, he asserts.

WANTED-MAN WHO KNOWS HIS PARIS

Director Arthur Rosson Swamped by Applicants for Unique Movie Job

Wanted: Someone who knows everything there is to know about Paris night life! Apply Babe Daniels unit immediately."

That was the request tacked on the bulletin board at Paramount's West Coast Studio some time ago.

By 9.30 next morning, exactly eighty-two of the sixteen hundred employees of the organization had reported to Arthur Rosson who directed Miss Daniels' latest picture, "Stranded in Paris," which arrives at the Regent on Monday.

Of the small army which applied, seven native Frenchmen were chosen—all of whom had spent practically their entire lives in Paris. They knew every detail of custom and architecture and were familiar with every section of the city from its mysterious Apache district to the famous residential section on the Boulevard St. Germain.

Thousands of photographs were obtained from these natives and the seventy-five others who had volunteered their services. Inasmuch as "Stranded in Paris" brings every hidden corner of the most colorful city of the world to the screen, no effort was spared in making the film absolutely authentic.

AT THE CAPITOL.

"METROPOLIS" ASTOUNDING EXAMPLE OF CINEMA EXCELLENCE!

"Metropolis," the latest production come from the UFA studios in Berlin is an outstanding example of cinema excellence.

One loses control of one's typewriter keys in trying to convey an idea of the stupendous settings and the almost incredible magnificent mechanical effects.

The story itself is melodramatically moral. But shortcomings of story or actors are entirely forgotten in the photoplay itself.

"Metropolis" is the name of a visionary city of the future. The shots of it are breath-taking. Towering buildings that reach to the skies with streets and driveways every hundred stories or so, everything controlled by machinery.

John Masterson, the builder, is shown as a soulless individual who controls the entire city and its people. Deep down underground are the homes of his workmen. And as far up as that city is down, is his stadium, where his son and his gilded friends take their pagan pleaures.

The son suddenly becomes curious as to how his father's workmen exist and goes down into the factories. One sees huge controlling clocks; workmen, identified by numbers, standardized by uniforms and efficiency, doing his work like autmoatons.

There is a girl, one of the working class, who preaches forgotten religion in the era of machine-like efficiency. Masterman, on learning this, instructs his scientist to make him a machine with the face and figure of the girl— the machine to preach his will to the workmen instead.

And what a scene the next one is! The scientist has perfected his invention of making human beings out of machinery. A sort of Robot idea. In his laboratory he evolves the figure of a girl, and as startling electric rays in the form of circles play over it, one sees veins gradually forming, and a human figure emerges. A girl who lives and breaths, walks, talks, dances, but who, however, lacks a soul.

This girl-machine becomes a Frankenstein, destroying her creator. She preaches violence and, with a magnificent sweep, the workingmen revolt and destroy the elaboate machinery. There is fire and ruin and one can almost hear the crumbling of the huge buildings. The underground city is no more, being flooded with water, until, at the end, John Masterman gets on his knees and prays to the God he has forgotten.

Metropolis" is immense. The backgrounds are a riot of imagination. In one allegorical sequence is photographed the erection and destruction of the Tower of Babel. Another sequence shows the catacombs—weird, torurous passageways. And what with the factory scenes and those in the scientist's laboratory and the views of the crowds, Fritz Lang, the director, proves himself a genius.

The story points out the fact that efficiency without soul leads to revolution and destruction. It is a prophetic warning to this age that is living in a world of material achievement. Writers all over Europe are now predicting a general decline —so it isn't to be wondered at that this picture, made in Berlin, carries the same pessimistic trend of thought.

But "Metropolis," as a motion picture, is beyond description. It is colossal. It must be seen.

John Barrymore in "WHEN A MAN LOVES" is a Warner Bros. Pic turiz»tion of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Fabien, good and handsome youth of France, trains for the priesthood; but meets and loves Manon Lescaut, beauteous orphan, whose rascally brother, realizing her worldly value, barters her for gold to Ravoir, rich connoisseur of women. Fabien saves her and carries her off to Paris, where in a sacred love they live happily together. While Fabien is out Manon's brother steals her for Ravoir; changing her farewell note so that she appears faithless. Heart-broken, Fabien flees. Manon escapes from Ravoir, and returns to the deserted lovenest.

CHAPTER IX.—Continued.

For a moment Marie hesitated, then she replied convincingly, "That's a silly thing to do—he told me nothing on earth could drag him back."

Manon moaned tragically at this unexpected news.

"Don't be a silly and cry. He was glad enough to find that you had gone," lied Marie.

In all justice to Marie, it is only right to say that in her ignorance of love she thought she was doing Manon a favor to help separate her from Fabien and sure poverty.

Manon was so crushed and heart-broken that she did not even move as Lescaut came puffing up the stairs. She heard him and understood that he had followed with the intention of taking her back.

A wink of understanding and a smile of glad welcome passed between Lescaut and Marie.

"Come on, dearie—go with the pretty gentleman," she wheedled, eager to get n ixed up in the affair and help Lescaut.

Manon's spirit was crushed but not killed. Looking dully at her brother she said distinctly, "I will not go back!"

"Do you want to sit here and starve while you wait for Des Grieux?" inquired Lescaut impatiently.

"He wouldn't let me," defended Manon loyally.

"You're a little fool—he will never show up here again."

Attracted by voices in the unpaid attic room, the landlady came stalking in. "So, you're back! You're bold ones you and your young man, skipping off without paying your week's rent. I'll take it now." She held out her hand, threateningly.

"I do not have it just now—but you'll get it tomorrow. Please be patient until then," pleaded Manon.

"Patient nothing!" the landlady exploded disgustedly. "And what's more you ain't going to stay here tonight because the room's rented to another party."

Manon closed her eyes in dread and terror. What could she do? Where could she go?

Greatly amused at the little scene, Lescaut interposed, "Here is the rent, old lady." And he airily dropped a gold piece into her palm. Confident, now, that he had his way he pushed Manon roughly toward the door.

As he touched her she pulled away. "I have told you before—I am not going with you!"

"Oh, all right, then! Do you want to sleep in the street?"

"I want you to let me alone," cried Manon desperately.

"Very well, do as you please. I am through!" Lescaut bowed mockingly and went out. He felt that nothing could be gained at this time by insistence, and he knew enough of the world to feel that sooner or later Manon would be forced to do as he dictated. In the meantime he planned to keep a stealthy eye on her movements. It amounted to the same thing as watching one's money bags.

CHAPTER X.

Manon wandered out into the night, more alone than ever. The darkness was bewildering and she had no idea where to go. An arched passageway, seemingly deserted, offered momentary shelter. With pounding heart she sought its seclusion and leaned against the wall, to collect her thoughts.

When her eyes became accustomed to the darkness she recoiled in panic. The pasty face of a hawk eyed apache was leering at her from the opposite wall!

He also was s[illegible] shelter, but glad enough to [illegible] such sweet company thrust upon [illegible].

Manon's knees collapsed and she sank in a terrified heap on the cold stones. Too frightened to move, her horror mounted when the repulsive creature crawled forward and pressed his ghostly face against her shaking arm. Summoning every ounce of strength Manon whirled quickly about on hands and knees and regained her feet just in time to escape two long arms reaching up to pull her down. With a terrified cry and throbbing temples, Manon sought the lighted streets and any safety they might afford.

Almost hysterical with fright she stumbled along, fighting with herself to keep down the sobs. The lights from a cheap cafe seemed to signal a safe resting place and she eagerly sought their brilliance.

A huge, heavy set man with brutal features came along the street and watched Manon with interest. His day's work being over he was in the mood to find diversion with a pretty girl. Manon was the best looking one he had ever seen. Walking close to her, he paused. "Hello, dearie!" he said. "Looking for me?"

A quick glance at the coarse featured brute and Manon was galvanized into action; but before she had taken two steps big rough hands reached out and grabbed her arms.

With a strength born of terror the harassed girl tore herself free and darted down the alleyway, leading to the inside cafe door.

The pleasure seeking laborer knew that she could not escape, and with a satisfied laugh he lumbered along in her wake.

Manon tripped and fell. Before she could get u» a derisive laugh rang in her ears. Half fainting with terror, she was conscious enough to struggle and beat her small fists madly against the brute's face as he carried her through the back door of the dowdy cafe

Although the place was well filled no one gave them more than a casual glance. Such scenes were customary in that den of iniquity where the down-and-outers or those who did not care came to carouse or plot future crimes. Everything but a sense of decency was given free reign.

Kicking and screaming, Manon was carried through the open center room into one of the high walled private stalls that surrounded it.

Fabien could not tell why he loved Manon so deeply and to the exclusion of all else. No matter what happened she was his very life and he could not believe that she had been untrue to their love. After the first revulsion of feeling had passed, following her mysterious departure, he knew that he would have no peace of mind until she was found. So, after leaving their deserted room, Fabien plodded his weary way along the streets, lanes and byways of Paris, searching every face and shadow for his beloved Manon.

After miles of fruitless wandering, the buoyancy left his stride. He needed food, but that want did not compare, with the hunger in his heart and the distress that diffused his soul.

Fabien could have returned to his father and affluence, but his deep love for Manon made him prefer an obscure and vagabond existence to all the advantages of fortune without her. He was sure that when he found her there would be a satisfactory explanation and their continued happiness together would follow.

The necessity for rest, coupled with an exhausting hunger, drew Fabien into a cheap cafe that he thought would suit the flatness of his money pockets. His search for Manon was temporarily abandoned. "She would never come to a place like this," thought Fabien, "a drinking hut frequented by blowsy women and calloused criminals." With a revulsion of feeling at the easy familiarity displayed among the sprawling men and women, he moved through the open center door up to the bar, in an alcove at the end, and ordered a drink of brandy. He swallowed it at a gulp. It was the first strong drink he had ever taken—it burned his throat and made him choke, but it satisfied and promised the desired forgetfulness. He took another.

Fabien had abandoned his search and dulled his senses at the wrong time; because it was into this same cafe that Manon's abductor had carried her only a few moments earlier.

THE CONQUEST OF THE AIR — XVIII — Nicho' [illegible]nsky

In 1837 an Englishman, Cocking, designed a parachute like an umbrella blown inside out. The upper rim was of tin, the sides of cloth, and from it hung a basket for him. He persuaded the famous balloonist Green to fasten the parachute beneath his balloon, the Nassau, and make an ascension.

Green had refused to make the ascent with Cocking, but finally gave in to his pleadings. Green persisted in refusing to free the parachute, but Cocking overcame this difficulty by arranging a contrivance by which he could free himself. At 5,000 feet up Cocking called goodbye and let go.

Freed of the considerable weight of the parachute and Cocking, Green's balloon bounded high into the air, tossing from side to side. It was only with the greatest difficulty that Green and his companion got the big balloon into control again. They landed safely, not knowing Cocking's fate.

Once free of the balloon, Cocking's parachute plunged rapidly to earth, swaying backward and forward. Not far above ground, weakened by the strain of its sudden fall, it went to pieces and the brave man who had staked his life on its safety crashed to earth. He died a few moments later.

NOTED EDITOR GIVES ADDRESS

certain practises of The Toronto Saturday Night, of which Mr. Charlesworth is editor-in-chief. These were mock grievances which were aired with much seriousness by several of the members in turn, in Joseph Wearing, Art Reynolds, Harry Boyle, Jack McKone and Rev. J. D. Paterson.

Mr. Charlesworth, the speaker of the evening, then rose to address the members in a friendly, informal, genial fashion that at once won the liking and interest of his audience. He has the characteristic manner of address of the newspaper writer, the thoughtful vein which seems to color the words with an impression of unspoken narrative running along behind the vocal utterance.

Mr. Charlesworth has a Dominion-wide repute as an essayist and journalist and author of several books. Born in Hamilton in 1872, son of Horatio G. Charlesworth of Port Hope, Ontario, he was educated in the public schools of Toronto, with private tuition in music. For three years he was engaged in work as a chartered accountant and began his journalistic career as a verse writer on Toronto Saturday Night, in April, of 1891. For many years, he had experience as a political writer and musical and dramatic critic on The Toronto Mail and Empire and Toronto Saturday Night, of which he is now editor-in-chief.

Referring jocularly to the mock protest scene staged for his benefit, Mr. Charlesworth said it reminded him forcibly of the similar outbursts contained in his correspondence every morning, and spoke of the many complaints which reach the editor of any periodical, and of the attitude of "coming from Missouri" which is incumbent upon publishers and editors thereof.

"A newspaper man is a queer and contrary type of individual," he went on, speaking of a propensity to always look for a hidden purpose behind any request to delete, or include, bits of news, in the daily round. He aroused a great deal of amusement by recounting the experience of a Globe editor in time past, who listened with a believing ear to a political canard about a number of beautiful women being brought in from Buffalo to Toronto by the Tory party to win away the allegiance of the Liberal leaders. The consequent publication and discovery of the hoax in connection with this tale led to a great deal of confusion on the part of the trusting editor of The Globe, led away for once by a seemingly truthful tale. Again, Mr. Charlesworth told the story of his own discomfiture on one occasion when he entrusted a five dollar bill and his permit to an individual who apparently had come to his rescue in a "dry" moment.

Paper Forty Years Old.

On December 3rd, said Mr. Charlesworth, "Saturday Night" celebrates its fortieth anniversary as a weekly periodical, with its issue numbered as 2,081. Going on to allude to the condition of the daily life in any community which are truthfully reflected in the pages of a newspaper of any type, with especial reference to its advertisements, "which are a collection," the speaker referred to the great changes in living made during the past forty years, in the arrival of the first trolley, the telephone in its use as a household instrument, the motor car, the aeroplane and the radio.

"People don't realize how much they enjoy nowadays. We are happier and more prosperous than we were in former years, a more joyous nation than we were when I was a lad. This assembly is an evidence of our happy condition in these days."

The speaker outlined the rise to its present popular position as a weekly periodical, of The Saturday Night, which was concerned in its early days with local happenings, later stretching out its scope to include many matters of Dominion-wide interest. A reference was made to the changes in conditions, as gleaned from a personal hearing by the speaker of reminiscences of his youth in this neighborhood, by Sir Joseph Flavelle, speaking to Hon. Stanley Bruce, Prime Minister of Australia, at a dinner in Toronto last year, and the semi-savage existence which was a type of the times in that period.

A bit of humor was in the allusion to the verse which was an apt illustration of the speaker's reference to the cheering-up process of a comparison of conditions, then and now:

"On the Nevsky bridge a Russian stood,
Chewing his beard for lack of food.
He said: "It isn't much good as meat,
But a darned sight better than shredded wheat."

Again, referring to the contradiction of speaking of an issue of Saturday Night, which is printed on Thursday, and the fact that papers now speeding to the West are dated "December 10th" for their sale in Winnipeg, Mr. Charlesworth once again broke into rhyme, in a limerick based on Einstein's Theory of Relativity:

"There was a young lady named
Bright,
Whose movements were faster than light.
She went out one day on a relativ way,
And came back the previous night."

A little bit of fun regarding a long-winded Presbyterian minister who spoke with commiseration of the resultant weary condition of his congregation closed a very entertaining discourse, which was greeted by loud applause.

E. A. Peck, M.P., a guest of the evening, rose to move a hearty vote of thanks to the speaker, and also to congratulate the club on the praiseworthy nature of the endeavors carried on by the members.

Girls Given Suits.

Harry Boyle here introduced two little guests of the evening, who represented the group of eighty young girls whose tuition in swimming was looked after by the Kiwanis Club during the past summer. These small ladies, little twelve-year-old Ruby Milburn and thirteen-year-old Ruby Tuck, were presented by Mr. Boyle, as gifts of the club, with a bathing suit apiece, in recognition of their prowess as winners, after only about four months' tuition by Miss C. Littlefield, of the Young Women's Christian Association, of awards made by the Royal Life-Saving Society to those passing the proficiency tests of that organization. Mr. Boyle also spoke in terms of commendation of the time and attention given to this work by Rev. J. D. Paterson, one of the few examiners in Canada of the Royal Life-Saving Society.

Another bit of fun was injected into the programme by the "gift" presented to Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Johnson, the former president of the Riverdale Kiwanis Club, Toronto, by District Governor Cockburn, and the banquet concluded with a telling, entertaining brief speech made by Dr. Whyte of Lindsay, and an appreciation of the help to the community given by the Kiwanis Club, voiced by A. L. Killaly, president of the Rotary Club.

Later, a dance was enjoyed by those desiring to take advantage of the excellent music provided by the Melody Kings' Orchestra, and bridge was played in the grill room, until the midnight hour.

Guests of the club last night included the following: Dr. and Mrs. Whyte, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Moynes, Mrs. H. Nesbitt, Mrs. V. Mark, Mr. and Mrs Clark, the Misses Lorna and Jean McLean and Mrs. B. McLean, Miss Margaret Whyte, and Miss Adams, all of Lindsay; Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Johnson, J. D. Strachan, H. Corbett, District Governor, and Mrs. W. Cockburn, of the Riverdale Club, President Killaly of the Rotary Club, and Mrs. Killaly, Dr. and Mrs. J. M. McCulloch, Miss E. D. Sherritt of London, Ont., Mrs. E. W. Birbridge, B. L. Barns of the Rotary Club, and Mrs. Barns, Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Macdonald, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. J. Giles, E. A. Peck, M.P., M. Sauer of the Rotary Club, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Gillespie, Misses Ellen Eagleson, Jean and Marion McCannan, Isabel McCoffatt, A. G. Coon, Col. J. W. Miller, and F. M. DelaFosse. Fred G. Isaac, of London, England, who arrived here yesterday on his forty-third trip to this country in the interests of his woollen goods firm, just a year to the day when he came last season and was a guest then also of the Kiwanis Club, was another interesting guest of the evening.

DAVIS CUP.

United States Will Challenge France for the Trophy.

NEW YORK, November 26 (United Press). — The United States will challenge for the Davis Cup, now held by France, in the American zone next year.

The decision, made last night by the Davis Cup Committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, will mark the first step toward regaining he international trophy for this country. If it meets the approval of the executive committee, the 1928 challenge will be forwarded to France before January 31, when entries close under the new regulations.

Holland has the lowest death rate—9.8 per thousand—in Europe, with Norway second and England and Wales third. France, with 17.5 per thousand, has the highest.

HEART WAS SO WEAK Had to Stay in Bed

Mrs. F. Wilson, Lethbridge, Alta., writes:—"My heart was very weak, and I had to stay in bed for five weeks with it.

"My aunt advised me to take as she had taken them with good results after a very bad operation.

"I took them and spoke them after a doctor came to examine me for life insurance and he said there was nothing wrong with my heart."

THE NEGRO'S WANT.

Do you know the negro spiritual "Deep River." If so, you will agree it has a heart-gripping melody and that it "gets you" every time. If you don't know it, the Male Voice Choir will interpret its rhythmic cadences until your wants become like the negro's.
Hear this southern gem at the Benefit Concert Friday night. Tickets 50 cents. Proceeds in aid of several local institutions. 1d-125-3635

"HELL."

In order to get a correct understanding of any matter, we must have an honest desire to know the truth, and a willingness to accept the truth. The word "hell" has been grossly misinterpreted for centuries. Ecclesiasticism is to blame mainly for this, for preachers have instilled into the minds of multitudes of young and old the idea, that the everlasting punishment that awaits the finally impenitent is everlasting torment. This is entirely contrary to what the Bible teaches. The English word, used to translate "sheol" and "hades" is "hell", which has no reference to torment.
The Scriptures says the wicked shall be returned into hell (the grave or death condition). After having gone down to hell (the grave) and been resurrected, and given the most favorable opportunity to turn from sin and receive eternal life, if still wilfully impenitent, they shall be returned into the death condition, in plain words, they shall die, and never have a second chance, by being again resurrected. The wages of sin is death, Rom. 6:23. It is not life in torment nor life in any condition. All mankind are redeemed from the first death. As through Adam all die so through Christ (the second Adams) all shall live. Throughout the Scripture the first death is called a sleep. No such symbol is used in regard to the second death. The symbol used indicates total destruction.

CALIFORNIA'S GOLD.

Many Songs and the Mason-Dixie Line have all melted it seems, before the Sun in the orange groves of California. And there's a reason. The praise is going to the worthy. If there are cloudy days in California one never hears of them, and it is reasonable to suppose that one should if there were. A million people each winter follow the steps of the conquistader of whom, perhaps, they have never heard. They search for gold—the gold of the beach, of the groves, of the sunset over warm Pacific waters. And there is a mine there for you; a real mine of health and wealth of sport and recreation activities for you to exploit at will.
Any Canadian Pacific agent will gladly supply information regarding fare, routes, etc., upon request.

OBITUARY

MISS LYDIA MERCIER

Miss Lydia Mercier died yesterday afternoon after an illness of several weeks' duration. Miss Mercier, who was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Mercier, is survived by two sisters, Mrs. C. Brisbois, 308 Burnham Street, and Miss Agnes Mercier of Pasadena, Cal., and two brothers, Albert of Pasadena and Louis of Detroit; two nephews, Nelson A. Mercier of Elyria, Ohio, and J. L. Mercier of Ottawa.
The late Miss Mercier had lived on Burnham Street practically all her life. She was known as a kindly neighbor, a devout church woman, and an energetic worker for all charitable purposes.
The funeral mass will be sung in the Church of the Immaculate Conception at 9 o'clock on Monday morning. Interment will be in St. Peter's Cemetery.

CARMEL LEGENDRE.

The funeral of the late Carmel Legendre of Detroit, formerly of Peterborough, was held at nine o'clock yesterday morning from the Church of the Sacred Heart to St. Peter's Cemetery, where interment was made. Services were conducted by Rev. J. J. O'Brien, and Rev. J. V. McAuley, of Ennismore spoke in feeling terms of the tragic loss by death within six months of two sons of the bereaved and widowed mother. He also alluded to the Christian qualities of the young man and the host of friends he had made for himself while a member of this community.
Pall-bearers were Douglas McDonald, Clare McDonald, Raymond Paquette, Joseph Paquette, A. Rose and Joseph Ryan, of Detroit.

IN MEMORIAM.

CROWE.—In loving memory of Olive Reid, beloved wife of Melville Crowe, who died November 25, 1926, aged 26 years.
"One year has passed and gone
Since one we loved so well
Was taken from our home on earth,
With Jesus Christ to dwell.
But it's hard to do without you,
In a home with so much care,
With our own three little children,
For they miss you everywhere.
Yes, we miss you at our table,
When we see that vacant chair,
For you helped us bear our troubles
Always helped our sorrows share."

Owing to the increase in our business, we found it necessary to build an addition to our factory and install therein a ten-ton hoist, also a granite surfacing machine that prepares the stone for the polishing mill. We will also add a sand blast machine. These additions to our plant will give us one of the best equipped Monumental manufacturing shops in Ontario, and will enable us to handle, with a great saving of time and labor, all orders entrusted to us at prices that defy competition.

ANNIVERSARY OF CATHEDRAL IS CELEBRATED

Bishop O'Brien Officiates and Preaches at Pontificial High Mass.

URGES THANKSGIVING.

Tells People Not To Be Content With Past Year, But Strive To do Better.

Yesterday at St. Peter's Cathedral marked the fourth anniversary of the re-dedication of the church, and was also observed as the ninety-first anniversary of its foundation, which took place in the year 1836, the exact date being unknown. The anniversary coinciding with the first Sunday of Advent, the commencement of the church's canonical year, was regarded by His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, speaking at the conclusion of the Pontifical High Mass solemnized by him at half-past ten o'clock yesterday morning at the Cathedral, as an occasion to point out to his congregation the many reasons for giving thanks to Almighty God for the graces and blessings received during the past year.

"Let us not be contented with ourselves and satisfied to go through year after year in the same way as the previous twelvemonth. Let us make advances in piety and virtue, and resolve, as far as lies in our power, to avail ourselves of the opportunities afforded by the church for sanctification.

"The knowledge of the Real Presence of Christ in the Blessed Sacrament is seizing more and more upon people," continued the Bishop, alluding to the increases in reception of Communion during the past twelvemonth. "More and more are people realizing the opportunities afforded them for a real plenitude of graces, in the many advantages provided by Holy Church, which is constantly blessing and helping, pleading, cajoling, aye, even threatening us, in an effort to make us realize the need of more attention to the question of the soul's salvation."

Speaking of the three great cycles into which the Church's year is divided, the Bishop referred to them as Christmas, the feast for which preparation is made in Advent, Easter, with its preparatory season in Lent, and Pentecost, with a grand Novena preceding it.

To develop more and more that sweet familiarity with God which is possible through the uplifting of the soul in prayer and communion with Him ,to be at all times, not self-righteous, but faithful, true, loyal, and enthusiastic sons of God, was the ideal of the Catholic. The Bishop concluded with a reference to a little story contained in the life of the Cure d'Ars, canonized recently as a saint. The priestly Bishop was wont to note the daily attendance in his church of an old man who remained kneeling at the sanctuary rails during an hour each day. He asked the man, on one occasion, just what prayers he recited during this hourly vigil. "I do not know enough prayers to last for an hour," answered the visitor. "So I just look at Him and He looks at me."

Speaking at the early morning masses, Rev. P. Costello remarked in severe terms on the practise, growing among Catholics, as well as other citizens, of taking part in social entertainments where drinking was indulged in, by women as well as men, and asked that an effort be made in Advent to abstain from all such social affairs.

PTOMAINE POISON CAUSE OF DEATHS

Analyst Reports After Autopsy On Two Girls Who Died at Vineland.

TORONTO, Nov. 28.— (Canadian Press.)—Ptomaine poisoning as a result of eating tainted food, caused the deaths of two daughters of Jacob Fretz, farmer, of Vineland, Ont., it was stated by Prof. W. L. Robinson, analyst, after he concluded an autopsy. The deaths had been investigated for some weeks.

Assassin Attempts Life of Vienna Mayor

VIENNA, Austria, November 28 (Associated Press). — A twenty-three-year-old youth made an attempt against the life of Karl Seitz, Mayor of Vienna, on Saturday. Several shots were fired at the Mayor, but all of them missed their mark ,and the youth, whose name is Strebinger, was arrested. He declared he was not a Socialist, but had been without employment, and planned to kill Seitz, who in addition to being Mayor, is a former president of the Austrian National Assembly and one of the signatories of the 1919 peace treaty.

Mayor Seitz, who is a Socialist, took active measures in suppressing the riots in Vienna last July.

The attempt at his assassination bears some resemblance to the attack made by a rail worker in June, 1924, on the life of Chancellor Seipel. The Chancellor was wounded, but recovered.

STUDENTS FINED $20 FOR HAZING

Victim of O. A. C. Outbreak Asks Magistrate To Be Lenient.

SIX PLEAD GUILTY.

GUELPH, Ont., Nov. 28. —(Canadian Press.)—Six students of the Ontario Agricultural College, who were summoned for assault in hazing Edward Beddoes , a fellow student, pleaded guilty to the charge in police court to-day and Magistrate Watt fined them each twenty dollars and costs, at the same time telling them that had they been alone involved, and not the larger part of the class, he would have sent them to jail. Beddoes, their victim, pleaded for leniency for his fellow students, stating he had nothing to do with the laying of the charges. The six students fined were A. Watt, H. Watt, W. Allan, A. Ross, T. Carr and J. Q. Part.

BAZAAR AT SCHOOL IS WELL PATRONIZED

King George Home and School Association Holds Sale.

The King George Home and School Association of which Mrs. Ada Craig is president, held a very successful bazaar and sale of home-made cooking on Friday, Nov. 25th, afternoon and evening, in the basement of the King George school. The long tables were very tastefully decorated. The fruit and candy tables were in charge of Mrs. Pammett, and Mrs. Brady. Mrs. Craig and Mrs. Scott were supervisors of the fancy goods table. The tea room was in charge of Mrs. V. Hamilton, with Mrs. Ebbs and Mrs. Conroy as assistants. The table decorations were roses and marigolds. Mrs. Wand was convenor of the program, which included vocal solos by Mrs. L. Ingram and Miss Johnston. Piano selections, Miss E. Webber, Miss H. Storey, Miss B. Flynn and Miss P. Smith. Old time songs, with Mrs. Bugg and Mrs. Rathbone in costume were also very much enjoyed. Mr. Agnew rendered a vocal solo, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Wand.

TITLE CONTENDERS MEET IN TORONTO

Belanger and Genaro Both In Good Shape For To-night's Bout.

TORONTO, Nov. 28.— (Canadian Press.)—Whether or not a Canadian fighter will step up into the ranks of world title contenders will be determined to-night when French Belanger, Toronto, fights Frankie Genaro for the right to meet Ernie Jarvis, European champion, in a bout for the world's flyweight championship. The fight is under the auspices of the National Boxing Association.

Both boys were at championship weight last night and will be in the best of condition. It is expected that the tussle will bring out the largest crowd that has ever witnessed a boxing match in this city.

LARGE GRAIN ENTRY LISTED AT STOCK SHOW

5,000 Samples of Grains Exhibited at Chicago Live Stock Exposition.

RECORD ATTENDANCE.

Canada's Entry Considered Well Up For Honors in Judging Contest.

CHICAGO, Nov. 28. — Canadian Press. — Stock raisers and grain growers from all parts of the United States and five provinces of Canada Saturday placed on exhibit 11,500 head of pure bred farm animals and more than 5000 samples of hay and grains, as Chicago's greatest international livestock exposition got under way.

The $1,000,000 worth of North American cattle, horses sheep and swine, were to compete for $100 000 worth of prizes. Breeder associations are offering scores of awards in addition to the cash. The winners will be determined next week in judging which begins Monday.

Thousands preferred the opening day to visit the exhibits which cover more than 20 acres and represent 42 states and five provinces.

Among the stock men present are some who attended the first exposition held in 1900.

Good Judging Team.

CHICAGO Ill., Nov. 28. — With the Collegiate livestock and grain judging contest, a feature of the international livestock exposition moving towards completion, Canada's entry in the event was conceded a good chance for carrying off the honors.

The Dominion entry is the Ontario Agricultural College team which won first honors at the Royal Livestock Exposition held recently in Toronto.

The team is composed of H. C. Master, Waterloo Co., Ontario best swine judge at the Toronto Exposition; Q. A. McCagne, York County, Ont., high man at Toronto in the horse judging; W. P. Watson, Wentworth Co., Ont., who brought honours to his team in the judging of dairy cattle in the Toronto contest; J. A. Berry, Guelph, Ont., and F. A. Lashley, Lanark County, Ont.

Take Honors.

CHICAGO November 28. — The Fort Riley Cavalry School, won a large share of honors at the concluding performance of the Chicago horse show last night.

In the officers' jumping class, Nigrawwon won first. For hunters or jumpers over the Olympic course, Jack Snipe placed second, Dick Waring third, and Miss America fourth. All are from Fort Riley.

Irene Castle, owned by Hugh B. Wick of Cleveland, won first in the class for ponies under saddle.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., November 28 (Canadian Press). — Forcing an entrance through the rear door, thieves broke into the butcher store of Walter Thomis here early yesterday and escaped with $500 in cash. Later in the day two men were arrested in the railroad yards in connection with the case. They are being held on charges of vagrancy.

Same Old Fog Ties Up London

LONDON, November 28.—Two firemen were injured, many traffic collisions occurred, and pedestrians groped their way about in another dense fog that settled over London.

The mist was so dense it even penetrated to the subways.

The two firemen were injured when two fire engines collided on their way to a fire.

All traffic was forced to slow down to a walk and suburban trains were running hours behind their schedules. The fog was so heavy it was impossible in many sections of the city to see across the street.

Channel shipping also suffered from the fog. Several collisions were reported among them being one between the American steamer Point View and the French vessel Flamand off East Goodwins. The Point View put in at Dover with a damaged hull.

Germany's Budget For 1928 Will Exceed That of 1927 By 367 Million Reichsmarks

BERLIN, Nov. 28 (Canadian Press)—Germany's budget for 1928 will exceed that of the current year by only 367 million reichsmarks and will not incur a nantional deficity, despite the additional burden next year of approximately 400,000,000 reichsmarks under the Dawes plan's operation, Financial Minister Dr Koehler told the Wolff Telegraph Agency.

Dr. Koehler, who described the new budget as embracing "the limit of possible administrative economies," declared that not only will Germany avoid a deficit but has provided no authorization for a loan in 1928. In addition, he said, loans floated during 1926 and 1927 will be reduced through special amortization next year.

"The total budget of 1928 balances now with 9,502,000,000 as compared with 9,135,000,000 in 1927," Dr. Koehler continued. "Extraordinary expenditures of 146,000,000 are included in the above total and have been fully covered without recourse to any loans. Ordinary expenditures balance with a gross total of 9,356,000,000 compared with 8,659,000,000 for 1927, an increase of 697,000000. Net expenditures after deducting apportionments to the federal states amounting to 3218,000,000, reach 6,138,000,000 for 1928 as compared with 5,766,000000 for 1927. This means an increase of only 372 000,000 in spite of the aforementioned increase of expenditures on account of reparation payments."

GEORGE STREET CONGREGATION HOLDS ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

Rev. W. B. Caswell, of Toronto, Is Special Preacher For Occasion.

FITTING SERMONS.

Speaker Delivers Inspiring Message on Cross-Bearing at Evening Serice.

An earnest exhortation to each of his hearers to take up his cross and bear it, rather than drop it for somebody else or drag it grumblingly, was delivered by the Rev. W. P. Caswell, B.A., of Eglinton Avenue United Church, Toronto, speaking last night in George Street United Church. Mr. Caswell was the special preacher for the church anniversary services held yesterday.

The text chosen by the speaker last night was the twenty-third verse of the ninth chapter of St. Luke's Gospel: "And He said to them all, If any man will come after Me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow Me." From this text, he said, many lessons could be taught, but he would confine himself to the phrase, "Take up his cross daily."

In reading this passage some time ago said Mr. Caswell, he had been struck by the word "daily." He had known that there were dark days in all lives and that every heart has its own sorrow, but that there should be some cross daily seemed hard. Every day, however, there is some problem, some temptation, or some cross in every life. The reason Jesus was able to carry His cross on the day of Crucifixion was that He had carried one every day and knew how to pick it up.

Carry It Daily.

"The longer we live," said Mr. Caswell, "the more we are satisfied that no one understood life quite so much as Jesus did when He said, 'Take it up daily.' He knew life and understood how day by day, no matter what our profession or age, we have our troubles. Even the days of boyhood were not days of constant joy; some of the hardest battles of life were fought then."

That it is generally the man who is least conscious of faith that is generally making a mess of things, while the man who walks the heights is most conscious of sin, was pointed out by the speaker. Reading the lives of the great saints shows that they considered themselves to be poor miserable sinners.

If people understood a little more they would love a little more, continued the speaker. One of the hardest crosses the Master carried was that His own people did not understand Him. When they came and called Him out as he was preaching, expressing disapproval, He asked, "Who is My mother, or My brother? Whosoever shall do the will of God, the same is my brother, and my sister, and mother." His brother later became the head of the church.

Call on the Pastor.

Mr. Caswell urged the members of the congregation not to worry if the pastor didn't call. He might be at the hospital or some place else helping other people. It would better to go to call on him in church on Sunday.

It is amazing, continued the speaker, how some people go about in face of the infirmities of life. He recalled that when he was a recruiting officer during the war a man asked to enlist said he was willing but that he was unfit He had varicose veins, yet he earned his living as a street car conductor because he had to.

"You can drop your cross in somebody else's path," he continued, "or you can drag it along, whining and miserable. Christ's message is to take it up, shoulder it, and own it. Jesus liked to meet a man who would pick up his cross. Of the two men who prayed in the temple it was the man who accepted his sins, not the man who tried to deceive God and himself,

Postponement Made In Commuter's Ruling

SARNIA, Ont., Nov. 28 (Canadian Press).—Intimation that the scheduled enforcement of the ruling barring alien born commuters from continuing to work at Port Huron on December 1, would be postponed until a later date, was received at the Chamber of Commerce yesterday. Officials of the local organization had been investigating in an effort to learn the probable result if the ruling was enforced. They found that practically all the Canadian-born residents of Sarnia employed at Port Huron had already secured the required passports and the majority of the British-born had also been taken care of under the quota regulation.

ROBERT FORKE DENIES CHARGES

That Restrictions Were Being Placed Upon British Immigration.

ONE QUALIFICATION.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Nov. 28. — (Canadian Press).—Denial was given here Saturday to charges that restrictions were being placed upon British immigration, in an address by Hon. Robert Forke, Minister of Immigration, before the Canadian Club.

The only qualification of British entry into this country was that the prospective settler met the full requirement of the Canadian immigration laws. When the Government was paying the passage of assisted immigrants, it claimed the right to say whether the applicant was worth bringing into the country or not.

Mr. Forke spoke highly of the immigrants from the Scandinavian countries and said that immigration from them was as unrestricted as in the case of Britain.

With regard to the people from Southern and Eastern Europe, he said that the railways had undertaken to bring in only as many of these men as they could guarantee to find work for, and had fallen down in this undertaking, with resultant unemployment and hardship to the immigrants. At the same time he claimed that this class of immigrant would make just as good a Canadian, in the second generation, as any other.

OFFICIAL LAYS WRECK BLAME ON DESPATCHER

Railway Men Are Reticent Regarding Fatal Collision on C.P.R.

LIST COMPILED.

Most of Those Injured Immigrants On Way To New Homes in Canada.

TORONTO, Nov. 28 (Canadian Press).—With railway officials reticent as to names until accurate data can be secured from the injured now lying in the Western Hospital here, the casualty list resulting from the serious C.P.R. collision at Dockrill yesterday remains unchanged. Four dead and three seriously injured in hospital at Smith's Falls and sixteen in hospital here comprise the list as available at present. This does not include, however, those suffering minor injuries which are not recorded or have not been discovered as yet.

At the office of the Divisional Superintendent here today, announcement was made that every effort is being made to obtain a complete list of those injured and the nature of injuries which they are suffering. An interpreter was sent to the hospital with instruction to procure the correct names of those suffering injuries.

A prominent railway official here described the collision as a "terrible thing," but he declined to make any comment officially until the facts are are available. He expressed the opinion, however, that the fault for the wreck rested with a despatcher in this division.

Two Bodies Found

KINGSTON, Nov. 28 (Canadian Press).—The unidentified body of a man, believed to be a foreigner, and parts of what is presumed to be a woman's body were discovered by workers clearing away the wreckage of the Canadian Pacific flier and freight train which collided head on at Dockrill yesterday. The discoveries, it is feared, will bring the death toll to six persons.

The inquest which opened today at Enterprise, was adjourned after four bodies, previously taken to Enterprise, had been viewed.

List of Injured Compiled

TORONTO, Nov. 28 (Canadian Press). The most critically hurt of the injured in the Western Hospital, is 15-lear-old Y. Mortozymski, Polish, who is suffering from head injuries. He has relatives at Oshawa, Ontario. The others are: Nathan Goldberg, London, Ont., lacerated scalp; Marie Malchinsky, Oshawa, scalp wounds; Perla Wardman, travelling from Poland to Chicago, minor injuries; Chaia Warman, Poland to Kitchener, Ont., minor injuries; Aile Roseman, 35, Finland; Helena Gryshiemier, going to Hamilton, minor injuries; Carolina Butyon, going to Kitchener; F. Mendelson, 11, burns on arm; Uta Topp, 19, Toronto, head and arm injuries; Mrs. Elizabeth McMara, Sandwich, Ont., cuts an hand and knee; Slumber Workman, 20, head abrasions; M. Proso, 24, scalp injuries; Harold Hanson, 21, Guelph, Ontario, hand injuries; Joseph Nutel, 21, Montreal, laceration of forehead and hand injuries; Moscha Woxtman, Chicago, lacerations on body; Mrs. Veronika Pilipowitz.

Injured Tell of Wreck.

Sixteen passengers of the Canadian Pacific flyer which met disaster near Smith's Falls yesterday, in a head-on collision with a freight train, lie in the Western Hospital here, two of them with very serious injuries.

Here's a Chance to Prove Those Doubts Without Cost

Out of Town Readers Are Invited to Send in Questions—All Will be Answered Promptly Through The Examiner.

Does your husband, wife or sweetheart love you? Should you sell that vacant lot or build a new house? Is your health bad? Should you make a change of work or are you uncertain whom to marry? Then write to Richards, America's greatest magician, in care of The Examiner to-day. Richards brings his mammoth new show of wonders, thrills, girls, music, laughs and mystery to the Grand Theatre, for three days, starting Thursday.

RICHARDS

All you have to do is write your question briefly and clearly, sign your full name and address and mail it to Richards, America's Great Magician, in care of The Examiner, and then watch for your answer.

Richards does not claim to be a "mindreader," but a scientist and psychologist, and derives all his answers through modern scientific methods, which he asserts is far more accurate than the old form of clairvoyancy.

Richards brings a very large show to the Grand, as he carries a big company of artists, two carloads of elaborate scenic effects and especial orchestra, the entire three-hour production being in three parts and nineteen scenes.

Many People Hurt Near Smith's Falls

Freight Train and Express Crash at Dockerill Station — Fire Follows Collision, Breaking Out in Several Cars at the Same Time.

ONLY ONE OF DEAD YET IDENTIFIED OTHERS BELIEVED TO BE FOREIGNERS

TORONTO, Nov. 28 (Canadian Press).—A special despatch today says that six were killed in the train weck at Dockrill, of whom only William Burnett of Smith's Falls has been identified. The five others are indicated as "probably foreigners." The Canadian Pacific Railways official statement says that four were killed.

Thirty-one were injured when a Canadian Pacific freight train was side-swiped by a Chicago passenger train at Dockrill Station, 56 miles west of Smith's Falls, Ont., at 2.15 p.m. yesterday afternoon.

The tragedy was the worst that has ever occurred in railway annals in this vicinity. When the two engines struck together they reared up like horses and then rolled down the seven-foot embankment. Four coaches of the passenger train were carried with them, and, to add to the horror, fire set in. There is little doubt but that some of the passengers have perished in the flames.

The wreck is believed to have been due to the failure of the freight train to take the switch at Lens, as it is supposed to do in order to allow the Chicago Flier to pass. The freight failed to take the Lens switch, but ran along to Dockrill. There it again over-ran the switch, due to the weight of the train it was pulling. In this crisis the engineer tried to save the situation. He uncoupled all but three cars, and with this light load ran up the track to flag the on-coming passenger express. His intention was apparently to plant warning torpedoes along the track. The plan failed because of a sharp curve which occurs just beyond the Dockrill switch. With the vision of both engineers blocked by this curve, the engines met upon it and crashed head-on.

The impact was tremendous. Some idea of the enormous momentum which the passenger train carried can be gathered from the fact that it had travelled from Wilkinson, the last point at which it had reported, to Roblinville, a distance of 17 miles, in 16 minutes.

Significant light on the disaster was thrown by train officials who were amongst the survivors. It was explained that the engineer of the freight was running his train "in his own time," which is to say by his own watch, and that no despatchers were responsible for it.

Michael Hinch of Enterprise was an eye-witness of the occurrence. He saw the two engines crash, and his description is that they "reared up like horses," and then the wreckage of them which remained rolled down the embankment. The freight engine was practically demolished.

The scene following the wreck was one of unspeakable carnage. One woman, who was a victim was practically cut in two. Other passengers were unconscious with arms and legs severed. Still others who were less seriously hurt were writhing in the agony of the pain of their injuries.

The outbreak of fire was but the next chapter in the tragic occurrence. Despite efforts that were made to fight it, because it was known that bodies were imprisoned, it broke out in the mail car, the express car, the colonist car, and one coach. Railway officials at this point expressed no doubt but that lives had perished in the flames, but how many cannot be told until the wreckage is cleared away.

Aid was not long in arriving upon the scene. The flier had been travelling in two sections, and the second section had been remaining at Wilkinson. Word was immediately sent back, and the second engine with two coaches and a train crew came to the scene of the disaster.

Meanwhile word spread rapidly through the district. Dr. Horton, of Enterprise, was immediately on the scene, rendering first aid to the injured, and the local undertaker was also early on the scene caring for the bodies of the dead. During the afternoon parties came out from Napanee, Belleville and Trenton to render assistance.

The passenger train consisted of some twelve coaches and only four were left on the rails.

An inquest into the fatality is be-

Lady Colonel Dies At 116—Fought at 77

BAYANO, Cuba, Nov. 28 (United Press).—Col. Juana Arias Verdecia, only woman to attain such high military rank in the long fight for independence from Spain, is dead at 116 years of age. Col. Verdecia joined the cause of revolution at comparatively early age of 77 and with her husband fought for ten years until independence was won.

FIRE DAMAGES APARTMENTS

Theobald Building on Water Street, Scene of Stubborn Blaze.

ON SUNDAY MORNING.

Fire broke out in the Theobald Apartments, 709 Water Street, yesterday morning and for a time it was feared the whole building would be a loss. Starting in the cellar near the furnace the flames rapidly spread throughout the whole basement and up one of the partitions to the second storey, where they ran along the floor for several feet.

The fire had gotten a considerable start before it was noticed by one of the tenants who went to throw some garbage down the chute which leads from the halls to the basement. As he opened the door the flames struck him in the face and the smoke poured forth into the corridors. An alarm was immediately sent in and many of the tenants were gotten out of their beds. In a very few moments the apartment was filled with a very thick smoke and people had difficulty in finding their way out to the street.

Before the firemen arrived a line of garden hose was called into use. The flames had such a start Fire Chief Gimblett had to lay two lines of water hose and a chemical one.

If the fire had started earlier in the day nothing would have saved the whole building and the lives of many who live there. The piles of paper in the cellar helped the flames to spread very rapidly.

Four alarms in all were sent in to the fire hall. The first one went in at 10.45, but the person giving the alarm hung up before she had told the street where the fire was. Before the fire department could find out from "information" the number of the phone that put in the call, a second alarm was rung in. Two more followed immediately after.

The two apartments at the rear of the building on the ground floor were badly damaged by smoke and water.

The damage is estimated at $500 and Fire Chief Gimblett is inquiring into the cause of the fire. Mr. Theobald at the time of the fire was away hunting and his young son was locking after the furnace.

It was only through a great effort on the part of the local fire department that the flames were confined to the cellar and one partition.

LADIES HOLD BAZAAR

Members of Cheerful Workers' Bible Class Have Successful Sale.

The Annual bazaar of the Cheerful Workers' Bible Class of St. James' United Church was held on Friday and Saturday in the store at 178 Simcoe street, under supervision of the president, Mrs. H. RELIEF RUSHED TO VICTIMS OF ALGIERS FLOOD Aeroplane Squadrons Ordered To Carry Food To Marooned Refugees.

MANY DROWNED.

Heavy Property Damage in the Area Between Orleansville and Perregaux.

ALGIERS, November 28 (Associated Press). — Hundreds of persons are reported to have drowned in a widespread flood that swept away houses and caused big buildings to collapse in a hundred mile area, just east of Oran.

Rain fell in torrents for 40 hours, deluging an area 50 miles wide from Orleansville to Perregaux and Northward to the Mediterranean Sea. Thirty-seven bodies have already been recovered. While all those known to have drowned were natives, it is feared many foreigners also lost their lives as the foreign quarters of the cities in the path of the flood were badly hit.

The worst damage was at Mostaganem, whore the City Hall collapsed. Eight bridges in the vicinity are said to have been carried away and the homes, barns, and live stock of farmers were destroyed.

Rescue crews and troops have been despatched to the flooded area, but as all railroads and other means of communication are wiped out, little can be done at present. Heavy storms are reported elsewhere as far as Tunis, where highways were obliterated.

At Perregaux a dam one-third of a mile long broke under the sudden strain of the rushing waters and released millions of tons of water. The populations of the city had three hours' warning of the impending break, and it is believed every one escaped to the hills. Passengers on an Oran-Algiers train that has been marooned near Perregaux have sent a messenger in with word that they are without food.

Aeroplane squadrons have been ordered to carry food to the marooned refugees and survey the stricken district, much of which cannot be reached by land. It is estimated that 100 perished at Mostaganem, where the whole town is under water.

Fifty houses fell in ruins at Perregaux, while in a number of other towns the casualties will probably run into the hundreds.

Accurate estimates are difficult, as most places are cut off from communication and many of the dead have been carried a considerable distance from their homes.

POPE APPROVES OF JOINT DRIVES

Catholics and Protestants Are Urged To Work Together For Charity.

GIVES BISHOP BOOK.

ROME, November 28 (United Press). — "Do not worry about Catholics joining Protestants in charitable enterprises; it's a wonderful thing," the Pope told Bishop Joseph Schrembs of Cleveland.

The Pope received the Bishop in audience yesterday, when Bishop Schrembs reported on the success of Cleveland's associated charities drive. They talked for an hour.

"You are able to work with the assurance that a joint charities drive is fully in accord with the principles of the church," the Pope told Bishop Schrembs. "We ordered money to be sent to Russia, where the Near East Relief distributed it to all needy people without regard to creed.

"I am glad to hear that Catholics are joining in such charitable endeavors."

The Pope presented the Bishop with his own copy of a book written by a Lutheran pastor, recounting the history of the Sisters of Charity in Germany. In the book the Pope wrote in his own handwriting, "Venerable Brother Schrembs, as a token of our special benevolence, with an apostolic blessing."

Firemen Debate; Fire Burns Barns

BLOOMFIELD, Conn., Nov. 28.—(United Press).—While firemen of this village were holding a meeting in the town hall an alarm was sounded for a fire at the home of Carl D. Mexcur. Part of Mexcur's property is located outside the fire district and the firemen wondered whether they should respond. After a debate they decided to go to the scene but by the time they arrived, several barns on the Mexcur estate had been destroyed at a loss of $7,000.

Ship Workers Strike Following Cutting Off of Food Supplies.

CANTON, China, November 28. — (Associated Press).—A serious riot was staged in the native quarter of Canton yesterday morning by striking anti-British ship workers following the cutting off of food supplies by Government authorities. Several bombs were thrown by the rioters and twenty or more fires were started. Numerous persons were injured before the strikers were curbed by wholesale arrests and confinement by the military guard.

A heavy Kwantung troop movement west of Samshui, which is about 40 miles from Canton, is under way, seeking to repulse advancing the Kwangsi forces who are attempting to re-establish the authority of the former Canton dictator-general, Li Chai-Sum. General Li Chai-Sum was ousted from Canton on November 17 by Kwantung troops under General Chang Fakwei, a Hankow militarist.

Li Chai-Sum, who is now at Shanghai attending a conference of the Kuomintang, has accused General Wang Ching-Wei of treachery by arranging his (Li Chai-Sum's) visit to Shanghai, thereby creating an opportunity for Gen. Chang Fakwei to gain control of Canton.

Would Stop Minors Buying Strong Drink

HAVANA, Nov. 26.—(United Press).—A presidential decree forbidding miners to buy alchoholic drinks is to be asked by the National Board of Health, it was announced Saturday.

It is claimed that parents, by sending their children for beverages, encourage them to drink.

HOW TO BANISH PILES

Harmless Internal Remedy That's Guaranteed—No Cutting—No Messy Salves

If you think that the surgeon's knife is the only method of escape from the misery of piles, it's because you haven't heard of the new treatment known as Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID.

The Doctor's treatment is internal. By experimenting, he discovered the cause of piles and then went further and compounded a remedy that would remove the cause.

Every pile sufferer should benefit by his discovery and so that there will be no doubting or delay, Bond's Drug Store, McDermid & Jury, McDermid Drug Co., and all good druggists are authorized to sell HEM-ROID with guarantee that it will do as stated or money back.

On that honorable basis every pile sufferer should try Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID without delay.

SUBMARINE SAFE.

MARSEILLES November 28. — A French submarine which flashed distress signals last night when trouble developed in her rudder, midway between Barcelona and Majorca island, is safe according to reports received here yesterday.

The submarine is in tow of a cable layer and is headed for Palma where naval tugs have been ordered to pick her up.

Articles made from stone, bone and ivory, including a beautifully carved little figure of a polar bear, have been dug up on Mill Island, in the Hudson Strait. The carving is believed to have been done by Eskimos about a thousand years ago.

WAX 'GODIVAS' SHOWN AT BALL

Thousands of Revellers Disappointed at Chicago Event.

EXPECTED REAL THING.

CHICAGO, November 28 (Canadian Press). — Two Godivas, one veal, the other wax, brought the annual Arts Ball to an anti-climatic close at half-past one on Saturday morning. Three thousand revellers, who had come to see how life is to be lived in 2,000 A.D., and who had been told in publicity prose for a fortnight that Lady Godiva would be recreated in her original artistic undrape, met disappointment.

An hour before the Godiva business, which was down on the programme of "Fashions of 2,000 A.D." Committee, which had been voluble during the past week discoursing on the artistic daring of the Coventry enterprise, insisted that Miss Rosalind Hightower, Detroit artist, positively would appear unclothed just like Lady Godiva did when she played Paul Revere long before Revere did, but when the curtains were parted the guests, massed in front of the brightly lighted stage, saw only a figure in wax. It was Miss Hightower's figure, made by a Chicago artist, but with its symmetry of line; it was wax none the less. Then the curtains dropped for a few seconds. When they were parted, the wax figure had disappeared. In its place stood Miss Hightower, clad in gossamer material and posed so nearly like the paraffin statue that many did not know the difference.

During the original Lady Godiva ride, through the streets of Coventry, England, about 1040 A.D., the populace was supposed to keep its doors and windows closed, so that no one might spy upon the lady in her unconventional equestrian excursion. One man, however, a tailor named Tom, took a peep and went blind, thus giving the English vocabulary the expression, "Peeping Tom." Not an eye was lost at the Arts Ball.

OLD MASTERS

O go and sit with her and be o'ershaded
Under the languid downfall of her hair:
She wears a coronal of flowers faded
Upon her forehead, and a face of care;
There is enough of withered everywhere
To make her bower—and enough of gloom;
There is enough of sadness to invite,
If only for the rose that died, whose doom
Is Beauty's—she that with the living bloom
Of conscious cheeks most beautifies the light:
There is enough of sorrowing, and quite Enough of bitter fruits the earth doth bear—
Enough of chilly droppings for her bowl;
Enough of fear and shadowy despair,
To frame her cloudy prison for the soul,

UNCONSCIOUS 120 HOURS.

WINNIPEG, Man., November 28.—Canadian Press. — Thomas J. Reid, Canadian National Railways Engineer, who was njured last Monday in the local yards, has been unconscious for 120 hours and the doctors stated on Saturday that there was slight chance for his recovery.

Many Grateful for its swift Relief

From all parts of Canada and beyond, come voluntary expressions of gratitude from people benefitted by Buckley's Mixture.

One woman writes: "I would pronounce it worth its weight in gold".

Another says: "It is the best thing I have ever taken for Bronchitis".

This from a man: "It is sure a wonderful medicine".

"Coughed for 18 years, but it was stopped by your marvellous medicine", asserts another.

Scores of original letters in our files attest the unique power of "Buckley's" in instantly relieving Coughs and Colds of all kinds.

For severe colds accompanied by fever, headache or neuralgia, take LAXPYRIN and Buckley's Mixture and quick relief will follow. 555

FEAR OF FATE BRINGS EXTRA PRECAUTIONS

Every Possible Weapon is Removed From the Death Cells.

UNDER CLOSE WATCH.

Judd's Counsel Carry Fight Into U. S. Courts This Week.

TORONTO, Nov. 28.—Sing Sing authorities have doubled their guard over Ruth Brown Snyder and Henry Judd Gray so that the State of New York will not be cheated of the opportunity to take their lives.

It is feared the long hours spent in contemplation of their fate may cause either Mrs. Snyder or Gray to attempt suicide. Needles, pins, all sharp instruments, have been removed from their cells. Their meals are eaten under the eye of a warder, who makes certain that no piece of cutlery remains in the cells.

Fear for Ruth

More fear is entertained for Mrs. Snyder than for Gray, because the condemned man has presented a resigned exterior since he learned the Court of Appeals had refused to grant him a new trial. Ruth, on the other hand, became hysterical. For this reason particular watch is kept on her. Gray has acquired the stoicism which marked the demanor of Mrs. Snyder during their trial at Long Island City and won for her the name of the "iron woman."

Letters from every corner of the country arrive daily at the jail for Mrs. Snyder and Gray. The letters range from notes which tell them they have earned their just deserts to religious lectures which urge them to be brave in the dark hour. Of the two, Mrs. Snyder is the more favored. She receives approximately fifty letters a day. The more abusive letters are not shown her.

Letters Four In

Stories concerning Gray's habit of reading the Bible have made an impression on religious persons over the country. The majority of Gray's letters are from persons who encourage him to bear up.

Both Mrs. Snyder and Gray have indicated they are looking toward Governor Smith as their sole hope.

Despite the plans of their respective attorneys to seek a communtation of sentence by an appeal to the United States Supreme Court, both seem to have little hope that courts will rescue them. Mrs. Snyder's comment make to keepers was:

"I think there is more chance of executive clemency than help from the courts."

Gray's expression was:

"It all depends, of course, on what the Governor will do."

New Move This Week

Samuel L. Miller, attorney for Gray, will appear before the United States District Court the latter part of this week and apply for a writ of habeas corpus on the grounds that constitutional rights were denied his client.

Counsel for Mrs. Snyder is still considering its next step. The defendants, who pleaded for and were denied separate trials, will make a separate fight to the end. Miller said:

"There may be a conference of attorneys for both Mrs. Snyder and Gray, but whatever is done will be done separately."

Bratiana Borne To Last Resting Place

FLORICA, Rumania, Nov. 28. —(A.P.)— Six huge white oxen led by fifty priests in medeival robes, yesterday bore the body of Ionel Bratiano from the funeral train to its last resting place in the little Bysantine Church which the late Premier built here himself.

In life the dictator of Rumania moved among Kings and Princes but in death he perferred the humble funeral of the peasant. His dying wish was that there should be neither pomp, panegyric not panoply at his interment and his wishes were respected. Scenes attending it were suggestive in their simplicity and religious fervor of Biblican times.

Ten thousand reverant peasants bearing lighted candles, wooden crosses and bottles containing holy water came to town in colorful embroidered National costumes to pay homage to the veteran statesman who ruled the country through its darkest days of war and its brightest days of peace for 25 years. Along the route from Bucharest were thousands of peasants who stood with uncovered heads and in prayer as the funeral train slowly passed.

POLISH CAPITAL IS NOT UNEASY

Does Not Share in Nervousness Felt in Other Governments.

DISPUTE BEFORE LEAGUE.

WARSAW, Nov. 28.—(A.P.)—Warsaw does not share the uneasiness said to exist in governmental circles, in Berlin, Moscow and Kovno concerning the Polish-Lithuanian dispute which will be dealt with next week by the League of Nations.

Soviet Russia's joint note to Lithuania and Poland expressing concern at the strained relations of the two countries passed almost unnoticed when the full text was published in Warsaw newspapers. It is considered here that Russia merely desires to create an atmosphere that will enable her to participate in whatever preliminary discussions are held, thereby making it sure that Russia will not be left out when the matter is brought up on the floor of the league of nations.

Foreign Minister Zaleski is at present concentrating his efforts on preparation of Poland's side of the controversy, which he will personally present to the League. He may also be accompanied to Geneva by Marshall Pilsudski.

So popular has the new Orthophonic Victrola become through its superior performance that two things are happening which may lead to a most disappointing experience on your part:

(1)—People are beginning to be under the impression that any talking machine is a new Orthophonic Victrola.

(2)—Certain retailers are taking subtle advantage of these erroneous impressions, and may find occasion to take advantage of you, unless you proceed in any purchase of a new Orthophonic Victrola,—as follows:

Go only to the dealer displaying the trademark "His Master's Voice". Look under the lid of the instrument for the trademark "His Master's Voice" (shown below) and for the word "Orthophonic" (also shown below)

At the time of this publication, the new Orthophonic Victrola is made only in seven models,—as follows: The Automatic,—which changes its own records,—at $775; the Credenza at $385; the Barona at $225; the Alvara at $190; the Paloma at $160 and Model 4-3 at $115. All these Orthophonic instruments with electric drive, (eliminates winding) at $40 additional. The Electrola No. 12-25 at $790. Check up when buying.

All obtainable on convenient terms from His Master's Voice dealers only.

The NEW CAR

ALL THAT engineers have learned, all that millions of owners have experienced in nearly a quarter of a century, have made possible this car which is today as far ahead of its time as was the famous Model T in 1908.

Sixteen million automobiles, serving their owners in jungle and desert, on mountain and plain, on boulevard and highway, were the test cars that have made this new automobile possible.

Its advent marks a new epoch in automotive engineering in point of inbuilt quality—niceties of mechanical design, lavish use of the finer metals, precision in delicate machining processes.

Nowhere in its construction has there been slighting of either major essentials or minor details. From its outermost hub-cap to its innermost bearing, the new Ford car epitomizes engineering skill to a degree unexcelled in the annals of motor car manufacture.

This entirely new car surpasses the accepted standards of light car accomplishment; sweeps aside all boundaries of price class; establishes a new standard of acceleration, speed, power and smoothness that heretofore has marked only expensive cars as fine cars.

Yet Ford precision in large scale production, unparalleled in the history of automotive manufacture, places this car within the reach of every purse.

An advance showing of the New Ford Car will be made Friday, December 2nd, in the following cities:

Halifax	Peterboro	Winnipeg
Saint John	Toronto	Regina
Quebec	Hamilton	Saskatoon
Sherbrooke	Brantford	Moose Jaw
Montreal	London	Calgary
Ottawa	Windsor	Edmonton
Kitchener	Fort William	Vancouver
		Victoria

As rapidly as increasing production permits, these public showings will be extended until all of the 736 Ford dealer points have been covered.

If you live in one of the cities listed above, visit the exhibit of this New Car. At other points, see your local dealer next Friday. He will give you complete specifications, prices and an excellent conception of its unusual features.

THE EFFECT IN ENGLAND.

It is to be hoped that the Canadian immigration authorities will be able to dispel any idea set up in England through the cabled reports of the Guelph hazing that the incident was the result of bad feeling among Canadian students at the Ontario Agricultural College against English pupils there.

With Australia apparently outdistancing us in the race for British emigrants, we cannot afford to take on any unnecessary handicaps, and widespread publicity should be given the facts in the case.

True the victim of the hazing happened to be an English student, but his nationality had nothing to do with the treatment he received.

He departed from the student code of etiquette and his fellow-students very foolishly adopted a method of punishment that brought disgrace upon themselves.

The treatment would have been the same undoubtedly if he had come from Ontario or from Western Canada.

It was not meted out because he was an English boy, but because he did something that his companions felt was not playing the game, and that fact should be made clear in the British Isles where a quite different and harmful interpretation of the case is likely to prevail unless the truth is given publicity.

WHY TAKE A CHANCE?

A local citizen brings to the attention of The Examiner a handful of mail he has received lately, a bundle of mail order house literature that is probably typical of what the average householder in Peterborough finds in his mail box these days.

Various schemes to interest the recipients in hosiery, candies dress-goods and other articles are set forth in these circulars, some of them coming close to the limit in so far as the law against lotteries is concerned.

Forgetting that aspect of the thing, however, there is nothing in this propaganda that should lead citizens to invest their money for merchandise that they could obtain just as cheaply from their local merchants and at the same time know exactly what they were getting.

The home store is in a position to give better service than can possibly be obtained from concerns that have to depend upon schemes of this kind to sell their goods.

When you buy at home you know with whom you are dealing and you have the opportunity of inspecting what you buy.

Why, then, take a chance by sending your money out of town in answer to these insidious bids for business when you know little or nothing about the concern itself or the products it handles?

BOOTLEGGING.

From Renfrew, one of the towns which are to vote on the question of establishing liquor stores in their midst, comes a complaint that bootlegging has increased under the Liquor Control Act.

At the first glance that charge might appear to be a serious indictment of the Government sale of liquor, but a little consideration would seem to suggest that the condition is not caused so much by the fact that the Government sells liquor as by the fact that the Government does not sell liquor in Renfrew.

It is the old law of supply and demand.

There are people in Renfrew who want to drink liquor.

With no Government store there, the thirsty must travel elsewhere to purchase their supplies legitimately or stay at home and buy them from those who have no legal right to sell.

It seems logical to suppose that the people who want to drink would prefer to make their purchases in their own town and legally, and that the providing of the necessary facilities would lead to the disappearance to a very considerable degree of the illicit trade.

Has not that been the effect of the Liquor Control Act in Peterborough?

Does anyone seriously maintain that the volume of illegal selling in this city under the present system approaches that of the O.T.A. regime?

Some bootlegging is doubtless still going on, but the amount of liquor sold illicitly is but a small trickle compared to the flood under the "dry" law.

It was inevitable that such should be the case, for the average citizen who wants to drink could be counted upon to prefer to buy his refreshment legally and to be assured as to its quality rather than depend upon the illicit vendor.

"THE GROWTH OF A GREAT PORT."

The Examiner acknowledges the receipt from the Harbour Commissioners of Montreal a copy of one of the most artistic books of its kind that the mails have ever brought to this office.

Realizing, as they make clear in an introductory paragraph, that the growth of Montreal has been linked with the growth of Canada and that, therefore, a history of the development of this pivot of world commerce would be most fittingly issued in this year of the Diamond Jubilee of Confederation, the Harbour Commissioners have had prepared this elaborate, wonderfully printed and illustrated volume telling the story of the growth of the great port.

It is a veritable work of art in addition to being a treasure trove of information that will give Canadians a new conception of the largest city in the Dominion.

The illustrations include reproductions of old prints that throw much light upon early days in Montreal, as well as many beautiful photographs of the city and its harbour.

The story of the growth of Montreal is full of interest, and even statistics, dry as they usually are, have an air of romance in this volume when they tell us, for example, that 1,421 ocean-going ships came to the port last year, and that these represented fifteen nationalities and were manned by 78,151 seamen.

Out of Montreal harbour last year went 124,745,453 bushels of grain consigned to seventeen different countries, a total that came close to equalling the quantity of grain handled by the ports of New York, Galveston, Baltimore, New Orleans, Philadelphia, Boston and Norfolk combined.

From Montreal, too, ocean-going vessels carried 1,191,481 boxes of cheese, 112,133 boxes of butter, over 50,000 cases of eggs, 731,143 boxes and 782,148 barrels of apples, and 30,582 head of cattle.

Altogether the tonnage of merchandise in and out and over the wharves of Montreal last year totalled 9,210,699 tons.

Truly a great port.

CANADIAN LITERATURE.

There is not much profit in comparing the quality of Canadian literature with that of other countries. It may fairly be said that while it does not rise to mountain peaks of excellence it does not sink into bogs. There is no evidence in it of decadence. It is not freakish. It does not deal to any great degree with the imaginary troubles of idle people who have too much time and money to spare. The environment is largely that of the open air, the prairie, the forest, the mine, the farm, the lumber camp. The characters are workers in the main. The domestic problems are those of normal people, not men and women moaning because they have not found their affinities. Most Canadians have to work for a living, and this necessity sweeps away a good deal of fanciful nonsense.

The Confederation Jubilee has stimulated interest in Canadian history, and the mine is so rich that it will well repay working. The story is full of adventure, beginning with the spiritual adventures of the heroic Jesuit missionaries and of the explorers of the early days. Then comes the clash of British and French, ending not in conquest, as is sometimes said, but in the defeat of a French Government. The war being over, French and British people turned their energies into pioneering, for which both had remarkable genius. Here is the stuff for robust, healthy literature, whether history, fiction or poetry.

Next we find the two races uniting in the struggle for self-government in the political sense. In the broader sense they already were self-governing—plunging into trackless forests, clearing their own farms, building their own houses, raising their own food, making a large part of their own clothing, maintaining peace and order with a minimum of police protection—a sterner life than that led by those whom they had left at home or than our own. In solving their own problem of political self-government they laid the foundations of the system on which the British Empire stands today.

Self-government being conceded, certain difficulties arose which were solved by federalizing the union, thus adding Provincial to national autonomy. All this was done by Canadians within Canada. Self-government in Canada is not the result of restless agitation. It is the natural consequence of fitness for self-government, demonstrated in a practical way, not only in the political field but in agriculture, forestry, mining, manufactures, commerce, transportation, education. Canada is said to be over-supplied with railways. That is the result of an adventurous spirit, which may be seen at every stage of Canadian history and in many phases of Canadian activity.

Such is the soil in which Canadian literature is planted. One would expect to find it robust, sensible, confronting the realities of a working existence rather than the fancies bred by idleness and luxury. And if it does that we can afford to wait for conformity to very exacting literary standards. That does not mean that praise is to be indiscriminately bestowed upon every Canadian production, or that criticism should be neglected. We can afford to be frank.—London Advertiser.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

It is difficult to detect, outside of Hamilton, any signs of mourning over the defeat of the Tigers in Saturday's football final.

HAWK ATTACKS TORONTO CADDY

Golfing is becoming very full of hazards in Ontario. When 15-year-old Harry Hugenin was attacked by a hawk while caddying on the Hunt Club golf links he was clawed and bitten on the hands before he beat the bird off with a golf club. After stunning the bird he placed it in a box and carried it home where it had revived upon his arrival and clawed the arm of the lad's mother when he was showing it to her. Here is Harry and his prize. Inset is his mother.

CATTLE GRAIN, AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Nov. 22 (Canadian Press).—The export business in grain here Saturday was again of a very limited character, there being practically no demand from the United Kingdom and the Continent.

There was some inquiry from local buyers for grain in the domestic market and sales of 50,000 bushels of Canadian Western barley, and 50,000 bushels of oats were made at c.i.f. prices at the Bay and here. The car lot trade was quiet and prices were steady.

Owing to the further decline in cash wheat prices at Winnipeg, the undertone to the Spring wheat flour market here was easy, but there was no change in prices to note. The local and export demand was inactive. The trade in Winter wheat flour was also of a limited character and prices ruled steady.

The millfeed trade was moderately active and firm. The demand for standard grades of rolled oats was good and prices ruled firm.

The feature of the local eggs situation continues to be the strong undertone to the market for strictly fresh eggs and dealers have again advanced their prices for firsts two to three cents per dozen. The higher grades were firmly maintained.

In sympathy with the above there was also a much better feeling for storage eggs and prices for extras and firsts were advanced one to two cents per dozen. The receipts were 2,549 cases.

The demand for butter was confined to small lots, but the undertone was steady. The receipts were 493 packages.

The export and local trade in cheese was quiet, but values were unchanged. The receiuts were 2,109 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 28 (Canadian Press).—Grain traders eyed warlike news from Europe Saturday as a dud, and sufficient selling developed to depress both the wheat market and corn as well. Primary receipts of all the leading cereals were much larger than at this time a year ago, with wheat arrivals totalling 7,962,000 bushels for the week against 5,861,000 and corn 3,468,000 against 2,218,000 bushels.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, ½ to ¾c net lower, corn ⅝ to ⅞c off; oats unchanged to ¼c down, and provisions unchanged to 7c decline.

Contrasting with the fact that war like reports from Europe were making big front page headlines, was total absence of any unusual change in foreign grain values. Besides, export business in North American wheat Saturday was estimated at not to exceed 200,000 bushels. Under such circumstances, very moderate selling pressure from northwestern sources as the day drew to an end proved to be ample for bringing about downturns in wheat prices here, although earlier the market had held steady, notwithstanding lack of any aggressive speculative demand.

In connection with late selling from the northwest, it was pointed out that Minneapolis, Duluth and Winnipeg wheat receipts Saturday were all larger than a year ago. Furthermore, Canadian country marketings Friday amounted to 3,602,000 bushels, compared with 2,341,600 bushels on the corresponding day last year. Another bear factor was evidence that stocks of wheat in Chicago are being built up to meet delivery requirements on December contracts. About 275,000 bushels of wheat were sold Saturday to go into store here.

Corn and oats were responsive to wheat weakness, despite charters for 250,000 bushels of corn to Buffalo and 250,000 bushels more to Georgian Bay, mild, moist weather unfavorable for husking operations prevailed, but colder weather was in prospect. Provisions averaged lower on account of expected larger receipts of hogs.

QUESTIONS HUNTING STORY.

Dear Sir: Your paper of the 23rd inst carried an article which for me had unusual interest; this was the item referring to the party who shot forty-eight rabbits on the east bank of the Otonabee.

I live one-half mile from the river on the east side, and have always been keenly interested in all matters appertaining to fur or feathers in the game line.

I'll bet that any ten of our local nimrods (the number of hunters in the party was not given) accompanied by their dogs, will not SEE forty-eight rabbits in the same number of hours in this section. Yet we are to believe that the veterans from Toronto (I presume strangers to the district) could bring home the bacon in such proportions.

Now, Mr. Editor, I would like to have a little more detail to this account. How long were they in reaching this total? How many were in the party? And where did they obtain their gas and shrapnel?

In closing let me state I write of conditions as they are here; I know nothing about the abundance or otherwise of rabbits in other places. I would not have written this letter had not the luck of the visitor been directly opposite to that which my friends and I have encountered.

Yours very truly
ERIC FOX.

CHRIST CHURCH BAZAAR CLOSES

Willing Workers Successful in Selling Everything From Booths.

ATTENDANCE GOOD.

Campbellford November 26. — Light hearts and lighter pockets marked the closing of the bazaar held in the Parish Hall, Rear street, under the auspices of the Willing Workers of Christ church on Thursday and Friday. While the proceeds which go to swell the coffers of the church will not be as large as on previous years this is only to be expected as the bazaar was not run on quite as large a scale as usual. During the afternoon and evening, crowds of generous people filled the aisles and brisk business was the order of the day. When ten o'clock arrived there were very few articles still being offered for sale. These were mostly articles of home cooking and for auctioned for reasonable prices by Major J. M. Bybott.

Cakes, pies, apples and candy all sold under the hammer to ready bidders who promptly boosted the prices to considerably higher levels.

At twenty minutes past nine, the Rev. N. Clarke Wallace called a halt in the proceedings to have Mrs. Reed Linton paged and requested to stand by his side for a moment. This unexpected request was made for the purpose of presenting Mrs. Linton with a beautiful bouquet of chrysanthemums. She is the convenor of the bazaar and much credit is due her for the excellent arrangement and execution of even the most minute details which tended to insure the success of the function. Miss Jennie Martin made the presentation and cheers drowned the brief words of appreciation and gratitude spoken by Mrs. Linton. The flowers were the gift of the ladies of the church to show their whole hearted appreciation of the effort which Mrs. Linton has expended in the despatch of her duty.

A rather humorous incident took place when N. Alex. MacColl asked the rector to call at the post office for a package which was awaiting him. Mr. Wallace immediately complied with the request, and upon opening the mysterious packet which, as he remarked, bore no postage and therefore was illegal, and in all probability a fake, found that some one had "mailed" him a hot dog, mustard and all.

During the course of the evening, three articles which had been raffled, were presented. A. T. Linton won a beautifully dressed doll, whose name was carefully sealed in an official envelope. While the doll is obviously of the female sex, its name is decidedly masculine. Or is Alec generally concede to be a girl's name? Mrs. Earle Turner was lucky when she purchased number two hundred, because that number won her a goose all ready to put in the oven. George Ostrum, an American visitor to this locality, held number one hundred and sixty, and as a result left the bazaar with a very attractive looking Christmas cake under his arm.

That the function was a complete success is attested by the fact that there was practically nothing left for sale. The booths which were so well stocked at the beginning looked pitifully bare. There was literally nothing left but the decoration, and the enthusiasm of the crowds which still surged through the aisles.

A Thought For To-day

KEEP SMILIN'
"By Saint"

When the days are dark and skies are gray,
Keep smilin'.
When trouble haunts you night and day,
Keep smilin'.
When grief and sorrow come along,
And everything you try goes wrong,
Try bustin' right out with a song:
Keep smilin'.
When winds of winter moan and sigh,
Keep smilin'.
The summer's comin' by and by,
Keep smilin'.
No matter if you're feelin' blue
And hard luck keeps a railin' you,
Open your mouth and holler—"Boo!"
Keep smilin'.
Sometimes you don't see how you can
Keep smilin'.
But let me say, as man to man,
Keep smilin'.
There is no loss without some gain,
So what's the use of raisin' Cain
And actin' like you were insane,
Keep smilin'.
Don't waste a minute lookin' sad,
Keep smilin'.
You're still on earth and should be glad,
Keep smilin'.

DIRECTION FINDING.

When travelling in unfamiliar country, it very often becomes necessary to determine direction. Most people are able in a general sort of way to do so in the daytime by means of the sun if it is shining or at night (speaking more particularly of the northern hemisphere) by means of the north star.

Some people seem to possess the faculty of telling direction by means of the sun with a remarkable degree of accuracy. Those who have difficulty in this regard, the well-known method of making use of the watch in connection with the sun may be employed. This is effected by holding the watch level and pointing the hour hand at the sun and accepting the line midway between it and the figure 12 on the dial as the due south direction.

This will not give direction accurately but will be good enough for most practical purposes. The sun appears to go around the earth in a clockwise direction (to those in the northern hemisphere) making the complete circle in twenty-four hours. The hour hand of the watch makes a revolution once in twelve hours or, in other words, moves twice as fast as the sun appears to travel.

HER LITTLE GIRL CAUGHT COLD PLAYING IN THE SNOW

Mrs. A. Coakley, 29 Yale St., Halifax, N.S., writes:—"My little girl caught a terrible cold through getting wet while playing in the snow. Everything I did for her did not seem to give her any relief.

"I then went to the drug store and asked the clerk if he knew of something good he could give me. He told me about so I decided to try it.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup

"After the bottle was nearly used I noticed that the cough was gone, and by the time the second bottle was used the cold had gone. Now I will never be without it in the house."

Price 35c. a bottle, large family size 60c.; put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Assuming that the sun is due south when the hour hand of the watch is at 12 noon the working out of this simple method becomes quite apparent after a little consideration.

For two reasons the method is not absolute. One is that at 12 noon by the watch, except on four days in the year, the sun is not exactly due south, but is constantly varying in its position. Another reason is that the sun does not move around the horizon on a level with the hands of the watch but slantingly, moving up in the morning and down in the afternoon. Thus it is the sun may appear to move farther during an hour near the middle of the day than during the same period of time in the morning or the evening.

At night the position of the Pole Star, or Polaris, is an infallible guide. This star may readily be picked out in the sky by using the two outer stars of the Great Bear constellation or "big dipper" as it is often called, as pointers. The North Star also forms the end star of the handle of the Little Bear constellation of the "little dipper," but this cannot always be made out even when the stars are shining on account of the fact that they are of much less magnitude.

When travelling in strange country, through the woods, etc., it often happens that one wishes to know the direction when the sky is overcast with clouds. Some people who are familiar with the woods can read the signs from the evidences of Nature. Thus the southern sides of certain kinds of poplar trees are commonly whiter than the northern sides, due to the action of the sun. In certain trees, more moss will grow on the north side than on the south. Some Indians, it is claimed, can tell direction in a grassy country by the way the grass lies due to the prevailing winds.

But these methods, when one is lost on a cloudy day in a strange district or particularly in the woods, are more likely than not to add to one's confusion. How much better would it be in this case if one were provided with a good magnetic compass and a good map of the district as well, and knew how to use them both.

The Topographical Survey, Department of the Interior, are engaged in the task of publishing such maps. One series, that known as the National Topographic Series, is intended eventually to extend from one end of Canada to the other. They also have collected a great deal of information regarding the true direction of the magnetic needle, since the magnetic needle does not point true north but more or less east or west at different places. The map sheets above referred to and publications embodying the information collected, regarding the magnetic needle are available to the public in each case at nominal cost.

DRESS
By MARY MARSHALL

A prominent society bride chooses this brown ensemble for going away. It consists of a beige crepe de chine frock with cloth coat of same shade trimmed with beaver, brown felt hat and brown suede bag and gloves.

"The bride was married in her going-away dress" as part of the notice of a wedding may be a mere figure of speech. The bride may have been married in an ensemble which she might have used for the trip away from home, but which she might have used for the trip away from home, but which she actually changed for a much less conspicuous costume before her departure.

So fearful are some young brides of being "spotted" on the first days of the wedding journey that they wear hat, shoes or gloves that show signs of previous wearing. There is often something too markedly "bridey" about the ensemble, every detail of which is spick-span new. Still it does seem too bad to mar the perfect appearance of one's costume for the sake of misleading possible onlookers.

Choosing an ensemble of unobtrusive coloring and wearing it with an air of accustomedness really ought to be enough.

Even when the going-away costume is worn for the wedding ceremony the hat should not be of the picture variety. It should be small, close fitting and sans conspicuous ornament. The smartest hats this season really seem to be of this genre anyway.

Beige is an excellent color to choose, because it is light enough to be appropriate to the wedding ceremony and neutral enough to be inconspicuous. Besides it is decidedly smart. A beige cloth coat trimmed with beaver fur is well chosen, because there is no type of coat—save possibly the all-black fur-trimmed coat so much liked at present in Paris—that is a more general favorite at present among well-dressed women.

The sketch shows the going-away ensemble chosen by a smart bride of the season. Beneath the beige and beaver coat is a matching crepe de chine frock, trimmed only with stitched bands of the material. The shoes are of brown suede—to match the smart soft suede bag.

SAINT and SINNER

"Why are you dressing up?" Faith asked, amusement rippling her throaty, contralto voice, as she walked into Cherry's room and saw her sister trying to choose between the three most ravishing dresses in her entire wardrobe.

It was Wednesday night. Nils Jonson was to arrive in the city on the nine o'clock train from Minnesota and could be expected at the Hathaway home by half past, according to his terse wire received that morning.

"He's a man, isn't he?" Cherry laughed. "If I'm going to reduce the young bully to absurdity I've got to be dressed for the part, haven't I? Shall it be the jade green chiffon or the amber? The amber matches my eyes, and that bronze-colored flower on it is exactly the color of my hair, but men like green, I've noticed. I believe I'll wear the jade, with silver slippers and those new moonlight chiffon hose of mine. Lend me your Japanese pearls, won't you, darling?"

"You're incorrigible," Faith laughed, but she went to get the beads.

As nine-thirty approached, Rhoda's nervousness grew almost unbearable.

"It's pathetic how afraid of Nils she is," Faith whispered to Bob when Rhoda had again begun her restless wandering about the room.

"Something more to it than that!" Bob whispered, his eyes narrowed with speculation. "Oh, hello, Cherry! Many happy returns of the day! Is it your birthday or Christmas?"

Cherry spread her foamy green skirts with her rose-tipped fingers and made him a deep curtsey, her face sparkling with delight in her own breath-taking beauty. Her copper-and-gold curls had been crushed until they glinted and shimmered with a living fire, and had then been expertly coaxed, so that beneath their rioting glory her face looked as fresh and innocent as that of a child who has just awakened from sleep.

Rhoda stopped her nervous switching about the room and stared at Cherry, as if she had never seen her before. "Oh!" she breathed, her hand closing about her plump, cream-colored neck. "Did you dress up—for Nils?" she blurted out. "Nils doesn't like girls! He says they make him tired. But all the girls within twenty miles of our farm are crazy about Nils. It makes him so mad!" she confided. Then nervousness shook her again: "Oh, I wish I hadn't run away! Nils is going to be so awful mad at me!"

"So!" Cherry laughed, but her golden eyes snapped dangerously. "Nils doesn't like girls! The impudence of him! What a conceited country bumpkin this precious brother of yours must be! So you think I've wasted my time, Rhoda? That there's no chance of my being able to interest Farmer Nils Jonson? How can you break my heart thus, Rhoda?" she mocked, anger sharpening her light, musical voice.

Rhoda, deeply flushed, was about to retort a little more spiritedly than becomes a hired maid, no matter how gifted in music she may be, when the doorbell rang, one sharp, imperious ring.

"I'll answer it!" Cherry sprang to the door, and Faith, who was watching her as she passed, sighed and shrugged and exchanged a long, knowing look with Bob.

LIFE BEING STUDIED

An ecclesiastical tribunal has been appointed to study the life and virtues of Eulalie Durocher, known as Sister Maria Rose, the fair-haired, brown-eyed Canadian nun who founded the Congregation of the Sisters of the Holy Names of Jesus and Mary seventy-three years ago. The tribunal will prepare the preliminaries of the case, which will eventually be submitted to the Holy See with an appeal for beatification.

HOROSCOPE
The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 29, 1927

Good fortune should visit the Earth today, according to astrology, which find benefic aspects dominating strongly.

Keenness of mind and uplift of spirit are believed to result from this positing of the stars, which makes success easy to all who strive honestly.

Optimism is the keynote of this day's activities, if there is anything trustworthy in astrology, and for this reason all one's best energies should be put forth.

Buying and selling should be lucky, since both of the barterers are supposed to be pleased while this configuration prevails.

There is an especially favorable sign for real estate deals today and many important transactions may be expected.

The trend of all business will continue to be toward the sort of co-operation that is practically amalgamation, the seers prophesy.

Farming is to become an organized business controlled by big syndicates that will till the soil scientifically, it is forecast.

Serenity of mind and kindliness toward the young are supposed to distinguish the aged under this direction of the stars.

Recognition of what is best in old-fashioned standards of domestic life is likely to mark the new years, when the simple life again receives its need of praise.

Country homes are to multiply and to be occupied in winter as well as summer, astrologers foretell.

Poetry is to be one of the popular fads among persons of all classes, if the stars are rightly read, for there is to be a revival of romanticism.

Earthquakes will disturb more than one part of the country in the coming year, astrologers warn persistently.

Persons whose birthdate it is have a year in which money and influence will gain place that has been long coveted.

Children born on this day probably will be intellectual, well-poised and generally successful. Happy marriage is augured.

Hints On Etiquette

1. Is it good form for employes to give Christmas presents to their employer?
2. Should they send cards or in any way remember their employer on such holidays or anniversaries?
3. Who should start the custom of exchanging gifts, a newcomer or those already established in an office?

The Answers.

1. No.
2. They may but it is better not to make business relations personal.
3. The latter.

REALITY OF GOD IS STRESSED AT GRACE CHURCH

Rev. D. A. McKenzie, B.A., of Burnbrae, Preaches at Millbrook.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES.

Fitting Sermon and Music at Both Services—Congregations Are Large.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 28. — Grace Presbyterian church observed its anniversary occasion on Sunday, November 27, Rev. D. A. McKenzie, B.A., of Burnbrae, being the special preacher for the day, and delivering inspiring discourses to large congregations, the capacity of the church being taxed to accommodate the people at the evening service.

The choir had prepared special anthems for the anniversary, and Mr. Charles Clarke, of Peterborough, sang two solos, "The Lord Is My Light," and "Open the Gates of the Temple," at night; the anthem was, "Call Unto the Lord"; Miss Myrtle Russell presided at the organ.

The text was taken from Psalm 14:1, "The fool hath said in his heart, there is no God," the speaker explaining that the one spoken of as 'fool' in the Bible means a person lacking in moral character. "Of all conceptions of the human mind, the idea of God is the most sublime. Remove this idea and the mind is confounded with an infinite blank; the intellect has no object to fill it, and is drifting and distressed with the retrospect of the past, and the prospect of the future."

Referring to the query as to why we believe in God, Mr. McKenzie listed nature and the ceaseless working of its perfect laws: 'this great universe did not come together of its own accord but was created, and is sustained and upheld by an intelligence and a power, supreme in wisdom and love.

History affords unmistakable evidence that there is a God, for every nation has some idea of a Higher being, and it is an inherent characteristic of human nature to feel its dependence and responsibility.

Science affirms a creative power stating 'all life must come from preceding life for spontaneous generation is an absolute impossibility.' "In the beginning, God."

Speaking of the character of God, revealed in His works and His Word, His perfection and glory were summed up in the words, 'God is a spirit, infinite, eternal, unchangeable in His being, wisdom, power, holiness, justice, goodness and truth." "The mountains have been described as God's thoughts piled up; the prairies as His thoughts spread out; the rivers as God's thoughts in motion; and the flowers as God's thoughts in blossom.

"The most wonderful thing about God is His love, passing understanding, world-embracing; seeing in every man no matter how low he may have fallen a very precious gem called the soul, which may be brought into harmony with the mind of the Eternal Father

"Take God out of the home life, the social life, the business and the national life, and results will be disastrous. We don't want a substitute but a true and living God who will dwell in every heart for every man needs God. Give Him the supreme place and evils would soon cease."

In conclusion the speaker stressed the danger of Canada becoming material and worldly, and drifting away from God. "To me to live is Christ," wrote Paul. "How would you answer that question?" asked the speaker. "Whoever loses himself in God finds everything. All honor lies in His fellowship; all safety in His favor; all true happiness in knowing, loving, trusting, and enjoying Him. Whoever can truly say, 'O God thou art my God' can boast nothing more; his enjoyment is full who can say from the heart, 'Whom have I in heaven but thee, and there is none upon earth I desire besides Thee."

EMPIRE PUDDING FOR CHRISTMAS

King's Chef Supplies Recipe To Empire Marketing Board.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—The King's Chef, Mr. Cedard, with their Majesties' gracious consent, has supplied to the Empire Marketing Board a recipe for an Empire Christmas Pudding.

This recipe is being inserted by the Empire Marketing Board as an advertisement in all the principal newspapers of this country. It will appear in good time before Christmas so that people may be able to make their puddings of ingredients obtained exclusively from the Empire at home and overseas.

Five lbs. of currants, Australia; 5 lbs. of sultanas, Australia; 5 lbs. of stoned raisins, South Africa; 1½ lbs. of minced apple, Canada; 5 lbs. of bread crumbs, United Kingdom; 5 lbs. of beef suet, New Zealand; 2 lbs. of cut candied peel, South Africa; 2½ lbs. of flour, United Kingdom; 2½ lbs. of demerara sugar, West Indies; 20 eggs, Irish Free State; 2 ozs. ground cinnamon, Ceylon; 1½ ozs. ground cloves, Zanzibar; 1½ ozs. ground nutmegs, Straits Settlements; 1 teaspoonful pudding spice, India; 1 gill brandy, Cyprus; 2 gills rum, Jamaica; 2 quarts old beer, England.

Recipes for a sauce and for brandy butter, also made exclusively from Empire ingredients, to accompany the pudding have also been supplied by His Majesty's Chef. Copies can be obtained free on application to the Empire Marketing Board, 2 Queen Anne's Gate Bldgs., London, S.W.1.

Why Women Wanted
And Science Developed
A New-Type Hygiene

By ELLEN J. BUCKLAND
Registered Nurse

MODERN women with the business world to face, and a more tense social life to lead, demanded greater protection in meeting their greatest hygienic handicap. As a result, the old-time sanitary "pad" is fast disappearing.

Over 80% of better-class women now employ KOTEX—more than a sanitary pad; true scientific protection. Filled with Cellucotton wadding, the newly perfected super-absorbent, it is five times as absorbent as ordinary cotton pads.

Kotex also DEODORIZES while it acts. Also, it is discarded easily as tissue. No laundry, no disposal problem.

Packed 12 in a box. At any store. Look for name Kotex on the box. If it is not there, take care; it is not real Kotex.

Uncle Wiggily
By HOWARD R. GARIS

Today's Bedtime Story

UNCLE WIGGILY'S CRANBERRIES.

(Copyright, 1927, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

When Uncle Wiggily pushed back his chair from the Thanksgiving dinner table in his hollow stump bungalow he said:

"I can't eat another carrot!"

"You ought to be thankful for that," exclaimed his wife, who leaned over to stop Baby Bunty from helping herself to another piece of lettuce cake. "If you ate any more, Wig, your rheumatism would pain you to-night."

"I'm not going to eat any more," he answered. "It was a wonderful Thanksgiving dinner you and Nurse Jane got up, my dear. I don't know when I have eaten a better. I hope everyone is as thankful as I am."

"I know somebody who isn't!" spoke up Jingle, one of the little rabbit girls.

"So do I!" chimed in Jangle, her twin sister. "It's Mrs. Sniff, the mouse lady. I met her yesterday, going home from the store, and she had only a hard rind of cheese. She said it was for her Thanksgiving dinner—for her and her seven little children mice. That was all she could buy, she said—just some dried cheese."

"Why didn't you tell me this before?" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily.

"I didn't think of it," answered Jingle.

"Nor I!" chimed in Jangle.

"You know I'd never let anybody around here go hungry if I could help it!" went on Mr. Longears. "Not while I had anything to eat, anyhow. Help me fill a basket, my dear," he said to his wife.

Soon, with the help of Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, a large basket of food was made ready for Uncle Wiggily to take to the poor mouse lady and her children so they might have a happy Thanksgiving.

As Uncle Wiggily started to hop from his bungalow his wife called after him:

"Take this bag of cranberries. They aren't cooked, but Mrs. Sniff can stew them. And if she needs any more let me know."

"I will," said Uncle Wiggily. "And I'm thankful I have such a kind wife, as well as being thankful for the dinner I had," thought the rabbit gentleman as he hopped along over the snow carrying the basket.

He had not gone far before, looking down on the path to the mouse lady's house, Uncle Wiggily saw a toy popgun. It was the one he had bought for Spinker, one of his little boy rabbits, a day or two before.

"Ha! Spinker has dropped his popgun!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily, stooping to pick it up. And, as he leaned over, some of the round, hard red cranberries spilled from the bag which he had put in his pocket.

"Ha! I mustn't lose those—cranberries are too scarce," said Mr. Longears, as he picked them up. Then he put the cranberries and the toy popgun into his pocket and hopped on, thinking how surprised Spinker would be to have his plaything back.

Uncle Wiggily was thinking how glad Mrs. Sniff would be to get a good Thanksgiving dinner when, all of a sudden, out from behind the bushes jumped the Bob Cat with his silly little tail. And he howled:

"Give me what you have there! Give me everything you have!"

"Do you mean this Thanksgiving basket?" asked the bunny.

"That's what I mean!" growled the bad chap. "Everything you have!"

"Well, then, take this, too!" suddenly shouted Mr. Longears. He took from his pocket the popgun he had picked up and aimed it at the Bob Cat.

"Pooh! I'm not afraid of that! It isn't loaded!" sneered the Cat.

"Isn't it?" cried Uncle Wiggily. "We'll see about that!" He pulled the trigger.

"Bang!" went the popgun. "Plop!" a lot of hard cranberries that had rolled into the barrel of the popgun—a lot of cranberries hit the Bob Cat on his nose.

"Oh, yow! Yes! Wow— Excuse me! I didn't know your popgun was loaded!" screamed the Bob Cat as he ran away, taking his silly tail.

"Neither did I!" chuckled Uncle Wiggily. "It's a good thing I had the cranberries and a good thing I found Spinker's gun. H! Ha!"

Then he took the fine dinner to the mouse lady and she was very thankful.

SLEEVE BOARD.

With blouses stylish again, a sleeve board is a necessity. Lacking one, slip a rolled magazine into the sleeve, when ironing.

MENDING WOOLENS.

If you lack mending tape when mending woolens, hold the torn parts together on a board, wrong side out, cover with court plaster and iron.

TIE RACK.

Mr. Man can keep his ties in perfect order by using an inexpensive towel rack screwed onto the closet door, for a tie rack.

GOLD SLIPPERS.

Gold and silver slippers should be kept in black wrapping paper or black sateen bags when not in use. This will prevent tarnish.

MOTH INSPECTION.

Before putting light weight spring and autumn woolen clothes away for winter, clean thoroughly and inspect for moths. They sometimes invade steam-heated houses in winter.

STITCH GAUGE.

When doing a hand stitch along a hem, seams or any other straight line you can place your stitches evenly if you stitch by machine first, without threading the needle.

"She's the Happiest Woman I Know!"

OFTEN you hear such expressions about people. And in nearly every case the real reason for such happiness is a body that is right—through right eating.

Food has a tremendous influence on the way we feel, on the way we look at life, because it's our food which must supply all our energy.

Select your daily foods with care. Choose Grape-Nuts for breakfast, for these good reasons.

Grape-Nuts, made from whole wheat and malted barley, supplies the five essential elements of nutrition. It is specially prepared for digestion. It has one of the most delightfully appetizing flavors. It is crisp—and through the enjoyable chewing of Grape-Nuts you healthfully exercise your teeth and gums.

Grape-Nuts is very inexpensive. Four teaspoonfuls, costing less than one cent, is sufficient for each person. Serve with milk or cream right from the package. At all grocers' in wax-wrapped packages.

...NERS RECEIVE GIFTS OF MONEY

Showered With Donations at Final Meeting in London.

BALDWIN DENOUNCED.

LONDON, Nov. 28. — (Canadian Press.)—A shower of coins and a good number of bank notes greeted the Welsh "Coxey's Army" of unemployed miners as they assembled for their final rally in Trafalgar Square to-day. Premier Baldwin was denounced for having refused to see them after their two hundred mile trek from the Rhondda Valley, as they prepared to return by train.

W.M.S. MEMBER RECEIVES GIFTS

Mrs. John Fairbrother Honored By St. James' Church Branch.

Mrs. John Fairbrother was the guest of honor of St. James' W.M.S. who gathered to the number of 40 at the parsonage on Friday night to say farewell to her. She has been an active member of the society for many years.

The program included piano solos by Miss Aileen Rose; a vocal duet by Misses Annie and Nellie Payne, readings by Mrs. Hugh McCullough, and several contests in which all took part.

The presentation of a silk umbella and a life membership pin of the society from St. James' Auxiliary was made by Mrs. E. L. Woodley ,the president,. and an address was read by Mrs. George H. Rowe.

Mrs. Fairbrother responded, thanking the Auxiliary for the gifts, and all joined hands and sang "For Auld Lang Syne."

Refreshments were then served by the committee in charge and a social hour enjoyed.

A unanimous vote of thanks was extended to Rev. J. H. and Mrs. Dudgeon, who so kindly lent their home for the occasion.

The address was as follows:

"Dear Mrs. Fairbrother,

"Knowing that you are about to leave our fair city to take up residenc in another country, we, your friends of St. James Woman's Missionary Society have met this evening to enjoy with you a social hour, and express to you our sincere regret that you are so soon to leave our midst.

"We feel that the faithful manner in which you have filled your office of secretary has done much towards making our meetings interesting and helpful. You have always been ready and willing to do anything you were asked, and we are going to miss you from our Auxiliary, and also from our Sunday school, where you have been a faithful teacher for many years, and from the church where your seats were selom vacant.

"We feel we could not let the occasion pass withoutt conveying to you in some small way our appreciation of your services and we ask you to accept this parting gift not for its intrinsic value but as a constant reminder of the many friends you have made at St. James.

"It is our earnest wish and prayer that you and your family may be spared for many years service in the Master's vineyard and when the work is finished may you hear the Father say: 'Well done and enter into the joy of your Lord."

Signed on behalf of St. James' Missionary Society.

Mrs E. L. Woodley, pres., Mrs. Geo. H. Rowe 1st vice-pres.

LEGION NOTES

On Friday evening the regular meeting of the Executive committee of the local branch of the Canadian Legion was held at headquarters, when considerable business was transacted.

Following an editorial which appeared in the Peterborough Examiner advocating the centralizing of distribution, it was unanimously resolved to place at the disposal of all organizations the office of the Legion for that purpose should it meet with the approval of the organizations that carry on such relief work It has been decided to endeavour to get representatives from each organization throughout the city to meet together at an early date in order to see if such a scheme can be made practicable.

Owing to the Canadian Legion hall being engaged on Monday, Nov. 28th, the regular monthly meeting has been postponed until Thursday next. On this night at the conclusion of the business meeting a concert has been arranged for the entertainment of the members. Some of the best talent in the city has been secured. The arrangements are in the capable hands of Comrade Everett, and everybody is assured of a pleasant evening's enjoyment.

During the month the branch has lost by death two of its members in the persons of Comrades Lonergan and "Dad" Dyer, the branch being represented at each funeral. That of Comrade "Dad" Dyer was a full military funeral, and carried out under the auspices of the Legion, many branches of the local militia units being represented. The Peterborough Rangers supplied a firing party together with the band, of which the deceased was a member. The Artillery was also present in a body, Lt.-Col. Ackerman, Lt.-Col. Hall and Major Dodds of the Machine Gun Co. were also present. The funeral arrangements were carried out under the able direction of Captain J. Abraham, President of the branch.

Mine Market Unsteady; Trading Farly Active

TORONTO, November 28 (Canadian Press).—Some unsteadiness crept into the list on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning when trading held steadily around the 1,600,000 share mark. The losses about equalled in number the gains, but there were no serious recessions. Howey Gold, Amulet, Argonaut, Barry Hollinger, Beaver, Laval Quebec, Tough Oakes, and Kirkland Lake weakened one to six points Granada Rouyn on a heavy turnover gained a point at 35, and Bidgood, in which trading was also over the hundred thousand shares, gained two at 167. Moderate advances were made by Aconda, Area, Crown Reserve, Kirkland Hunton, Newbec, Potter Doal, and Amity Copper.

Toronto Market Active, With Seagrams Leading

TORONTO, November 28 (Canadian Press). — Seagram's, Carling's, and Brazilian advanced substantially in heavy dealing on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning. Seagram's, by far the most active stock on the board, was 2¾ higher at noon at 26⅞, while Carling's gained 1¾ at 36⅜. Brazilian touched 221, a new local high ,but at noon at 219½ had a net gain of only ¾ of a point, Twin City climbed 2¼ at 57⅜, and City Dairy was marked up 3½ at 213⅜, after touching 216 in session . Alberta Pacific Grain fractionally advanced at 57. Liquor stocks followed Carling's upward, fractional gains being shown in Malting, Walker's, Gooderham, and Canadian Brewing. Oils also firmed, British-American gaining ⅛ at 36⅛, and McColl 1½ at 59½.

Wheat Prices Go Down On Report From South

CHICAGO, Nov. 28 (Canadian Press).—Influenced by a bearish crop estimate from Argentina, wheat values underwent an early sag today. According to a Chicago expert at Buenos Aires, the 1927 Argentine yield of wheat promises to total 231,000,000 bushels. Opening ⅛ to ½c off, Chicago wheat market held near to the initial figures. Corn showed relative firmness, starting at ¼c decline to ¼c advance, and later gaining a little all around. Oats were easy.

Opening prices were: Wheat, December, 126¾; March, 131⅛. Corn, December 86½, March 90⅜. Oats, December 49½, March 50⅜.

Call Money Goes Up And Market Reacts

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—(Canadian Press.)—The marking up of the call money rate from three and a half to four per cent., the first change in about a month, turned the course of stock prices reactionary to-day after an earlier period of strength. The higher call rate, which is generally believed to be temporary, followed the calling of about $20,000,000 in bank loans. In view of the rapid advance in prices in the last few weeks, reaction has been widely predicated on technical grounds and some of to-day's liquidation probably was inspired by the first announcement of the new Ford car and the publication of another series of unfavorable October railroad earnings statements.

Standard industrials and rails received farily good support on renewal of selling pressure, the loses generally being held to a point or two, but some of the volatile specialties cracked three to six points. The "bears" put out short lines in a number of chemical, tobacco, paper, rubber and steel issues to test the character of the buying support, while operators for a rise succeeded in marking up a few public utilities, farm implements and food shares

The decision was given in a suit brought by two aliens.

VIDOR ARRIVES OFF NEW YORK

Yacht Reaches Home Safely After Chase From Montreal.

SEIZURE UNLIKELY.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.— (Canadian Press.)—R. C. Durant's yacht Vidor, which out-sailed Canadian government boats seeking to serve a writ of attachment, was riding at anchor to-day off City Island. She had arrived quietly during the night under cover of the fog. A representative of Mr. Durant said that only the crew were aboard when the yacht arrived. It was not thought likely that customs officials would seize the vessel because she sailed from a Canadian port without clearance papers.

The Canadian National Railways obtained a writ of attachment against the Vidor last Friday after she had crashed into and damaged Black's bridge in Montreal. In his flight to sea to avoid the service of the writ the captain refused to land a river pilot, who leaped overboard and was picked up by one of the pursuing government vessels.

identified, nor are their homes all known to the authorities. They reached the city early to-day on a special train which carried passengers from the wrecked flyer. Many of them would be unable to speak English even if they were uninjured, and the hospital authorities have a difficult time identifying them .

Alle Roseman, a 19-year-old immigrant girl, sustained serious injuries to her spine, while most of the others suffered head injuries of a more or less serious nature.

Ambulances were waiting for the injured as they reached Toronto to rush them to the hospital. Carpenters took out the windows of the railway coaches so they might be removed with the minimum effort. Train lamps and photographers' flares lighted up the scene as the bandaged figures, some unconscious and others fretful with pain, were taken from the coach. The many uninjured passengers generally left the train without delay, either for their homes in the city or for hotels. The injured are all Polish immigrants, and the majority, it is understood, were bound for Western Ontario points.

Miss Roseman, despite her injury, said with a smile that there were about fifty on the immigrants' car. "We were all so happy until everyone was hurt," she added. She was on her way to visit a relative who lives just outside Toronto.

Mrs. Mary Tauharvich was also on the car, with her two little girls. "The windows were splintered and broken, the woodwork in the car was torn loose all about, while the wrecked car rocked from side to side," she said in broken English. "It was very terrible. Directly after the terrific shock the coach caught fire. It was with great difficulty that I extricated my two children from underneath the wreckage. Fortunately they were not seriously hurt.

"All about me lay bodies. The injured were groaning and screaming. Everything was covered with blood. We lost our luggage, money, everything we owned, except the clothes we were wearing."

INJURED MEN IMPROVING.

SMITH'S FALLS, Ont., November 28 (Canadian Press). — Rhynard Post and Lenn Bradford, Smith's Falls, and Charles Karmilski, Toronto, three of the injured in the crash westerday of the Montreal-Toronto Canadian Pacific Railway express into a freight train at Dockrill, 56 miles west of here, were reported to be resting easily at the local hospital to-day . Post, who was fireman on the express ,had his right leg amputated above the knee last night. His condition was said to be favorable this morning.

Others injured but taken to their homes or to a hotel are G. Bonisteel, Toronto; Art Speak, Muskegon, Mich., facial injuries; Florence Hodgen, London Ontario; Mrs. Taylor, Toronto; F. Orme, Ottawa, fingers lacerated; George Keller, Toronto; A. Frunk, Montreal, knees injured; L. Levine, Toronto; A. Nelson, Francis Linley, and Mrs. Arthur Linley, Toronto, bruises and shock.

THE COMPANY—The Lindsay Distilleries Limited is incorporated under the Dominion Companies Act and by its charter is empowered to carry on the business of distillers and to manufacture, deal in, buy, sell, distribute, store, warehouse and export liquors of all kinds, commercial and denatured alcohol and all their by-products. The company manufactures four brands of Scotch whiskeys, rye, and gin, and in addition to their own brands the company have a very profitable five-year contract with one of the oldest Scottish distilleries to bottle three well known brands of high-grade Scotch whiskey.

THE DISTILLERY AND BOTTLING PLANT is in complete successful operation and the companies' brands of liquors are now on the market. The company has its own warehouse in Toronto to give modern and efficient service to its customers.

The MAIN DISTILLERY is equipped with most modern machinery to manufacture high grade alcohol. The capacity of the distillery is now 1,000,000 gallons per annum and as business demands this production can be doubled at a very nominal cost.

THE CHEMICAL DISTILLERY is and has been in operation for 10 years producing methyl (wood) alcohol, charcoal, and acetate of lime.

MANAGEMENT—The company is fortunate in securing the services of blenders, chemists and executives with years of experience and its personnel, coupled with most modern methods and equipment, fully approved by the Dominion Excise Department can only result in the quick establishment of a sound business with substantial profits to its shareholders. The properties are situated in the Town of Lindsay, on the Trent Valley Canal, with railway sidings on both properties. The company has only one class of stock, namely, common shares without nominal par value. Upon completion of present financing the company will have no bonded debt, mortgage, preferred stock, or bank loans. The company will have ample working capital and be entirely free of debt, except current accounts. No valuation has been placed on the charter, license, trade mark, trade name or good will.

The proceeds of the sale of this issue of common shares of Lindsay Distilleries Limited, referred to above is made in order to provide funds to be used for final payment of plant equipment and for working capital.

We are offering a limited amount of stock at $20 per shade, which price is subject to change without notice. Personally, we see no reason for this stock not being worth anywhere from $50 to $100 per share within a comparatively short time.

EARNINGS—Estimated, First Year:

Distillery Plant	$300,000.00
Chemical Plant	30,000.00
		$330,000.00
For Second Year		$500,000.00
For Third Year		1,000,000.00

It is intended in due course to apply to have these shares admitted to the unlisted department of the Toronto Stock Exchange.

All orders taken subject to acceptance or rejection. In case of over-subscription, any monies paid will be refunded.

Price $20.00 per share

J. A. ANDERSON LODGE MASTER

Elected at Annual Meeting of L. O. L. 36, at Campbellford.

OTHER OFFICERS.

CAMPBELLFORD, November 28.—A large attendance marked the election of officers of L.O.L 36, Campbellford for the year 1928. The meeting was held in their lodge rooms on Friday evening. Keen interest was shown by all present, and the following officers were elected: J. A. Anderson, Worshipful Master; Harry Meiklejohn, Deputy Worshipful Master; James Hicks, Chaplain; Arthur Redden, Recording Secretary; J. R. Wilkinson, Finance Secretary; Harry Cassan, Director of Ceremonies; John Baggs, First Lecturer; John Stillman, Second Lecturer; Committee Men, Robert Innes, George Smith, William West, Herbert Brown, and Benjamin Ellis. Peter Stevens was elected to the office of Tyler.

MANY INJURED

ing held at Enterprise.

All the injured were rushed to Toronto by special train after being given first aid treatment.

Fireman R. Post, of the passenger train; Engineer J. L. Bradford, of the freight train, and a passenger identfied as K. Kahns, no address given, were listed as seriously injured.

The passenger train left Montreal at 9.45 Sunday morning en route for Toronto.

The names of the injured were given out at the Canadian Pacific offices here last night, but their addresses were not available.

The list of slightly injured follows: Trainman J. G. Bonistell, J. Netel, news agent; Irene Speake, Francis Liley, Florence Hodge, J. H. Gallagher, Mrs. J. D. Larock, D. W. Armstrong, Mrs. Taylor, F. Orme, R. Kiell, G. W. M. Keller, A. Frank, L. Levine, N. Goldberg, Y. Tops, E. T. Miller, Lizzie MacNamara, Harold Hanson, J. Featherstone, F. Natsynski, N. Natzynski, N. Fytipowyie, F. Obzisturki, M. Fawe, W. Fola. W. Prown, W. Mosyek, and W. Cola.

Details Not Available

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 28.—The official statement issued by the Canadian Pacific Railway lists the two unidentified dead merely as :"Foreigner, man, name unknown," and Foreigner, woman, name unknown."

Railway officials explained that details of the wreck were not obtainable because of trouble with the telegraph services from Dockrill.

"At 2.15 p.m. at Dockrill Station, 56 miles west of Smith's Falls, a Canadian Pacific freight train came in contact with No. 10, Montreal-Chicago passenger train, which left Montreal at 9.45 this morning, the freight train having failed to get clear in the siding for the time of the passenger train."

Local People Safe

Word was received in this city last night by F. M. Delafosse that his daughter and her husband, Captain and Mrs. Freure, who were on the train at the time of the accident, are safe. Captain and Mrs. Freure were returning from England.

CAR ROLLS OVER; OWNER UNINJURED

William Riendeau's Car Skids When He Applies Brakes.

CAMPBELLFORD, November 28.—William Riendeau had a narrow escape from injuries in a motor accident last night. The roads were very slippery and the dense fog made driving very precarious at best. Mr. Riendeau, an elderly gentleman, was coming down the 'School Hill.' He thought he was going too fast and put on his brakes. The car skidded into the ditch, jumped a six foot cement sidewalk and rolled over on to the school lawn. The top of the car is a wreck. The windshield is demolished, and some damage is done to the front wheels. Mr. Riendeau escaped without injury and seems to feel little the worse for his experience.

A HOME WORTH WHILE.

(By D. S. McIlroy, Architect.)

The degree of success which the exterior of this beautiful modern English style home enjoys depends very largely on its setting. A surrounding of trees, shrubs, and turf, as indicated in the perspective, helps to make the house itself a part of the landscape, which is the effect to be always striven for, particularly in English house design.

To obtain this necessitates a lot o about 70 ft. frontage, as the house measures 26 ft. by 50 ft. 6 ins. and abundant clear space is required.

The somewhat unusual, but highly efficient, and convenient, ground floor plan, is of exceptional interest. Notice the raising of the living-room floor four steps above the remainder of the ground floor. This allows at least a part of the basement which may be used for the laundry or the billiard-room, to be extra well lighted while keeping the general exterior appearance low and snug.

Featuring the whole house, however, is its story and a half high open timbered living-room, which with a fine deep fireplace and oak parquetry floor exudes the very essence of cheer and hearty comfort.

Another point worthy of special note is the inclusion of both a family dining-room, and a larger general dining-room for more formal occasions. Where the building budget permits this is a meritorious development of the increasingly popular practice of planning both a dining-alcove and dining-room in the same house, and will particularly appeal to those who desire a little more formality, even for family meals, than an alcove gives. Large families, too, will find this scheme more practical.

The kitchen, which is separated from the main hall by a small inner hall, is very completely and conveniently equipped and has a rear grade entrance with stairs to the basement.

A simple upper floor plan provides three large bedrooms, ample clothes and linen-closet space, and a bathroom containing a built-in recess bath.

The cost of this home be about $10,000 exclusive of lot.

Readers desiring further information regarding the plans and specifications of this house should communicate with the architect direct. Address Mr. D. S. McIlroy, Calgary, Alberta.

RECTOR EXPLAINS CHANGES IN BOOK

Rev. N. Clarke Wallace Says Canadian Church Not Affected.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 28. — The Rev Earnest Harston being absent from town on business, the pulpit of St. John's United Church was occupied yesterday by a representative of the Lord's Day Alliance.

This evening, in place of the regular sermon, the Rev. N. Clarke Wallace, rector of Christ Church, spoke on the new prayer book which was being prepared for use in the Church of England in England. During his remarks, Mr. Wallace stated that many who were criticizing the new book were not familiar with the one in use at present, as their objections were based on passages in the new which were also in the old edition and were in use at the present time. The rector explained that if the laymen were not satisfied with the book, they would have plenty of opportunity to object when the book was placed before the House of Commons as a bill to be passed. The house, he said, would either have to pass it or reject it, as it could not amend it. In that respect the prayer book differed from the usual bill before the house.

The changes in the new book were few, he said, and everything which the present book contained was also in the new one. There were some additions in the form of optional services and wider provision had been made for dispensing holy communion to the sick. There was also a change in the marriage ceremony. The word "obey" had been discarded and the bride now takes the same vows as does her husband. Apparently she, too, must love and honor and "With all my worldly goods, I thee endow."

But whether or not the new book come into use in the Church in England, there will be no change in the prayer book in Canada. Some years ago, Mr. Wallace explained, the Church in Canada had desired a book particularly suited to its particular requirements. Such a book had been forthcoming and whatever the issue in England, the Canadian branch of the church would still continue to use the same book as the basis for its public worship.

In the New English dictionary, which after 53 years of work is nearing completion, 52 columns of references are devoted to the word "put."

The female birth rate in England is decreasing. Last year, per 10,000 population, males increased by 52, females by only 40.

SALE SUCCESS.

Ladies of St. Andrew's Church Sell Home Cooking.

CAMPBELLFORD, November 28. —Judging from the groups of women who were seen entering and leaving the home cooking sale, held under the auspices of the ladies of St. Andrew's church, the affair was very successful. During the afternoon the ladies served tea in a vacant store on Bridge street for a very nominal charge, and also displayed some attractive home cooking which found a ready sale.

LEAFS WIN FROM PIRATES IN OVERTIME

Odie Cleghorn's Team Nosed Out 2-1 in N.H.L. Clash.

GOALIES GOOD.

Bailey Stars in Scoring Winning Tally in Sudden Death Session.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., November 28 (Canadian Press). — The Maple Leaf sextette of Toronto swooped down on Pittsburgh on Saturday evening to nose out Odie Cleghorn's Pirates in a sparking overtime N.H.A. clash by a 2-1 margin. The Pittsburghers, leading from early in the inaugural period until after the middle of the game, exhibited the best hockey they have proffered thus far in the current campaign, but struck disaster in the sharpshooting of Bailey, spectacular Leaf wing, who registered both Toronto goals, the first one on the assist from Carson, and the second on a scintillant individual attempt that ended the tussle after 44 seconds of tilting in the sudden death session.

A particular feature of the combat was the splendid performances of the rival goalies, Worters of Pittsburgh and Roach of Toronto. Each turned back the tide on numerous occasions. Worters especially made up for the sometimes loose defensive tactics of his mates. Here Drury proved himself the offense star of the house for the Buccaneers, a lone hand stunt by the veteran pivot ace accounting for the Cleghorn crew's only marker.

The contest opened briskly with the Pirates displaying more fight and effectiveness than they had shown in their lone previous home appearance of the year. Roger Smith, local left defence, smacked the puck into the mesh on the rebound of a side-shot by Harold Darragh in the fourth minute of play, but the tally was ruled out on an offside. A moment later Art Duncan, giant Toronto back, was banished for illegally checking Miles. Drury annexed the disc near his own net and flanked on the left by Rothschild, fared forth up centre ice. The visiting defence gave him pause, but not sufficiently to prevent his slow, 20-foot push from eluding Goalie Roach for the first score the Pirates have registered here this year. The remainder of the period was fast, but futile from a tallying standpoint, though Bailey, the Maple Leaf right wing, blew an open chance in the final minute.

Toronto attacked vigorously in the second period and tied the score, though not before Worters, the Pirate goalie, had performed heroically to snuff out three terrific drives from close in. Worters' initial bit of brilliance occurred in the first minutes as Carson worked in from the left to evade the defence for a sizzling wallop. Carson returned down the centre a few seconds afterwards and was frustrated in even more miraculous fashion by the active Corsair net man. Then in the tenth minute, hard upon a ripping stop by Roach of a Drury drive, the Leafs assaulted in force, and Worters, as two hostile huskies flashed in, covered a dual slash that evoked wild cheers from the throng.

The invaders, however, were not to be denied, and at 12:33 Bailey streaked down the right, handled a pass from Carson, and smashed a high, fast one past Worters from scrimmage before the diminutive Bucaneer could raise his stick. The Pirate back-checking and general defense, tight and scrappy at the outset, was disintegrating and Toronto was penetrating the inner cordon frequently, only inaccurate shooting and Worter's pretty efforts preventing additional Maple Leaf counters.

Period three found the going spirited, but fruitless, Worters saved on Keeling in the fourth minute, and later trapped Bailey on two quick thrusts that seemed certain to reach the mesh. Drury, Pittsburgh's speedy reserve centre, drew a tripping penalty toward mid-period, but the Pirates staved off a torrid enemy rally that ensued. Carson dropped the pellet with a clear shot before him shortly after Drury's re-entry. Day was off for tripping Smith soon afterward, but Pittsburgh was unable to profit by his absence. Milks was through the defence in the nineteenth minute but was tossed off balance and lost the rubber without having a chance to let fly. White was within the danger zone just prior to the clanging of the bell, but Duncan tied him up completely.

The Leafs wasted no time in bagging the decisive point in the extra session. Drury drove hard at Roach from the face-off. Toronto taking the puck and charging savagely into Corsair territory. Crashing down the right Bailey blazed away from the outer fringe of the Pirate defense. The smash, high and sudden, caromed off Worter's arm, appeared to pause in mid air, and nestled in the goal to terminate the fray.

Line-up:

Pittsburgh — Goal, Worters; defense, Smith, Langlois; centre, Milks; wings, Arbour and Darragh. Subs, Rothschild, Drury and White.

Toronto — Goal, Roach; defence, Duncan and Day; centre, Carson; wings, Keeling and Bailey. Subs, Gorman, Ramsay, McCaffery and Cox.

Referees—O'Leary and O'Hara.

First Period—

1—Pittsburgh, Drury, 6:42.

Second Period—

2—Toronto, Bailey (Carson) 12:33.

Third Period—

Ex-Boston Player Scores Winning Goal Against Former Team Mates.

PLAY OVERTIME.

BOSTON, Mass. Nov. 28. — Canadian Press. — The New York Americans defeated the Boston Bruins 4 to 3 in a fast and rough National Hockey League game here Saturday night. Billy Boucher who went to New York from the Boston Club last year, scored the winning goal against his former team mates after 45 seconds of overtime play.

The game was won and lost on penalties, all but one of the games being scored when one or more of the opening teams were gracing the penalty box. The exception came when "Bullet Joe" Simpson cashed the disc for New York while the Americans were shy a man. Eighteen penalties were handed out, including one major against Lionel Hitchman, Boston defence man for cutting down Simpson.

An X-ray to-day disclosed a break in one of the small bones of the hand.

SPORT AT $1,000,000 A LONE THRILL

By NEA Service

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Sport at $1,000,000 a thrill is a dizzy pace to stick on any man's menu.

Yet that little item has been paid off more than once with a cheerful shrug lighting the aristocratic countenances of not a few of the following: H. P. Whitney, Harry F. Sinclair, Joseph E. Widener, George D. Widener, James Butler, W. R. Coe, William Woodward, Marshall Field, James Cox Brady, John E. Madden, Samuel Riddle, Robert L. Gerry and E. R. Bradley.

Do you get a kick out of a 25-cent handball? A $10 tennis racket? A $25 golf set? Well, consider yourself fortunate.

Listen to what Joseph A. Widener, millionaire sportsman and one of the best liked men on the turf, has to say especially pertinent at this time with the southern racing season about to open and the bugler, even as far away as Havana, polishing up his golden horn. For now is when the heavy expense dough begins to flow—and how.

"Men breed horses and race them chiefly out of pure love for a sport which intrigues their imagination and provides thrills which can be had no other way", says Mr. Widener. "There is a fascination in seeing one's colors in the heat of a spirited conflict that outweighs the cost.

"Then, too, there is that gamble—the striving for something that others have failed to acquire. Each man or woman who enters the list does so with the feeling that the fun can be had at a profit. In many cases their pleasure is their profit. But thoroughbreds are an expensive luxury and the lean years eat up the profits of the fat years."

That, then, is one of the reasons why a racing owners "gets that way." Here are the figures:

Millions are invested yearly in the breeding industry. It costs $100,000 to get together a modest stable of 12 horses, according to the conservative Widener estimate. Expenses pile up in the way of housing, feeding, entrance, fees, trainer and jockey fees, shipping equipment and the like.

On the basis of $7 a day per horse the stable of 12 will cost $30,000 a year and the fees will add $20,000, which means the winnings must be at least $60,000 to count on a fair return on the investment.

The initial cost of getting together a stable of 12 horses to stand general campaigning has been estimated as follows:

One stake horse	$25,000
Three handicap horses	35,000
Four selling platers	16,000
Four two-year-olds	14,000
Assembling	10,000
Total	$100,000

As the stable grows bigger, maintenance increases. It is safe to estimate the Whitney, Bradley, Sinclair and Widener stables of 35 horses and more spend $200,000 a year, not considering the cost of breeding farms. It requires four large express cars to move the stables, and think of the jumps—Louisville, Chicago, New Orleans, Havana, Pimlico, Saratoga Springs, Havre de Grace, Belmont, Latonia and St. Louis.

"And usually the big thrill comes but once a season and sometimes not even then", says the smiling Mr. Widener, who knows only too well of the large sums of money annually "burned up" in entries and forfeits.

No wonder an owner must win a Kentucky Derby of $50,000 to pay the way of such an expensive fancy.

There are only a few exceptions. Samuel Riddle bought a colt that perhaps you have heard of. It cost him $500 at a public auction. It later earned $249,465. The colt's name was Man o' War.

TWIRLS 38 TIMES ON TOE

The ballet dancing record for twirling on one toe was set by accident in London recently. Vera Memchinova, the Russian ballet star, was to have emulated five other famous prima ballerinas by twirling 32 times. She started a few bars of music too soon, and the result was that she turned on her toe 38 times, which is believed to be a record.

QUEBEC CHAMPS WHITEWASHED 5-0

Kitchener - Waterloo Panthers Win Intermediate Canadian Final—Smart Football.

KITCHENER, November 28 (Canadian Press). — Smart football despite the greasiness under foot caused by heavy downpours during the day characterized the 5 to 0 victory of the Kitchener Waterloo Panthers, champions of the O.R.F.U., over the Montreal C.N.R. Quebec champions, in the intermediate Canadian final played at Victoria Park here on Saturday. The two teams were well matched, and both entered the game under a handicap in that the play in which they placed most reliance was greatly hampered by the heavy going. The Panthers all season have gained consistently by their extension thrusts which opposing teams have been unable to cope with successfully, while the Montrealers could not hit the line with their usual success owing to the uncertainty of the footing.

With these conditions obtaining, the game had to be decided upon at least one of two things, breaks or kicking. The breaks were evenly divided, and there was no really big one in the game ,the teams playing mighty good football under the conditions obtaining. It was in kicking that the contest was decided, with Alex. Peters having the advantage over Wally Whitty, though the former had to be excellent to best his good and game rival.

Earned the Verdict.

The winners, though they did not get a major score, well earned the verdict. They had the play for the most of the time in Montreal territory, but the Easterners proved to be good defensively, and on only a couple of occasions was the Montreal line really in danger from a touch. On the other hand the Twin City line was never in danger in that regard. The greatest opportunities came early and late in the contest when the winners had possession 25 yard out, but on each occasion the attempted drop over failed, the last one going to the dead line for a point and the first being a bad miscue. The winners had the better of play in the first, third, and fourth quarters, and though they scored all their points singly they earned every one of them. In the second period Montreal showed their best form and had a slight margin. The kicking of Peters and the tackling of the Montrealers, the latter the best ever seen in the Twin City, featured the game, and this tackling helped to hold down the fast Twin City backs. In line plunging, honors were about even.

Peters kicked to the dead line for a point early in the first quarter, and then the teams battled along on a scoreless basis for nearly half an hour. In the third session, however, the Panther opened up a warm offensive in trying to get a touch, but they could not . However, they did add two singles, one a rouge and the other a touch in goal, Hutton booting the ball out deliberately to save a possible touch as the Twin City wings were about him. In the fourth quarter the winners confined their energy to hemming the Montreal backs in one corner of the field and running them out of touch while they forced the visitors gradually back, C. Seagram kicking one to the dead line in an attempted drop over and Peters booting another point to the dead line on a long punt.

W. Whitty, Hutton and Farmer were the pick of the losers, while Peters, Schneider and McBride were the best of the winners. The Twin City team entered the O.R.F.U. rugby in 1922, and last year won the title, but did not play in the O.R.U. play-downs owing to being too late for that competition. This year they went through the season without a defeat, playing eight games in all and being the only team in Eastern Canada not to have suffered a reverse. The club is hopeful of securing senior rating next year.

The teams:

Montreal — Flying wing, Farmer; halves, Hutton, Galbraith, W. Whitty; quarter, Nelson; snap, Clarke; insides, Hollingsworth, Noel; middles, Smith and Lambton; outsides, Burnfield, Epstein ;subs., Platt, Skelly, L. Whitty, Marshall, Brown, Godwin, Allan, Hempey, Giblin.

Twin City—Flying wing, Ferguson; halves, Schneider, Peters, Hill; quarter, C Seagram; snap, Breithaupt; insides, Davidson, Songbusch; middles, McBride, Ruppel; outsides, Evans, Moore; subs., F. Seagram, Hemphill, Farrel, Kinsman, Gaskin, and McDermott.

Officials — Referee, Barton; umpire, Sinclair.

MAROONS TAKE HARD BATTLE FROM SENATORS

Montrealers Register the Only Goal Scored Early in the Game.

PERFECT NET KEEPING.

Superior Combination Play Wins Decision For Canadian

MONTREAL, Nov. 28 (Canadian Press-.—Montreal Maroons won a doggedly fought National Hockey League match here Saturday night from the Ottawa Senators by one goal to nil. 12,500 people saw the teams depart from the tight defensive games they have played with each other in the past. While the defences were sound the game was an attacking one and very open for these two teams. Maroons scored early in the game and managed to cling to the margin in spite of strenuous attempts of the Senators to tie it up. In the last period only perfect goal-tending by Benedict and a dash of luck kept out what looked like an inevitable counter as Clancy and Kilrae, Finnegan and Nighbor, Denneny and Broadbent swarmed around the Maroon net and blazed in stinging drives.

It was superior combination that won for the locals. Right from the opening whistles their forwards commenced a varied passing attack. On one of these Stewart scored. He and Phillips left their blue line together, and with short snappy passing wove their way right to the Senators' goal. Stewart received Phillips' last pass two feet out and slammed the rubber past Connell. While Ottawa depended largely on one-man rushes in the early stages of the game, Nighbor was feeding his wings judiciously, working through the outer defence and slippin the puck to his smart young forwards, Hec. Kilrae and Frank Finnegan to attempt the finish of the rush. Kilrae led in dangerous attemps, but was frequently skated into the corners by the Maroon defence, Munro and Dutton. In the second period, however, Kilrae, Nighbor and Finnegan started a short passing game which swept them right in on Benedict repeatedly.

In the second period came perhaps Ottawa's best chances to score. Twice they were two men with Stewart, Phillips and Munro guarding Benedict. The locals gave an exhibition of defence work and puck ragging that was successful. Time after time one of the three would get the puck, work his way to the Ottawa blue line, pass it way back to a team mate who would repeat the performance.

From the face-off, while the Maroons were short handed, Nighbor grabbed the puck, sent it to Denneny, who passed to Finnegan, who brought Benedict to the ice with his shot. The puck lay two feet in front of the goaltender. Finnegan dashed in for what looked like a certain tally, but Benedict beat him to the rubber, smothering it. Line-up:

Ottawa—Goal, Connel; defense, G. Boucher and Clancy; centre, Nighbor; wings, Kilrae and Finnegan. Subs, A. Smith, Denneny, Broadbent, Grosvenor, Halliday.

Montreal—Goal, Benedict; defense, Dutton and Munro; centre, Stewart; wings, Siebert and Phillips. Subs, Ward, Oatman, Carson, Emms, Touhey and Walsh.

Referees — Mickey Ion and Louis Berlinquette.

Summary.

First Period—

1—Montreal, Stewart, 5:11.

Second Period—

No score.

Third Period—

No score.

Penalties — First period, Kilrae, Clancy (major); second period, Siebert (2), Dutton, Clancy, Carson; third period, Ward and Kilrae.

Booing Angers Player Slashes At Spectator

CHICAGO, Nov. 28 (Canadian Press). — Mrs. Frederick McLaughlin, formerly Irene Castle, narrowly missed serious injury at the Chicago Black Hawk and Detroit Cougar hockey game Saturday night when "Duke" Keats, a Detroit player, swung at a spectator with his hockey club, barely missing Mrs. McLaughlin.

Keats had been ruled off the ice for rough play and as he was skating off the floor a spectator "booed" him. Keats dashed over to the man and swung his club. The man, seated in a box on the ice, ducked and the club struck the back of a chair not two feet from where Mrs. McLaughlin was seated.

The crowd broke into a siege of booing at the incident which occurred in the second period and it was several minutes before the teams could resume play.

The game resulted in a scoreless three period draw. The sterling defence play of both Gardiner, the Chicago goal keeper, and Holmes, for Detroit, stood out during the contest.

BALMY BEACH WINS C.R.U. TITLE DEFEATING TIGERS 9 POINTS TO 6

Playing of Moore and Foster Features Final Game in Toronto.

ON MUDDY FIELD.

Superior Aerial Game Wins For Toronto Boys—Tigers' Line Stronger.

TORONTO, November 28. — From out of the depths of three successive failures in their challenge for Canada's senior rugby championship Balmy Beach rose with a vengeance on Saturday afternoon to trample Hamilton Tigers in the mud of Varsity Stadium by a score of 9 to 6, the triumph ending their long trail to the title and the Earl Grey trophy. The new kings fully deserve the crown for Hamilton's Bengals, the best in the Interprovincial and conquerors of Queen's, Intercollegiate champions, were decisively beaten in one of the most brilliant and thrilling games of rugby of any recent season. The O.R.F.U. champions fought as though inspired against a supposedly master machine that was highly favored to crush them with ease, and when the battle was over the frenzied Beach fans flocked on the sodden gridiron to stage one of the greatest demonstrations ever accorded a Toronto team.

Young Players Star.

Two lads just out of their teens were the heroes: Yip Foster, the Beachers' husky-kicking half, outbooting Pep Leadley, rated by many as the best back in the Canadian game, while "Red" Moore baffled the full Tiger team with his daring play. Moore gave a super display of backfield brilliancy as he streaked through the Hamilton forces for long gains after making daring catches, leaving trails of tacklers in the mud at his heels. All at the game will admit the superiority of the Tiger wing line on formation plays, but it benefitted little for Balmy had a wide margin in the aerial warfare which won the game. Never has such a large gathering defied a down pour of rain at any local sporting event, and it was well repaid in thrills for the game was packed with excitement from the first to the final whistle, and proved one of the mightiest upsets in rugby

The game was a wonderful example of the possibilities of Canadian Rugby, enough spectacular and clever plays being crowded into the sixty minutes for several contests. Balmy Beach made their first offensive bid in the first half and collected enough points to stay them over the period when Tigers held the upper hand. The Bengals showed their tricks in the last two sessions, from their steam-roller line plays to open field work, but it was too late to repair the damage. To pick the best play of the game is a problem, but one that was outstanding resulted in Tigers' try. Leadley outguessed the Beach team by booting an onside kick around the short end the ball landing perfectly in the outstretched arms of Frank McKelvy, the unchecked Tiger quarter, after the Paddlers had been decoyed by a shift to the opposite side of the field.

Few Mistakes.

Almost every minute of the contest produced pulse-throbbing incidents, as with the ball greasy in slime and water and the footing slippery, anything might happen, but despite the adverse conditions there were few mistakes, the fumbles being about equal. Balmy Beach's major count followed a Bengal blunder but matters were evened in the second half when the Paddlers fumbled and helped the Tigers in their march for a try.

Continual kicking gave Balmy Beach the verdict, a lesson learned in Ottawa in the C.R.U. semi-finals last year, when Joe Miller punted six single points in the last period to send the Senators on to the championship. Balmy Beach resolved after that game on Lansdowne Park to come back stronger than ever, and they succeeded by playing the game that beat ther last attempt. The teams:

Hamilton Tigers: Flying wing, Small; halves, Leadley, Wright and Languay; quarter, McKelvey; snap, Cox: insides, enman and French; middles, Timmis and Baker; outsides, Veale and Bowman; subs, Walker, Nolan, Springstead, Bden, Charters, Wager, McRae, Bates, Shuttleworth.

ASTHMA CAUSED BY FLATULENCE

Asthma is a distressing ailment, characterized principally by difficult breathing. Patients suffer from an inability to draw enough air into the lungs. Exhaling air usually is easy, but the patient struggles, during an attack, to draw in enough oxygen to supply his blood with this indispensable element. He is literally gasping for breath, and is suffering for want of oxygen the same as a fish when out of water.

The primary reason for this difficulty in breathing is because the diaphragm cannot be lowered far enough to draw the air into the lungs. Breathing is accomplished by the raising and lowering of the diaphragm, which is the flat muscle separating the lungs from the abdomen. During exhalation, the diaphragm presses upward and contracts, forcing the air out of the lungs, while during inhalation, the diaphragm lowers, and in this way, draws air into the lungs.

If an excessive amount of stomach and intestinal gas presses upward against the diaphragm, it is often impossible for the diaphragm to descend low enough to draw in the needed air. In short, if there is too much gas below the diaphragm, the diaphragm cannot draw enough air into the lungs simply because it is interfered with by this excessive gas in the abdomen. The heart is often affected by this pressure, and this form of asthma is then called "Cardiac asthma" because the lungs and the heart action are both affected.

Bronchial astham is another condition often present, in which there is a large quantity of mucus present which fills up the air passages, and interferes with the free circulation of air through the lungs. This excessive mucus is produced from the patient using too much sugar and starch, and too many of the fat foods, which load the blood with catarrhal material. This is thrown out through the delicate membranes of the lungs.

The excessive stomach and intestinal gas is produced by using too many of the starch and sugar foods, or from using any foods in bad combination with each other. Foods which are gas-forming in themselves, such as onions, garlic, cabbage, Brussels sprouts, turnips, etc., will also create this excessive gas, and these foods must be entirely eliminated by one who has a tendency toward asthma.

Drugs are entirely useless in the cure of this trouble. Of course, it is possible to struggle along for years using adrenalin, or smoking powders which contain opium, but this cannot bring about a cure, and I find that patients who have taken these treatments are always in worse condition than those who have not, and their cases are always more difficult to cure.

The cause then of asthma is too much stomach and intestinal gas, and excessive mucus in the bronchial tubes.

More about asthma tomorrow!

Questions and Answers.

Question: Roy W. asks: "In what manner do three drops of arsenic, in a glass of water as a tonic, effect a relief from pimples, and clarify the skin in a 16-year-old boy?"

Answer: Arsenic has a definite effect upon stopping skin eruptions, but I do not recommend the form used in medicines. There is a slight amount of arsenic in carrots when used raw and unpeeled. Use a properly balanced diet and a liberal amount of raw carrots. You will then get the same effect as you would from taking the medicinal arsenic, and have no bad results.

Question: Miss R. asks: "Of what value is peanut butter?"

Answer: Peanut butter has a high food value, containing as it does a large amount of oil and dextrose. Peanut butter combines well with any other kind of food, including wholewheat bread.

Question: A Reader asks: "Is it possible for one to have a serious kidney trouble, such as albumin medium—a chronic condition—and not have it show up in the urine?"

Answer: Your question is a perplexing one, as of course you could not have albumin in your urine without it showing in a careful analysis. There are many kidney disorders where albumin does not appear. Phosphates and pus cells will often show enough to be visible to the naked eye, but albumin is seldom visible except through a microscope and by careful analysis.

Question: C. W. writes: "Have been troubled for two years with an itching both winter and summer under the arms. Please tell me a cure.

Answer: Do everything you can to produce more skin elimination. Take a sweat bath two or three times weekly, or induce a daily sweat by vigorous exercises. Take one or two shower baths daily. Local applications to these parts are dangerous, and are not necessary.

GORGEOUS SHOW OF MYSTERY OPENS AT GRAND THURSDAY

Greatest Among Modern Magicians, Richards, To Play Three Days.

Way back into the shadowy, dreamy past, for centuries before the Christian era, people of all nations, creeds and colors have tried to fathom the great unknown, to look into the future and solve life's great mysteries. Each race has had its soothsayer, witch doctor or medicine man. As civilization has progressed, superstition has given way to science, and now all these great mysteries find expression in the hands of the modern magician.

Richards, the world's foremost magician, will be the attraction at the Grand theatre for three days, starting Thursday night. Richards brings to Peterborough a show that not only contains the very utmost in the most modern twentieth century mystery, but he also offers the most baffling and weird wonders of the Orient and Far East.

In fact, so great is his repertoire and so massive the equipment that twto special railroad baggage cars are required to transport the many big, ponderous effects; two mechanical crews are required to handle the trappings. A large company of artists, musicians, electricians, assistant magis and pretty girls assist, not to mention a regular Barnum's menagerie of live stock, birds and animals.

The show, most gorgeously staged, is in three acts and 19 elaborate scenes, and requires almost three hours in its entirety.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

THE FEATHERS

I saw the first white flakes come down,
Just sifting, drifting, through the town.
I thought, we have all sorts of weathers,
Then winter comes, and brings the feathers.
I don't know which I like the best,
The spring in all its tulips dressed,
The summer with its robins calling,
The autumn with the bright leaves falling,
Or winter, when the snow comes down,
Just sifting, drifting, through the town.

For winter, when the snow comes down,
Just sifting, drifting, through the town,
Is really such a funny fellow!
The summer's green, the autumn yellow,
Then winter comes all dressed in white
And scatters feathers all the night.
He never brings a single posey,
And yet he makes our cheeks all rosy.
And throws his feathers up and down
Just sifting, drifting, through the town.

For when the first white snow comes down,
Just sifting drifting, through the town
It covers all the ugly places
And weaves the wonderful'est laces
The summer brings us many a rose,
And yet I think, of all the weathers,
I like the one that brings the feathers
The feathers light as thistledown,
Just sifting, drifting, through the town.

RIOTOUS CHASE IN NEW FILM FLICKER

There may be worse places to be stranded in, but when you're stranded in Paris as Bebe Daniels was in her latest Paramount comedy, "Stranded in Paris," it's not so nice, nor is it very laughable—for the person most concerned.

You see, Bebe comes to Paris with full intentions of "doing the town." However, less than twenty-four hours after arriving, her purse has been stolen ,her way lost, and her stomach empty. In other words, she is "Stranded in Paris."

But after indulging in a few tears, she determines to carry on and finds a job with the not-so-modest modiste firm of "Hortense." Her first assignment is to take some gowns to Deauville. At the Paris depot, she is given the wrong tickets and addressed as the Countess Pasada. Nothing loath, Bebe determines to see it through.

The rails lead to St. Po where she is immediately led to rooms reserved by the Countess. What happens when the real Count and his consort arrive to discover the beautiful masquerader and the astonishment of her American sweetheart when they meet, provide one with a multitude of laughs,—not the least of which is caused by a riotous tally-ho chase which brings the story to a thrillingly comic climax.

"Stranded in Paris," now playing at the Regent, James Hall, Babe's leading man in "The Campus Flirt"; Ford Sterling and Iris Stuart are co-featured. Director Arthur Rosson worked from a screen play prepared by Ethel Doherty and Louise Long.

When a Man Loves

By ALLIE LOWE MILES

Copyright 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
John Barrymore in "WHEN A MAN LOVES" is a Warner Bros. Pic turization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Fabien, good and handsome youth of France, trains for the priesthood; but meets and loves Manon Lescaut, beauteous orphan, whose rascally brother, realizing her worldly value, barters her for gold to Ravoir, rich connoisseur of women. Fabien saves her and carries her off to Paris, where they live happily together. Manon's brother steals her for Ravoir; she escapes, and returns to the deserted lovenest, but Fabien has gone. Homeless, both roam Paris, looking for each other. Manon is seized by a rowdy.

CHAPTER X—Continued.

Only a thin partition and a few feet of space separated Fabien from Manon and her tormentor. He even heard the man's coarse laugh and a girl's scream. He had never heard Manon scream and she was so terrified that there was no familiar ring in her voice, however; it was a call for help, and Fabien rose to his feet. Dazed from his first bout with brandy, he staggered crazily and the landlord forced him into a seat.

"What you want to butt in for?" he growled.

"A lady in distress—" explained Fabien feebly.

"Lady, my eye—she come in here with him, didn't she?"

Fabien did not know. But on second thought he decided it did not matter. He could see several women, from where he sat, and they were all carousing noisily with their male companions. It seemed to be the usual thing. The spark of chivalry faded from Fabien's eyes and he reached for another drink! "God, I wish I could find Manon!" His head went down on his arms and he cried, real tears from exhaustion and worry.

Manon's efforts to free herself were futile and brought forth shouts of enjoyment from the big bully. His women were always willing, for his caresses, to the point of annoyance. This was the first time he had had to argue with one and the conquest was promising.

"Come on, beauty, it's time for a kiss," he whispered hoarsely with his mouth very near to Manon's lips.

With all her might she pushed at his face with both hands and screamed. But this did not prevent two strong arms from circling her waist and drawing her close.

By this time Manon's strength was gone and sobs of fright and hysteria shook her whole body.

Up in the attic room when Lescaut had promised to keep an eye on his rebellious sister he was not making an idle threat. She was too valuable to become lost or stolen again. Thus it was that, unknown to Manon, Lescaut lurked in the shadows when she started out alone from the pension and he followed at a safe distance. He wanted her to get a taste of being alone on the streets of Paris. According to his idea it would be the best thing in the world to put her in the proper state of receptiveness to his plans. But Lescaut had no idea of permitting Manon to become soiled by her contact with sordid reality—the Comte preferred her as she was, not as she might become if left on the loose without funds and a protector.

Lescaut saw Manon carried into the cafe, but he waited just long enough for her to appreciate his interference before making an appearance.

His entrance was most timely. Manon's strength had given way and the bully's loose lips were within an inch of her own when Lescaut roughly took him by the arm and spun him around. Surprised at this interference the man cursed loudly and made known his willingness to fight it out.

A purse of jingling gold Louis was forced into his fist as Lescaut explained, "I would appreciate your generosity in giving her up. She happens to be my sister and I must take her home."

Mollified by the gold and its promised pleasures the man relinquished his tempting prey.

Almost dead from fright, Manon clung to Lescaut for protection and support. It seemed that the experiences of the last few hours must have been a nightmare and, although Manon knew they were not, she could hardly wait to get out of that horrible cafe.

Realizing that she no longer made any resistance about going with him, Lescaut led her triumphantly through the center room toward the outside door.

They passed a man with his head buried on outstretched arms, but they did not look in his direction; if they had, Manon would have recognized Fabien. No explanations would have been necessary and she would have remained with him, even in that terrible place, rather than accompany Lescaut to the Comte's gorgeous mansion.

It seems strange and wrong that when two people loved as truly as Fabien and Manon that their lives should be wrecked and miserable as a result of their passion.

Fabien stayed at the lonely table until his dazed condition had been absorbed in sleep.

When he went out into the early morning his pockets were empty. But he was saved the anguish of knowing that Manon had been very near to him during the night and was by now, very much against her will, established as the Comte De Ravoir's pampered mistress.

CHAPTER XI.

Days and days of weary searching brought no trace of Manon.

It was impossible for Fabien to concentrate on anything until she had been found. He could not return to his father and hear Manon slandered, and he was in no mood to resume his studies. Love had so engulfed his mind and heart that he had surrendered himself to its resulting misery and declined every avenue of escape.

Tiberge was his one friend and support, without whose many voluntary loans Fabien would have starved. His courage was kept up only by the belief that Manon was true and trying as hard to find him as he was to locate her.

The passing weeks brought a change in his former neat appearance. His clothes grew shabby and he did not care. He knew that as soon as he found Manon his interest and ambition would be refired and he would enjoy the best life offered.

Tiberge never mentioned the call he made on Manon, yet he sensed that in some way it influenced her departure and as time passed and he saw how deeply and seriously Fabien was affected, he regretted the part he had played—not in their separation for he felt that was right—but in his friend's sorrow and broken spirit. He had never realized that love could work such havoc with a man's life.

A desire to justify his own stand, and perhaps bring Fabien to his senses, made Tiberge begin a personal search for Manon.

He was successful in locating her. Discovering the kind of life she was leading gave him complete vindication in the matter. He was right about her being the wrong type of woman for Fabien. Tiberge hurried to relate the news because he was sure that Fabien's interest and anguish would cease when he knew the truth, then he would be willing to return to his father and his calling.

They were walking along the Boulevard together when Tiberge said, "Heartache is a bitter thing to endure alone. We who love you have a right to share it—come back!"

"I shall never leave Paris until I have found Manon," replied Fabien tonelessly.

Now was Tiberge's chance. "But Manon is lost to you. She has placed herself under the protection of the Comte De Ravoir." He carefully studied Fabien's face and felt sorry for him.

"Damn you! Do you think I believe that lie?" Fabien's eyes blazed and his fists were clenched.

"My friend—it is the truth! I want only to help you." Tiberge spoke soothingly but it was useless.

Fabien quickened his stride and left Tiberge behind as though he no longer desired his society. However, he had not gone more than a few paces when he stopped dead in his tracks and peered tragically into a carriage that was passing by.

It was a beautiful and expensive carriage, but he did not notice that. Neither was he conscious that his gaiters and clothes were being spattered with mud from the wheels. All he saw was—Manon! His beautiful Manon! Still beautiful—more lovely than when he last saw her—but no longer his! This was to evident from her luxurious attire and magnificent jewels.

THE CONQUEST OF THE AIR — XIX — by Nicholas Afonsky

While the science of ballooning was progressing steadily, many exciting incidents occurred in connection with it. One was the tragic death of Mme. Blanchard, whose husband was killed in a balloon accident. She ascended to give an aerial display of fireworks in Paris, but her balloon became ignited, and she fell to death on the housetops.

One of the spectators of a balloon ascension in France, a little boy named Guerin, was caught by the trailing anchor of the balloon. He hung on the rope of the anchor for his life, and for about fifteen minutes sailed through the air, finally landing safely when the hot-air balloon cooled off and came down.

Before it became much more than a source of amusement, the balloon was used to investigate conditions in the upper air. An ascension for this purpose was made over a hundred years ago by two French philosophers, Gay Lussac and Buit, who studied magnetism and electricity at different heights from the earth.

In 1824 an aeronaut named Harris took his fiancee up in his balloon at London. The balloon began to fall. He threw overboard all his ballast, but the balloon still fell. Then he jumped overboard and was killed. The lightened balloon came safely to earth with his fiancee.

NEW FORD CAR OUT ON FRIDAY

Will Go On Display December 2, Company Official Announces.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS.

FORD, Ontario, November 28.—Announcement that the new Ford car will go on display December 2 was made on Saturday by W. R. Campbell, vice-president and treasurer of the Ford Motor Co. of Canada, Limited. Instructions have been issued for full-page advertisements in leading daily and weekly newspapers forecasting a showing of the new car in the larger centres of population on that date.

The advertisement refers to the new Ford as "The New Car" and makes drastic claims for its superiority over previous standards in the light car field. The announcement says in part: "This entirely new car surpasses the accepted standards of light car accomplishments; sweeps aside all boundaries of price class; establishes a new standard of acceleration, speed, power and smoothness that heretofore have marked only expensive cars as fine cars."

No announcement of the price of the new car is made but it is expected that a statement relating to price will coincide with the first showing of the product. In this connection Mr. Campbell said: "The new car will be in the low-price field and its price will, we believe, create as much interest and surprise as will its superior appearance, quality and performance."

It is understood that the initial showings of the new car will be made in Peterborough, Halifax, St. John, Quebec, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Hamilton, Kitchener, Sherbrooke, Brantford, Fort William, Moose Jaw, London, Windsor, Winnipeg, Regina, Saskatoon, Calgary, Edmonton, Vancouver and Victoria. As rapidly as increasing production permits, these public showings will be extended until all of the 736 Ford dealer points in Canada have been covered.

EXPLAINS HIGH PRICES.

H. P. KENNEDY.

H. P. Kennedy, President of H. P. Kennedy, Limited, while in the city Saturday, was asked by the Examiner his opinion of the reason for the high price of cattle at the present time and gave the following information with reference to the cattle situation at the present time and its future prospects:

It is a comparatively easy matter to view the past, also explain the present situation, but more difficult to read the future; however, under normal conditions, the past and present is bound to have a marked effect on the near future.

The Canadian situation can be reviewed as follows: Ever since the war ended in 1918, shipments of our best Canadian fat cattle were being moved overseas to Great Britain and other European markets and from 1922 to 1926 our best feeding cattle were being sent to Great Britain for store purposes, as many as 100,000 head per season. On account of the heavy freight and steamship charges, the net return to the Canadan farmer was so low that the farmers and ranchmen were not receiving the cost of production ;at the same time during these years the price of feeding cattle and fat cattle in the United States did not warrant our Canadians paying the $1.50 and $2.00 per cwt. duty on cattle to the United States' markets at profitable prices to our Canadian farmers, as the net return again was so low that the farmers and ranchmen were not realizing the cost of producing the cattle. For several years the same condition applied in the Western States while no duty had to be paid, yet the ruling prices in your principal markets were not sufficient to encourage production; hence there has been a steady depleting of the herds in Western States and Canada, many farmers and ranchmen selling their entire herds during 1925 and 1926 at sacrifice prices. Early in the season of 1927, all reliable information both from the United States and Canadian governments showed a marked shortage in the available supply of cattle, the shortage running from 25 p.c. to 30 p.c.

When you consider the population of both countries showing a fair percentage of increase each year and general business conditions most prosperous, it did not take much of an optimist to predict a rapid rise in the price of good cattle.

When one considers it takes from two to three years to increase materially the available supply of marketable beef, it is sane reasoning to predict strong prices for beef cattle for at least two years. While prices are abnormally high at present, it is current belief among many in the trade that the $20.00 mark for best finished steers will soon be marked up on the Chicago market.

On account of the trade war during 1926 and early 1927 in Great Britain between the American Packers and the Meat Markets of Great Britain over the marketing of Argentine beef, which resulted in losses to the trade in Great Britain running into the millions of pounds sterling, prices were forced so low that the Canadian exporters were forced to discontinue shipments of cattle to Great Britain; therefore the surplus of choicest Canadian feeding steers were being shipped in larger numbers than other years to the United States 'markets, and the spread in values between choice feeders and finished beef is wider than for several years; this would indicate feeding cattle sound business.

MANY ATTRACTIONS FOR FARMERS' TOUR

Party From Canada Will Spend 32 Days in Britain and Denmark.

MONTREAL, Nov. 28.—Final arrangements for the Farmers' Marketing Tour of the Canadian National Railways, which was confirmed on October 3rd by a long distance telephone message from the Railway Company's offices in London, England, to headquarters in Montreal, being the first business 'phone call between the two continents, indicate further attractions for those who will take the tour.

The arrangements for the ocean service for the party have been placed with the White Star Line. The party is to sail on the S.S. "Lapland" from Halifax on Monday, January 9th, this being one of the finest ships in the service. The party is to land at Plymouth, England, thus providing an extra day in the old land than at first planned. The transfer to Liverpool, where the tour proper is to start, will be made by rail, affording opportunity for the party to see that portion of England.

The entire itinerary in Britain and Denmark will occupy 32 days. The internal arrangements for the party overseas are in the hands of the Globe Travel Bureau, one of the best known travel agencies. The trip through England and Scotland will be for the most part in comfortable closed motor buses of a luxurious type.

In Denmark, special arrangements have been made within the past month for the party to see the best there in the way of co-operative production, co-operative marketing, bacon factories, dairies and breeding farms.

Briefly, the itinerary of the party is to be as follows: Plymouth to Liverpool, Manchester, Birmingham, Reading, Windsor, London (four days), Denmark (four days), London again (four days), Cambridge University, Chivers' farms, Cambridge to Nottingham, thence to York City and Minster, the valley of the Tees, Durham, Newcastle, thence to Scotland through Sir Walter Scott's country and the Lothians to Edinburgh, with the balance of the tour spent at Edinburgh, Glasgow, Ayrshire and Perth, with a possible visit to Aberdeen. At Perth, two days will be spent at the Shorthorn sale.

It is possible also that there may be a short trip for those of the party interested to Svalof in Sweden, where notable work has been done in breeding special varieties of wheat for northern climes.

The party is to sail from Glasgow on the return trip via the S.S. "Albertic" on February 19th.

COOPERATION OF TEACHERS AND PARENTS URGED

Value of Home and School Association Stressed By Dominion President.

ADDRESSES MEMBERS.

Dr. George W. Kerby, of Calgary, Gives Inspiring and Helpful Lecture.

An inspiring address was delivered by Rev. Dr. George W. Kerby, principal of Mount Royal College, Calgary, first vice-president of the International Home and School Association, and president of the Canadian National Federation of Home and School Associations, at a meeting of the Home and School Council held in the green room of the Y.W.C.A. on Friday evening.

Rev. J. W. Gordon, president of the Peterboro Council, introduced Dr. Kerby, and in doing so expressed pleasure in having so distinguished a speaker and regret that more were not present to hear him.

Dr. Kerby, after extending greetings and goodwill of the Calgary Federation, said he considered the home and school movement the greatest in modern education, and he is in profound sympathy with it, because "the progress of Canada and the prosperity and hope of the Empire is bound up in the heart of the child."

In referring to the meeting of the World's Federation, held in Toronto in August last, Dr. Kerby said it seemed to him to possess greater possibilities than any church or state meeting that he had ever attended. He predicted the spread of this great work throughout the entire world, and said he would do his very utmost to further this work in whatsoever way it was in his power to do so.

Dr. Kerby spoke of the hesitation on the part of some teachers to assist in the organization of an association, but the purpose is not to burden the teacher with extra duties, but to relieve the pressure of some of the burdens now thrust upon them. The main aim of the movement is to get a common understanding, a common interest and a common purpose. It is non-sectarian, non-political and non-racial. When youth breaks down there must be inquiry as to the cause, but there will be no breakdown if the home life and the school life are right. To set them right is the aim of the home and school movement.

The speaker briefly outlined the history of the movement, stating that it consisted first of mothers' clubs, which were formed in connection with kindergartens, where conditions of the children demanded parent education. From this the movement has grown till now every state in the Union to the south is organized. To show the popularity of the movement in Illinois, the speaker said that the superintendent of education there would not rate any school in the superior class unless it has a parent and teacher organization connected with it.

Dr. Kerby paid a tribute to the late Mrs. A. J. Courtice, who was really the founder of the movement in Ontario, where there are now hundreds of local organizations with a membership of over 12,000. In some associations the work had included the improvement and extension of the equipment in the schools, thus saving the boards of education large sums of money. In Vancouver the parent and teacher federation had become responsible for raising the sum of $80,000 in order that technical education might be carried on in one of the schools there. The work is only beginning but it is on the move. The summer round-up was commended. This should take place in May or June, when those children, who are intending to commence school in September, are examined as to physical condition, and treatment given if necessary.

In dealing with the name, "Parent and Teachers' Association," Dr. Kerby took it word by word. He said there are at least three classes of parents first, those who consider the children more or less of a handicap; second, those who have apparently great affection for their children but who sometimes sacrifice the higher and nobler things for title or wealth, and, third, those who realize their responsibilities and endeavor with all their resources to make their children a credit to themselves and to the state.

Teachers may be classified in three classes also; first, teachers who teach for money (they don't get much); second, those who teach in the hope of getting something better (may they get it soon), and, third, those who teach for the love of the work, and who strive continually to improve the pupils in their care. A better day is coming when education will be amplified. The school was made for the child, but parents must not turn the children into schools and expect the schools to turn out standardized children. All the blame for failure is too often laid at the door of the school or the church.

Dr. Kirby then dealt with some modern problems in education. Safety education is getting into the schools. There are fifty ways of getting hurt physically and morally. Self preservation is not new. It is as old as the race. The elementary pupils may be taught to cross the street safely by being trained to be careful. Later the moral dangers may be dealt with. After dealing briefly with sex education, the speaker went on to discuss social education and said education should improve the quality of life. "Mere knowledge does not insure good citizenship." The public teachers' life is more or less an open book. He lives among the public, who are not slow to criticize his movements. His life demands a high standard of character. A boy's life cannot be influenced by adults, as it is by other boys. Boys must associate with boys and girls with girls.

The great cleavage among educationists is caused by the question, "Which shall it be: a living or a life?" "The extremists on both sides are wrong," said Dr. Kerby. "The theoretical and practical must go hand in hand. There should be vocational guidance." Placement bureaus were advocated. There is a demand for a "cultural background." In exemplifying the need for the teacher to study the emotions of the children, Dr. Kerby spoke very tenderly of one of his teachers, who very kindly took him aside and made a serious and fairly successful effort to understand him. It is not enough for teachers to know their academic work and their methodology. They must know the child. There must be freedom to teach and freedom to learn.

Dr. Kerby then made a strong plea for what is sometimes called the backward pupil. He was glad to be able to say, that such a pupil was no longer sent home in disgrace, but that he had "become a challenge." "We must not over-emphasize the pupils' marks and credits. Sir Walter Scott was made occupy the dunce's stool, Thomes A. Edison was the despair of his teachers, the late Hon. G. W. Ross had extreme difficulty in passing his examinations, yet we must admit the superiority of these great men in their respective spheres. Teachers should be loyal to every student."

Dr. Kerby advocated the lightening of the course, saying that more time should be devoted to cultivating a love for literature, so that the boy would not throw down his literature tests as soon as his examinations were over and never wish to see them more. The child's education has been a failure if the child is lacking in the finer qualities that go to make a worth-while member of society.

Mr. A. Mowat very ably expressed his personal thanks and the appreciation of those of the meeting for one of the most enthusiastic and inspiring educational addresses that he had ever heard.

who was justified. As we accept our cross it vanishes.

"The martyrs thanked God that they were able to suffer for Him Who had died on Calvary. Our crosses are but feathers beside theirs. Pick up your cross. Jesus said, 'Blessed are ye if men revile ye.' Pick up your cross. It has been the symbol of victory ever since Calvary. God has the gateway to all opportunity, happiness, and eternal joy, and it is the way of the cross. What are all the tokens of mighty empires compared to the cross?" asked the speaker, concluding with a verse from "Abide With Me":

"Hold thou thy cross before my closing eyes;
Shine through the gloom and point me to the skies;
Heaven's morning breaks and earth's vain shadows flee;
In life, in death, O Lord, abide with me."

Special Music.

The Rev. J. E. Todd, pastor of George Street Church, conducted the service, while special music was rendered by the choir, under the leadership of G. F. Liddle. An outstanding number was the 'Cherubic Hymn,' by Grepchaninoff, sung unaccompanied.

WEDDING BELLS

DAVIS—TODD.

A very pretty wedding took place on Saturday, Nov. 26th, at 4 p.m., at the Park Street Baptist Parsonage, when the Rev. J. L. Harton joined together in the holy bonds of matrimony, Clare Davis, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Davis, 39 Conger Street, and Thelma Todd, second daughter of Mrs. Todd and the late Mr. Todd, 260 Lake Street.

The bride looked very lovely in a dress of poudre blue crepe de chine, trimmed with gold lace, with hat to match, with bouquet of pink and white carnations and maidenhair fern. The bridesmaid, a sister of the groom, looked very handsome in a dress of honeydew georgette crepe. Mr. Frank Marino acted as best man.

A dainty repast was served to about thirty guests at the home of the bridegroom's mother. The room was decorated in pink and white blossoms and looked very festive.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis will reside in Peterborough.

OBITUARY

MRS. ANNIE CARTER.

The death occurred at Keene on Sunday of Mrs. Annie Carter, widow of the late William Carter. The funeral will be held from her late residence on Tuesday at 2.00 p.m. with interment taking place in Fife's cemetery.

THOMAS LEAHY.

Thomas Leahy, aged 48, died suddenly on Saturday at his home, Lot 4, Concession 11, Douro. He is survived by four brothers, David and Michael of Douro, Patrick of Brockville, and William of Idaho, and one sister, Miss Mary Leahy, at home.

The funeral will be held on Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock leaving his residence and proceeding to St. Joseph's Church and Cemetery, Douro.

JOHN ROBBINS.

The death occurred in this city on Friday of John Robbins, in his 56th year. Mr. Robbins has been a resident of this city for the last two years and resided on Chamberlen street. The late Mr. Robbins was born in Madoc township. He was sick only a short time.

The funeral was held to-day at 3.30 from the residence of John Trotter, 141 Sherbrooke street, with the Rev. Mr. Mills and Adjutant Ham officiating. Interment took place in Little Lake cemetery.

LILLIE WALLACE.

The death occurred early on Sunday morning, November 27, 1927, at Nicholls Hospital, of Lillie Wallace, eldest daughter of Mrs. Wallace, 490 George Street, and the late John Wallace, after a lengthy illness. The deceased was a lifelong member of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church.

She leaves to mourn her loss her sorrowing mother, three sisters, Mrs. Gilbank of Leskard, Ont., Mrs. W. J. Hopkins, of North Monaghan, and Mrs. W. J. Watson, of Orono, Ont., and two brothers, Peter G. Wallace of this city and James Wallace, of Oshawa, Ont.; one sister, Mrs. Peter Campbell predeceased her about five years ago.

Half-brothers and sisters surviving are: Mrs. Bella Linton, Eyebrow, Sask., Mrs. William S. Clark, Peterborough, Ont., Mrs. Margaret McCracken, Dinsmore, Sask., John Wallace, Edmonton, Alta., Hugh Wallace, California, and William Wallace of Calgary.

The funeral will take place on Tuesday, November 29, from Comstock's Undertaking Parlors, at 11 a.m., and proceed to Little Lake Cemetery.

MRS. CHARLES CROWLEY.

The death occurred last night of Mrs. Charles Crowley, 352 Mark street. The funeral service will be held at 9.00 a.m. to-morrow at Immaculate Conception Church and Interment will take place in Ennismore Cemetery.

ELIZABETH HARPER IRWIN GRAY

There passed away at her residence, 198 Charlotte Street on Sunday, Mrs. Elizabeth Harper Irwin Gray, who for 77 years has been a resident of Peterborough. The deceased was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harper and was born in this city in the house adjoining that where she died. She was a life long member of St. John's Anglican Church.

She leaves to mourn her loss, her sorrowing husband, one son George C. Irwin, one daughter, Mrs. R. B. Irwin, two brothers, John and William Harper of this city; one sister, Mrs. A. Dobbin of Toronto; and ten grandchildren.

Robert William Irwin, a son, predeceased his mother on September 4th. He was manager of the Xenia district of the Ohio Fuel Gas Company, and was considered one of the best informed authorities on natural gas in that state.

The funeral will be held on Wednesday, at 2.00 p.m., from her late residence, 198 Charlotte Street, with interment in Little Lake Cemetery, the Rev. Dr. Blagrave officiating.

THRILLING PAGE FROM HISTORY IS THE SUBJECT

Story of Development of Hudson Bay Company Told To Rotarians.

NEW MEMBERS.

Rotarian H. R. H. Kenner Tells Them What Is Expected of Them.

The romantic story of the Hudson Bay Company was related to the members of the Peterborough Rotary Club at their weekly luncheon today by Rotarian W. R. Morris, whose paper dealing with the history of this organization that has played such an important part in the development of Canada was full of interest.

Among the guests today were J. H. Vernor of the Western Clock Company, and Rotarian Lou Potvin expressed the thanks of Rotarians to Mr. Vernor for the many kindnesses extended in connection with the Rotary dance in the new Westclox Building.

In acknowledging the thanks of the club, Mr. Vernor said that he hoped there would be many more buildings to open at the plant and consequently many more opportunities for Rotary dances.

Another visitor was Kiwanian Vernon Morphet, who sang two solos to the great enjoyment of the members.

Rotarian H. R. H. Kenner addressed Ray Harding and H. Bonner, new members of the club, giving a brief history of the Rotary movement and stressing the duty of Rotarians.

It was announced by President A. L. Killaly that a delegation of Peterborough Rotarians was in attendance at the Rotary luncheon in Lindsay today.

Rotarian W. R. Morris, who was "pinch-hitting" for the programmed speaker of the day, uncovered a subject that was most interesting, when he told of the history of the Hudson Bay Company, the second oldest commercial organization in the world. Beginning with the launching of the company by Prince Rupert and his associates in 1670, Rotarian Morris described the early progress of the company, told of the rivalry with fur traders and later with the North-West Company, described the Selkirk expedition, related the details of the amalgamation of the two rival companies, and the ceding of the company's land rights but not its trading rights to the Canadian Government in 1869; related the splendid service rendered by the Hudson Bay Company during the Great War and gave an interesting survey of the present status of the organization with its forts extending into the Arctic Circle, and its huge stores in Western cities.

It was a fascinating chapter of Canadian history that the speaker had chosen for his subject, and he used the rich material to good advantage.

WALES BEATS ENGLAND.

Wins International Match at Burnley, Two Goals To One.

BURNLEY, Eng., Nov. 28.—(Canadian Press.)—Wales defeated England in an international soccer match here to-day by two goals to one. The International soccer matches between England and Wales began in 1879. England has won thirty of the matches, and Wales six, while nine have been drawn.

EUROPE'S TROUBLES TO BE AIRED AT GENEVA

LABOR ASKS BEER BY GLASS ALSO EIGHT-HOUR DAY RULE; DEPUTATION MEETS CABINET

President of Trades and Labor Congress Heads Visitors To Toronto.

PROTECTION FOR WOMEN.

Changes in Minimum Wage and Mothers' Allowances Acts Urged.

TORONTO, Nov. 29 (Canadian Press).—The sale of beer by the glass in Ontario, and the enactment of an eight-hour day law were the features of suggested legislation which was urged upon Premier G. Howard Ferguson and the Ontario Cabinet today by a deputation from the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, headed by Tom Moore, President. The eight-hour day was wanted for industrial and commercial undertakings, the deputation told the ministers.

They also requested legislation for the further protection of women and children in industrial and commercial undertakings and in agriculture; co-operation with other provinces so as to make possible ratification by the Dominion Government of these draft conventions and recommendations and the bringing of all young persons, irrespective of sex, under the minimum wage act. The deputation also presented a resolution strongly condemning military training in the schools, and asked that the Ontario Mothers' Allowances Act be amended in include a mother with one child.

Another type of mother and child which needs more consideration, Labor men urged, is the case where there has been a family of two receiving the allawance, which allowance ceases when the eldest child becomes sixteen years of age.

The present Liquor Control Act in Ontario is still somewhat of an experiment and the Government might have to go further with it before any changes were made, was the answer of Premier Ferguson to the deputation's request for the sale of beer by the glass in Ontario.

OLD HOME STANDS SILENT AND LONELY

Verulam House Contents Sold By Auction This Week.

On the afternoons of Wednesday and Thursday of last week the contents of the home of the late D. J. Lundy were sold by auction. From all parts of the city people came seeking the rare and beautiful things to be sold at "Verulum House." Early in the day Burnham street was thronged with pedestrians and lined with cars, all bound in the one direction.

To many of those present at the sale, those who had at times enjoyed the hospitality so freely dispensed at this house during the past half-century, the breaking up of the old home seemed pathetic in the extreme. The sight of familiar furniture, now being auctioned off in business-like manner and quickly carted away to new homes, brought back memories of other days at the Lundy home.

To others, however, the sale was merely a sale; but a sale of especial interest in that the huge house, so thoroughly furnished and equipped from top to bottom, offered an opportunity for acquiring useful and beautiful furnishings such as is seldom given to the people of Peterborough.

And now, bereft of all that goes to make a home liveable and cosy, grim and gaunt as a spectre, "Verulum House" stands silent and lonely on the hill overlooking Little Lake, awaiting what the future holds in store for it.

CHANGING HOUSE FOR APARTMENTS

C. Olin is Altering House Owned By A. Reynolds at King and Rubidge.

The large house on the north-west corner of Rubidge and King Streets is being changed into an apartment house. A. Olin is doing the work for A. Reynolds, the owner. The house will consist of three apartments with five rooms and a bathroom in each. The two apartments in the front of the house will be larger than the one to the rear. All the latest conveniences are to be installed, and the house, when finished, will be one of the most comfortable and up-to-date small apartment houses in the city.

Cigarette Invented That Lights Itself

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., November 29 (United Press). — A self-lighting cigarette is claimed to have been perfected by John W. Leon, of Atlantic City, a second-year student in Columbia University.

A paper tab, treated with an inflammable substance, is attached to the end of the cigarette, and when torn off there is flame from which the cigarette is lighted, Leon said.

The device is said to be odorless and tasteless, and does not injure the tobacco.

WRECK TOLL IS NOW SEVEN

Five of Victims Have Been Identified Are Recovering.

ENGINES BEING MOVED.

ENTERPRISE, Ont., Nov. 29 (Canadian Press).—The death list in the railway wreck at Dockrill on Sunday stood at the tentative figure of seven today as railway workers resumed the task of clearing the wreckage The remains of the locomotives are being cut up today by oxy acetylene torches for removal.

The remains of two of the victims remain unknown, the charred body of a foreign woman and the leg of a child offering scant opportunities for identification. Four fellow victims of Engineer Burnett were tentatively identified as Frederick Rischur, Aaron Topp, bound for Meaford, Ont., Wilhelm Bauer, bound for Newcastle, Ont., and K. Kerekelar, who was believed on his way to Startford.

Of the injured in the Western Hospital, Toronto, reports today are that all are out of danger, save the 12-year-old Polish boy, Chuny Awerbuch, who though in a serious condition was slightly improved today. Others are leaving the hospital within a few days, some already having been dismissed.

TAKE HONORS AT EXPOSITION

Canadian Entries Placed Among Winners at Chicago Live Stock Show.

SHEEP-CATTLE CLASS.

CHICAGO, Ills., November 29. — Canadian Press. — Another championship wended its way Dominion-ward when the yearling wether owned by Charles J. Shore of Glanworth, Ont., was adjudged the best Cotswold wether at the International live stock exposition. Shore also took the reserve ribbon.

Idlewyld Alberta, entered by the University of Alberta, took fourth place in the class for Aberdeen Angus yearling steers.

C J. Brodie of Stouffville, Ont., added to the Dominion's sheep wins by taking third place in the pen of three wether lambs contest. In the fat Southdowns Brodie also won 4th for the west wether lamb.

The population of London is increasing so fast that 12,000 additional houses are required each year.

ATTACK MADE ON CHURCHILL'S DEBT CLAIMS

Sir Herbert Samuel Says He Has Paid Off None of War Debt.

DEMANDS ECONOMY.

Influential Conservatives Also Present Similar Demand To Premier.

LONDON, November 29 (United Press). — The vigorous campaign against the Government which is being waged by the Liberal Party is exemplified by Sir Herbert Samuel's slashing attack upon Winston Churchill. In a speech last night he said:

"There is only one financier on record who stands on an equal footing with Mr. Churchill, and that is the Irish woman who declared with much satisfaction that she had been able to borrow enough money to pay off all her debts." He declared that Churchill's defence to the effect that he had made immense efforts toward the repayment of the war debt was a hollow pretence, because "I can prove that out of his annual revenue Mr. Churchill in the past three years has repaid no debt at all."

Sir Herbert made a strong demand for economy all around.

This appeal finds a strong echo in the public mind, and a number of influential Conservatives are presenting a similar demand to Mr. Baldwin.

KNOX ANNIVERSARY SERVICES ON SUNDAY

Rev. Dr. E. A. Henry, of Toronto, Will Be Special Speaker.

The people of Knox Church are delighted at the prospect of having the Rev. Dr. E. A. Henry of Deer Park Presbyterian Church, Toronto, conduct their seventeenth anniversary services next Sunday morning and evening. Dr. Henry was a very popular and successful minister in Hamilton, Regina and Vancouver before going to Toronto. He is also the author of a book of story sermonettes for children, entitled "Little Foxes," which is composed of material he has used very successfully, in dealing with the children of his congregation. In addition to hearing Dr. Henry, Knox Church will have Mr. Douglas Carlisle as soloist both morning and evening.

ONE MAN KILLED IN TRAIN WRECK

Trains Collide at Dayton Early To-day—Fifteen Injured.

DAYTON, Ohio, Nov. 29.—(Canadian Press.)—One man was killed and fifteen injured, some seriously, when a big four passenger train, New York to Cincinnati ,and a big four freight train collided at a street crossing early today. The diner and four Pullmans of the passenger train were derailed and the engine and two cars of the freight overturned.

Army Wins Battle And Gets Permit To Serve Liquor In Permanent Barracks

TORONTO, Ont., November 29 (Canadian Press). — The Canadian Militia forces in Ontario have won a victory without bloodshed and even before hostilities commenced. D. B. Hanna, chairman of the Ontario Liquor Control Board, announced to-day that a special permit has been granted the military forces at Kingston enabling the consumption of spirits, wines, and beers in the messes and canteens. This is in accordance with the regulations of the King's Army which provide hard liquor, wines and beers for the officers, wines and beers for the sergeants, and mere beer for the enlisted men. These distinctions are made by the regulations nd not by the Liquor Board.

Mr. Hanna stated that the application had been made for permission to carry this out by way of the Department of National Defence, and the permit was granted. "As a matter of fact," Mr. Hanna said, "the King's regulations are supreme and override any provincial law, and the military authorities could have forced acknowledgment of their right to have such liquors for the permanent forces."

CHART SHOWING HOW C. P. R. WRECK OCCURRED.

The above diagram shows how the wreck occurred. Intending to run into Dockrill spur to allow the Chicago train to pass, the freight train over-ran the switch by five cars. There were 40 cars in the train and as the track was a downgrade at the approach to the switch, the engineer found it impossible to back. Time was short and the situation desperate, so sending a man ahead to flag the express, he broke the string at the switch with the intention of running along with the engine and five cars to the eastern end of the spur. He then planned to back into the spur, couple up with the rest of the string and drag the whole train into the spur. But time was against him. The express train, 10 minutes late, running at 70 miles an hour, suddenly rounded the curve and crashed head-on into the freight before the latter had got into position to back into the eastern end of the spur. Dockrill siding where the collision took place, was about midway between the stations of Lens and Wilkinson, approximately 60 miles west of Smith's Falls and 36 miles east of Belleville on the main line between Montreal, Toronto and Chicago.

BAZAAR OPENS FOR HOSPITAL

Catholic Parishes of City Are Holding Sale All Week.

WIDE VARIETY.

The grand bazaar conducted by the Roman Catholic parishes of the city in aid of St. Joseph's Hospital opened in the Market Hall yesterday, and will continue during the rest of this week, up to, and including Friday night, with the hall cleared for the Saturday morning market.

The ladies of the three parishes, with Mrs. John Lynch as convenor, assisted by those of the surrounding districts, who are also contributing generously towards the Country Store, where articles are raffled off, have been working zealously and devotedly during weeks past for this big event, and the result of their united labors, as well as of the help of their assistants, men of the three parishes, are visible in the gala appearance of the big hall, where the various booths, ranged along the four walls, are decorated in bright paper streamers, and overhead lines of brilliantly-colored pennants add a final touch to the festive interior. At the northern end of the hall, a large enclosure is curtained off for the service of hot noon and evening meals, and the tables here are made attractive by the use of spotless linens, flower-filled vases and bright decorations, while the excellent viands provided by good cooks make the meals inviting in the extreme.

At the Country Store, with ladies of the three city parishes in charge, represented by Miss Anna Hurley from St. Peter's Cathedral, Mrs. W. J. Grady from the Sacred Heart Parish, and Mrs. Fred Crough from the Parish of the Immaculate Conception, with assistants in Mesdames M. F. Sharpe, T. McGarrity, J. Grisdale and Miss M. Moloney of the city, and Mrs. T. Lynch and Mrs. William Devlin of Otonabee, there are quantities of useful and pretty articles, including such things as live and dressed fowl, in turkeys, geese, ducks and chickens, quilts of every variety, counterpanes and pillow-cases, vegetables by the bag, groceries of all sorts, apples, canned fruits, hams, comforters and feather pillows and electric heaters. Mr. T. Turcotte officiated during the sale last night, assisted by Messrs. Joseph Ryan and Hubert Legrow. Red and white paper decorates the Country Store.

Directly beside the door is the fish pond, whose square-curtained depths hold a variety of very interesting things. Miss Annie Simons has charge of this centre of amusement and profit, and has, through weeks of careful labor, collected a wonderful assortment of pretty articles, including dolls and novelties, painting sets, little woolly elephants, dolls' clothing and hats, and toys of every type. A little side sale from this booth has to do with "By Low" and "Roly Poly" dolls, week-end sets and silver mesh bags. Miss Simons is assisted by the Misses Agnes Burns, Ada Meagher and Agnes Weyer.

In a red and green booth, where cigars and cigarettes are sold, Mrs. W. O'Brien, Mrs. F. McNulty and Mrs. Frank Lynch have charge, with an attractively-arranged small smoking-room in conjunction, where masculine patrons can retire for a friendly smoke and chat. A checking booth

Working On Jail Saves Trip Inside

DETROIT, November 29. — Harley R. Elliott, forty-eight, was found guilty of drunkenness by Judge Charles Bowles in the Recorder's Court yesterday.

"Where do you work?" Judge Bowles asked.

"At the County Jail."

"In what capacity?"

"I'm a laborer on the new building," Elliott replied.

"Well, we surely need the new building," Judge Bowles ruled. "Sentence is suspended."

ASKS SUPPORT OF PROTESTANTS

Premier Taschereau Remarks On Preponderance of French in Legislature.

WANTS TO KNOW REASON.

MONTREAL, Nov. 29 (Canadian Press).—French-Canadians want the co-operation of the English Protestants of the province in solving the problems of the future, and for "the common good of all," Premier Taschereau said last night at a dinner in honor of Joseph Cohen, M.L.A., St. Lawrence, and Col. Renouf and Allan Smith, unsuccessful Liberal candidates in the last Provincial election in the St. George and Westmount divisions respectively.

After noting the preponderance of French-Canadian members in the Provincial Legislature, and making a plea for more support from the English Protestant community, Premier Taschereau asked, "What has the English Protestant community to find fault with? In what way have they been wronged? . . . If we are to sin the Government wants to sin on the side of excess of generosity."

HOUSE GIVES WAY TO GAS STATION

Shell Company Will Put Up Building at Rubidge and Charlotte.

The large white brick at the south west corner of Rubidge and Charlotte Streets, occupied by Mrs. C. Hodgson, has been purchased by the Shell Gas Company of Canada and is to be torn down and a service station built in its place. The Shell Gas Company has no service station in this city although it has several curb pumps and has for some time desired to get a suitable location for a public station. The company is also contemplating locating large gasoline tanks in this city, but up to the present has not found a suitable location. The estimated cost of the new service station is $6,000.

Beg Your Pardon

The funeral of the late John Robbins, who passed away in this city last Friday was held yesterday afternoon from 139 Sherbrooke Street, not from 141 Sherbrooke Street, as reported yesterday.

Jazzless Cabaret Popular In London

LONDON, Nov. 29.—London's first jazzless cabaret has made a hit. The Charleston, too, has been barred at the same place.

Percy Athos, manager of the New Princes Cabaret, says the first week after he did away with jozz and reverted to waltz melodies as the basis of his chorus numbers and dances he did the best business in years.

HUNDREDS ARE PUT TO DEATH BY RED TROOPS

Campaign of Terrorism in Lukfung Districts Ends in Massacres.

PROPERTY CONFISCATED.

March Through Streets Carrying Heads of Victims on Lances.

HONG KONG, Nov. 29.— (United Press.)— Refugees arriving in Hong Kong yesterday from the Haifug and Lukfung districts in southeastern Kwangtung told of wholesale massacres by red troops.

They said more than 800 persons had been put to death in one small town.

Carried Victims' Heads.

The Roman Catholic bishop of Hong Kong described the ghastly procession of "red triumph" where a number of the heads of victims were carried from one city to another.

He said a distinguished Chinese scholar was among the victims. The bishop said that before the scholar was killed his nose was cut off, his ears were pierced with rope and he was led in a procession by a rope.

All property was confiscated, reports said. Title deeds were burned, fields were seized, and arrangements were made for the distribution of crops. In the future, it was said, the government would get 30 per cent. of the crops. The farmers would retain the rest, and the land owners would have nothing.

Campaign of Terrorism.

Chinese strikers in Canton, whom the government had housed there for two years, were ejected from the premises on Friday. They began the campaign of terrorism during the week-end.

Sixty fires were started, which destroyed much property. Further destruction was stopped when many agitators were arrested.

Terrible Situation.

HANKOW, Nov. 29.—Closely following up the subjugation of the Whuhan cities (Hankow, Wuchang and Hanyang) by the Nanking nationalists, there is unquestionable evidence of dissension among the authorities recently established there by the Nanking government.

Despite the Nanking declaration that the new Wuhan government will be civilian, not giving the militarists an opportunity to create a new sphere of influence," the newly-arrived Nanking militarists are openly antagonistic.

The situation in the Chinese city is appalling. Bandits and soldiers are looting the business district, both by day and night and there are numerous unenumerated murders. The police there are helpless.

Bandits Increasing.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 29.—Hordes of armed bandits increased their activities during the past week and the military situation to-day was uncertain. A British constable in the foreign settlement was killed by the bandits. Eight bandits were shot by the police.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS TO DISCUSS EASTERN EUROPEAN SITUATION AT OPENING SESSION OF COUNCIL

Controversy Between Poland and Lithuania Will Be Forecast Problem.

RUMORS UNFOUNDED.

Hoped By Foreign Ministers' Solution May Be Found For Difficulties.

LONDON, November 29 (Associated Press).—Europe's troubles are to come under the august eye of the Council of the League of Nations, which holds its opening session on November 30. Foremost will be the controversy, with its many ramifications, between Poland and Lithuania. The presentation of the facts in this disturbing case will probably mean the airing of interesting details connected with the powers supporting the respective sides.

The importance of this Council meeting is indicated by the fact that the heads of the states concerned are moving to Geneva, Marshal Pilsudski for Poland and Premier Waldemaras for Lithuania. They will meet Sir Austen Chamberlain and the Foreign Ministers of the other great powers and while optimism is not generally indulged in some quarters, there appears to be hope that a solution may be found for the difficulties.

Deny Action.

While the Lithuanian Government has forwarded to the League of Nations that it has considerable information tending to prove that Poland is seeking the overthrow of the Waldemaras Government, the Polish Minister at London, Constantine Skirmunt, presented a note to the British Foreign Minister yesterday, declaring that there is no intention on the part of the Polish Government to infringe the political independence and territorial integrity of Lithuania.

Poland, according to its Minister wishes to use its efforts to end "the state of war which successive Lithuanian governments have pretended exists between Poland and Lithuania."

Whether the League Council, which endowed Poland's seizure of Vilna, and thereby started the present enmity between Lithuania and Poland, will be able to reconcile the antagonisms is considered rather doubtful. There is talk in some European centres of a project for the federation of Lithuania with Poland as a possible solution, but such a project would open up an immense field of opposing European interests, and is generally regarded as out of the question.

The British Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Godfrey Locker-Lampson, in the House of Commons, while not attempting to go into the particulars of the case, said that the British Government trusted that a settlement restoring friendly relations between the two countries might come about through negotiations.

Riot Rumors Unfounded.

In the meantime, the continental telegraph lines have been engaged in denying from authoritative sources—official sources—many of the sensational rumors that have recently been spread pointing to actual or projected revolts or attacks in the perennially troubled Balkan countries. These alleged outbreaks were staged in the Ukraine, the Black Sea, Kovno and on the Danube, where Roumanian frontier guards are said to have fired on Bulgarian fishing boats. All the reports have been recounted with much circumstantiality, but all have been denied.

In actual fact, as shown by Associated Press despatches from Moscow, Bucharest, Kovno and Warsaw, all these countries are quiet. There is much anxiety and nervousness, however, in the European foreign offices, of the motives of the various states and in Eastern Europe much suspicion towards each other exists.

Notes are being presented to the big powers by the aggrieved countries, setting forth their viewponits in the disputed questions, probably with the aim of influencing opinion at the coming meeting of the League Council.

Kovno, the Lithuanian capital, is greatly wrought up over the situation, and Premier Waldemaras, on the eve of his departure for Geneva, after recounting the various differences of his country with Poland, declared: "This cannot go on forever."

As indicative of the spirit of Kovno, a despatch by way of Berlin says that all the higher officers of the Lithuanian army assembled and declared their faith in the government and

Shoots Friend's Feet In Error For Rabbit's

PATCHOGUE, N. Y., Nov. 29. —(United Press).—Harry Meinch mistook the feet of his friend, George Webb, for a pair of restive rabbits.

Physicians at Ungers Hospital in Patchogue, who picked most of the gun-shot out of Webb's feet and legs, predicted that Webb would have difficulty in walking for several weeks.

Meinch and Webb were hunting in the Scrub Oak, near Patchogue. Webb lay down for a brief rest, his feet protruding above a low lying brush. When Webb's cry of pain proved to Meinch that he had made a mistake, he threw his wounded friend over his back and packed him half a mile to the State road, where a motorist took them to the hospital.

CABLE VALUE IS DISPUTED

Wireless Authorities Point Out Ease With Which They Are Cut.

INVESTIGATION ASKED.

LONDON, Nov. 29 (United Press)—Canada's formal request for an official inquiry into the competition between cables and wireless in Atlantic and Pacific transmission is not likely to result in the appointment of a royal commission as was originally suggested, but probably a committee representing the various interests involved will be appointed to study the whole situation.

There is no intention on the part of the Government to arrest or obstruct the development of wireless service, but it is recognized that Prime Minister Bruce's argument that cables have a strategic value is most important and that the interests of imperial defence demand that cables should be maintained.

The wireless authorities here, however, declare that the claim of the strategic superiority for cables is all nonsense. They point out that cables can easily be cut in time of war and that, although during the Great War all German cables were cut, Germany was always able to maintain communication with the outside world through her wireless facilities. Representatives of the Marconi Company urge that subsidizing cables today would be the same as subsidizing stage coaches at the time when railroads were first built. With regard to the question of secrecy, it is pointed out that it is even easier to tap a cable than it is to tap a modern wireless transmission.

THE WEATHER

The rain of yesterday, and last night added over an inch to November's already heavy rainfall. The total was 1.03. The lowest temperature last night was 31 degrees. What would have happened if the temperature last night had fallen a couple of degrees lower with the heavy rain prevailing, and with the boisterous gale that followed later? What might have been a calamity was escaped.—W.P.

GREAT MAGICIAN IS EAGER TO SOLVE PROBLEMS FOR PETERBOROUGH READERS

HAVE you sent your question to Richards? Dozens of others have. Richards will be busy answering them. He will be in Peterborough three days, and unless your query reaches him promptly, he may not have time to write his answer.

RICHARDS

Richards will answer queries about business and love affairs, journeys, plans, changes, real estate, health, most anything in fact, if the writer sends the inquiry addressed to Richards, magician, care of The Examiner. All questions will be answered, provided you sign your name and address, as an evidence of good faith. Watch for the replies in The Examiner.

Questions are also answered by the magician during the regular performance in the Grand Theatre. He does not give private interviews or readings. Mr. Richards brings his big mystery show to the Grand Theatre for three days, starting Thursday, and during each performance will give a brief demonstration of the new science of psychomiency by which he derives answers from the thoughts of all who see him. However, psychomiency is only a small part of the big show, as he carries two special carloads of scenic effects, etc. and a large company.

Richards claims he is not a mind-reader, but a scientist and a magician. He is a famous magician because of the big show he carries, but it is gravely doubted by many that everything he does is based upon science, for Richards was reared a boy among the great Yogi and Brahma priests of North India, and from childhood has baffled many leading scientists with his work. But regardless of how he does it, send in your questions now if you want to be sure of receiving an answer,

LLOYD DORLAND IS ELECTED TO OLDER BOYS' PARLIAMENT FOR NORTHUMBERLAND COUNTY

Gerald Wright, of Brighton, Defeated By Majority of Sixteen.

ELECTION RESULTS.

Lawrence Dunbar, of Garden Hill, is Elected For East Durham.

WENTWORTH, Nov. 29.—The election for the Older Boys' Parliament for Northumberland County was held on Saturday, November 26th. The candidates had spent a busy week speaking at different centres; Wooler, Morganston, Smithfield, Warkworth and Havelock.

The poll on Saturday was rather [illegible] to the inclement weather and bad roads.

Lloyd Dorland of Wooler was elected by a majority of sixteen over Gerald Wright of Brighton. The poll over the county was as follows:

East Durham Election.

BAILIEBORO November 29. — The election for the boys' parliament in the constituency of East Durham was one of great interest to the entire community. The three members who contested were Archie Deyell of the village of Bailieboro; Laurence Dunbar of the village of Garden Hill, who was the successful candidate, and Ralph Staples of the village of Cavanville.

The following is the result of the five polling divisions in East Durham:

Archie Deyell: Welcome 16; Millbrook 28; Garden Hill 0; Bailieboro 53; Cavan 0; total 97

Laurence Dunbar: Welcome 20; Millbrook 28; Garden Hill 0; Bailieboro 2; Cavan 0; total 107.

Ralph Staples: Welcome 0; Millbrook 0; Garden Hill 0; Bailieboro 0; Cavan 10; total 10

It was expected that owing to the excellent weather which prevailed that there would be a large vote polled. However there were about a hundred votes that were not polled.

In the town of Port Hope the riding was contested by Fred Ough and John Lenty, the latter winning the election by 35 votes.

Prince Takes Tumble While On Quorn Hunt

MELTON MOWBRAY, Eng., Nov. 29. — The Prince of Wales was tossed headlong from his horse while hunting with the Quorn hounds yesterday thus adding anxiety for his safety to the general sorrow over the death of Lady Victoria Bullock, who was injured last week following the same hounds

The Prince, who was in the fatal week end party with the popular young sportswoman, the only daughter of Lord Derby appeared unhurt by his hard tumble yesterday afternoon. His horse attempted to take a fence of the post and rail type, but the animal's hind feet became tangled with the top obstacle, and the prince was catapulted from the saddle.

Picking himself up the royal heir caught his horse and quickly remounted. He continued in the hunt and later returned to London.

Yesterday's hunt behind the Quorn hounds proved unusually hazardous, for besides the prince several other riders suffered falls.

OMEMEE MAN HAS HIP BROKEN

Joseph T. Beatty Receives Severe Injury in Fall on Sidewalk.

OMEMEE, Nov. 29.—Joseph T. Beatty, a prominent business man of this village, slipped on the icy pavement in front of his store yesterday afternoon and broke his hip. Mr. Beatty operates a flour and feed store here, and the rains of yesterday made the pavements very slippery. Dr. C. V. Mulligan, of Lindsay, and Dr. Earle, of this village, set the broken bone.

HUNTER SUCCESSFUL.

Deer Shot Close To Marmora—Fox Tracks Are Plentiful.

MARMORA, Nov. 29.—A hunting party hailing from Picton returned home on Wednesday with three red deer and a moose obtained near Hay Lake in the Marmooth district. One of their dogs was caught in a snare set for wolves. Bert Davidson, of Marmora Village, shot a white horned buck close to Shanick on Friday. Judging by tracks seen, foxes are again fairly plentiful. Lorne Gray accounted for two last week.

Manuiu Declines Acting Premier's Offer Of Portfolios to Members of Opposition

BUCHAREST ,November 29 (Associated Press). — The muddled political situation in Rumania began to clear up yesterday now that the dead leader, Premier Ion Bratiano, has been laid to rest.

An offer of the acting Premier, Vintila Bratiano, of several Cabinet portfolios to members of the National Peasants' Party, has been declined by the party leader, Dr. Julio Maniu, who reiterated his demand for a dissolution of Parliament and new elections. Dr. Maniu holds that the present Parliament was dishonestly elected.

Vintila Bratiano was elected by acclamation president of the Liberal Party, replacing his dead brother, in a striking scene at a party meeting. Former Foreign Minister J. G. Duca embraced Vintila with brotherly affection, and formally proclaimed him the new party leader, thereby spiking reports that Duca himself was seeking that honor. His gesture won the admiration of the entire assembly.

"I confide to you," said Duca, "the great standard which your lamented brother and his father before him bore with such honor and glory and which I am certain you will carry forward with undiminished glory."

Vintila, much moved, promised to follow in the footsteps of his great brother, adding: "I would not have accepted the responsibility of leadership unless I had made certain of the support and loyalty of my friend, M. Duca, who was the confidante and collaborat[illegible] of my brother and the aid of the entire party."

Blind Caddy Trails Golf Ball By Sound

FRENCH LICK, Ind., Nov. 29—A partly blind caddy who follows the golf ball by sound, has been discovered on the French Lick Valley course.

The caddy accompanied Father Raymond, a Dominican priest, following the ball by the sound as it dropped to the ground.

POLICE SEEK STOCK BROKERS

Charged With Obtaining Money Under False Pretenses—Offices Raided.

AT VANCOUVER.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Nov. 29 (Canadian Press).—Acting under power of a warrant, local police are endeavoring to locate members of the stock brokerage firm of Stone and Company, whose offices were raided on Friday night, after it was found they had been closed. The charge named in the warrant is that of obtaining money by false pretences.

Detectives returned from Seattle Sunday night, where, it was reported, Stone and Company maintained an office. No trace of members of the firm was found there.

Investigation showed that the firm established offices here on November 3. Records show that hundreds of telephone calls were made in Vancouver and to cities in Eastern Canada and the United States.

Numerous business and professional men of Vancouver were interviewed by members of the firm and members were induced to deposit cheques covering margins on eastern stocks principally those of automobile concerns, detectives' reports indicate.

Police said that it is expected that the sums involved will run into many thousands of dollars. Two other stock brokerage firms, which had headquarters in Toronto, and recently established here, are under investigation.

THREE KILLED IN CAVE-IN

Walls of Three-Storey Building Collapse During Rain Storm.

THIRTY ENTRAPPED.

CHICAGO, Ills., November 29 (Canadian Press). — Thirty workmen were trapped and at least ten of them thought to have perished when three walls of a new brick garage building on which they were working collapsed, late yesterday afternoon.

The collapse occurred suddenly during a rainstorm ,the three walls buckling and crashing while the workmen were laying brick beyond the second storey.

A police squad and numerous emergency ambulances were sent to the scene, finding more than a score of men buried in a tangled mass of wreckage.

Seven injured men were dug from the debris and taken to hospitals, while a hurriedly formed rescue crew started digging for other victims.

According to employees of a garage nearby, lightning struck the steel girders of the new building, causing one of the big beams to crash through a construction shanty where about 15 workmen had congregated to escape from the rain. Several of them were injured.

Falls Dead At Mass; Had Never Missed One

CHICAGO, Ills., Nov. 29.—(United Press).—It was the boast of Mrs. Sarafine Hinski, 78, a devout Catholic that she had never missed a Mass since she was confirmed. "And I won't miss a single one till I die", she told a Nun at Poor Claire Convent church on Sunday. She entered the church and as she walked to the altar to receive the communion she dropped dead.

BELIEVED PLANES CRASHED IN STORM

Authorities Pick Up Broken Wing Off British Columbia Coast.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Nov. 29 (Canadian Press).—Two liquor runners, rushing through the air with a load of whisky, may have met death in turbulent Pacific waters off this coast when the storm of ten days ago ripped a wing from their plane. This is the story which it is thought may lie behind the discovery of a wing of a plane in Blind Channel, off Rock Bay, B.C., last Friday, local airmen say. Customs men of Puget Sound ports are making efforts to have the wing identified, it is said.

The party of sportsmen who found the wing described it as a 16-foot section. Local airmen declare that the paint is new, indicating that the wing had been a comparatively short time in the water. There are no markings on the wings. The air regulations compel the lettering of all British planes. United States airplanes are marked with numbers on their tail. It is also known that United States rum runners have been operating by airplane from the mouth of the Fraser River, at East Point, to Puget Sound ports. A strange plane with wings similar to the one found was seen over Vancouver on November 19.

Youthful Farmhand Sentenced to Chair

BUFFALO, N.Y., November 29 (Canadian Press). — Wilmont Leroy Wagner, youthful Canadian farmhand, who was convicted last week of the murder of State Trooper Robert Roy, yesterday was sentenced to die in the electric chair during the week of January 16. Sentence was imposed by Supreme Court Justice Charles H. Brown.

Thomas F. Rogers, counsel for Wagner, moved for a new trial before another judge. Justice Brown denied the motion.

Wagner heard the sentence calmly, giving no sign of emotion.

Rogers announced he will file an appeal.

DARING BANDITS MAKE $205,000 JEWELRY HAUL

Escape With Valuable Gems From Cleveland Diamond Establishment.

WOMAN IN TRIO.

Police Believe Robbery Executed By Expert Jewelry Store Robbers.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 29 (A.P.). — A trio of robbers—one woman and two men—entered the diamond establishment of Swirsky Bros., on the sixth floor of a downtown office building, late yesterday, held up clerks and customers, and escaped with diamonds and other gems valued at $205,000.

Police who had a detailed description of the trio from the elevator starter who took them from the sixth floor to the ground level, last night had rounded up numerous persons.

Police believed the robbery perfectly planned and carried out with remarkable precision, had been executed by expert jewelry store robbers.

The robbery came at a time when Cleveland police were making a drive against undesirable persons whom they believe came to Cleveland following drives against them in Chicago, Toledo, Detroit and other cities.

The men and the woman entered the store and after an exchange of pleasantries with the proprietor, Alex. Swirsky, asked to see some diamonds.

Swirsky took them into a booth where he showed them a number of diamonds. While the woman was examining the stones, one of the men, according to Swirsky, drew a gun and ordered him to throw up his hands.

His companion then walked to the front of the store and covered three clerks with a revolver. He then bound them with tape.

Rob Salesman

George Norcross, a diamond salesman who entered, also was bound, the man taking from him jewels which he told police were valued at $10,000.

The men then took a large number of diamonds and other gems from the safe, which Swirsky had opened.

The robbers told their victims to make no outcry for twenty minutes or they would be shot. The trio then left, locking the doors and cutting telephone wires.

Norcross told police he managed to free his hands and write a note telling police to "come to Room 612," which he threw out of the window. A traffic policeman picked it up and sent in an alarm.

CATTLE SELL WELL AT FARM AUCTION

High Prices Obtained By H. Harrington, of Menie at His Sale.

BURNBRAE, Nov. 29. — A very successful auction sale of livestock and farm implements was held by H. Harrington on the Rawdon boundary, east of Menie, last Friday afternoon, with C. W. Clancy as auctioneer. While some of the machinery sold at bargain prices, the sale of cattle more than made up for any lack in other departments. Good grade Holsteins brought from $70 to $91 each, with yearling heifers selling around $40 apiece and calves at $18 to $19 each. The rising tide in the prices of dairy cattle is being reflected on the farm auctions. Hog prices are low. A good brood sow sold for $26.50 and good feeder hogs about 140 lbs. for $9 each. Horses sold from $70 to $100 each, with a splendid young

OLD MASTERS

God save our gracious king,
Long live our noble king,
God save the king!
Send him victorious,
Happy and glorious,
Long to reign over us,
God save the king!

O Lord our God, arise,
Scatter his enemies,
And make them fall.
Confound their politics,
Frustrate their knavish tricks;
On Thee our hearts we fix.
God save us all!

The choicest gifts in store,
On him be pleased to pour,
Long may he reign.
May he defend our laws,
And never give us cause,
To sing with heart and voice,
God save the king!

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.

Espanola Man Charged With Murder of Boarding Mistress.

SUDBURY, Nov. 29.—(Canadian Press).—Charged with the murder of Mrs. Peter Therrien of Espanola last May, Omer Dube, for six years a boarder at the Woman's Home, was committed for trial by Magistrate McArthura at the conclusion of the preliminary hearing late on Saturday at Espanola. Little new evidence was introduced. Mrs. Therrien's body was found in the Spanish River with little covering.

WEDDING BELLS

WIGHT—PATTERSON.

At Trent River, on Tuesday, November 22nd, at the home of Mrs. A. Wight, "Cedar Isle", the marriage was performed by the Rev. Mr. Lougheed of Knox Presbyterian church, Havelock, of Lillian Pearl Patterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Patterson, Peterborough, and Norman Francis, third son of Mrs. A. Wight, Trent River.

The bride entered the room on the arm of Dr. A. Michell. She wore a gown of blue crepe de chene and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses, carnations, and maiden hair fern. Miss Laura Wight was bridesmaid and was gowned in blue crepe de chene and carried Ophelia roses and maiden hair fern. Mr. Charles Calvert, Campbellford, ably assisted the groom.

After tendering congratulations the guests repaired to the dining room where the wedding dinner was served.

The Rev. Mr. Lougheed proposed the toast to the bride which was responded to by the groom, and to the bridesmaid which was responded to by Mr. Charles Calvert.

Mr. Thomas Wight, Sr., grandfather of the groom, made the speech of the evening, with good advice to the newly weds.

The table was decorated with carnations and roses. The large three storey wedding cake adorned the centre. The following guests sat down with the bridal party: Mrs. H. A. Christie and daughter, Miss Marie Davey, Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Lougheed (Havelock), Mr. and Mrs. J. Garneau, Mrs. J. Wight, Mr. and Mrs. George Green and family, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Wight, Jr. and children, Mrs. A. Wight, Mr. Thom Wight, Sr., Dr. Allan Michell, Mr. and Mrs. P. Logan (Havelock), Miss Dorothy Watson (Havelock), Mrs. C. Insley (Healy Falls), Mrs. Frank Pollock, Misses Annie and Agnes Wight, Miss Bessie G. French, Messrs. Ephgrave (Peterboro), Murrison Gawley (Weyburn, Sask.), N. Garneau, Will Wight, Charlie Wight.

OBITUARY

THOMAS MORRISEY, JR.

KING'S WHARF, Nov. 29. — The death occurred on Sunday of Tommy, the three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Morrisey, after an illness extending over three weeks. He was a very bright little fellow and will be greatly missed by his family. He is survived by his parents, two brothers, David and Gerald, and two sisters, Toots and Shirley. The funeral was held Monday afternoon to St. Luke's Cemetery, Downeyville. The pallbearers were his two brothers, David and Gerald, and two cousins, Earl and Frank Morrisey.

BABY HEFFERNAN.

DOURO, Nov. 29.—The death occurred very suddenly of Robert John Heffernan, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Heffernan, aged 5 months, 4 weeks and 4 days. There are left to mourn his loss besides his sorrowing parents, his little sister Catherine Selina. Interment took place in St. Joseph's cemetery, Douro.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS TO DISCUSS, ETC.

their willingness to sacrifice their lives for the independence of their country.

Submit Lithuania's Case.

KOVNO, Lithuania, Nov. 29.—(A.P.)— Augustine Waldemaras, Lithuanian premier, is preparing to journey to Geneva to submit Lithuania's case against Poland to the League of Nations. He will reach Geneva December 5, when the vexed Lithuanian-Polish question comes before the council.

"We are faced by a situation so difficult and representing such widely divergent viewpoints," he informed the Associated Press correspondent yesterday, "that it almost precludes the possibility of a complete solution, but we hope to find some basis from which it will be possible to proceed step by step."

M. Waldemaras is dark, short and stocky, and about 44 years of age. He was president of the Lithuanian delegation at Versailles, the first Lithuanian premier and Lithuanian delegate to the first assembly of the League of Nations.

To the correspondent he complained bitterly of what he termed "intimidatory and provocative actions" by Poland on the present line of demarcation, which, he said, no Lithuanian to-day will dignify by the name of frontier.

"The recurrence at intervals of rumors in the foreign press that bands are operating on the demarcation line, and that the Lithuanian army is disorganized, points to a set campaign against us with malevolent intent."

"This cannot go on forever, for a hostile atmosphere is created poisoning the air around just as in the case of Alsace-Lorraine, which set the world ablaze.

Would Sink Differences.

"It is inconceivable that Poland should think of seizing Lithuania by force of arms, seeing that Poland is on the League of Nations council, and that Lithuania is also a member. Our country has little over two millions population—small as compared to Poland's 17,000,000, but in such an event the whole nation would sink its differences and stand shoulder to shoulder, and I know that the peasantry would fly to arms to repel the invader."

His negotiations with the different parties to form a coalition government, the premier said, were still proceeding, not so quickly as he wish[illegible] ed but still they were making progress. He scouted all rumors of his impending resignation and refused to believe that Poland intended to precipitate a conflict before December 5, so as to place the League of Nations before an accomplished fact. The Soviet note to Poland, in which Russia warned that country not to interfere in Lithuania, had been timely, he thought, and plainly and significantly worded.

A CONCERT EVENT OF THE SEASON

Male Voice Choir Assisted by Miss Pearl Newton, Reader.

A concert of exceptional merit is to be given in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church (which has been kindly lent by the managers for the occasion), on Friday evening, Dec. 2, at eight p.m., by the Peterborough Male Voice Choir, assisted by Miss Pearl Newton, artist-graduate, Owen A. Smily Studio.

Outside of the fact that the concert in itself will be one of the treats of the season, it might be said that the proceeds are in aid of a number of local organizations, whose work in the city is well known. Those participating are the Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E., Anglican Young People's Association of St. John's Church, Young People's Society of St. Paul's Church and Knox Church Choir. And there doubtless will be a large attendance of citizens who appreciate such a delightful concert of this kind.

IRREGLARITIES FOUND BY JUDGE

Shareholders of Prudential Trust Company Granted Injunction.

TO PREVENT PAYMENT.

MONTREAL, Nov. 29.—(Canadian Press).—Concluding that there have been irregularities in the administration of the affairs of the Prudential Trust Company, in the past few years, that the directors have not tried to protect the interests of the shareholders, that many shareholders had their stock confiscated in 1926 and that the president and manager bought up hundreds of these shares at ridiculous prices, and that there is danger of the same thing happening again; Mr. Justice Demers gave judgment this morning in the practice division of the Superior Court in favor of the shareholders who had asked for an injunction to prevent the directors of company from persisting in the call for a ten percent capital subscription on the outstanding stocks ordered on October six last.

FOUR CARDINALS TO BE CREATED

Archbishops of Quebec, Toledo, and Besancon To Receive Red Hats.

CONSISTORY DEC. 19.

ROME, Nov. 29.—(Canadian Press)—Four new Cardinals, including Monsignor Raymond K. M. Rouleau, Archbishop of Quebec, will be created by Pope Pius next month. The Pontiff has definitely decided to hold a secret consistory on December 19 and a public consistory on December 22, creating as Cardinals, Monsignor R. K. M. Romieau, Monsignor Z. M. Y. Nunez, Archbishop of Toledo, Spain, Monsignor C. J. Rinet, Archbishop of Besancon, and Monsignor A. Lepicier, Titular Bishop of Tarsus, who will replace Cardinal Billot as French Cardinal of the Curia.

PROPELLER BENT; FLIGHT CANCELLED

Junkers Plane En Route To United States Makes Final Attempt To-day.

HORTA, Azores, Nov. 29.—(Canadian Press).—The Junkers plane D 1220, enroute from Germany to the United States, bent its last propeller in an attempt to take off for Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, yesterday. "Now it's all over", Lillie Dillenz, Viennese actress who is a passenger aboard the plane, said as she stepped ashore. Smiling, she added, "Our last propeller has been bent. The crew of the plane have decided to give up their attempt to fly to America this year."

MEXICAN RAILWAYS HAVE MANY TROUBLES

Sir Henry Thornton, head of the Canadian National Railways, has been called upon to go to Mexico to straighten out the railroad situation there. This group of views of the lines of the National Railways of Mexico show some of the difficulties that have been overcome in the mountainous regions, two of the modern locomotives used, a map of the 8500 miles of lines and the main offices. HAVELOCK MEN IN TRAIN WRECK

Engineer Burnett, Killed, Had Lived in Village—R. Post Born There.

BADLY INJURED.

HAVELOCK Nov. 29—A gloom was cast over the village on Sunday when the news of the wreck on the Smith Falls-Trenton division of the C.P.R. spread around. William Burnett, the engineer on the passenger train who was killed, was a former resident of Havelock, and has two brothers, both of whom are C.P.R. engineers, and a sister living here, namely: Messrs. John and Harry Burnett and Mrs. Walter Clarke. Fireman Rhynard Post, who was badly injured, is an old Havelock boy, having lived all his life in town and vicinity, with the exception of about six years that he has been a resident of Smith Falls, and the time he spent overseas, where he was a prisoner of war in Germany for over two years. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Post, left on Sunday night to attend his bedside. The last report received by the agent from Smith Falls on Monday stated that one of his lower limbs had been amputated but that he was resting nicely.

TWO HOSPITALS ARE APPROVED

Both Local Institutions Passed by American College of Surgeons.

69.9 PER CENT. PASSED

"The Hospital Standardization movement," said Dr. Franklin H. Martin, Chicago, Director-General of the American College of Surgeons, "is now in its tenth year. Its growth has been phenomenal: from 89 hospitals meeting the requirements, or 12.9 per cent, in 1918, to 1,803 hospitals, or 69.9 per cent. in 1927. This is due to the fact that the people of the United States, Canada, and other countries, where this movement is carried on, have been convinced of its worth both from the humanitarian and economic aspects. Every community must accept the responsibility of providing adequate care of the sick and injured. The only way possible to do this in a proper manner is through the acceptance and carrying out principles of Hospital Standardization, as many of the hospitals in your community have done.

"Choosing your hospital when sick or injured is a most serious responsibility. This has been made easier in recent years through the publishing annually of the list of hospitals approved by the American College of Surgeons officially announced recently. These approved hospitals stand for the right kind of care of the patient through the utilizing of the best means of diagnosis and treatment that modern scientific medicine can afford for the one out of every ten persons, or 12,000,000, who seek hospital care annually at a maintenance cost aggregating over $1,000,000,000. Results count most. These are evidenced by the lower average days' stay of patients in hospitals, the gradual falling of hospital death rates, the minimizing of complications, and the improving in results generally.

"I am sure it is a great satisfaction for the people to know that the patient in a standardized or approved hospital is better assured of a prompt and accurate diagnosis, more scientific treatment, and an earlier return to normal physical condition if at all possible. This is what every patient is entitled to and is the responsibility of the hospital to carry out. It is quite true that under the new regime of Hospital Standardization during the past ten years many hospitals, which might be in the past described as mere nursing homes, have been transformed into real scientific institutions where the patient's condition can be promptly diagnosed and treated. Here the patient can secure the benefit of the accumulated knowledge of all the medical profession through consultations, staff conferences, group study, and more thorough means of investigation and treatment rather than that of one individual as formerly in the practice of medicine. With this there has been a marked advance in medical science throughout America.

"The American College of Surgeons greatly appreciates this opportunity of officially announcing the list of approved hospitals for 1927. These hospitals have adopted the fundamental requirements for the right care of the patient and the rendering of the broadest community service as provided for in the minimum standard laid down by this organization, charged with the responsibility of the great movement known as Hospital Standardization."

The following hospitals in this province have been awarded full or conditioned approval. Conditioned approval indicates that the hospital has accepted the requirements which result in the best care of the patient, but for lack of time or other acceptable reasons, have not put them fully into effect.

RECTOR INDUCTED.

Rev. Stanley E. Morton is Well Known in Madoc.

MADOC, Nov. 29.—Rev. Stanley E. Morton, who is well known in Madoc and is a son-in-law of Mrs. A. Thompson, of Madoc, was inducted into the incumbency of St. Luke's Church, Nelson street, Kingston, by the Rt. Rev. Dr. C. A. Seager, Bishop of the Diocese, assisted by Archdeacon O. G. Dobbs and Rural Dean J. O. Crisp.

Rev. T. W. Savary, rector of St. James', read the special lesson and Rev. A. E. U. Smart, of Portsmouth, preached the sermon.

The service was fully choral, and the anthem, "The Lord Gave the Word" (Turner), was rendered by the full choir, under the direction of the organist, Mr. Bert F. Couper.

UNITED LADIES' AID ELECTS OFFICERS

No Change Made in Executive of Warsaw Society—Warsaw News.

WARSAW, November 29. — The United Church Ladies' Aid held its annual meeting at Mrs. Arthur Payne's home. The officers were re-elected, namely: President, Mrs. Herrington; vice-president, Mrs. David Taylor; secretary, Mrs. Arthur Edwards; treasurer, Mrs. Digweed; organist, Mrs. Roland Payne; assistant, Mrs. O. B. McIlvena; treasurer of the Flower Committee, Mrs. George Weller; auditors, Mesdames Matthews and George Weller.

Final arrangements were made for the bazaar, and a committee was named to provide artificial flowers for the church during the winter.

The next meeting will be a union one with the Missionary Society, when the sunshine boxes will be opened. There will be no other business. The whole meeting is to be a Christmas service.

The first real snow of the season came on Thursday. It began about eight o'clock a.m., and kept falling steadily until late in the afternoon, when the sun shone brightly for a short time, and then it clouded again.

One sleigh appeared in the village before evening.

A few are not quite through plowing ,and there is still some threshing being done.

Farmers in this district are going in more than ever for winter dairying. It evens up the work and pays fully as well. Some send to two creameries.

POLICE DRIVE OUT UNEMPLOYED MEN

ADELAIDE, Australia, Nov. 29.—(Canadian Press)—One thousand unemployed attempted to force their way into the treasury yesterday and interview the Premier. They were ejected by police using their batons. There were no casualties.

Barbered in Bed on Account of Rheumatism

T-R-C's made him better

Christmas is surely the worst day in the year to be sick. But Rheumatism is a selfish visitor—especially when you've known it for years. So Yuletide found James R. Dawley flat on his back at 132 Duke Street, Toronto. Let him tell his own story:—

"Ever since I was 20 I have been subject to attacks of Rheumatism. Last Christmas Eve one came on very suddenly. I couldn't undress myself. The doctor said I had Septic Inflammatory Rheumatism.

"A fellow-worker told me of a friend who had Rheumatism so badly he had to use a crutch. This friend had used T-R-C's and got better. I was desperate, so I got a box and took 2 capsules at tea-time one Saturday. At bed-time I took another.

"I can still hardly believe it, but those three capsules made me so much better I was able to dress myself next morning. Before I took T-R-C's my landlady had to prop me up in bed and I had to get a barber to shave me. I was able to walk downstairs Sunday. I got back to work Monday."

Rheumatism—Sciatica, Lumbago, Neuritis, Neuralgia—need not have the upper hand of you when there are T-R-C's in the nearest drug store. You can have the same wonderful relief Mr. Dawley had. Let T-R-C's make life a pleasure instead of an agony.

T-R-C's get results quickly. They enter the bloodstream and enable your body to conquer poisons that cause Rheumatism, etc. Good health returns. No habit-forming drugs. 50c and $1 at all druggists. 771

CHRISTMAS SHOPPING.

Christmas shopping becomes a joy rather than a source of worry when it is done early and done at home.

At the present time Peterborough's stores are at their best; their Christmas supplies are here and on display, and the shopper who appreciates the importance of a wide field of selection and the benefit of unhurried attention from sales staffs who are not as yet victims of the nerve strain attendant upon trying to wait upon two or three customers at once, will find no better opportunity of making her Christmas purchases.

The home stores offer the best that can be found; from all parts of the world have come the articles that will gladden the hearts of Peterborough people on Christmas Day, and there is a startling variety that offers something for everybody, with prices scaled to meet every range of pocketbook.

The advertising columns of The Examiner these days are filled with gift suggestions that should be an inspiration to those who are planning their lists, and extensive as this advertising is, it cannot begin to cover the possibilities that are offered by Peterborough's stores.

Shop early and shop at home, is a double-barrelled piece of advice that is offered as in the general interest.

THOSE CHRISTMAS STAMPS.

Doubtless by this time Examiner readers have received their packets of Christmas stamps from the Peterborough Health Association, and many perhaps have already used the enclosed envelope to forward the price of the stamps to the Association.

Of those who have not done so it is asked that they send in their subscription while the matter is fresh in their minds.

The stamps are sold at $1.00 per sheet, and are designed to be used in decorating Christmas parcels and on Christmas mail.

Through this medium the Health Association hopes to quickly raise the $1,800 which is needed to round out the Budget for next year, calling altogether for $4,300, of which amount $1,000 is provided by a civic grant and $1,500 by the Kiwanis Club for the carrying on of the health camp at Jackson Park.

The $1,800 asked for is needed and needed badly, and if it is not forthcoming the result will inevitably have to be a curtailing of the Association's activities, a development that is not for a moment to be thought of by a community fully conversant with the important work done on behalf of a healthier and happier city.

THE SOLE RIGHT.

The Ontario Safety League has wisely given widespread publicity in the form of a striking bulletin to the impressive words used by Mr. Justice Riddell in sentencing a Toronto motorist to three years' imprisonment for running down and killing a child.

The Examiner called attention to this warning when it was first given, believing that it set forth in a sentence a truth that many owners and drivers have been very slow in realizing.

It is worth repeating again and again.

"The great and insistent lesson must be taught and taught again until it is thoroughly understood and heeded by all," said Justice Riddell, "that the whole right an automobile driver has on the highway is the right to pass over it carefully and with due regard to the rights of others."

The highways, in short, are not created for the sole benefit of motorists who want to use them as speedways.

They are the property of the whole people of the Province, and it is the duty of everyone who uses them to observe every precaution and to at all times remember the rights of others.

A GROWING MARKET FOR CANADIAN PRODUCTS.

Cardiff, the commercial and industrial capital of Wales, is anxious to increase the consumption of food and other products of Canada.

Its marketing and distributing facilities cover a population of 10 millions within a radius of 100 miles. At present a large portion of the food products received from Canada reaches the Cardiff district through other ports, necessitating extra handling and transport, which adds to their cost to the consumer, as well as—in the case of highly perishable articles—results in the deterioration of quality and condition.

A regular fortnightly service is operated by the C. G. M. M. boats, and by importing direct to Cardiff the article can be passed on to the consumer at a lower and more competitive price, whilst at the same time, its good quality and condition are maintained.

In order to develop the public demand for Dominion goods, Cardiff is holding an Empire Exhibition and Shopping Week in the autumn of next year. This is being done to stimulate the interest of the housewife in Canadian goods, and these efforts are receiving the support of the Empire Marketing Board as well as the Dominion authorities.

A heavier consumption of Canadian goods will increase the purchasing power of the Cardiff wholesale houses, and enable them to buy in larger quantities and increase direct shipments to the port. It will be appreciated that by straightening the line of contact between the producer and the consumer, both will materially benefit and trade will develop on right lines.

Canadian producers and exporters wishing to open up trade connections in this enterprising market would do well to communicate with the Development Agent, City Hall, Cardiff, Wales, who writes The Examiner that he will be pleased to link them up with Cardiff wholesale houses with a view to business.

CIVIL AVIATION.

The possibility of creating an "airport" in Hamilton and the further possibility of setting up a factory here for the manufacture of airplanes were the features of greatest local interest in the remarks of Mr. J. A. Wilson, Dominion Civil Air Controller, in whose honor a luncheon was given yesterday. Commercial aviation is on the threshold of great development, and there is no reason why Hamilton should not be foremost in the movement. Mr. Wilson explained the great public services rendered by the fliers since the termination of the war; their enterprises have been most successful, but it is a fact that Canada has lagged behind other countries in the matter of commercial aviation. Hamilton offers excellent opportunities for the development of this brand of aviation. Mr. Wilson paid a compliment to the enterprise of local fliers; a beginning has been made which could be extended to great advantage.

The airplane has accomplished work which could have been performed in no other way. Mr. Wilson enumerated several departments which had been more or less revolutionized by the assistance of the flying machine—forest patrol work, with special reference to fire prevention, the exploitation of natural resources, etc. There is another direction in which the airplane has proved invaluable, and that is in the development of aerial surveys. It was stated recently by Mr. A. N. Narraway, of the Aerial Survey Branch of the Dominion Government, that a total of 67,000 square miles had been surveyed in this way, an absolutely accurate record of the minutest details of the country being obtained. This information is placed at the disposal of prospectors and others, to whom it is invaluable. The airplane of civil use has proven its worth, and there can be no doubt that when commercial aviation hits its stride in this country, its progress will be rapid and extensive. Hamilton, it is gratifying to know, is alert to the possibilities.—Hamilton Spectator.

A SIDELIGHT ON OUR HISTORY.

A Canadian educationist remarks that sufficient attention is not paid to the study of Canadian history. The celebration of the Diamond Jubilee did much to enhance interest in this topic. There was a strong demand for the book, "Sixty Years of Canadian Progress," prepared by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and adopted by the National Committee having charge of the celebration, and a great deal of interesting matter was published by various Governments and by the newspapers. But the field is rich and will reward further research. Things are to be found in the byways as well as the highways of history. By way of illustration, one may look over the period following the division of the old Province of Quebec into the Provinces of Upper Canada and Lower Canada in 1791. The expectation was that this would solve the racial problem, partially at least, by giving each race a Province in which to work out its ideas. But there was a large English-speaking element in Lower Canada which objected to French control, and its complaints are found recorded in documents collected by Professor Kennedy.

Some of these make curious reading. In 1806 John Black, an Englishman, who had resided in Canada for many years, and had been a member of the Legislative Assembly of Lower Canada, wrote a letter to the Duke of Kent, in which he said that "notwithstanding the government and commerce of the colony are in the hands of the English, still at the general elections British influence can never get more than twelve members returned who have to contend with the passions and prejudices of thirty-eight French, the majority of whom are by no means the most respectable of the King's Canadian subjects." The statement that the French members were not on the whole "respectable" loses some of its sting when one considers the standard of respectability set up by another correspondent, Governor Craig. Four of the French members, he said, were "so far respectable people that at least they do not keep shops." He could have no intercourse, he said, with blacksmiths, millers and shopkeepers, or even with "avocats and notaries." It is fair to say that other Governors had broader views.

Craig said that the common people understood nothing of the nature of the constitution that had been given to them except that they began to look at members of the Legislature as governors of the country. Whole parishes had declined giving any votes, supposing that the only object was to tax them. They were very well before, and had never had a moment's peace since the Chamber was constituted. The remedy most commonly proposed for French domination was union with Upper Canada, but to this Craig was opposed. "I am more inclined to keep the Province of Upper Canada as a foreign and distinct population, which may be produced as a resource against that of this country in case of necessity." John Beverley Robinson, Attorney-General for Upper Canada, was also opposed to the measure, but for a very different reason. He said in 1822:

> "The French inhabitants of Lower Canada, I am firmly persuaded, are as peaceably disposed, as much inclined to submit to authority, and as loyally attached to the British Government as any portion of His Majesty's subjects, and whatever trouble these representatives may give by refusing to make a permanent provision for the Civil List, or upon questions of revenue, or of any kind between themselves and the executive government, is not to be ascribed to the preponderance of French over the English, but to that desire which is found in all assemblies to assert to the utmost the share of power which they think the constitution gives them, a disposition which I think the descendants of English, Irish and Scotch will be found as likely to persevere in as the descendants of Frenchmen."

Robinson was a leading spirit in the "Family Compact," but no fault can be found with this utterance, which might have come from a friend of responsible government. By the way, he was a pupil of Dr. Baldwin, father of the celebrated Robert Baldwin, and therefore "grandfather" of the principle which is now the basis of the relations between Canada and Great Britain.

In 1822 the bill for the union of the two Canadas was introduced in the British House of Commons, but was withdrawn because of the fierce opposition of the French-Canadians and lack of enthusiasm among the English-speaking people. The project was revived by Lord Durham in his celebrated report, and carried out by the Act of Union. How it worked, and why it became necessary to federalize the Union is matter of more recent history and need not be dealt with here. The racial problem in Canada was a difficult one, and early failures to solve it need not be too severely criticised, while praise is due to those who brought about the satisfactory conditions which now exist.—London Advertiser.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., November 29 (Canadian Press). — The demand from foreign buyers for grain here over the week-end was of a very limited character, and the volume of business was only moderate. The trade in cash grain in the domestic market was also slow, but prices were unchanged.

Owing to the further weakness that prevailed in the Winnipeg cash wheat situation, a weaker feeling developed in the local market for spring wheat grades of flour, and prices were reduced ten cents per barrel. The demand was fair.

The winter wheat flour market was without any new feature to note, the prices being well maintained under a moderate demand.

The demand for all lines of millfeed continued active and the feeling was steady. The trade in standard grades of rolled oats was fairly active and values were unchanged.

The local and English inquiry for Canadian baled hay was quiet.

A fairly active business was done in all grades of eggs, and prices ruled firm. The receipts were 903 cases.

A moderate trade was done in potatoes, and the undertone was firm. Car lots of Prince Edward Island whites sold at $1.25 to $1.30 per bag of ninety pounds; Prince Edward Island Green Mountains at $1.30 to $1.35 per bag of ninety pounds; New Brunswick Green Mountains at $1.25 to $1.30 per bag in bulk; Cobblers at $1.05 to $1.10 per bag in bulk; and Quebec varieties at $1.00 to $1.05 per bag in bulk, ex-track.

The demand for imported beans continued fair, and prices were steady. Sales of car lots of choice white hand-picked were made at $2.50 per bushel on spot, and to arrive at $2.60 per bushel, with smaller quantities at $2.75 per bushel, ex-store.

A feature of the butter trade was the weaker feeling that developed, and prices were reduced ¼c per pound, which was to some extent attributed to the recent arrival of fresh made New Zealand creamery butter and the continued limited demand. The receipts were 282 packages.

Extreme dullness again marked the trade in cheese, but the undertone to the market was steady. The receipts were 1,474 boxes.

The Least Excitement Made Her Heart Palpitate and Flutter

Mrs. Ambrose Orser, Elginburg, Ont., writes:—"I suffered for some time with a bad heart which seemed to be controlled by my nerves. The least little excitement would cause it to flutter and palpitate, and at times I would have real bad spells. I suffered in this way for some time when, one day, I saw

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO November 29. Canadian Press. — Corn took the lead in the speculative grain markets yesterday and scored a lively upturn. Wet weather tending to bring about moulding of corn in the crib and to interfere with husking had much to do with hoisting the corn market and giving a lift to other grain as well.

Closing quotations on corn were strong 1 7-8 to 2 3-8 to 2½c advanced with wheat ½ to 7-8c higher oats 3-8 to 1 1-8 up and provisions unchanged to 22c down.

Predictions out for a continuance of the unfavorable damp weather which has been prevailing over the corn belt and with country offerings of corn scanty, the corn market began a steep climb after a watering start.

Initial uncertainty was ascribed to early weakness of wheat. Later, however the corn advance was virtually without interruption and the close was at the topmost figures of the day. Wheat, oats and rye followed corn

In addition to adverse weather, the lightness of receipts and persistent unfavorable husking returns, the corn market was influenced by bullish reports on the foreign feed situation. Besides there was a decrease of 548,000 bushels yesterday in the domestic corn visible supply and vessel room was chartered here for 200,000 bushels of corn to go to Buffalo. These circumstances tended in particular to increase anxiety on the part of traders who were short of corn to fill December contracts and stimulate general buying as the day drew to an end.

Wheat prices here were strengthened both by th action of corn and by upturns in the wheat markets at Liverpool and Winnipeg. Furthermore there was a large decrease in Canadian stocks and the increase shown in the United States visible supply was smaller than in some quarters had been looked for. Early declines in Chicago wheat values were due largely to an increased private estimate of the Argentine wheat yield placing the total at 231,000,000 bushels.

Provisions lacked support despite higher quotations on hogs. Deliveries of 3,700,000 pounds of lard were made on November contracts yesterday.

STERLING EXCHANGE.

MONTREAL, November 29 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here yesterday as:
Demand—$4.86 11-16.

A Thought For To-day

THE MEASURE OF A MAN

How high are you? Where is your thinking done?
Close to the earth, or upward toward the sun?
Do petty things absorb your every thought?
The game, the latest crime, what's sold and bought?
Do noble deeds and lives inspire your zeal
Or are you more corned about a meal?
How high or low is your most cherished plan?
The answer marks your stature as a man.

"WE WANT OUR BIBLE"

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir.—Poor humble people like me want our Bible. My near neighbor has a daughter who is going insane because her hope of eternal life is being taken away from her. It is a dreadful thing. Why do not these professors who know more than God go away and do something else? Why do they stay where they are and tear the Bible in pieces? They have no right to do that. Have we no one to defend us. It is having an awful effect on young people. No Bible; no people. If only these critics would do as they used to say of other critics, like Bob Ingersoll and Jim Morkin, who used the very same arguments thirty years ago, that they were scoffers and defend us but the leaders and protectors of the sheep have turned wolves and destroy us. It was foretold.

ANSWERS MR. BURNHAM

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir.—It is interesting to read the address given to the members of the Woman's Art Association, and to know what the speaker thinks of present-day women! Are we downhearted about it? Well, not noticeably so.

It is to be regretted that we do not spend two hours at a time before a mirror, nor do we play the harp, nor embroider slippers for the curate—but, when the need arose, we could organize, could sit all day making shirts and pyjamas, could work in factories, could take men's places, and keep the home fires burning at the same time. Mr. Burnham says "This age is de-Christianized, and by the women"!

His remarks extend also to those devoted men who spend their days in China—"a lot of self-sufficient humbugs filled with conceit"—and the women who sent them there.

No, we certainly cannot be called "godesses."

Fortunately there are other men besides Mr. Burnham in Peterborough, and perchance other opinions on this matter, just possibly more favorable ones. So cheerio, sisters, cheerio.

TALK ON CHINA GIVEN CHILDREN

Rev. John Davidson Addresses Scholars of Millbrook and Cavan.

AT CHILDREN'S SERVICE

MILLBROOK, Nov. 29.—A special Children's Service, intended to embrace the four Sunday schools of the parish, was held in St. Thomas church on Sunday at 3 p.m., the Rev. John Davidson, a son of Venerable Archdeacon Davidson, who is now home on furlough after three years spent in missionary work in China, being the speaker for the occasion.

Mrs. Allen presided at the organ, and during the processional hymn, "Onward Christian Soldiers", the full choir, the clergy, the Sunday school teachers and scholars entered the church and took their places in the chancel and the centre front pews.

The rector, Rev. Canon Allen, read the prayers and lessons. Rev. Mr. Davidson began his address with a brief lesson in geography leading the children, by questioning, to understand the location of the far away country from which he has come, and to which he hopes shortly to return.

A misunderstanding was cleared up as to the correct term to use when speaking of the people of China—not 'Chink' as one little girl said, nor 'Chinaman' as another answered, but Chinese. Another mistake notion that the Chinese eat rats was wiped out, and the story told of the Chinese man who asked if the Canadians ate dogs because he saw the sign 'hot dogs' so frequently.

"Co-operation is a national instinct with the Chinese; and people of every nation must learn to help each other, then good understanding will prevail, and the petition 'Thy kingdom come' will become a reality."

"The Chinese are not the same as we are", Mr. Davidson said in explaining many of their, to us, strange customs, "but we will have to give up thinking they are not as good as we are—they are our equals, but they lack privileges which we have enjoyed from birth. With a population of 450,000,000 but two or three million have yet heard the gospel."

Adapting the story of the Good Samaritan to modern conditions, the speaker stressed the responsibility of sending on to China the news of the Light of the World, and in closing his address he urged the young folk to follow Jesus, to learn more about Him, and to grow up to be good citizens—this would constitute a fine ideal to keep constantly in view.

A special offering was taken up in aid of missionary enterprise.

Mr. Ray Wood and his mother, Mrs. D. Wood, of Springville, attended the Winter Fair.

Mr. McIndoo attended the Toronto Winter Fair.

The Young People of Springville Christian Endeavour, were guests last week at All Saints' Parish Hall, Peterborough.

Mrs. R. Armstrong, of Springville, spent Tuesday with her daughter, Mrs. H. Cathcart. In the evening they motored to the station to meet Mr. Cathcart, who was returning from the Winter Fair, Toronto. On the return trip they took Mrs. Armstrong to her home.

On Thursday afternoon a Holstein cow came to the premises of George Whitfield. It made friends with his cattle that were in the barnyard and could not be driven away for more than a few minutes at a time. When night came the cow was let in the barnyard and when the temperature began to fall it was tied in the stable and fed. Inquiries were made of the neighbors but the owner could not be found.

At noon yesterday G. Dodson, who lives about three miles from Mr. Whitfield, came in search of a lost cow and found her loath to leave her warm quarters.

Dr. James L. Hughes, of Toronto, states in a letter received by one of his friends that the summer party he conducted to Europe last year was his fiftieth trip acros the Atlantic. Dr. Hughes is now over eighty years of age and is still busy, mainly in writing. He is trying by means of his prose and poetry "to make things clear" for others.

Lesson No. 9

Question: Can rickets be prevented?

Answer: Yes, by assuring plenty of the rickets-preventing vitamin of cod-liver oil in the diet of mother and baby.

SCOTT'S EMULSION contains all cod-liver oil vitamins in great abundance.

Bill's dead—pass the hat!

So poor Bill is dead! I'm downright sorry. He was one of the best of fellows—a great spender and one of the biggest-hearted men that ever lived. Sure I'll chip in."

"How much have you got there—$242? My! that won't go far with the widow and children. Only $242! Poor old Bill!"

Your name may not be Bill—but if you dropped off tomorrow, would your family be provided for? Or, would some kind friend have to pass the hat?

You don't care what happens after you're gone? Yes, you do. You don't want to leave your loved ones to the tender care of friends or relatives who probably have troubles of their own. And you don't need to.

If you are now in good health and will agree to deposit a portion of your savings for a few years we will undertake to pay a regular monthly income to your widow—an income which will commence at your death and continue as long as she lives.

Should you not die—the deposits will form an excellent, profit earning investment for yourself. Why not get further information about this splendid arrangement? Use the coupon. No obligation.

for convenience of patrons is also maintained by these ladies.

Several Sodality booths from the three city parishes are ranged along the wall, decorated in the blue and white of their organization, with tiny Christmas trees and lovely artificial flowers in colored vases adding a touch of contrasting color. St. Peter's Sodality sells candy in dainty lace paper boxes and baskets. Miss Agnes Grant is in charge here. The Sodality of the Sacred Heart Church, with Miss Stella Woodhouse in charge, has a display of pretty dolls, novelties, lamp shades and fancy work, while the Sodality of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, in charge of Miss Stella Brady, sells aprons and towels and lovely little embroidered articles. Here is also a very fine picture, done in sepia water color, donated by Miss Mamie McCarthy, and entitled "Laus Deo." Assistants at this booth are the Misses Louise Flynn, Agnes McCormack and Leona Hummel, together with the many other girls who will help here, as well as in the other booths, during the week.

A sale of exquisitely wrought fancy work is in charge of Mrs. George Ball and Miss A. Gordon assisted by Mrs. James Lynch, Mrs. T. Bacon, Mrs. J. J. Fitzpatrick, and the Misses Norah Shevlin, Josephine Gordon and Maud Theobald. Decorations for this booth are done in Nile green and blush rose with artificial flowers in vases.

The lottery booth in red and white is in charge of Mrs. T. J. Best, Mrs. C. Leibers and Mrs. J. Malane, assisted by the Misses Lottie Hogan and Nora Devlin. Many pretty and useful articles in chinaware, novelties and fancy work, are on view.

In a black and white checkerboard booth, soft drinks are sold by Miss Margaret Lynch and Mrs. Joseph Kelly, while a sale of religious articles, including prayer books, rosaries, crucifixes and medals is supervised by Mrs. J. F. MacKenzie Mrs. J. T. O'Connell and Miss May Sullivan.

A sale of clothing, with fancy work and woollen articles, is in charge of Mrs. J. P. McCarthy and Mrs. Arthur Sharpe, assisted by Mesdames A. O'Grady, T. Turcotte, F. Ackford, D. Gleason, S. Bogue, and the prizes given in connection with the Bazaar are displayed by Mrs. M. Daley, Miss Elizabeth O'Brien and Miss Katie Sharpe.

In the dining room, where a corps of busy helpers will assist during the week, arrangements are in charge of Mrs. J. E. White and Mrs. T. McQuillan, with Frank Fairen officiating at the entrance. Various societies have signified their intention of patronizing the meals this week. The Knights of Columbus took supper here last night the Rotary Club will have supper at the Bazaar on Wednesday night, and the Kiwanis Club will hold its weekly luncheon at the market hall on Friday of this week.

School orchestras of the three parishes provide music during the supper hour for the week. The orchestra of St. Peters High School plays there to-day as well as last night. This orchestra is composed of the following members: Piano: Miss Mary Reynolds and Miss Olive O'Connell; violins, Joseph Nolan, Frank Grant, John Burke, Edward Hiland ,Noreen MacPherson, Mildred Kemp; Helen Archambault, mandoline; Hilda Sullivan and Eugene Snider guitar; Veronica Scollard; traps, Clare Brooks.

Another very welcome addition to the pleasing atmosphere of the bazaar is provided by the fine music from the booth kindly erected by the Heintzman Company Limited, who are loaning the piano for the musical programs and also supply supplementary music during the day with two Orthophonics and a Brunswick Panatrope. This booth, in charge of James Turnbull is decorated very effectively with bright green and pink.

A couple of games of the dart and bingo variety are in charge of the Knights of Columbus, supervised by Messrs. Don McKinnon, William MacPherson and Joseph Sharpe, with a group of changing assistants during the evenings of the week.

Gas Spoiled Sleep, Made Her Dizzy

"For years I suffered from gas and constipation. Used to get headaches and dizzy spells. The first dose of Adlerika gave me relief. Now I rest well."—Mrs. B. Brinkley. Just ONE spoonful of Adlerika relieves gas and that bloated feeling so that you can eat and sleep well. Acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel and removes old waste matter you never though was there. No matter what you tried for your stomach, Adlerika will surprise you. McDermid Drug Stores, and E. L. Payne, Druggist.

A REPLY TO CRITICISM.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—The speaker who addressed the Women's Art Association recently, thinks that he is being made the target of much vituperative criticism as is the prophet James and others in that higher walk of life. The Examiner editorially joins the hue-and-cry. Just a word in my own defence. Seventy-five per cent. of those present agreed with me, or at any rate egged me on. My object was to arouse women from that lethargy of extreme self-satisfaction into which they are falling. I begged them to cultivate religion and to study science ,which leads them to the very feet of God the Creator. They demanded that I should speak of art, which I said did not serve the same purpose since it is manmade and deals with the works of man, and by them he can get no higher than his own head. By science he comes as near finding and seeing the ultimate as is possible, as when radium discloses nature breaking down into her ultimate particles or Einstein explains the plan and movements of the universe. The mind of man can no farther go. Art is child's play in comparison and is wholly aesthetical or nearly so. Useful, of course, but so is nearly everything. I contrasted the Victorian woman and the Georgian woman to the glory of the former. I did not attack women. That is the point I wish to make. I am being grossly misrepresented. But I did attack those present-day women who signalized their advent into "real life" as they call it by demanding the "single standard" which is that there should be one standard for both men and women by which they are to be judged "morally" 'and that women have just as much right as men to cut loose and should not be judged more harshly than men. In other words, the Georgian woman wants to have greater scope for cutting loose. Enough said. Now then, I began by saying that women as an audience so distracted a man's attention that he must be excused for wandering in his mind a little. I also said that women were handsomer and better built than hitherto. Anybody can see that. I made no attack, and if I said anything untrue I take it back, but what I said that was true of course no one would wish me to take back.

DYNAMITE EXPLODES INJURING BOY'S ARM

Police at Hull Investigating, Believing Explosive Stolen.

HULL, Que., Nov. 29 (Canadian Press).—Jean Caron, 16, had his left arm injured yesterday when a large stick of dynamite with which he was playing suddenly exploded. Police are investigating the origin of the dynamite, working on the theory that it was stolen.

MILLBROOK NEWS

MILLBROOK, Nov. 29.—Mrs. H. Seney was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Larmer, Oshawa, over the week-end. Miss Gladys Phelps, R.N., of Toronto, whose father, the Rev. Leonard Phelps, was once pastor on this circuit, was also a guest at Mr. Larmer's over Sunday.

The Cobourg Presbyterial of the United Church met at Grafton on Thursday, November 17, morning and afternoon sessions. Rev. Peter Bryce, of Toronto, who spoke at the Presbyterial, gave an address here at a men's banquet in the basement of the United Church the same evening. It is expected that 150 men and boys will be in attendance.

The car-load of girls from the Continuation School, who were among the pupils motoring to Toronto last Saturday to see Robert Mantell play in "The Merchant of Venice," were guests of the Principal, Miss Shirley Muir, and her mother, Mrs. Butchart, at their home for the tea hour.

There is an unusually long list of 'coming events' in the near future for this comparatively small community: hall; the Continuation School concert, which will feature the trial scene from the Merchant of Venice, will be on Thursday, December 1; the Peterborough 1927 Concert Party will be in the town hall on November 23; the "Confederation Jubilee" Bazaar, under Ladies' Aid auspices, in the basement of the United Church, December 7 and 8; and the St. Thomas Sunday School concert in the hall on December 15.

G. McBride, of Oklahoma City, Okla., is visiting his mother, Mrs. J. McBride, and his sister, Mrs. Ivan L. Gray, at present. J. Shaw accompanied Mr. McBride on the trip home and is also visiting relatives in this vicinity.

F. Gray and C. Williamson are home after spending some weeks in the West, having gone on the harvesters' excursion.

Little Ruth Richards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Richards, is visiting her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Raymes, Brighton.

Councillor and Mrs. F. P. Stinson and family spent Thanksgiving with his mother, Mrs. A. Stinson, at Janetville; the latter will spend the winter here.

AGNES LOGAN RECITAL

(By Jeanette).

Owing to the extremely disagreeable weather of last evening, the attendance in the hall of the Conservatory of Music for the Piano Recital given by Miss Mary Agnes Logan, assisted by Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park, was disappointingly small, but, considering the night, the number present showed the interest felt in the work of these two artists, whose programme of instrumental and vocal music was, as usual, extremely artistic and satisfying. Miss Logan once again demonstrated her proficiency in the art of presenting difficult music with ease and skill, in the pearly touch at the pianforte and the charming impression of graceful facility which she imparts to her rendition of attractive numbers, with a special vogue for compositions of a spiritual import, and an evident liking for music of the airy, sparkling type illustrated by Debussy and other moderns, in Percy Grainger, Palmgren and Sapellnikiff. Playing every number from memory, Miss Logan's programme brought her renewed applause at the conclusion of every group in a difficult and very enjoyable recital.

The songs by Mrs. Park added much to the finish and charm of the evening. With the versatility which marks this singer's art, Mrs. Park specialized last evening on numbers of a milder, more elusive quality than are usually embodied in her programmes, many of her songs being given in pianissimo, soft style, with several in the half voice that carries with it such demands on a singer's technical grasp and control of breath.

Little morceaux of etched daintiness were noticeable in Miss Logan's pianforte offerings, her programme opening with a brief bit of elf-like sweetness in "Le Tambourin," by Rameau, which was followed by a charming suite of airs and dances by Grieg, illustrative of the composer's various moods in the joyous music of "In Holberg's Time," a procession of old-time dances, embodying a Prelude, Sarabande, Gavotte, Musette, Air, Rigaudon and Trio that demonstrated the spirit of the time in which Holberg, founder of Danish literature, lived and moved and had his being. Gay, swift, lilting music was in this group.

Schubert's "Moment Musicale" was another light-atmosphered number, followed by the serene, melodic strains of Liszt's composition, "Beside the Lake,' 'the sweet placidity of mild, splashing waters mirrored in the unhurried bass and the rippling treble. Two brief bits of the lovely, capricious music of Debussy followed in a tiny gem of cameo-like sound, "The Little Shepherd," its disconnected, unrelated morsels of bass and treble, played in turn, simulating the sweet, clear piping of a shepherd boy's flute. Again, this composer's flair for spontaneous, carefree rhythm was illustrated in 'In the Hills of Anacapri," giving his impressions of the joyous life of the happy people who live there, pictured by sudden, temperamental transitions in brilliant, swift music.

Chopin's "Barcarolle," a boat song with hammered, accented bass accompaniment ringing through a rippling treble, and Ravel's "Frolic of the Waters," a descriptive thing of transparent, delicate, mischievous music, flowing like the jets of a fountain sparkling under the sun, were excellent demonstrations of Miss Logan's technical proficiency and clear sweet, crystal tone. An encore to this group was Brahms' "Cradle Songg," with piano arrangement by Percy Grainger.

The light, brittle music of Grainger again appeared in the opening number of the final group, in the recurrent refrain of the pastorale, "Shepherd, Hey," with a pretty, odd thing in "The Swan," composed by Palmgren, a volatile number in "Danse des Elves," by Sapelnikoff, a tone picture of the buoyant, lightheartedness of the dancing sprites, and a duo illustrative of a street scene in Spain in carnival time, in the vigorous robustness of the music of Albenis' "Tango" and "Triana."

A final encore to much applause for the last group was the lovely pathetic music of Grainger's arrangement of "Londonderry Air," from which the song "Danny Boy" takes its accompaniment.

Mrs. Park's numbers were given with the attention to technical detail and the extreme degree of expressive rendition which marks her singing and makes her numbers delightful at all times. The first group consisted of an old English air, with the portamento gliding cadences that make such demands on a singer. Executed with charming ease, this composition from Purcell's "Faerie Queene," entitled "Hark! the Echoing Air a Triumph Sings," was followed by Schubert's slumber song, "Wiegenleid," in German, as was also its companion song, "In der Fremde," the heartbroken cry of the lover returning from a far country to find his adored one dead. Both were sung in the half-voice which portrays sentiment to such advantage, and were followed by the dramatic measures, in effective contrast, of a traditional Jewish melody arranged by Kurt Schindler ,and voicing the last words of Christ on the cross, "Eolil! Eolil! lama sabacthane!" ("My God! My God! Why hast Thou forsaken Me") The passionate outcry of an outcast, sorrowing nation was voiced in this Jewish folk song, with its strange refrain, in which Mrs. Park's powerful, ringing soprano was heard in splendidly dramatic interpretation.

An encore was the dainty, swift music of the old favorite, "No, John, No!"

A graceful trio of songs concluded Mrs. Park's programme, in the lovely, haunting music of the minor-keyed "Eriskay Love Lilt,' 'with its murmuring syllables, the oddly vibrant and sombre undertone of "The Faltering Dusk," and the piercing sweet bird notes of "The Blackbird's song," the slurred, trailing sweetness of the voice of the king of love-birds echoing in the beautiful strains.

As a final encore, Mrs. Park sang the vigorous stanzas of 'Time, You Old Gipsy Man."

Accompaniments were played for the vocal numbers by Miss Logan, who,with Mrs. Park, received some beautiful floral tributes.

CANADIANS VISIT CLEVELAND TO-DAY

Elaborate Program of Entertainment is Arranged For Visitors.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 29—(Canadian Press.)— Cleveland played host today to a group of Canadians on a good will visit when a delegation of government officials and business men of the Dominion came here to repay Cleveland's good will visit to Canada last summer. An elaborate program for all day entertainment was arranged. The visitors were headed by Charles McCrea, Ontario Minister of Mines, William Finlayson, Minister of Lands and Forests for Ontario and Capt. Roy Maxwell, head of the Ontario Air Forces. They were met at the station by a committee headed by City Manager Hopkins. The visitors will return home after dinner at the Mid-day Club to-night.

TRADES PIANO FOR STAMPS

Paul Hahn, Toronto piano dealer, has "swapped" a piano worth $350 with H. J. Burns, of Niagara-on-the-Lake, for old Canadian postage stamps worth a face value of 13 cents. The stamps date back to pre-Confederation days in the Maritimes. One of them was on an envelope bearing the name of Miss Eedson, a school teacher in the "fifties" in Niagara. Mr. Hahn is shown, also a rare Canadian black twelve penny stamp, said to be worth $1,000.

THREE MEN ROB TORONTO CLUB

Take $5,000 From 100 Members of Riverdale Club.

MAKE ESCAPE.

TORONTO, Nov. 29. — (Canadian Press.)— Three armed men entered the Riverdale Club at Bolton and Queen East early to-day and held up 100 members of the club who were present. They relieved the men of $5,000 in money and jewelry and made made their escape. The club is a sporting and recreational organization. The police are searching for the daring hold-up men. They took about $2,000 in cash from the pockets of club members and the rest in watches, stick pins, etc.

DIAMOND JOBBER ROBBED OF GEMS

Louis Poncer, Toronto, Loses $10,000 in Windsor Railway Station.

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov. 29.—(Canadian Press.)—Louis Poncer, Toronto, a jobber in diamonds, was throttled and robbed of a wallet containing ten thousand dollars worth of gems early to-day, just as he was leaving the railway station, where he has been in the habit of keeping his wallet in the station safety deposit boxes. Poncer was unable to describe his assailants.

EXPECTS BETTER RADIO RECEPTION

Dominion Radio Director Reports on International Conference.

OTTAWA, Ont., November 29 (Canadian Press). — A general improvement in radio reception conditions in Canada on the band from three hundred metres up is expected by Commander C. P. Edwards, Director of Radio for the Dominion Government, who has returned to Ottawa from the International Radio Conference at Washington.

"We look for improvement after December 1,' said Commander Edwards, "and there is some reason to believe that important changes may be made in United States waves with the object of helping to clear the Canadian channels by reducing interference from strong United States stations in adjoining channels."

SEEK MUSIC TEACHER TEST

To drive out the musical "quacks," and make the city one of the musical centers of the world, a movement has been started in Sydney, N.S.W., to compel examination of all teachers as to their proficiency. The drive is especially aimed at teachers who train amateurs only sufficiently to perform Mendelssohn's "Songs With Words" at church concerts while giving them ideas regarding technique and interpretation that eventually are ruinous. Vocal teachers are also hit, the supporters of the movement saying that there are only two really capable teachers in the city.

Liverpool Decrease Reflected In Chicago

CHICAGO, Nov. 29 (Canadian Press).—Unexpected lower quotations at Liverpool brought about an early setback today in wheat values here. The Liverpool weakness was ascribed to Liberal tenders on December delivery, and to the pressure of offerings from Argentina. Opening at ⅝c to 1c decline, Chicago wheat subsequently showed some further setback. Corn, oats, and provisions were also easier, corn starting at ⅞c to 1c off and failing to hold rallies. Opening prices were:

Wheat, December 127⅛, March 131⅛. Corn, December 87⅞, March 92¼. Oats, December 49⅜, March 51⅛.

Dominion Stores Leads Active Toronto Session

TORONTO, November 29. — Canadian Press. — A rapid advance in Dominion Stores, which suddenly came into prominence on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, was a feature of a session in which trading was very heavy. Stores ran up to 101½ and at noon at 100½ was more than 7 points higher than yesterday. City Dairy gained another point and a half at 217½ and Abitibi was up 2½ at 140. McColl, leader of the oils, climbed 2½ at 62 1-8. The most active stock on the board was Seagrams, which finally eased a quarter at 62½. Carlings and Canadian Malting also eased but a fourth liquor stock G. and G., firmed slightly. Outside of McColl, the oils were merely steady and British American lost 1-8 at 35 7-8. The regular list was generally steady.

Mine Trading Slackens; Prices Trend Downwards

TORONTO, Nov. 29.— (Canadian Press.)— With a slackening off in trading volume to 1,200,000 shares, stocks on the standard mining exchange this morning tended slightly lower despite occasional moderate advances. Tough Oakes lost three at 75 in heavy trading and Laval Quebec was 1⅜ lower at 32¾. There were no heavy losess in the list. Dome Mines, Granada Rouyn, Howey Gold, Amulet, Kirkland Lake, and Amity Copper lost moderately. Area firmed a point at 40 and Argonaut was fractionally better, while Teck Hughes firmed at 11.35. A large number of stocks sold unchanged from yesterday's close.

Stock Prices Go Up; Ford Orders Reported

NEW YORK, November 29. Canadian Press. — Resumption of the upward price movement in to-day's market coincident with the lowering of call money rates from 4½ to 4 per cent., violent advances of 5 to 17 points took place in some of the high priced specialties, while many of the rail and industrial leaders moved up a point or two. Speculative interest centred largely in shares of 'automobile accessory, steel and other companies likely to benefit from Henry Ford's business. Midland Steel Products preferred, which is understood to have an order for automobile frames, soared 17 points to 229, or more than double the year's low of 106. Stewart Warner speedometer moved up more than 4 points to a new top and there was brisk demand for Timken Roller Bearing and Briggs body, other reported recipients of Ford orders.

GREAT UNDERGROUND FORTS TO BE DEFENCE OF FRANCE IN NEXT GREAT STRUGGLE

Marshal Foch Has Had Charge of Building New System.

ON VERDUN PLAN.

Hospitals, Stores and Transport All Beneath Surface of Ground.

PARIS, Nov. 29.—The greatest experiment in the history of war defence has been worked out by the French General Staff. It is an underground defence that will have whole cities and a population of hundreds of thousands, hospitals, barracks and stores in the depths of the earth.

The forts, located in secret places and equipped with a new type of artillery, the most powerful that modern research has produced, will constitute France's main defence in the next war. This new system of defence has practically been completed. Construction has gone on uninterruptedly since peace was declared, practically unknown to the bulk of the population. Marshal Foch is the creator of this new system. When it has finally been approved and tested by a series of tactical and practical manoeuvres the marshal intends to resign from the directorship of the Supreme War Council.

Though the location of the fort circles will remain a secret rigidly guarded by the General Staff, this much is certain that the story of a stupendous concrete trench running all the way from the North Sea to the Swiss border, which popular imagination had conjured up, is a myth.

New Forts Invisible.

France will rely on nothing so obviously tangible and visible as a concrete ditch. The new forts are invisible and only the General Staff knows their location. The troops that have worked on them were sworn to secrecy and labored in monthly batches. None of the soldiers knew in what part of France he was. They were held in barracks and were not allowed to communicate with peasants in the neighborhood, receive or send letters.

While Cabinets came and went, while France hovered on the brink of bankruptcy through a financial crisis last year, the work of building the forts has never ceased. It was the first requisite of peace the high military command considered and nothing was to interrupt or obstruct the work. Not until these forts were completed could France seriously consider the evacuation of the Rhineland. Left without assurances of security from Britain and the United States and with only Belgium as a constant ally, "as she was in the first hour," military authorities insisted that the forts be built and that France rely on her own resources to ward off an enemy invasion in the future.

The high military command was of the opinion that there have been enough invasions. If war should come again the enemy must stay outside. A repetition of 1914, when the most industrial part of the country was laid waste and national effort handicapped by the cutting off of the whole north had to be prevented.

The general staff is of the opinion that the remedy has been found and that the new system will ward off any attack, by land or by air.

Plan Dates From 1914.

The new plan is not wholly new. It dates from 1914. Even then it became obvious that the old system of fortifications, bastions, walls, bulwarks and defence works was useless.

The French watched with alarm as the forts of Liege crumbled to pieces under the German siege guns. One shot went over, the second went short and the third generally hit. The first two shots were fired to find the exact range. The remarkable accuracy of the German gunners and the destructive power of their guns made of the forts a ridiculous anomaly. In some instances the motto of the German artillery became: "One shot, one fort."

If the Belgians resisted for fourteen days and held up the German advance for that length of time it was because the Belgian infantry opposed its flesh and blood to German steel and high explosive. Maubeuge was considered impregnable. The forts were of different make-up than those of Liege. Hopes ran high for a day or so, but no longer. Maubeuge fell after three days, its forts smashed out of existence.

At Antwerp the lesson had been learned. Forts were useless. So the Belgian army simply blew them up itself, saving its garrisons from being exterminated by the enemy.

Verdun was the first decisive test of the new or invisible fort system. Not all the forts were built according to the new scheme, but some were and these were the ones that resisted best and checked what the Kaiser called "The Kolossal attack." As the enemy advanced over open ground, the horizon would suddenly show a row of powerful cannon. These guns ran on spirals and suddenly fired their destructive salvos. Then they just as suddenly disappeared again under ground, only to appear a few seconds later.

Stores of ammunition were held underground. It was only when the forts became isolated and the munitions ran out that the Germans could advance and engage the garrisons in the terrific hand-to-hand engagements that marked that epochal battle.

Verdun Model Followed.

The whole of France's new fort system will operate on the Verdun model. It will be a chain of underground fort-cities.

Tunnels will connect the forts. Some of these tunnels are half a mile underground. They are impregnable against artillery fire, being constructed of massive concrete.

They connect also with immense stores, hospitals, barracks and machine shops. Whole cities are practically underground. Armies can march for miles without being seen by the enemy air service. They will suddenly pour out through the invisible forts or go to reinforce or relieve the garrisons.

It is because the Government has confidence in the perfection of this new defence system and considers that sufficient protection is afforded in the event of a new invasion that M. Painleve, the Minister of War, will consent to talk about a reduction in the term of enlistment for soldiers and that Marshal Foch will take some rest, after being in harness continually since 1914.

A staff of the ablest engineers has been at work picking up spots where other points of resistance may be built up and linked with the general system. There has been nothing feverish or hasty in the preparation; everything has been conducted along scientific lines with the utmost care and after considerable consultation.

The next war will see France defend itself with these underground cities. They are so constructed that they will be able to hold out independently for a great length of time. Neither man power nor munitions will lack, for there will be concentrations of troops in the depths of the earth—regiments and divisions of them—and they will have the immense stores that are being gathered in peace time to draw upon.

It is the greatest experiment in the history of defence. Every Frenchman hopes that it never will be necessary to use it. But at any rate, official France feels secure. "Ils ne passeront pas!"

An Old Song

By Arthur Mason.

What is the explanation of the world-wide and never-failing appeal of a favorite song? Take, for example, "Annie Laurie"—universally popular, and only one of many old songs that possess this mysterious power to secure for themselves warm and constant place in the hearts of multitudes of people.

Popular Everywhere.

The popular tunes which flood the light music of today also have their triumphs of this kind. They, too, get an immediate and a world-wide audience. But their's is the briefest life. They are here today, and tomorrow their place has been taken by another of their tribe, similarly doomed to swift extinction at the hands of its successor. An "Annie Laurie," on the other hand, lives on and on. The years pass, a new generation supplants the old, and still this song has singers, and still it holds the affections of English-speaking peoples the wide world over, even to the least musical and the least impressionable among them. Its appeal, indeed, is as sure at one end as at the other of the ranks of the great army of listeners to music. It stills into silent absorption the concert audiences of great artists. The dilapidated street musician, blowing his not too certain tones, at the other extreme of the artistic scalecounts confidently upon "Annie Laurie's" chance to give him the listeners for whom he waits and watches. And betwixt and between those extremes are players and singers of every rank and stature, whose audiences are in the hollow of their hands so soon as this simple Scottish tune begins to weave its way within their delighted ears. It is as steadily and a unfailingly a popular song in the Australian or the New Zealand bush as on the South African veldt, and along the Canadian prairies it runs as inexhaustible a course as that which it enjoys within the central roar of London.

What, then, is the secret of this power of an old song upon the minds and hearts of millions of men and women?

Words or Music.

Part of its appeal, no doubt, is in its words, in the association, that is, which the words suggest to their hearers. Their description of Annie Laurie's charms, we may believe, has touched responsive chords in the breasts of innumberable listeners whose case is met more or less exactly by this glowing expression of sentiments very like their own, and by enthusiasms which rise in the last lines of the song to a climax which most of its listeners doubtless find irresistibly appealing. But the appeal of the words of any song has its limits. It is not the whole of a song's appeal, or anything like it. If the charm of the lyrics be not equalled or heightened by the charm of their musical setting, the song has little chance of success as such. How often, for example, beautiful poetry has failed to carry the weight of unacceptable music; and how often have inferior words been allied with music that has given them just the amount of appeal necessary to make the combination a successful song! It is the music of "Annie Laurie," then, which most of all accounts for the song's grip upon its great audience.

What is the Secret?

But when we have allowed that, we are not much nearer to the solution of the problem. Here is a tune which undoubtedly owns melodious ease and grace, but in itself enjoys no particular distinction of beauty. It possesses, perhaps, that quality which is one of music's surest weapons when the heart of the average man and woman is to be won. It has "a dying fall"—and Duke Orsino was not the only one who would hear music of that kind over and over again. But, even so, the tune of "Annie Laurie" is not such music that we should expect to see attached to it in enduring affection, and of necessity, the whole world of British music lovers. More than that, when we have taken together words and music and allowed the appeal of that combination of them, we are still confronted by the fact of a palpable discrepancy between the quality of the song and its abiding fame in despite of the rivalry of tens of thousands of forgotten songs that were no worse even if they were no better.

Two Reasons for Popularity.

It would seem that the long life of an old song is due most of all to two influences. In the first place, the song has in it so much original virtue that it not only attains a wide popularity, but it has the power to persist as a popular song. Thus it gradually grows old enough to be a song of other days. Old members enrich it. Old associations cluster about it. Its intrinsic merit is in that way immensely reinforced by its accumulation of qualities only indirectly its own. It is the song our vanished friends used to sing. It is a song of our now far-off native land. It belongs to a time and it speaks of places and people we try not to forget. It is fragrant with the burden of the many voices of its length of days.

The other factor making for the persistent popularity of an old song is more elusive, but not less vital. It is the appeal of its music as music. No one can explain the mystery of music's appeal. This strain of music will make but a slight and temporary impression. That strain of music will stay within the mind and lie along the heart. The processes by which we assimilate music are as inexplicable as the magic of music's glamor is mysterious. We know music's power to delight, to impress, to charm us. Whence comes that power, or how it operates, we know not. But an old and still favorite song—"Annie Laurie," if you like—is one of the witnesses both to music's irresistible way with us and to the pleasure we enjoy by reason thereof.

FAKIR CLAIMS PRIESTHOOD

Descendant of a hairdresser to one of the kings of Oudh, Charles de Musset, a Frenchman, aged 70, is a claimant to the priesthood of the famous Hanuman (Monkey-god) Temple at Jakoo, Simla. De Musset renounced Christianity for Hinduism at 17, and served his novitiate in a lonely temple, with monkeys as his sole companions. In recent years he has been a familiar figure in Simla, where he became known as "Leopard Fakir," because of the skins he wears, but latterly he lived in retirement and shunned the companionship of Europeans until he appeared to make his claim.

INSULIN CAPSULES MADE

Insulin may now be taken in capsules, according to investigators at the University at Breslau, Germany, who claim to have found a substitute for the pancreatic insulin. Heretofore the remedy for diabetes could not be given in the form of drops, powders or tablets, but must be injected under the skin. Prof. J. C. Minkowski, who conducted the investigations, says that the new method of giving insulin has been effective in a number of cases.

THE COMPANY—The Lindsay Distilleries Limited is incorporated under the Dominion Companies Act and by its charter is empowered to carry on the business of distillers and to manufacture, deal in, buy, sell, distribute, store, warehouse and export liquors of all kinds, commercial and denatured alcohol and all their by-products. The company manufactures four brands of Scotch whiskeys, rye, and gin, and in addition to their own brands the company have a very profitable five-year contract with one of the oldest Scottish distilleries to bottle three well known brands of high-grade Scotch whiskey.

THE DISTILLERY AND BOTTLING PLANT is in complete successful operation and the companies' brands of liquors are now on the market. The company has its own warehouse in Toronto to give modern and efficient service to its customers.

The MAIN DISTILLERY is equipped with most modern machinery to manufacture high grade alcohol. The capacity of the distillery is now 1,000,000 gallons per annum and as business demands this production can be doubled at a very nominal cost.

THE CHEMICAL DISTILLERY is and has been in operation for 10 years producing methyl (wood) alcohol, charcoal, and acetate of lime.

MANAGEMENT—The company is fortunate in securing the services of blenders, chemists and executives with years of experience and its personnel, coupled with most modern methods and equipment, fully approved by the Dominion Excise Department can only result in the quick establishment of a sound business with substantial profits to its shareholders. The properties are situated in the Town of Lindsay, on the Trent Valley Canal, with railway sidings on both properties. The company has only one class of stock, namely, common shares without nominal par value. Upon completion of present financing the company will have no bonded debt, mortgage, preferred stock, or bank loans. The company will have ample working capital and be entirely free of debt, except current accounts. No valuation has been placed on the charter, license, trade mark, trade name or good will.

The proceeds of the sale of this issue of common shares of Lindsay Distilleries Limited, referred to above is made in order to provide funds to be used for final payment of plant equipment and for working capital.

We are offering a limited amount of stock at $20 per shade, which price is subject to change without notice. Personally, we see no reason for this stock not being worth anywhere from $50 to $100 per share within a comparatively short time.

EARNINGS—Estimated, First Year:

Distillery Plant	$300,000.00
Chemical Plant	30,000.00
	$330,000.00
For Second Year	$500,000.00
For Third Year	1,000,000.00

It is intended in due course to apply to have these shares admitted to the unlisted department of the Toronto Stock Exchange.

All orders taken subject to acceptance or rejection. In case of over-subscription, any monies paid will be refunded.

Price $20.00 per share

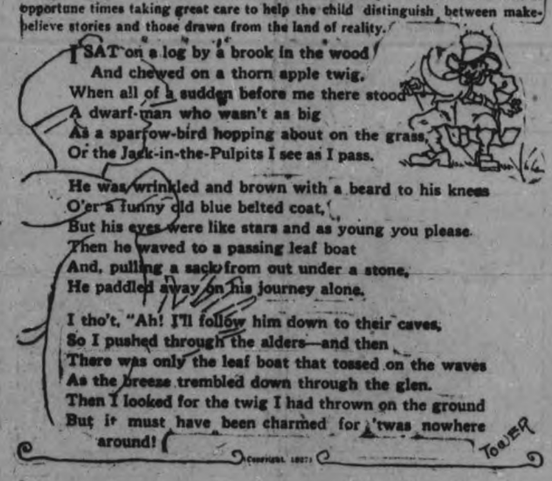
The Dwarf

By SHIRLEY RODMAN WILLIAMS

"CLAIRE has told me several lies lately," worried Claire's mother to me. "I've scolded and punished her, but it doesn't seem to do any good!" "What kind of untruths does she tell?" I questioned. "Oh, she's always having some impossible adventure, or imagining things which she relates as absolute truth until I'm fairly discouraged!" As a matter of fact I am afraid Claire's mother was taking a course fully as questionable as Claire. A lie is a serious thing because a lie is a deliberate falsehood while, as a matter of fact, many children go wandering off into the land-of-just-pretend with such fervor that their imaginings really do seem true. Such material does not weave lie fabric. It is drawn from the thread world of fantasy and related with confidence. The problem here for the parent is not to interpret the tale as a lie, but accept it in the spirit rendered and then at opportune times taking great care to help the child distinguish between make-believe stories and those drawn from the land of reality.



I SAT on a log by a brook in the wood
And chewed on a thorn apple twig,
When all of a sudden before me there stood
A dwarf-man who wasn't as big
As a sparrow-bird hopping about on the grass,
Or the Jack-in-the-Pulpits I see as I pass.

He was wrinkled and brown with a beard to his knees
O'er a funny old blue belted coat,
But his eyes were like stars and as young you please.
Then he waved to a passing leaf boat
And, pulling a sack from out under a stone,
He paddled away on his journey alone.

I tho't, "Ah! I'll follow him down to their caves,
So I pushed through the alders—and then
There was only the leaf boat that tossed on the waves
As the breeze trembled down through the glen.
Then I looked for the twig I had thrown on the ground
But it must have been charmed for 'twas nowhere around!

SILVER WEDDING DATE OBSERVED

Rev. H. F. and Mrs. Battersby Receive Many Congratulations.

RELATIVES HERE.

St. Mary's Rectory was gay with flowers and happy faced friends who called on Friday, November 11th to congratulate the Rev. H. F. and Mrs. Battersby on the 25th anniversary of their wedding. Mrs. Battersby received in the drawing room with her sister, Miss Helen Orde, of Peterboro and Mrs. Marsh, wife of Rev. Canon Marsh, of Lindsay. During the afternoon the W. A. and other sincere friends presented Mrs. Battersby with a beautiful silver topped silk purse of silver. The address was read by Mrs. Pugsley and the presentation made by Mrs. Mollett. The dining room was gay with flowers and tapers and tea and coffee were poured by Mrs. H. A. Nicholls and Mrs. C. Kerswell in the afternoon and Mrs. R. S. Mason and Mrs. Carter in the evening. Mrs. Arthur Musgrave of Toronto and Mrs. Mollett brought the guests to the dining room and Mrs. Stanford assisted. The Misses Dorothy Hick, Olive Paris, Margaret Battersby served refreshments in the afternoon and Misses Marion Carter, Clara Mason, Olive Paris and Margaret Battersby in the evening, Miss Sylvia Battersby presiding at the door.

Those from a distance who came to offer congratulations were Mrs. Marsh, of Lindsay; Rev. H. H. Marsh, of St. Paul's church, Toronto; Mrs. A. Musgrave, Toronto; Miss Orde and Mrs. Andrew Allan, of Peterborough; Hon. Mr. Justice and Mrs. Orde and Mrs. Alfred Pope and son, of Toronto; Mrs. N. H. Noble, of Thornhill and Miss Shore of Caledon, East. Letters of congratulations came from many parts and the presents were very numerous. Rev. H. H. Marsh and Mrs. Marsh both sang during the afternoon.—Richmond Hill Liberal.

W.M.S. HAS CHARGE OF CHURCH MEETING

Ladies of Gilmour Memorial Congregation Tell of Work in Canada.

The Ladies' Mission Circle of Gilmour Memorial Church had charge of the Young People's meeting on Sunday night.

In the absence of the present of the Circle, the vice-president, Mrs. T. H. Graham, presided and spoke on the topic "If I were a missionary, what country would I choose?" She chose Canada, emphasizing the Baptist work among French-Canadians in the Province of Quebec. This Baptist mission is known as the "Grande Ligne". Papers were given by Mrs. Proudlove, on New Ontario; Mrs. John Archer, Brantford Indians; Mrs. A. B. Mann, British Columbia, and Mrs. Harold Archer on Western Canada. Mrs. J. A. Young spoke on foreigners in Canada.

The ladies' choir sang a chorus, "The Gypsy Boy" and the Rev. W. S. Edgar pronounced the benediction.

MISSION BAND HOLDS SERVICE

Members Provide Choir at Special Service in Millbrook Church.

FITTING SERMON GIVEN

MILLBROOK, Nov. 29.—A special service in the interests of the Sunshine Mission Band was held in the United church on Sunday at the morning worship, about thirty-five of the boys and girls forming the choir for the occasion.

Some beautiful narcissus were placed on the altar table bringing a touch of spring in keeping with the bright faces which readily suggested a garden of living blossoms, growing here and maturing for eternity.

Two selections were sung by the youthful choir, "Listen to the Voice of Jesus", and "Pretty Little Snowflakes," and the hymns used were chosen from the special section "For the Young" in the church hymnal.

The pastor chose the twenty-third Psalm for the Scripture lesson, the mission band members reciting the verses in unison, instead of having the congregation join in the reading as is usually done. Little Patsy Richards, holding her mite-box in her hand, had a short recitation on "Giving", preceding the sermon, and the annual thankoffering was taken up. A feature which the Rev. Mr. Howard mentioned as of particular interest was the fact that Lenore Lambert, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. C. Lambert, has sold flowers during the summer months, raising the necessary five dollars to make her younger brother, Venner, a life member of the band; the envelope was placed on the plate with the thankoffering. Jack Stinson and Elwood Fallis, two band members, took up the offering from the little folk.

Addressing the younger folk particularly the pastor spoke from the text: "Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies", giving some interesting facts in connection with the shepherd's care of his sheep in eastern lands, and stressing the thought that the church, as the body of Christ, is responsible for the 'table' being prepared for the children of our Canadian nation.

Childhood is like a mirror catching and reflecting images from all around it, and enemies will steal in and injure the growing bodies, minds, and souls unless parents, teachers, and leaders of the young generally take constant care to have the right 'pasture' for these, the most valuable asset in a nation's upbuilding.

This will mean a readiness to sacrifice self, time, patience, and talents in the Master's service, but "Free grace for you meant Calvary for Christ", and the things that are worth while are not secured without putting all upon the altar.

The closing part of the address dealt with the 'table' spread for children in non-Christian lands, and the obligation to 'pass it on' in connection with the gospel privileges and message. "Jesus loves the little children of the world. Red and yellow, black and white, all are precious in His sight. Jesus loves the little children of the world."

A recitation, "If I were a Missionary", by Bernice Smith, was a fitting climax to the address the pastor delivered, and the hymn, "Jesus like a Shepherd Leads Us", was also particularly appropriate in closing the service. Mrs. G. W. Sayles is superintendent of the mission band.

TRAVELLERS' AID WORK EXPLAINED

Madoc Section of United Church W.M.S. Holds Fall Rally.

MADOC, Nov. 29.—Several ladies from here attended the second annual rally of the Madoc section of the United Church Women's Missionary Society held in Thomasburg on Thursday. Devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. George Harris and Mrs. W. H. Hicks. The address of welcome was given by Mrs. Pringle, of Thomasburg, who expressed her regret that the people of Cooper were disappointed in having the rally, but was pleased to express her pleasure at welcoming the delegates to Thomasburg.

The routine business and reports of Auxiliaries, Circles and Bands occupied much of the morning session.

The devotional services of the afternoon were conducted by Mrs. Craig, of Lodgeroom, and Mrs. Revers, of Madoc.

The banners of the year were awarded to Tweed Auxiliary and Tweed Band.

The "Quiet Hour" was conducted by Mrs. Rogers, of Thomasburg. A solo by Mrs. Parker, of Queensboro, "When You Come to the End of a Perfect Day," was very much appreciated.

The address of the afternoon was given by Mrs. Wilson, who first conducted a question drawer, and then gave a very vivid and detailed account of the meeting of the Dominion Board.

Dr. Detwiler, of Kitchener, gave a short talk on the travellers' aid work, urging that each community have a travellers' aid representative to help strangers who come into the community, and girls and women who are going out to strange places and new surroundings.

The convention closed early, not having an evening session.

HASTINGS NEWS

HASTINGS, Nov. 29.—Mr. D. E. Scriver, who was operated on in Peterborough some time ago, had been doing nicely and was able to be back in the store again, until Wednesday morning, when he took a sudden relapse and is in a serious condition. His many friends hope for a speedy recovery.

Mr. E. L. Sackville, of Peterborough, spent a few days of this week in town on business.

Mr. Fletcher, of Peterborough, was a business visitor in town on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Mr. Richard Walsh's sale on Tuesday was a decided success, notwithstanding the weather. It rained most of the afternoon. Mr. Walsh disposed of some 44 head of horses, 85 head of cattle, 100 sheep and 20 hogs. Horses brought as high a figure as $190.00, and some cows sold for $90.00. Yearling heifers were sold for $45.00 and $48.00 each.

Mr. Edward Wilcox was suddenly stricken with appendicitis on Wednesday morning. On Wednesday evening he was taken to Peterborough, where he was immediately operated upon. He is in a very critical condition.

Mr. Joseph Heffernan, of Kingston, was a visitor in town on Thursday.

STIRLING NEWS

STIRLING, Nov. 29.—Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Martin have attended several of the Tom Sykes' meetings held in Belleville last week.

Mr. L. Bird, of Smithfield, visited her aunt, Mrs. Henry Reid, recently.

Mrs. Ben. Hagerman, of Minto, has been spending several days with her mother, Mrs. S. Wright.

Miss Lillian Hagerman, of Queen's University, was a week-end visitor with her grandmother.

Rev. F. H. Howard, a former pastor of the United Church here and now of Millbrook, who had been preaching anniversary sermons at Trent River, when on his way home on Monday called on several of his friends here.

Mr. R. P. Coulter is confined to his home suffering from inflammatory rheumatism.

Mr. F. Jeffery, who has been employed at L. and R. W. Meiklejohn's store, has secured a position in Toronto.

DR. E. J. PRATT VISITED WEST

Victoria College Professor Who Speaks Here Made Long Tour.

MADE MANY SPEECHES

Peterborough people who enjoyed Dr. E. J. Pratt's series of lectures on literature last year and who are preparing to take advantage of the course which he begins this season on Friday of this week at the Young Women's Christian Association, will be interested in the following article about him which appeared recently in a Toronto daily. Dr. Pratt is a member of the Faculty of Victoria College, Toronto:

"Dr. E. J. Pratt, well-known as a Canadian writer of unusual and somewhat titanic poems, has just returned to Toronto from a lecture trip through the West, minus his razor, various toothbrushes, his pyjamas, and several other personal possessions of like importance—and bringing with him, in place of these things, a fine collection of hotel doorkeys. The razor remained in Calgary, the pyjamas in Saskatoon and other places, and 'I left toothbrushes nearly everywhere,' smiled Dr. Pratt cheerfully. 'But I know I left a good one in Winnipeg!'

"Which reminds of the story which crept around Toronto last spring — how Chancellor Bowles of Victoria College, where Dr. Pratt lectures, started home one afternoon and found only one hat and coat remaining in the cloak room—obviously not his own, but whose he could not tell, until he found in one of the pockets, an uncomfortably heavy load of golfballs. Then he remembered, and went gaily home. He entered his own front door chanting loudly:

'Pratt the poet
Went off with my co-at—'

And the real joke was that Mrs. Pratt, when her husband come in that same night, said at once: 'Mercy! It's high time you got a new coat!'

"Dr. Pratt — familiarly known as 'Ned Pratt'—was born in Newfoundland, but he has lived and worked for so long within the boundaries of Canada that he calls himself a Canadian; in fact, he insists on being regarded as a Canadian. For a number of years he has been in Toronto, at Victoria College, guiding the destinies of young Canada in the general direction of letters and literature, and he is one of the most popular lecturers in the University. One of the reasons for this is that he is ,despite his forty years, very, very young. He possesses the spirit of youth, which, above all things, is needed by the poets of the youngest country.

"Dr. Pratt has been in Western Canada since the middle of September, lecturing under the auspices of the National Association of Canadian Clubs. His new poem, 'The Iron Door,' bids fair to be as popular as his earlier 'Witches Brew' and the 'Titans 'and the West was fortunate in hearing the poet read this new work in advance of its publication, which has just taken place this week. Canada certainly appreciates her poets; great audiences welcomed Dr. Pratt in twenty different cities and towns between Fort William and Vancouver, and the thing which he particularly enjoyed was that on his way back, arrangements were made by which he was enabled to speak to thousands of students in the different centres. Anyone who has heard Dr. Pratt will realize what an inspiration he would be to any student who had the smallest glimmering of literary ability and ambition. This matter of the student lectures was arranged by the Canadian Clubs in various places, and many times the poet would give a luncheon lecture to the men, an afternoon address to the ladies, and sandwich in one or two special short talks to students in the different schools, all in a single day.

"On the subject of lecturing to the ladies he refused to be drawn. 'Every lecturer in the world has made remarks about feminine audiences,' he said, 'I have nothing to say except that I enjoyed it very much indeed, and I was greatly honored by the large audiences of Women's Canadian Club members who turned out to hear me, because, you know, they were taking a big chance!'

"'What kind of a chance?'

"'A chance of being utterly bored, of course,' said the poet. And then he said: 'You know, this is a wonderful period for the Canadian writer! The people are so ready to welcome the Canadian author and poet; they are so enthusiastic and so friendly, especially out in the West. They seem to be waiting for you with open arms—and it makes you feel so very humble about what you have to offer them. When you look into the faces of your audience you wish that you could give them a hundred times as much as you can give; you wish that what work you have done was multiplied many times and could be a hundred times as good as it is! Why—most of us are only just beginning. I've been writing for a good many years, but I am only just beginning to feel my way ,and yet I can go across Canada and be given all that encouragement and cheer and friendliness—it's wonderful! Of course, it wouldn't be possible if it were not for organizations like the Canadian railways and the Canadian Clubs. The railways run the trains and the clubs gather the audiences—'

"'And you do the rest—'

"'I do the best I can,' said Dr Pratt. 'And now I have to go out and buy a razor.'

"'And pyjamas?'

"'Mrs. Pratt,' said the poet loftily, 'will attend to that. But I have to send back a few of those hotel-keys.'"

5TH PETERBOROUGH WOLF CUB PACK.

"Our brother Scouts have been wondering what we are doing," says a member of the Wolf Cubs. "In the future you are going to hear a lot about us. Although you have not seen our notices in the paper we have not been idle. With the help of our older brothers of the 5th we are coming along fine. Our Cubmaster, Mr. Hope, has been a fine fellow to us. Our Senior Sixer G. Johnson and assistant, E. Peters, have been doing good work."

The pack is divided off into sixes under the sixer. When the boy has finished his work he is ready to be invested and made a Tenderpad. He has to come before the Cubmaster, who asks him for his Cub law, which says: "The Cub gives in to the old Wolf. The Cub does not give in to himself."

The boys, about sixteen in number, with about ten in uniform, attend the meetings regularly. Mr. John comes down sometimes and entertains the pack with some of his tongue twisters. The meeting on Friday night opened with the Cub howl. Then followed instruction work. The Senior Sixer passed Billy Macpherson on his first star tests. Then a reading followed, "The Jungle Dance of Kar," a form of dance was done by the Cubs. The games, though not as exciting as last week, took well. "Crows and cranes" and "snatch the hat" were some. Then, after a little lecture by the Cubmaster, the pack was called up, and after giving the mouse howl, the Cub howl modified, was dismissed.

GILLETT PRESIDENT DENIES RUMORS

G. H. Macfarlane Says Stories of Sale Are Unfounded.

Mr. George H. Macfarlane, President, E. W. Gillett Company, Limited, manufacturers of Magic Baking Powder and other well-known food products has today authorized the statement that the owners of the controlling interest in the stock of his Company have not sold, exchanged or otherwise disposed of their stock, that no negotiations have been or are now pending to that end, and that they do not intend to sell or otherwise dispose of their holdings in his Company. Mr. Macfarlane further stated that no merger or ronsolidation with any other company has been or is being considered.

This statement has been authorized because of the many rumors that have been circulated recently to the effect that E. W. Gillett Company, Limited is in process of being sold or was to be merged or combined with some other corporation. These rumors are entirely contrary to the facts.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

Flexible paste-studded head bands have returned to fashion, but they are worn not low on the brow, but high on the head, in a manner reminiscent of Victorian fashions.

Every fashion has its own peculiar notions about foreheads. During much of the Victorian age foreheads were quite the thing. You could hardly show too much. And novelists of that day seldom failed to add to their heroine's charms a beautiful smooth, high forehead.

But in these Georgian days foreheads have been at a discount, and most women have much preferred to show their knees than their bare skin above the eyebrows. To do such a thing has seemed almost immodest.

Now as knees are going into a partial eclipse foreheads seem to be coming out from the shadow. A few years ago when flappers in this country chose to wear their hats and their hair so that their foreheads showed most of us looked on in amazement. It was a fashion that surely was not bred in Paris. Now, strangely enough, Parisian milliners here and there dare to offer a hat that shows a patch of forehead, and little by little women are daring to wear their hair brushed or cut so that they show a considerable extent of noble brow.

And now comes the Victorian evening bandeau—placed not down on the brow in the way to which we have been accustomed for some years, but fairly high on the crown with hair either drawn severely back beneath it or parted in a way that further adds to the Victorian effect.

Usually this effect is much more becoming to young faces than to old—so fortunately fashion still permits bandeaus placed on the forehead. It all depends—or at least ought to—on your face, your forehead and the date on your birth certificate.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

Faith heard Cherry gasp, saw her extend a small hand slowly, her bright head, crowned with its rioting copper-and-gold curls, tilting upward, as if she were looking upon a man of great height.

"I'm Nils Jonson," she heard the man say, in a rich, booming voice, before she saw him. "Is my sister Rhoda here?"

Rhoda, who had been crouching miserably in the chair farthest from the door, sprang to her feet then and ran to the door, arms outstretched, her pretty, plump face alight with joy. It came to Faith then that the girl adored her brother, that there had been far more to her running away from the farm than had been told.

"Nils! Don't be angry with me! Oh, Nils, I'm so glad to see you!" Rhoda cried, tears slurring her beautiful voice.

His body filled the door which Rhoda tore open, thrusting Cherry aside. In that first glimpse of him Faith had the bewildered impression that a giant had descended upon them, that the living room, spacious though it was, was not large enough for him. Against the magnificence of his physique Rhoda seemed small and frail. Her arms were stretched to encircle his neck. He laughed.

Cherry, still backing away from him as if stupified, was regarding him with wide, incredulous golden eyes, her polite smile of welcome frozen upon her geranium-tinted little mouth.

"Mrs. Hathaway, Mr. Hathaway, this is my brother, Nils!" Rhoda cried, pride making her voice vibrate like a plucked violin string.

Faith and Bob went to meet him, hands outstretched, but before they had measured their height against his, Faith had begun to feel like a pygmy. For he was at least six feet three inches tall, and big in proportion. Only the limitless expanse of sea or prairie could form a fitting background for his Viking-like magnificence. A man to be reckoned with, to be feared even, this Nils Jonson from whom placid, soft little Rhoda had fled.

Still holding his sister in the curve of a mighty arm, Nils shook hands with Faith and Bob, and boomed a musical, deep-voiced greeting:

"I'm glad to know you. It was mighty nice of you to take care of my little sister for me."

Faith almost laughed aloud. The words were so commonplace. She hardly knew what she had expected from this magnificent giant who had journeyed from Minnesota at Cherry's request, but it seemed odd that ordinary words could come from a mouth like that. Her eyes flicked an amused glance at Cherry, but her little sister was standing spellbound, her golden eyes fixed in an almost frightening intensity upon Nils Jonson's face. And her face was so pale, so rigid, that Faith was suddenly awed and afraid.

"Won't you sit down?" Bob broke the tension by asking with casual cordiality. "We wrote you for two reasons—because we thought you would be uneasy about your sister, and because we have every reason to believe she has a voice worth cultivating. But of course we could do nothing without your consent—and help." He floundered a bit at the end of his sentence, for Nils Jonson was shaking his Jovian head in magnificent negation.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any coughs or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

PREDICTS CANADA LAND OF MUSICIANS

Piano Coming Into Greater Use, Says Well Known Critic.

Speaking before a group of young people in one of our Western Canadian cities recently, a well-known music critic had this to say:

"I predict that in another ten years the Canadian people will be a nation of musical performers instead of musical listeners, and before that time has elapsed, the piano will see greater glory than ever before in the history of musical appreciation.

"Never before has the piano offered so many opportunities vocationally. There are hundreds of boys and girls the country over who are earning an excellent livelihood in their spare hours through their ability to play the piano.

"Never before in our history has the piano and its study played so important a part in the public education of our children as it does today. So important in the eyes of the country's leading educators is the study of the piano that it is being added to the curriculum of dozens of schools.

"Newer and less tedious methods of teaching the piano are rapidly supplanting the old. The various methods of group instruction base their system on teaching children in classes.

"A recent estimate shows that there are over 100,000 children in the United States studying piano in the public schools alone under this new group instruction method.

"Just now a number of the greatest musicians, orchestra conductors and educators are organizing themselves into a committee for the purpose of promoting the study of piano among children.

"The piano is the basic musical instrument. Such a famous man as Walter Damrosch recently said: 'Every child in our country should learn how to sing, and how to play upon at least one musical instrument. Among these the piano is perhaps the most practical for musical cultural purposes. Nothing should crowd out the opportunity for self-expression which can come to those who can play the piano with some degree of mastery.'

"Thinking men and women are today looking to the piano to combat the spirit of recklessness and unrest among the younger generation. The Canadian family has two rallying points, the fireside and the piano, and the national devotion to the piano is stronger today than ever."

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

FOR WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 30th, 1927.

Good and evil planetary influences conflict on this last day of November, according to astrology, which reads malefic aspects as dominant.

Although there is a promising sign early in the morning for those who seek employment it is well to defer initiative, if possible.

It is well not to trust one's decisions made under this sway, which tends toward hasty and ill-considered action.

Newspapers and magazines may engage in controversies under this direction of the stars, which encourages confusion of thought.

Labor today may be affected by discontent and may be easily persuaded to contemplate the faults of employers.

Saturn is in an aspect menacing to certain branches of industry which may suffer because of enemy propaganda.

Women are subject to favorable influences and should engage in public work, club activities and political affairs while this configuration prevails.

This is read as a happy wedding day, since it presages love that is loyal. Money may be elusive, but joy will probably outlast economies.

Theatres should benefit from this planetary government which seems to promise new plays that are worthy to endure.

Actors and actresses will profit in the coming year, which is to bring radical changes in motion picture methods as well as theatre management, the seers prophesy.

Again it is announced that the eclipses of next month are held to foreshadow seismic disturbances in the United States.

Atlantic storms of unprecedented violence will mark the winter, according to astrologers.

Persons whose birthdate it is may reach success in art this year in which friendship will play an important part.

Children born on this day probably will have a decided artistic endowment. Many musicians are born under this sign.

Hints On Etiquette

1. Why do some people acknowledge introductions by repeating the names of persons they have just met?
2. Is it a good plan?
3. Why?

The Answers.

1. To show that they have heard them correctly.
2. Yes.
3. By repeating the name as you look at the person you will fix it in your memory.

Uncle Wiggily

By HOWARD R. GARIS

To-day's Bedtime Story

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE SNOW SHOES

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

Jack Frost, who had frozen the last apple on the tree, as I told you in the story before this—Jack Frost stood on his tip toes and blew his cold breath into the air.

"Now we'll see what happens!" cried the jolly little elf.

And what happened was that a lot of snow flakes began sifting down out of the sky. That's what Jack Frost does. He makes snow and ice. And it was time he began to do this in the land where Uncle Wiggily lived. Though in other lands, where the sun shines warm all the year, Jack Frost could blow himself inside out before he could make a single flake of snow.

"I'll make a big storm while I'm at it!" chuckled Mr. Frost. "Whoo! Zoo! Zee!" and he blew his cold breath again and more flakes fell.

So that when Uncle Wiggily left his hollow stump bungalow to go to the store to get his wife a pound of sugar, the rabbit gentleman stepped into deep snow.

"You had better put on your rubber boots!" squeaked Nurse Jane.

"Yes, I think perhaps I had," agreed the rabbit uncle. "And if it gets much deeper," he said to himself, as, with his boots on, he once more started off, if it gets much deeper I shall need snow shoes."

Snow shoes, you know, are made long and broad, like lawn tennis rackets, so those who wear them will not sink down in the soft drifts.

But though it was snowing hard, the flakes were not yet quite deep enough to cause the rabbit gentleman to put on his queer shoes. His boots were quite enough, and soon he was at the store.

"Well, what is it going to be today?" asked the Grocery Cat as the bunny gentleman stamped his feet on the floor to get rid of the snow. The Grocery Cat was listening to Uncle Butter the goat eat hard crackers, to which Uncle Butter helped himself from the barrel near the counter.

"I want some sugar, if you please," answered Mr. Longears.

"How about some nice fresh nuts?" asked the Grocery Cat. "I have a new lot in ready for Christmas."

"Thank you," spoke Uncle Wiggily, "we rabbits don't eat nuts. They are for squirrels or mice. My teeth aren't made for cracking nut shells."

"You could break the shells with a hammer," mewed the Grocery Cat. "And since you are buying some sugar you ought to buy some nuts. Then your wife could make nut candy for the little ones."

"I never thought of that!" chuckled Mr. Longears. "Maybe she wants this sugar to make candy and, of course, nut candy is the nicest kind there is. Let me have a pound of assorted nuts."

"Right you are!" bleated Uncle Butter. "Nut candy is good!"

So, after playing a game of checkers with his goat friend, Uncle Wiggily put the sugar in one pocket and the nuts in another and back through the storm he went in his rubber boots.

But he had not gone very far before he heard a noise behind him. Turning quickly, the rabbit gentleman feared he would see through the snow the Bob Cat or Wolf racing after him. But it was only Mr. Longtail, the mouse gentleman, who was having hard work to get through the snow, which was now quite deep in places.

"Oh, Mr. Longears!" squeaked Mr. Longtail. "What am I to do? I can hardly walk in this deep snow!" And truly it was hard work, for his tiny paws made holes in the snow and at each step he took the father of Jilly and Jollie, the mice boy and girl, sank far into the soft, white drifts.

"Why don't you wear rubber boots as I do?" asked the rabbit.

"I haven't the money to buy any," squeaked the mouse.

"Then you should have snow shoes," said Uncle Wiggily.

"They cost more than rubber boots?" sighed Mr. Longtail.

"Not the kind of snow shoes I mean!" chuckled the rabbit. "I just thought of a way to make you a pair. Look, I have some English walnuts here—they have big shells. Now if you will gnaw two of these nuts apart, you may eat the meat, and you will have four half shells. Each half shell will make you a snow shoe. Stick your paws in the shells and you can walk over soft snow without sinking in."

"What a grand idea!" squeaked the mouse gentleman. No sooner said than done. Quickly he stood on a place which Uncle Wiggily swept bare of snow with a rubber boot. Then Mr. Longtail gnawed the nuts apart, ate the sweet meat inside and, with the help of the rabbit, stuck his paws inside the walnut shells. They made fine snow shoes.

"Hurray! Now I can get home!" squeaked the mouse. And away he went as nicely as you please, while Uncle Wiggily hopped home to help make the candy. So this teaches us that even nut shells are of use in this world. And if the hands of the clock will shake bye-bye to the baby carriage, I'll tell you soon about Uncle Wiggily's barrel of fun.

LEAGUE BEGINS WORK ON PLAY

Young People of Hastings United Church Plan Christmas Entertainment.

PARTS DISTRIBUTED.

HASTINGS, Nov. 29.—The Young People of the United Church held their regular League meeting on Monday evening.

The League calendars were given out to those present, who numbered about forty.

The program was in charge of Miss Grace Orr, 3rd vice-president, which was as follows:

Vocal solo—Madeline Bond.

Scripture reading—Psalm 121—Miss Ada Bond.

Instrumental solo—Miss Winnie Huycke.

Reading—Mrs. Alfred Metcalfe.

The report of the Young People's Convention held at Smith Falls was given in detail by Rev. Mr. Hie, who was the delegate there from this League. His report was very inspiring and interesting. A hymn was then sung, after which all repeated the Mizpah prayer.

After League Mr. and Mrs. Elliott of Campbellford were introduced to some who wished to take part in a play to be staged here on Christmas night. The characters for the play were chosen and given their respective parts to learn. They held their first practice on Tuesday evening.

International League Opens April 18th - Belanger Wins on Points

JERSEY CITY CLUB TRANSFER IS RATIFIED

Montreal Rights Given Approval at Meeting of International League.

HAVE BRIGHT OUTLOOK

Opening and Closing Dates for 1928 Schedule Formed.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—(Canadian Press.)—Ratification of the transfer of the Jersey City Baseball Club to Montreal and the naming of opening and closing dates for the 1928 schedule formed the principal business of the annual meeting of the International League here yesterday John Conway Toole announced.

George T. Stallings, Walter Hapgood and Charles Ferrar, appearing as representatives of the new Montreal ownership, outlined bright prospects for the club, which has a park with a seating capacity of 25,000.

The 1928 campaign will open on April 18 and close on Sept. 23. The schedule details will be worked out by a committee to be appointed at another meeting here on December 15.

Acknowledgment was made of the new owners of the Rochester Club, including Walter Hagen, the golf star, and John Ganzel, former manager of the team. John L. Hicks and William Gilbert were the former owners of the club.

President Toole will represent the league at a joint meeting of minor baseball organizations at Dallas, Texas, beginning Dec. 3. An increase of $1,000 in salary was voted for William J. Manley, secretary of the league for the past 15 years.

The clubs were represented as follows:

Toronto, Lawrence Selman, James Dunn and Bill O'Hara; Buffalo, S. L. Robertson, William J. Clymer; Rochester, W. Hagen and J. Ganzel; Syracuse, Warren C. Giles; Baltimore, Jack Dunn; Reading, E. J. Poole, Walter Ludwig; Newark, James P. Sinnott, John Boyle and Wilbur Grelin; Montreal, Stallings, Ferrer and Hapgood.

DRAW UP SCHEDULES.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—(Canadian Press).—Preliminary arrangement for the major league baseball schedules for next season will be made within the next few days by John A. Heydler, president of the National League, and Ernest S. Barnard, new head of the American League, it became known yesterday.

President Heydler indicated he would meet with Barnard in two or three days, possibly at Pittsburgh. To guard against hasty reconsideration of the schedules by eleventh hour consultation as developed last year, the league heads have decided to confer in private before the meeting to be held here next month.

TRAIN AT AUGUSTA.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Nov. 29.—(Canadian Press).—The New York National League Baseball Club will train at Augusta, Ga., next spring, Manager John McGraw announced yesterday. This decision was reached after the city council of Augusta voted to install a training field, club houses and showers. For the past four years the Giants have pitched their camp at Sarasota, Fla. The Toronto International also have selected Augusta for the 1928 training ground.

CUYLER TRADED.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 29.—(Canadian Press).—Hazen (Kiki) Cuyler, star outfielder of the Pittsburgh Pirates, yesterday was traded to the Chicago Cubs for Earl Adams, second baseman, and Floyd J. Scott, outfielder.

Announcement of the trade was made last night by Sam Watters, secretary of the Pittsburgh Baseball Club. The deal was made on a straight players basis and no money was involved, Watters announced.

15 Teams Compete In Bicycle Race

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—(Canadian Press).—Fifteen teams will compete in New York's 43rd International Six-Day Bicycle Race starting next Sunday night at 2 o'clock in Madison Square Garden. Reggie McNamara, the "iron man", and France Georgetti of Italy, motor paced champions of America, the combination which won the last New York race, are paired again and favored to repeat their victory.

MONTREAL BALL CLUB DIRECTORS

Montreal Exhibition Company, Ltd., Operate Club in International League.

STOCK OFFERED

MONTREAL, Nov. 29.—(U.P.).—The Montreal Exhibition Company, Ltd., will operate the local club in the International Baseball League, which has been given the Jersey City franchise. Stock of the company is being offered by a local broker. The capitalization consist of fifty thousand class A shares ($30 par value), of which 35,000 shares will be issued, and 25,000 authorized of class B shares (no par value), all of which are to be issued.

The directorate includes such well-known Canadians as Right Hon. Lord Shaughnessy, K.C.; Hartland B. MacDougall, Minister of Roads; J. L. Perron, K.C.; Senator W. L. MacDougald and John S. Archibald, F.R.S.A.

In addition to the baseball field, there will be accommodations for hockey, lacrosse and horse shows.

The stadium will accommodate 22,000 with arrangements so accommodation for 15,000 can be added.

OLYMPIC LACROSSE TEAM FOR STATES

United States Inter-Collegiate Association Discuss Matter.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—(United Press).—With lacrosse added to the Olympic games at Amsterdam in 1928 for the first time in the history of the international sports meeting, the United States is assured a representative team chosen by the United States Intercollegiate Lacrosse association.

At the 23rd annual meeting of the association held here, it was decided to choose either an all-star combination from various sections of the country or name in its entirety the team that ranks first at the close of the coming season's competition, Secretary Edward Barber, of Harvard, announced yesterday.

The "first ten" teams of the 1927 season were ranked as follows by the associations:

1, John Hopkins; 2, Navy; 3, Yale; 4, Rutgers; 5, Union; 6, Syracuse; 7, Maryland; 8, Cornell; 9, Hobart and Colgate; 10, Pennsylvania.

Representatives of the Canadian Lacrosse association offered the Lord Minto cup as a trophy for the winner of a series of games to be played between teams of Canada and the United States. The cup was presented to the Canadian association over forty years ago. Rules governing the award of the trophy will be arranged between committees of the two associations. Dominion representatives reported that Canada, as well as Great Britain, Ireland and possibly Australia will be entering teams in the Olympic competition.

GAMES CLOSE IN PRO CIRCUIT

Windsor, London, and Niagara Falls Last Night's Winners.

MARGINS NARROW.

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov. 29.—Scoring the one tally of the game in the first period, Windsor defeated Stratford, 1 to 0 last night in a Canadian Hockey League contest on the Windsor rink. The only score came when Bellemer skated down the ice and drove the puck past Goalie Dolson, after retrieving his own rebound. Bellemer and P. Palangio shared the limelight for the Windsor team, time and again making sorties down the ice.

Both teams played a good brand of hockey throughout the match. A large crowd, estimated at 4,500, turned out to watch the two teams perform.

London, 3; Hamilton, 1.

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 29.—An individual punch when the opening came as against a more polished passing attack gave London Panthers a 3 to 1 verdict over Hamilton here last night. There were times during the game when hockey played was very slow and bordering on shinny, but a much smaller crowd than usual gained enough thrills out of the good spots to create some enthusiasm.

London stayed in front after Grot, who counted two of the local tallies, scored his first after 16 minutes of even battling in the first period, and which brought out much random passing and hard, but wild shooting, and they deserved to stay out in the lead.

Niagara Falls, 2; Kitchener, 0.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Nov. 29.—Mickey Roach's Falls Cataracts came through with flying colors here last night, celebrating their first victory in five starts in the Canadian League at the expense of Alf Skinner's Kitchener Millionaires. The pace was fast throughout, and the score of 2 to 0 just about tells the story of the edge held by the home team. Manager Roach himself was probably the outstanding performer of the evening. The Falls' chief engineered many clever plays and scored his team's second goal. Speyer and Spring, on the defence, played air-tight hockey, using their weight to advantage.

TORONTO LAD GETS DECISION OVER GENARO

Belanger's Aggressiveness and Margin in Last Two Rounds Gives Him Victory.

MITCHELL WINS.

Winner Qualifies To Meet Jarvis For Flyweight Championship.

TORONTO, Ont., November 29. — Frenchy Belanger, the hard-hitting little local flyweight, hopped over another obstacle that blocked his path to the world's flyweight championship, as far as the National Boxing Association is concerned last night at the Coliseum when he was given the decision over Frankie Genaro, of New York, former titleholder, after a ten-round clash which was the semi-final of the series that is to determine the successor to Fidel Labarba.

Belanger's victory was not nearly so convincing as was his win over Newsboy Brown several weeks ago, and which moved him up from the ranks of the unknowns to a championship possibility, and now to that of a titular probability.

At the end of the ten rounds the margin between the two boys was very close, in fact there was a difference between the three judges, two of them giving Belanger the edge, and the other selecting Genaro as the winner. If the bout had not been a semi-final in a titular elimination series, and had been merely a bout between two leading flyweights with nothing at stake, the chances are that a draw would have been the final result. But as an opponent had to be selected to meet Ernie Jarvis, the European champion, in the final, the judges had to distinguish between the pair, and Belanger's aggressiveness throughout the ten rounds and his strong finish in the last two stanzas were probably the reasons why he was picked by the majority of the officials.

Opinion round the ring was evenly divided, some giving Genaro a margin on his boxing, his superb defence and his craftiness, while others thought that Belanger, who did most of the forcing and landed the heavier if not the more numerous blows, was entitled to the call, particularly as he finished the stronger of the two. Genaro also fell into the ill graces of some of the fans by holding overly much. All in all it was a very close fight, and if the decision had been reversed there would not have been much fault found with it. It is unlikely that a decision has been given in a local bout of late where there was so little difference between the two gladiators as there was last night.

Won in Last Two Rounds.

Belanger made it very close, and it was only his strong rally in the last two rounds when he practically threw caution to the winds and crowded Genaro closely, driving the New Yorker around the ring or forcing him to clinch, that gave him the margin. At that, he almost held off the attack until it was too late; had he started it about the seventh round he would likely have won more comfortably. The huge crowd was pleased with the decision.

Genaro proved an exceptionally hard opponent for Belanger to hit. The New York Italian is a boxer of the bounding type, while the local lad prefers a target that is somewhat stationary. Genaro jumped around, and he was able to bound in to land swings with both hands to the head fairly frequently, and when Belanger got into close quarters Genaro tied him up a lot. At that the winner landed many punches to the body, and these apparently were not relished by the loser. Belanger had to take a lot to get within range to land and while he did reach the target on many occasions he frequently missed or had Genaro going away when the blow landed.

As a result of Genaro's style the bout was not nearly as exciting as that in which Belanger won from Newsboy Brown. In that affair there was plenty of heavy hitting and numerous stirring rallies, but last night it was more of a chase, and the rabbit managed to get away from many of his pursuer's efforts. In the fourth round Genaro opened the cut above Belanger's eye that was made by Brown, but this was the only mark that either of the lads had at the end of hostilities except that Genaro was highly colored amidships.

WINS ON POINTS

FRENCHY BELANGER who defeated Frankie Genaro, former flyweight champion of the world, on points, in semi-final for the championship of Toronto last night.

SCHOOL TEAM IS BANQUETED

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Simpson Entertain Softball Players.

SHORT SPEECHES GIVEN

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 29. — Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Simpson entertained the members of the High School softball team at a banquet at their pretty home on Queen street at six o'clock on Thursday evening last. The dining-room was decorated with the school colors, orange and black, and the daintiest of place cards indicated the seats of the guests at the attractive table.

Following a bountiful dinner, a short toast list was run off. Mr. Simpson proposed the toast to the King after a few introductory remarks, in which he expressed the pleasure it gave Mrs. Simpson and himself to entertain in their own home, and hoped that gatherings of this sort would be of benefit, leading to better understanding and co-operation between teachers and pupils. He regretted the absence of Wilfred Pluard. In speaking to the toast to His Majesty, the speaker referred to the good example of both the King and his consort, Queen Mary, and their family, especially, perhaps, the Prince of Wales, who has won the Canadian hearts on his visits to this country. No part of the Empire is more loyal or willing to serve than Canada.

Norman Lemay spoke to the same toast in a manly little speech. "All the fellows," said he, "are members of the Cadet Corps, and in that all signified their willingness to serve King and Country if necessary. The corps is not a training for war, but primarily for physical training and discipline, but it is well to keep in mind those who once wore the same uniform and who served in the Great War, where some of them gave their lives." The speaker feels sure the present corps would volunteer if need again arose.

The toast to the King was honored in the usual manner.

Mr. Simpson reminded the boys that in the Cadet Corps they were wearing the King's uniform, and that is something to live up to. At the last inspection Captain Heron paid a tribute to the splendid corps which was above the average. Last year's record is something to live up to, and it is to be hoped that the older boys will never forget that their conduct is observed by the younger boys. Mr. Simpson urged that the high standard of last year's corps be maintained.

The toast to the team was proposed by the manager, Jack Gibson, who spoke of the season's record, which was not as good as the boys could wish, but a start has been made, and next season the boys will feel greater confidence, and with practice will surely make a good showing. He spoke of the honor Mr. and Mrs. Simpson had done in the team in giving them a banquet, modestly saying the boys did not feel that their showing in the season was worthy of it, but the boys did their best in every game.

Kenneth Kemp, head of the Athletic Association of the High School, replied. A start has been made and the boys look forward to next year. They know the game and only need practice. They all proved they could take a defeat, and in spite of failures always did their best. The team was fortunate in having the Principal so much interested. Next year it is hoped that the High School will develop a Babe Ruth.

The toast to the school was proposed by Harry Sherin, who feels that there is good material in the school for both sports and studies, and the pupils are lucky to have the teachers take such an interest in both games and lessons.

Ronald Kemp replied briefly, thanking the teachers for their interest in their pupils.

Mrs. Simpson proposed the health of the staff, and Mr. Simpson replied, assuring the boys of the willingness of the teachers at any time to assist the pupils in any difficulty. The school has done good work in the past and can do it still. Earnest preparation of lessons helps the work of the school very materially. There are many attractions which are apt to lure boys and girls away from their lessons, but it is well to keep things in their proper places. There is no chance in the final tests for the pupil whose year's work has not been faithful. During the past eleven years the school has averaged 10 to 12 each year for the Normal entrance or junior matriculation. One year there were eleven pupils from the Lakefield High School at Normal School. Mr. Simpson urged the boys to work out their difficulties and not to be discouraged. Some schools only allow their pupils to enter sports if their scholastic work is up to a certain standard.

A toast not on the program but one which was appropriate was very gracefully proposed by Norman Lemay, who asked the company to drink to the health of Mr. and Mrs. Simpson, their host and hostess, who had given them such a pleasant evening.

Mr. Simpson replied, assuring the boys of the heartiness of their welcome and hoping that all might meet again on a similar occasion.

The remainder of the evening was spent in contests and games. The former were interesting and instructive and afforded much enjoyment.

The only guests besides the team were Misses Connall Curtis and Graham. Wilfred Pluard, who was suffering from a severe cold, was the only absentee.

The memory of the pleasant evening which closed the season will always be a happy one to all who were privileged to be present. The team, although defeated, maintained the spirit of good sportsmanship throughout the season, and their conduct won golden opinions from the other teams in the league, and a bright future was predicted by many of the players in other teams. In every game the highest traditions of the Lakefield High School were maintained.

M'DOUGALL IN CAN-PRO LEAGUE

Local Boy, Last Year With Owen Sound, Signs With Ravinas.

GREYS ALL PROS.

TORONTO, Nov. 29.— Making every effort to strengthen his team and make it of championship calibre, Manager Frank Selke yesterday signed Harold "Shrimp" McDougall, last season star centre of Owen Sound O. H.A. Memorial Cup winners, to a Ravina contract and the Peterborough boy will play against Stratford in the Canadian league game at Ravina rink to-morrow night.

McDougall, who was a member of the Greys for two years, is just the player Ravinas have needed. He is very fast, a nifty stickhandler and a smart hockey artist all round. He was out to practice with Ravinas yesterday morning, and showed surprising condition, in addition to all the cleverness he displayed with the Greys.

Greys All Pros.

With the decision of McDougall to play professional hockey every regular of last season's Canadian junior champions has deserted the amateur ranks. Captain Martin Lauder signed with the Boston Bruins, but will play very little hockey this winter owing to having had to undergo an operation for rupture. Markle, Paddon, Benny Grant, the goal-tender, and Moore are with the London Canpros.

When Manager Selke induced McDougall to sign a contract the Peterboro seniors were given a hard jolt, just one more added to the many received since last season. They lost McLeod, Dwyer and Ranger to the Kansas City pros, while Frankie Collins, the good centre player, was moved by his employer to Toronto.

McDougall returned to his home in Peterborough from Owen Sound last spring, and though he was refused a transfer by the O.H.A. at the June meeting, it is understood that the Peterborough Club had requested the O.H.A. to re-open the case, and was confident of securing a certificate for the youthful star.

THREE-YEAR TERM FOR C.A.S. OFFICER

OSHAWA, Nov. 29.—(Canadian Press).—Three years in Portsmouth Penitentiary was the sentence imposed on H. W. Elliott, former superintendent of the Children's Aid Society of Ontario county, who was found guilty last week of committing a serious offense against a lad who at the time was a ward of the Society. Judge Ruddy sentenced him yesterday. Elliott will face a number of other charges when the session resumes December 15.

Experts Disagree With Buenos Aires On Capablanca's Chances For Title

NEW YORK, November 29. — The statement made by experts on Saturday night in Buenos Aires that Alexander Alekhine, Russian challenger of Jose R. Capablanca for the world's chess championship, was almost certain to defeat Capablanca upon resumption of play in the thirty-fourth game of their tournament was questioned by experts of the Manhattan Chess Club.

Despatches from Buenos Aires said that upon adjournment of the game until after the fortieth move, Alekhine had the advantage of a pawn, and besides, supported by the queen and a rook, seemed likely to queen another pawn.

"It is admitted that Alekhine has winning chances," officials of the Manhattan Club announced after an analysis of the game as it now stands. "It is rather difficult, however, for Alekhine to win the game because of having a passed pawn on the queen's rook's file. At least, the local experts cannot find a direct win. The possibility of Capablanca finding a way to draw the game after all, thus preventing the loss of game and match is not at all excluded."

BUENOS AIRES, November 29 (United Press). — Jose Capablanca and Alexander Alekhine resumed late yesterday the thirty-fourth game of their world chess championship match after an adjournment following forty moves.

It was considered unlikely that Alekhine could win in this game the sixth and final victory he needed to win the championship from Capablanca, the title-holder. Capablanca has won three games and twenty-five have been drawn.

Alekhine, white, used the queen's gambit opening, which Capablanca declined. Alekhine attacked with energy and at the adjournment held a pawn advantage. But it was doubted that he would win, as each player held a queen and a rook.

MOVIE STAR COMING TO THE GRAND, IN PERSON

MISS JEAN LEWIS

Dainty little screen star, appearing in person at the Grand theatre, with Richards, the world's greatest magician, and his mammoth show, Thursday and Friday. Miss Lewis has had leading roles with Betty Compson, Ronald Colman, Pola Negri, Richard Dix, etc., and has just finished work in "The Kings of Kings", for Cecil De Mille. Richards also has other noted artists with him —Doray and Nese dancers from Earl Carol's "Vanities", Miss Delores Ashley, Miss Marion De Morteo and others. The show is the largest production of the kind on tour, as two carloads of scenery and weird effects are used to stage the big production, which is in three acts and nineteen elaborate scenes.

INVENTS GUARD IN PRISON

Ivan Novak's invention of an automatic guard for railway crossings, devised while doing 15 years penal servitude at Belgrade for murder, has been recognized by the government. A special commission appointed to examine the device recommended it, and Novak has been sent to the government railway shops to make a model to be tried on the state railway. The apparatus consists of a barrier that falls automatically as a train approaches and rises after it passes. Nails near the rails some distance from the crossing cause the barrier, weighing 600 pounds, to fall and remain down until the engine comes in contact with nails on the other side.

Canadian Grid Loses Players to Hockey

HAMILTON, Nov. 29.—With the departure of "Yip" Foster and "Scotty" Cawkell for New York, Canadian football lost two brilliant performers. Both lads signed with the New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, to play professional hockey. Officials of the New York club had been after the players all season, but they preferred to wait until the football season was over before signing. When it was all over they accepted terms.

Foster had prospects of becoming one of the best back in the Canadian gridiron game and Cawkell had few superiors as a secondary defense man. Both are good hockey players, Cawkell starting with De La Salle in the Junior O.H.A. and Foster got his start with Aura Lee Juniors three years ago.

Frank Carroll, manager of the Springfield team, and a lifelong friend of the two boys, is said to have engineered the deal. They may be sent to the Springfield team for a year's seasoning.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

THE SUNSET HOUR

Day has been dark, and stooped with care,
But night is a roseate affair.
Many a day has come and gone,
The sunset lovelier than the dawn.
And so I do not mind the years
As my own sunset hour appears.
The flags depart, the bugles cease,
But evening shall have more of peace.

Let youth go forth to battle; youth
Cares more for triumph than for truth.
Let youth seek treasures it may hold:
Age finds that there is other gold.
Let youth a kingly crown desire;
Age finds that fame and titles tire.
Let youth seek other splendors, I
Find beauty in the westward sky.

For one, the world to really know,
Must see it in the sunset's glow,
Though down the road the shade run,
They point the pathway to the sun.
And, when the sun has passed awa
You who are young will have to sta
For heaven youth will have to wait,
But we, the old, are near the gate.

THEATRES

AT THE REGENT.

CITY OF MIDNIGHT FUN'S IN MOVIES!

Have you ever been to Paris—city of the midnight fun? Bebe Daniels has. In fact, she's been stranded there!

Her current starring comedy, "Stranded in Paris," now playing at the Regent Theatre, takes Bebe from a small western town to the land of her dreams. On the way over, she meets handsome, young James Hall, and gives him her Paris address.

Finding the street on which the house is located, she discovers nothing but a heap of ashes. Not knowing what to do, her worries are increased when a thief snatches her purse. Bebe gives chase, but loses him in an amazing maze of streets. Incidentally, she loses herself.

Naturally, when Hall comes to call on her and discovers only a burnt ruin, he starts making a search of his own, finally finding her at St. Po, involved in the most incredulous series of questionable adventures one might ever wish to keep away from. And how, you ask, did this girl reach the fashionable hotel at St. Po?

Well, after losing her way, she wins a position with "Hortense," a modiste. They ask Bebe to deliver some gowns at Deauville, but through a switch in the railroad tickets she is transported to the other resort and welcomed as Countess Pasada.

Laughs? You can't count 'em! Smiles? Miles and miles of 'em! Thrills? Enough to chill and chill! Beauty? Enough to make any pirate's booty! What else could you possibly ask in a Bebe Daniels comedy?

AT THE CAPITOL.

"METROPOLIS."

Moving pictures come and go. The 'movie' public goes to see them and, is more or less impressed, according to the nature of the production. It is a far cry since the days when effects were reached by crude methods, and Theda Bara, for instance had to weep huge glycerine tears from a huge face, plastered close to the audience to convince people that she was sorrowing about something. But the scope of the moving picture has not yet reached its limit apparently. Anyone who sees "Metropolis," the feature picture at the Capitol Theatre for the first half of this week, will be convinced of the extraordinary power of the camera's eye that can project itself a thousand years hence, in imagination and weave for present day audiences a moving tapestry of things and events and peoples in that far-off day.

"Metropolis" is an overpowering and spectacular production It aims to show just what may be expected in a thousand years. The city of "Metropolis," the creation and property of one man, John Masterman, is a terrifying place, where work and pleasure both have been subjected to the touch of the great god, Efficiency. Masterman makes Efficiency his fetich and the worship of his idol leads to strange happenings.

The great city of "Metropolis" is a place of terrifying skyscrapers, creating gloomy canyons of space through which lines of elevated trains and aeroplanes pass, with a grey aspect to the very atmosphere, which is transmitted to the faces of the dark-gowned, dark-capped workers laboring at hige electrical machines in underground rooms. Each room and each man bears a number When Eric Masterman, son of the despot, is roused from a dream of pleasure with companions in the Peasure Palace built at the top of this strange city he goes to subterranean depths and sees there an accident to a great machine, whose face reminds him of the great god, Moloch to which ancient Phoenicians bore human sacrifices. Impressed by the terrible lives of the workers, made mechanical and deprived of every touch of poetry and sweetness, he takes the place of one at a machine and works there during the ten hour shift demanded of the men.

Mary, a daughter of a workman, speaks to the workers in the Catacombs, where the cross of an ancient and forgotten faith is erected. She counsels them to wait for the deliver who will surely come, and tells them the story of the Tower of Babel. Masterman, hearing of this meeting through his tool, the wizard, Rotwang orders the latter to transfer the face and form of Mary to the shape of an electrical device he is perfecting. Rotwang is enabled to do this by means of strange electrical devices the picture of his laboratory and the way in which he works, being a masterpiece of the ingenuity of the silver sheet. Without harm to Mary, her face and form are transferred to the steel fabric of the electrical device, which at once begins to move and speak. Mary being imprisoned in the meantime the mechanical woman goes among the workmen. The curious jerky movements of the neck alone reveal the origin of this weird creature something like the Robot creation which has been forecasted as a type of mechanical servant. The picture "Metropolis" goes further and endows its creation with speech and emotion. However without a soul, the Frankenstein-like monster turns on its creators, and, in a peculiar scene, incites the workmen to revolt. They run through the huge cold rooms of the great city, and wreck electrical machines, forgetting that in so doing, they are flooding the underground city where their children wait for them. The real Mary escapes, and, with Eric saves the children, escaping later by way of an air shaft. A dramatic finale is achieved through means of a terrific struggle between Eric and the wizard, Rotwang, and the capitulation of Masterman to gentleness and accord with the idea that he and his workman must work hand in hand. "Brain and hands' need each other, and both are united by "heart," typified by Eric, uniting the hands of his father and the leader of the revolting workmen.

Curious inconsistencies creep in. Masterman, alluding in terms of scorn to a "forgotten faith," in Christianity, still includes a Cathedral, complete with cloistered galleries and gargoyles in the city of "Metropolis," and the crowd, incited to anger against the woman who has led them astray, demand that "the witch be burned," a mediaeval touch that interferes with the extremely peculiar sense of unrealness projected to the onlooker in this very odd picture. If 2027 is going to be anything like "Metropolis," people of 1927 should be very happy indeed to be living in an age that refuses to give all its worship to Efficiency.

Apparently the imagination of the producer refused to work on new garments. Men and women are garbed a thousand years hence pretty much as those of to-day.

A double bill for last night was the vaudeville offering, with Joe Lahowla Hawaiian musical entertainer, on for one night only in a fine rendition of South Sea Island music, also a snappy singing and dancing act, which evoked much applause by Kern and Stone, a pair of clever short turn artists.

ASTHMA CURES

Considering that asthma is a symptom and not a disease, it is, of course, very foolish to continue to treat such symptoms with remedies without at least attempting to remove the probable cause.

As I explained in yesterday's article, there are only three principal causes of true astham or bronchial astham. These are excessive gas pressure against the diaphragm, lack of mobility to the diaphragm, and excessive formations of mucus in the bronchial tubes. The cure then must come from removing these causes, and fully one hundred per cent of all cases can be cured through properly regulated diet and exercise.

It is utter nonsense to consider that the pollen of flowers or the smell of horse hair or rabbit fur can in any way be a real cause of asthma. It is true, there may be many exciting or irritating causes of bronchial asthma, especially that caused by excessive mucus, but the fact remains that the mucous membranes of the throat and lungs cannot be affected by the irritation of golden rod if the sensitive one will follow some very simple rules regarding exercise and diet. One can thus make himself immune to any possibility of a bronchial wheeze from the effect of irritating micro-organisms.

The suffering asthmatic is deluded and deceived many times by promises of cures through the injection of serums and so-called protective agents made from various proteins, the pollen of flowers, and animal hair and excretions. Out of thousands of asthmatics examined, I have yet to find a single case where any one has been benefited by such treatment. Generally, the contrary is true, and the patient is made worse by the addition to his blood of some foreign substance not harmonious with the body's natural metabolism.

There is, perhaps, some excuse for the continued use of opiates in the form of smoking powders, or for the patient using adrenalin for relief. The asthmatic is justified in relieving his suffering in any way possible until he has learned how to remove the true cause of his trouble. However, when he is seriously attempting to cure his disorder by hygienic measures, all remedies taken to relieve symptoms seem to interfere with the production of a permanent cure.

The asthmatic must entirely eliminate the opiates, and give up adrenalin, at the start of a treatment with dieting and exercising. He often has to spend several days in a hard fight with symptoms, and there is considerable suffering from difficult breathing. But I have never known of a successful cure of asthma through trying to mix the drug and diet treatment.

This special warning is issued to those of my readers who wish to cure themselves of asthma, but who might make the mistake of trying to continue along the lines of their old treatment for relief, and at the same time, use my newer ideas regarding a cure of asthma through diet and exercise.

Tomorrow's article will contain instructions on how to begin the cure of asthma.

Questions and Answers.

Question: W. R. S. writes: "I am a little near-sighted and look very funny in glasses. Could my eyes be cured any other way besides wearing glasses?"

Answer: Near-sightedness can be helped to some degree by improving the general health, and by taking the eye exercises. These exercises will strengthen the muscles of the eyes sometimes enough so that you can go without glasses, even though your eye defect is not entirely corrected. It is advisable to wear glasses at least when reading as long as the near-sightedness continues.

Question: P. F. E. writes: "I receive a great deal of help through your daily writings, and am wondering if you would advise eating dried figs, prunes, and fruit of that kind without being stewed."

Answer: The dried fruits you mention can be used without cooking and are even more wholesome when used in this manner. Some enjoy the flavor of the fruits when they are soaked overnight in a small amount of water, and then eaten without being cooked.

Question: Mrs. Caroline E. writes: "Every time I turn my head to the left my neck snaps. What causes it? Also, my arms at the elbows and legs at the knees become numb and ache if I don't keep them perfectly straight when I sleep. Is it improper circulation, or my nerves?"

Answer: The neck-snapping is caused from some faulty position of the vertebrae or ligaments in your neck. This can probably be corrected by osteopathic or chiropractic treatments. The numbness of your elbows and knees may be caused by a mild form of rheumatism or by poor circulation due to insufficient exercise.

Rheumatism

Rheumatism in its various forms is very subtle, very cunning, very persistent. Thermogene in its one form is equally subtle and far more persistent.

Thermogene gets to work on Rheumatism instantly. You don't have to wonder whether it is taking effect. From the very first moment you know it. It tells you so. It glows, it penetrates and it goes on glowing and penetrating, sending warmth deep down into the tissues and drawing chills out—irresistibly. And when its healing warmth has done its work, Thermogene may be removed layer by layer—safely and comfortably.

SYNOPSIS

Fabien, good and handsome youth of France, trains for the priesthood; but meets and loves Manon Lescaut, beauteous orphan, whose rascally brother, realizing her worldly value, barters her for gold to Ravoir, rich connoisseur of women. Fabien saves her and carries her off to Paris, where they live happily together. Manon's brother steals her for Ravoir: she escapes, and searches vainly for Fabien. Circumstances force her to surrender to Ravoir. Then Fabien sees her in a gaudy carriage, and suspects the awful truth.

CHAPTER XI.—Continued.

"Manon!—Manon!" Fabien called her name from the depths of his starved soul, but the carriage passed on down the Boulevard and Manon had not even glanced in his direction.

He started blindly to follow and was gently restrained by Tiberge, "Don't my friend, it would do no good," he said pityingly.

"I won't believe it. It can't be true!" his whole face was convulsed with grief.

"Then you must be convinced. Take advantage of your father's credit—visit your tailor and go tonight to Frascati's you will see Manon with your own eyes. I am told that she and the Comte are favored patrons at the Club."

"I will. And after I have talked with her, I will prove that you are mistaken."

For the first time in weeks Fabien's voice lost its dullness. He was to see Manon again!

The remainder of the afternoon was profitably spent with his father's tailor. Fabien's wardrobe was entirely depleted and it was necessary to be fitted out from shoes to a becoming, wavy white wig. The best of everything was demanded. Fabien wanted Manon to see him in a different light than their poverty stricken week had permitted. The result was that no young man had ever appeared to better advantage: at least as far as an observer could judge.

However, Fabien's confidence in himself vanished every time the vision of Manon, so gorgeously attired, flashed across his memory. Had the Comte won her affections and why had she gone to him? These were torturing thoughts that caused Fabien's heart to sink until the agony almost engulfed him.

During all the weeks of lonely searching, Fabien had not for a moment considered the possibility of Manon's faith in him being shaken. Nor did it occur to his weary brain that she might have been influenced to depart with some mistaken idea of benefiting him.

Fabien was so impatient to see Manon that the early hours of evening dragged into an eternity. The result was that long before the Frascati was in full swing Fabien arrived. It was his debut to the gambling clubs of Paris.

As he descended the wide marble staircase his slender figure, so elegantly attired in rich black velvet and priceless lace frills, formed a flattering contrast with the light, gaily colored costumes of the players.

Fabien's face was pale. He wound among the tables, slowly, searching for Manon. He was oblivious to everything until he realized that it was too early for the real habitues of the place. He must wait still longer.

Gradually he awakened to the beauty of the great room. Dazzling crystal chandeliers reflected the sparkle from hundreds of burning candles and cast a brilliant glow upon the white wigged people and the jewelled women. Liveried servants kept the beakers filled with rich cherry oclored wine. And at various gaming tables men and women were playing escaret, roulette and baccarat while others stood about watching or waiting for an inspiration before placing their money.

At one of these tables stood Nana, a well known figure in the night life of Paris. Her years—one could not guess just how many—had carried her through a whirlwind of emotional experiences and prepared her to cope with any situation that might arise as the result of her adventuresome career. She was passionate, and enthusiastic about anything that according to her code promised profitable returns.

Nana was one of the first in the room to notice Fabien. Always alert for a new victim she sensed in this sad eyed, handsomely attired gentleman a youth who appeared capable of gratifying her senses and filling her purse.

As Fabien strolled curiously toward the roulette table, Nana made room for him at her side. He accepted the space and piqued her pride by not answering the bold challenge in her eyes.

The truth of the matter was that he was not even aware of her presence. Fabien belonged to that very rare class of one woman men. Not even the wiles and arts of Nana could for a moment make him forget Manon. The immodest lure of this woman might ensnare many men but Fabien's love made him immune to her artfulwiles.

Nana misjudged him. He appeared too young to have experienced a passion so memorable that other loves promised nothing in comparison. It was characteristic of Nana to think a bit ahead and make plans for the latter part of the night while the field of selection was as yet untouched by other hunters.

Leaning toward Fabien she pressed against him with her bared shoulder, smiled invitingly into his eyes and turned the soft part of her arm toward him as if urging an embrace.

Diverted for the moment from observing the spinning roulette wheel, Fabien turned to see if he was in any one's way. Nana caught and held his glance. Hard kisses trembled on an even harder mouth. Fabien saw and was not tempted. With as polite a bow as his disgust would permit he stepped away from Nana as if to give her more room, then circling the table he availed himself of the first vacant place and again intently watched the wheel.

For the first time in years the color mounted to Nana's cheeks: but it was not a flush of modest beauty—that would have been impossible for Nana—it was a flash of furious anger. She watched Fabien through narrowed lids that trembled until bits of heavy cosmetic fell from her lashes, her smiling lips concealed set teeth and a resolve to "make that infant suffer" for his insult, or so Nana termed his indifference.

Noticing Fabien's intentness the croupier said, politely, "Try your luck, m'sieur, by betting on the age of your sweetheart."

Fabien hesitated, a bitter smile on his face. Then he reached in his pocket and taking out a couple of louis balanced them meditatively in the palm of his hand for a moment before tossing them on the table as he said, "Eighteen."

"Eighteen! That is divinely young." This came from an elderly gentleman who had been Nana's companion on several occasions in the past,

Nana heard and it did not serve to lessen her anger. The thought of a girl of eighteen succeeding where she had failed was a bitter dose.

Fabien did not hear the gentleman's comment, he did not even pay any attention to the little white ball or the revolving wheel, because once more he was watching the great entrance doors for Manon's arrival.

"Eighteen," continued the elderly gentleman, "That must be about Manon's age—although she looks even younger."

Fabien heard this with a quick intake of breath and continued to listen as Nana spoke.

"You men—all of you around here are very tiresome. Ever since meeting Manon you can see nothing to admire in a woman but youth!"

If Nana had known that she was literally thrusting daggers into Fabien's heart, she would have felt a bit compensated for her age.

The little white ball stopped at—eighteen! Still Fabien remained like a statue. He had lost interest in the game since hearing Manon's name bandied about in that public place.

As the croupier raked the winnings toward Fabien, murmurs of congratulation came from various people about the table.

Reluctant to let so much money get out of the house, the croupier suggested, "Would M'sieur like to play again, on the same lucky number, perhaps?"

(To be continued.)

She Could Not Work HEADACHES Were So Severe

Mrs. A. Riehl, Burstall, Sask., writes: "I was troubled with very severe headaches, and sometimes I could not do my work.

"One day a friend told me about BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS and advised me to give it a trial. I decided to do so, and after taking a few bottles I found it had done me a world of good, and I haven't had any headaches for a long time now."

A PROMISE MORE THAN KEPT.

When the publishers of The Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal two years ago announced that the owner of the paper wished them to reduce the subscription price from two dollars a year to one dollar a year, they promised that not a single feature of the paper would be eliminated, but new features would be added, and the paper made more valuable than ever. It is frankly admitted by their million of readers that their promise has been more than fulfilled, and today The Family Herald and Weekly Star at one dollar a year is the marvel of the newspaper world. No home in Canada would regret this investment. Just think of a great big 72 page publication at less than two cents per week, and every page of it alone worth the money. No wonder The Family Herald and Weekly Star has over a million readers. It deserves them all, and more, too.

In the American civil war balloons were first used for military purposes in this country. The Northern army used observation balloons to keep watch of Confederate movements around Richmond, Virginia, and the observers gained knowledge that was of great value to the military authorities.

By 1870, when the Franco-Prussian war was fought, balloons had been so developed that they became of greater military use. During the siege of Paris by the Germans in 1870-71, sixty-six balloons left the city at different times carrying messages and passengers.

Another use for these balloons was to take carrier pigeons from the beleaguered city, whole flocks of them, and by means of them send messages back to Paris from the outside. Warfare was beginning to assume a somewhat more modern aspect with its use of free and captive balloons.

One French balloonist dropped thousands of warning messages down over the German lines. These messages warned the Germans that, in spite of the siege of Paris, France would continue the fight to the bitter end. This service paralleled the world-war dissemination of propaganda by airplane.

DRINK WATER TO HELP WASH OUT KIDNEY POISON

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You, Begin Taking Salts.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their nomal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drinks lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and then your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

PETERBOROUGH DROPS OUT OF SENIOR SERIES

Loss of McDougall Last Straw and Executive Decides To Quit.

TEAM WRECKED.

But Good Intermediate Club Promises To Provide Plenty of Hockey.

With the signing of a pro. contract yesterday to play with the Ravinas of Toronto, by "Shrimp" McDougall, the Peterborough hockey star, who for several years has played for Owen Sound Juniors, Peterborough's last chance to play senior hockey this year disappeared ,and at a meeting of the executive of the club held this morning, it was decided to drop out of the series this season ,and to notify the O.H.A. of the decision.

Early in the season when Dwyer, McLeod, Bogardis, and Ranger decided to play pro., it was felt that with the remnant of the famous champion team and the addition of new players recruited from junior ranks, a team of much ability could be put on the ice, but McDougall's loss and Collins' decision to play in the Toronto Mercantile League left the club with only Ken .Kane on the forward line of whom anything else was known; and hence the decision of the executive not to carry on this year.

With all the players co-operating with the city, there should be a remarkably strong Intermediate team, and in years past this series has given Peterborough some of its best hockey.

The club having incurred no obligation is able to report a balanced budget.

While sorry to lose the players and consequently the opportunity to put a senior team on the ice this year, the executive hoped all the players taking on pro, contracts could make good.

THRESHING FINISHED

Most of Farmers in Downeyville District Have Completed Fall Plowing.

DOWNEYVILLE, November 29. — The threshing is all finished around here now much earlier than former years. Bell Bros., the threshers, have finished and gone home for the season.

Lucas Bros. are at present pressing hay in this locality.

Everyone around here has finished fall plowing, and a few have started to work on the road. The weather is fine.

Mr .and Mrs. Michael Garvey and Mr. William O'Brien spent Sunday the guests of friends in Ennismore.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hoolihan and Miss Lorette spent Sunday the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Carlow in Douro.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Perdue and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Murray, of Peterborough ,spent Sunday the guests of Mrs. Murray's brother Edmund Herlihey, who is not very well.

Messrs. Patrick and Michael Harrington, also Mrs. Thomas Lucas and Mrs. Celia Carroll, went up to Toronto on Thursday owing to the death of a relative in that city.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Herlihey made a business trip to Canton on Wednesday.

Messrs. Al. and Joseph Piggott delivered a big load of alsike to Hogg & Lytle, of Lindsay, last week.

SPORT BITS

St. John's Junior O.H.A. team entered upon the third week of their pre-season training last night with a good turn-out in spite of the weather conditions. The Saints hope to be in good shape physically when the time for ice practice arrives, and are sticking to their training faithfully. There will be another work-out tonight at eight o'clock ,and all players who have already reported, as well as others who wish to try out, are expected. Keen competition for places is evoked for when the squad hits the ice.

The loss of "Shrimp" McDougall was the blow that killed the Peterborough Seniors. The ex-junior star was counted upon as the pivot man in the re-organized Peterborough forward line, and his place would have been hard to fill. He is the sixth Peterborough player in the professional ranks at present — Bailey with the Leafs in the N.H.L., Dwyer, McLeod, and Ranger with Kansas City in the American Hockey Association, and Bogardis with Stratford in the Canadian circuit being the others.

SPEED RECORD OF 73 MILES AN HOUR

Averaged By Studebaker Car in 2,000 Miles Run.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., November 29. —The only remaining official speed and endurance record not held by Studebaker was acquired on November 15, when two stock model Studebaker Commander roadsters set a new world record for 2,000 miles. Each Commander broke the previous record of 70 miles per hour. One averaged 72.2 miles per hour, the other 73.3 miles per hour.

This record, as with others established in the last few months, was made under the supervision of the American Automobile Association. The contest board of this organization is responsible for the checking of all official runs in the United States. At the completion of the 2,000-mile record, the two Studebaker Commanders were dissembled, checked with other cars of the same make, and pronounced strictly stock models in every respect.

The establishment of the 2,000-mile record follows the run of three stock Studebaker Commanders, each of which travelled 25,000 miles in less than 25,000 minutes. Nothing else on earth had ever travelled so far so fast as each of these three Studebakers.

Messrs. Selkirk & Elliott, 171-175 Hunter Street, are Peterborough dealers for Studebaker cars.—Advt.

WEDDING OPPOSED.

Princess Victoria of Schamuburg-Lippe, 63-year-old sister of the former kaiser, was married last week to her young Russian fiance, Alexander Zoubkoff, aged 27. It had been intended to hold the ceremony in the church at Bonn, but because of the great disparity in the ages of the couple the German church authorities refused to sanction the marriage.

W. I. HEARS TALK ON KEEPING FIT

Dr. Beatty Gives Address at Meeting of Madoc Branch.

DONATION MADE SHELTER

MADOC, November 29. — The November meeting of the Madoc Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Chris. Henderson. In spite of the poor walking there was an attendance of 38. Correspondence was then read by the secretary.
A letter from the Sick Children's Hospital also one from the Committee of the Save the Children Fund, were laid aside for future consideration.
The correspondence from the Department regarding the Demonstration lecture courses was read, and after discussion it was decided to have a dress making course some time in February and if possible a millinery course also.
The donation for the Children's Shelter was discussed and it was moved by Mrs. C. Whytock, seconded by Mrs A. Smith, that each member be asked to contribute one small jar of jam or jelly, and that the sum of $2.50 be added for Christmas extras. These jars are to be left at the home of Mrs. Charles Whytock before December 7th, and packed by a committee.
Dr. Beatty was then introduced, and taking as his theme "Keeping Fit for Winter," prefaced his talk by speaking briefly on home nursing, and its importance. He then went on to speak of the importance of fresh air, exercise, rest (mental as well as physical) and good nourishing food in the business of "Keeping Fit." He closed his talk by giving some simple home remedies for everyday ailments.
Mrs. Harrison moved, seconded by Mrs. James Whytock, a very hearty vote of thanks to Dr. Beatty for his very instructive health talk.
Mrs. Duncan Brown was then called on to explain the plan of a Christmas gift exchange next month, each gift to cost no more than 25c, to be numbered and each member to draw a number on the date of meeting.
The roll call was to be answered by news of the Toronto convention.

ZULUS LIKE WESTERN FILMS

When it comes to moving pictures the Zulu likes the Wild Western variety, and the wilder the better. Next in line of favor is the American comedy. Educational films are tolerated, but society dramas are zero in his estimation, according to Arthur L. Adams, of the American Board Mission at Rhodesia, South Africa, where picture shows are given out of doors to entertain the thousands of natives who work in the diamond mines.

NEW CITY IN PHILIPPINES

On land donated by one of the largest sugar companies in the Philippines the new city of San Jose is to arise in the province of Mindoro. It will cover 250 acres, of which 25 acres will be devoted to municipal buildings and the remainder to the city proper, which is being subdivided into lots. Roads, canals and recreation parks will be provided. The lots are to be sold at prices sufficient to cover merely the subdividing and the improvements.

HOME SECRETARY ADDRESSES LADIES

Mrs. Colonel Henry Urges Christian Living as Solution of Problems.

Last night's weather could hardly be said to be conducive to the success of the special women's meeting held in the Salvation Army Temple, Simcoe street.
Mrs. Colonel Henry, the Salvation Army Territorial Home League Secretary, of Toronto, was the speaker of the evening, fulfilling a long promised engagement, delayed through her accident on preparing to visit Peterborough for a similar occasion. Mrs. Col. Henry was accompanied by Mrs. Staff Captain Ritchie, also of Toronto.
In view of the inclement weather, it was a most courageous sight, that of one hundred women gathered together for this event, and a tribute, not only to the distinguished visitors, but to the special series of women's meetings held each month, under the direction of Mrs. Commandant Ham.
After the cordial welcome, Mrs. Colonel Henry lost no time in getting at the business of the evening, namely— straight heart to heart talk on matters of vital interest to women. Modern problems were dissected under the skillful direction of the speaker. Dissected not only to lay bare the maladies of modern life, but to show just as clearly how to solve the problems facing the women of to-day. That the dangers of the demoralizing and degrading influences, so evident to-day, can be effectively offset by the influence and work of sincere Christian women who show the power of Christ in their lives, by their home training, and by the firm stand for the high standards of Christianity was strongly emphasized. A clarion call was sounded for women to do all the good they could for their home, their church, their community, and for the world.
Mrs. Henry Parnell, Jr., moved a hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. Colonel Henry. This was seconded by Mrs. J. J. Cunningham.
Dainty refreshments were served by the Women's Home League members.
Representations were made at the conclusion of the meeting for Mrs. Colonel Henry to remain and address the meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union on Wednesday. Mrs. Henry reluctantly had to refuse owing to prior engagements.

REPORT GIVEN ON CONVENTION

Mrs. H. Fallis Tells Local Conservative Ladies of Impressions.

BUSINESS TRANSACTED.

The Women's Conservative Association held a meeting in Hooper's Palm Room on Monday, with the president, Mrs. H. Fallis, in the chair. In spite of the unfavorable weather, there was a good attendance. After the regular routine business the president gave a most interesting talk on her impressions at the recent Conservative Convention held in Winnipeg. Particular mention was made of the fact of Mrs. George Evans having left the city to reside in Toronto. Mrs. Evans has been treasurer of the Ladies' Conservative Association since its inception in 1923 and has worked faithfully during the past five years for the Conservative cause in Peterborough.
A vote of sympathy was passed to Mrs. Joseph Mills, the hon. vice-president, owing to the loss of a sister at Napanee over the week-end, and the secretary was instructed to write a letter of sympathy to her.

SEWER CONNECTION FOR SCHOOL OUTSIDE CITY LIMITS DEBATED; CITY WANTS AGREEMENT SIGNED Aldermen Recall Township Declined To Sign Agreement For Other Connections.

LEGISLATION NEEDED.

Council Will Make This Connection if Township Will Seek Change in Law.

If the Council of North Monaghan will sign an agreement covering the connection of the new Confederation school, in school section 2 of that township, to the city's outfall sewer, and will further agree to seek legislation from the Ontario Parliament permitting it to charge the fee for private sewer connections against the land, and will agree, if it obtains such legislation, to make an agreement with the city covering such private connections, the city will permit the connection of the new school to the sewer. Added to all these provisos is one that this motion be submitted to the City Solicitor before the December meeting of the city council, at which the Board of Works' recommendation as above will be accepted or rejected.

This lengthy motion was passed by the Board of Works last night after a long discussion between the aldermen and E. A. Peck, M.P., solicitor for the township, who was spokesman for the trustees of the school section, who were present.

Also settled at that meeting was the question of snow removal. The Border Transit Company offered to provide equipment to keep its bus routes clear and to rent it to the city, at $2.50 an hour for machine, gas, oil, and driver, for use on other streets, or to rent equipment, if the city bought it, at the same price for cleaning its routes. The first alternative was accepted, the board agreeing to let the company provide the plow and do the work. The removal of the snow pushed up by the plow will be handled by the city with teams in the usual manner, providing work for a certain number of men. It was pointed out that the city would in this way get some insight into the snow removal problem, which will be of use in considering the purchase of equipment.

The third item of business was the decision to instruct the city solicitor to prepare a by-law limiting the speed of all vehicles over the Hunter Street Bridge to ten miles an hour. This was passed on complaint from Ald. Macdonald that people are making the bridge a speedway and that cars speeding across splash water and slush on pedestrians during bad weather.

Discussions Heated.

The discussion of the school sewer connection was particularly heated, and several times the chairman had to rap for order when more than one debate was going on at once. The contention of most of the aldermen was that the township council had asked, on behalf of its ratepayers, for permission to connect with the sewer, and had agreed on a price of $20 for each connection, but had then refused to sign an agreement. This, said Ald. Denne, had been refused on the advice of Mr. Pecks' firm when trouble arose over the sewage disposal p'ant as it was feared it would prejudice the township's case.

This Mr. Peck denied, saying that his firm had advised against a loose agreement when there was no legislation by which the township council could collect from the people who made the connections. Thus it would find itself bound to pay for them but unable to get the money back.

The objection, responded Ald. Ackerman, was that the township would be a party to maintaining a nuisance, but Mr. Peck stated that he did not think the agreement would have any effect on that matter.

Legislation Needed.

Ald. Denne expressed the opinion that no member of the city council objected to the connection but that the township could sign the agreement. Mr. Peck suggested that the council make an agreement with the township covering the school connection, for which the township council could collect and let the other matter rest until legislation could be obtained. He asked what harm the matter would do, and the Mayor replied that it would aggravate the condition already existing.

Harvey Webber, one of the trustees, asked why the school could not get a connection the same as the Exhibition grounds, but Ald. Denne pointed out that this is under a special act. He also pointed out that if the matter were let stand until next year there was a possibility of changes in the township council and the new members might not agree to the matter.

Mr. Webber suggested that the city should cut the connections of those people who are not now paying, but Ald. Hancock said they were willing to pay but could not make an agreement with the city. This connection is for defenceless children, he continued, and it would strengthen, rather than weaken, the position of the city on the other matter if granted.

Ald. Greene asked why this legislation had not been sought this year, but Mr. Peck pointed out that the

Fog Causes Tie-Up In New York Harbor

NEW YORK, Nov. 30 (Canadian Press).—A heavy fog blanketed New York Harbor to-day, disrupting ferry traffic and holding ocean liners at Quarantine. Several minor collisions were reported. One ferry crashed a freighter amidships but both escaped serious damage.

Have Narrow Escape Freighter Goes Under

LONDON, Nov. 30.—(A.P.)—An extraordinary shipping accident sank the small British steamer Guardian of Ghent, en route to London with a cargo of iron yesterday afternoon.

The vessel was six miles north of the Goodwin Lightship when the engineer rushed on deck shouting "the bottom of the ship has fallen away and the cargo is dropping through."

The crew barely had time to scramble into a boat when the Guardian of Ghent sank, nearly sucking the men under. They were rescued by the lightship.

FIND FAULT WITH OPERATION OF AUSTRALIAN TRADE TREATY

Agricultural Interests Attack Pact Before Dominion Cabinet.

URGE CONCLUSION.

Cause of Strenuous Commercial Warfare Between Canada and Britain.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 30.— (Canadian Press.)— A general assault on the Australian trade treaty made yesterday by agricultural interests who appeared before the cabinet. The National Dairy Council and the Canadian Council of Agriculture both attacked the treaty and found fault with its operation.

The Dairy Council urged that the dumping clause be applied to Australian butter, that New Zealand be excluded from the operations of the treaty and that the treaty itself be concluded with the required six months' notice. Premier King interrupted J. A. Calder of Saskatchewan who was putting forward the case: "What becomes of trade within the Empire?" asked Mr. King. "Why ask for the cancellation of a whole treaty for the sake of a single industry when perhaps a modification of the treaty might do? It seems to me an extraordinary request."

Mr. Calder in reply to the Prime Minister said that the Dairy Council would not press for the killing of the treaty but that actually they would be satisfied with the first requests for the return to the conditions in existence before the treaty of 1925.

Not Improved Relations.

A. E. Darby, of the Canadan Council of Agriculture argued that the Australian treaty had "not improved Imperial relations, nor added appreciably to inter Imperial trade. On the contrary it has been the occasion of quite strenuous commercial warfare between Canada and Great Britain in the Australian market, and has raised in Canada feelings of resentment against Australian methods of trading."

Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance, who negotiated the Australian treaty in 1923 when Minister of Trade and Commerce, came to its defence. It should not be implied, he said, that the dairy industry as a whole was suffering. Cream and milk products were finding good markets and good prices. As for butter, the average price in 1924 and 1925 before the treaty went into effect was 42 cents per pound while to-day it was 46 cents to the consumer despite the treaty. "That is what the people are paying," said the Minister. "It is true that we haven't been exporting butter but that is because Montreal prices have been higher than London prices." The Government was asked to wipe out the treaty but it was surely forgotten that other great industries were benefitting by it. And while Canada sold $18,000,000 worth of products to Australia, the Commonwealth's trade with Canada was only $6,000,000.

Mr. Robb suggested that there were two courses open to the dairymen if they desired any alteration in the treaty; one was for them to refer the matter to the Tariff Board and thus institute an exhaustive enquiry, and the other was for them to get members from Alberta and Saskatchewan to open up the matter for discussion in the House of Commons.

Go to Parliament

Premier Mackenzie King, in promising that the Government would give every consideration to the representations made, also declared that the forum where this treaty could be thoroughly debated was Parliament, and it was for the dairymen to see that the matter was presented there.

Mr Calder in stating the case for the dairy council, outlined the tariff on butter; the British preference was 3 cents per pound, the intermediate tariff 4 cents, the general tariff 4 cents, and the Australian treaty rate 1 cent. Hon. W. D. Euler, Minister of National Revenue, wanted to know if Mr. Calder regarded a return to the British preference—a difference of 2 cents per pound—as the panacea for the butter producer. Mr. Calder would not say that it would solve all the present troubles, but claimed that it would certainly encourage the industry which was now under severe tariff handicaps. Mr. Calder spoke of Saskatchewan's decline of 700 per cent over a period of thirteen years. "We feel that the dairy producers, particularly in the West must have some support," he said. Conditions had changed materially since the treaty was negotiated and the treaty itself should be changed to meet the new circumstances. It was not economic to ship out butter in the summer and then pay higher prices of New Zealand butter in the winter. The import rate from Vancouver to Montreal was also in favor of the New Zealand product. Millions of pounds would have to be imported to the Prairies this summer in order to feed the people there, as the domestic supply would only last until about the middle of February.

Raised Import Duty

Mr. Darby made it clear that his presence did not imply that the Canadian Council of Agriculture was supporting any proposed increase in duty on butter. "We said that the treaty embodied a new departure in

Hunters In Airplanes Shoot Cows For Deer

KERRVILLE, Texas, Nov. 30.—Ranchers in this county threatened yesterday to use anti-aircraft guns if necessary, to halt the slaying of cattle and sheep by stray bullets from the guns of hunters who are using airplanes to hunt deer. Two air-planes were seen flying over ranches near here. Persons were unable to determine if they were government or civilian ships.

$40 STOLEN AT STATION

Omemee Agent's Short Absence Provides Opportunity For Thief.

SUSPECT HELD.

J. Dickson, C.N.R. station agent at Omemee, had about $40 stolen from the ticket office on Friday evening. Mr. Dickson had occasion to go to the freight shed and was absent only a few minutes, but on his return was informed that a stranger had been seen entering the office and taking a coat which was his own. Mr. Dickson immediately looked for his cash and found it missing. Constable Williamson was notified and a search was made of the town. Lindsay police were notified and a man was later arrested at his home in Lindsay, but no money found on his person.

The case was tried in Lindsay on Monday and the accused was remanded until Friday, Dec. 2nd.

THE WEATHER

Somebody said "Variety is the spice of life." Who it was I am unable to recall. But with heavy thunder and vivid lightning at the close of November, we are having an example of the truth of the foregoing saying. The rainfall was .15 of an inch. Lowest temperature last night 35 degrees; highest yesterday, 53 degrees. Outlook: Some snowflurries, then clearing and colder. — W. P.

'Excuse Us,' Says Man, After Firing Shot

CHICAGO, Nov. 30. — Being shot by mistake is just as painful as being shot on purpose. Henry Keller, a night watchman, was walking out of a restaurant last night when a shot seared his leg. Falling to the sidewalk he looked up to see a man and a pretty woman standing over him —a smoking weapon in the man's hand.

"My goodness that isn't the man!" the woman explained.

"Excuse me," said the man, and the couple fled.

SOVIET PROPOSES ABOLITION OF ALL FORMS OF ARMAMENT AT PREPARATORY CONFERENCE

Litvinoff Urges Dissolution Of All Land, Sea and Air Forces.

CREATES SENSATION.

Many Delegates To Arms Limitation Meeting Consider Scheme Utopian.

GENEVA, November 30 (Canadian Press).—Soviet Russia to-day threw a "peace bomb" into the opening session of the Preparatory Disarmament Commission, formally proposing the complete abolition of all land, marine and air forces. Admitting that the Soviet project was a radical suggestion, Maxim Litvinoff, chief of the Soviet delegation, called for the dissolution of all land, sea, and air forces and the non-admittance of their existence in any concealed form whatsoever. The proposal caused a profound sensation at the conference, although many delegates were seen to smile as if they considered the scheme more than utopian as Litvinoff developed the sweeping Soviet project.

The Soviet proposal also advocated the scrapping of all warships and the destruction of all fortresses, this, if accepted by the powers, to be carried out in a period of from one to four years.

A.Y.P.A. MEETS.

Varied Program Given at Meeting of All Saints' Branch.

A very unique evening was spent by the members of All Saints' A.Y.P.A. on Monday. The program was in charge of a committee make up entirely of men; Bob Runnett being the convenor.

In the absence of the president, Miss B. Dawson, the vice-president, Charles Lewington, opened the meeting with the Lord's Prayer. A discussion was then entered into by the members as to how the next evening would be spent. It was finally moved by A. Hope, and seconded by B. Runnett, that the branch hold a Theatre Party, this being heartily endorsed by all present. Miss Macnomy was then appointed convenor of the programme for Monday evening, December 12, which is to take the form of a Christmas Gift Night.

The first number on this week's program was a sketch by S. Hope, R. Lundy and S. Boyer entitled "Artless Prattle of Childhood," which was very much enjoyed by all. J. Morley then read a letter from a very old friend of the members of the association, who gave much advice to the bachelor members present.

Several games were then played by the members, including a guessing contest, musical chairs, and a spelling match, the latter giving the most learned members a chance to show their ability.

Cunningham, provided excellent musical interludes.

PATEN DEDICATED.

Mr. and Mrs. John Collins Donors of Gift To Church.

At the 10.30 service of Holy Communion held at St. Mark's Church, Otonabee, on Sunday morning last, the Rector, Rev. J. L. Hughes, dedicated a gold-lined silver paten. This was the gift of Mr. and Mrs. John Collins, members of the church. The dedicatory words were:

"In the Faith of Jesus Christ we dedicate this paten to the glory of God and as a thankoffering for mercies received in sickness by His servants, John and Agnes Collins. In the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen.

Police Disperse Budapest Mobs

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Nov. 30. (A.P.)—Mounted police used their swords yesterday in dispersing a crowd of 600 workmen who were holding a demonstration in front of the Nepzzava and Aziast newspaper offices. One man was badly gashed and numerous others seriously wounded.

The workmen were demanding freedom of the press and withdrawal of the police prohibition, which has prevented the sale of socialist newspapers in the streets of the city for the past three years. Twenty men were arrested.

TIME LIMIT IS EXTENDED TO COMMUTERS

Ruling Issued Jointly By Secretaries of State and Labor.

MAKE ADJUSTMENTS.

Granted Only To Those Registered On Waiting List.

WASHINGTON, D.C., November 30 (Canadian Press). — Extension of time has been granted by the United States Government to those Canadians not born in Canada who commute across the international boundary to work on the United States side, in which these commuters may get themselves on the quota list of the land of their birth.

This is the effect of a ruling issued jointly yesterday by the Secretaries of State and Labor. The extension of time is granted only to those who have registered themselves on the waiting list for quota visas.

Six months ago the Department of Immigration, which is a branch of the Department of Labor, issued a ruling that the letter of the 1924 immigration law would be enforced against border coummuters. Native-born Canadians were required to obtain non-quota visas and pay a head tax. Non-native Canadians were required to apply for quota visas as "foreign-born." Six months was allowed in which these Canadians living on the Canadian side and working on the United States side might become properly qualified as immigrants.

This period of grace expires on Wednesday night . As the period of grace drew to an end, it became apparent that many Canadians born outside the Dominion would be unable to qualify because the quota list was generally filled eighteen months in advance. The Canadian Legation here has been negotiating for months with the United States Government on behalf of these non-native Canadians, and yesterday's ruling is the result of these pourparlers. It is likely that the whole problem of Canadian immigration will come up at the session of Congress which opens next Monday. However, it may be months before Congress gets down to immigration matters, and meantime many Canadians, estimated at about one thousand, resident in Canadian border cities who have been working on the United States side for years, were threatened with loss of employment if the order were enforced on December 1.

From the first, the United States officials have shown sympathetic consideration for Canadians, native or otherwise, who were already established in employment when Order 86 was issued. No time is specified in yesterday's ruling in which Canadian commuters will be dealt with. The Canadian Press understands that the Labor Department intends to make adjustments of individual cases from time to time and gradually to absorb the special class affected by yesterday's ruling. From time to time during the negotiations it has been stated definitely that no special consideration can be given to commuters who began border-crossing more re-

Lands Flivver Plane In Detroit Street

DETROIT, Nov. 30 (United Press)—Harry Brooks, chief pilot for the Ford Motor Company, landed one of the new "flivver" airplanes on Woodward Avenue, in the downtown district yesterday, to demonstrate the practicability of the machine for business use.

He narrowly missed an automobile in landing, but brought the plane safely down in front of a building where he was to deliver an address.

Boys Are Spanked Outside Courtroom

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., Nov. 30. (United Press).— The corridors outside of Magistrate C. C. Bierman's court room resounded to an "old fashioned spanking bee" yesterday, as four fathers saved $6.35 each in fines by punishing their offspring

The boys, 10 to 12 years of age, had been charged with binding and gagging a playmate and then soaking him with water.

Jude Biermann assessed the fines, but declared they would be remitted if the fathers would administer "old fashioned spankings."

EWART WARREN TELLS OF PLOT TO OBTAIN VALUABLE JEWELS BELIEVED LOCKED IN STEEL BOX

Pilot Found Dead; Parachute Unused

CLEVELAND, Nov. 30 (Canadian Press).—The body of Edward Exburg, missing air mail pilot, was found to-day beside his wrecked plane in a field near Kendallville. The location of the ship and of Exburg's body indicated he had made no effort to jump. His parachute was unused.

Testifies at Trial of Two Companions in Marmora Grave Opening.

WERE AFTER $200,000.

Eight Other Witnesses Heard at Opening Session of Trial This Morning.

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 30.—(Special.)—When court sitting under Judge Deroche at Belleville adjourned at twelve-twenty to-day, nine witnesses had been heard in the unique trial of Sullivan and Revoy charged with indecently and improperly interfering with the human remains of the late Mrs. B C. Hubbell, at the Marmora Protestant cemetery on or about Oct. 26th.

Sullivan was represented by E. J. Butler, Revoy being unrepresented.

B. C. Hubbell, the first witness, gave similar evidence to that given at the preliminary hearing and identified the chisel and screw driver produced as those found at the grave.

Cross-examined by Mr. Butler, he testified that the sod had been disturbed, the actual width of the steel casket, and appeared to have been cut out by a straight shovel. The casket had been lifted but not removed. He could not say whether the instruments produced had anything to do with the attempt.

"A wrench might have been used" queried the counsel. "Yes, or anything."

William Phillips, the caretaker, next called, said before molestation the grave surface was leveled.

Asked if he noticed anything on the 26th he replied, "Only the digging of her up." He further added that on finding the casket uncovered he notified the school master, then Mr. Hubbell. He found the screw driver near the wall of the plot to the south east and the chisel to the north end of the grave. He told of Warren's visit to him at the cemetery about two weeks before the disturbance. He and his wife thought they heard some pounding on the night of the 25th. The grass seed did not grow over the plot very well.

Cross examined by Mr. Butler, he said there was two feet six inches of earth over the casket, when buried. The grave was all right the day before the disturbance.

Warren approached him first about the matter of a monument for his grandmother's grave. Warren seemed attracted to the Hubbell grave.

Told of Rumours .

Ewart Warren in the course of lengthy evidence told of meeting Revoy when working together in the city of Toronto. In conversation he told Revoy of the rumour he had heard about jewelry buried with Mrs. Hubbell to the value of a couple of hundred thousand dollars.

He told Revoy money buried did no good, to which Revoy replied that a very good plan would be to go and get it. Later he met Sullivan and when the two men suggested his being an accomplice in the act he did not want to go. Finally it was arranged that he should locate the grave for the sum of $5 form each. The ten dollars was eventually paid by Sullivan. Asked to identify all the exhibits in turn he was able to do so, save one shovel. On the eventful journey down with Sullivan and Revoy, he mentioned that a stake was painted at Brighton for which Sullivan received a ten dollar cheque.

Having given the story of the deed as before, he was asked by counsel for Sullivan about a meal unpaid for in Belleville, and if there had not been previous troubles in his life. He mentioned serving 30 days in Regina on a vagrancy charge for carrying concealed weapons. The revolver in question was not loaded. He further stated that he did not know Sullivan until he met Revoy. The suggestion of robbery came from the other two. He returned the whole way to Toronto with them after a short stay across sthe river at Marmora and again at Peterborough.

Going To New York.

He also testified to sewing the tears on the tarpaulin brought to him by Revoy He was one of the offenders and assisted them in the digging. If they succeeded they were to go to New York, where Sullivan could dispose of the jewelry to a friend. Revoy was to get only five hundred dollars as "too much money would make Revoy squeal on us." Revoy was the weak part of the two.

Next evidence was given by Percy Saunders of Toronto, who sold the car to Sullivan.

Edwin Maudsley and his wife Flossie Maudsley told of loan of the tarpaulin to Revoy, the latter having at times worked for him.

Almonde Boyd told of the car being parked on the detour and his adherence to the point that its number was 65541 provoked quite an amount of cross-examination.

Mrs. Edith Baker testified to finding a pick and shovel on land adjoining her house.

Mary Warren, mother of Ewart, narrated visits of Sullivan and Revoy to her son and referred to the sewing of the tarpaulin being her son's.

BRITAIN NEUTRAL IN QUARRELS BUT READY TO HELP SAVE PEACE

Chamberlain Points Out That Locarno Pact Applies Only To Franco-German War.

LEAGUE OVER OTHERS.

Britain's Obligations in Troubles of Eastern Europe Only Through League.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—(United Press.)—A spirit of strict neutrality is governing the British attitude toward the disputes between Poland and Lithuania and between Italy and Jugo Slavia, the British United Press is authoritatively informed to-day, but the British Government is always ready to use its influence to promote the peace of Europe.

The impression is getting abroad that Britain is compelled under the Locarno treaty to interfere in every quarrel in Europe, but this is untrue. Britain is only under obligation to interfere if Germany attacks France or France attacks Germany. What happens if allies of Farnce, like Poland, gets into trouble is no direct concern of Great Britain and Sir Austen Chamberlain has made it very clear to the European powers during the last few days that Britain is not going to extend her obligations. The effect of these declarations have been to give this country an excellent position for arbitrating such disputes as those now raging because she is under no obligation to either side nor to those with whom the conflicting nations may be allied.

Naturally, Great Britain, like all other members of the League of Nations, including Canada, has obligations to throw her weight against any country which started war in violation of the decision of the League but such a decision must be unanimous and any action would be taken under the authority of the league.

Fliers Seek To Beat Record of 52 Hours

SAN FRANCISCO, November 30. — In an effort to break the world's record for sustained airplane flight, Lieutenant George R. Pond U.S.N. and Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith, Australian airman hopped off in their tri-motored Fokker plane yesterday. Endurance record of 52 hours and eleven minutes is held by German aviators.

ALIEN LOSES BORDER SUIT

Judge Refuses An Injunction Sought By Commuter But Advises Further Steps.

VISAS REQUIRED.

BUFFALO, Nov. 30. — (Canadian Press.)—The first attempt here of an alien to fight the border immigration ruling was lost to-day when Judge Hazel, in district court, dismissed an application for a temporary injunction to restrain immigration officers from enforcing the ruling. The injunction was sought in behalf of James Kemp, Niagara Falls, Ont., who is the owner of a business establishment in Niagara Falls, N.Y.

Judge Hazel, commenting on the action, advised Kemp to submit to arrest for illegal entry across the Niagara river and then to apply for a writ of habeas corpus in order that his action may be brought before the district court. The new immigration ruling, effective to-morrow, provides among other things that Canadian nationals who commute to this country must have visas and pay a head tax of $25.

NEGRO SHOT; BODY BURNED

Two Hundred Men Take Part in Lynching on Mountain Top,

MURDER CHARGED.

JENKINS, Ky., Novemebr 30 (Canadian Press). — Soaring flames mounting from the top of Cumberland Mountain signalled the death of Leonard Woods, negro, who was lynched by a mob of more than two hundred armed men early to-day. Woods, arrested for the slaying of Barshall Beaton, foreman of a mine at Fleming, Ky., was shot to death as he faced a half-circle of rifles. Then his body was placed on the platform recently erected for the dedication ceremonies at the opening of the Kentucky-Virginia Highway. Gasoline was poured over it and a match touched off the structure.

IN POLICE COURT.

Robert Knox was found guilty by Magistrate Langley this morning in Police Court of failing to obey the stop sign at the corner of George and Hunter Streets, and was fined $5.00, without costs. Constable Matthews was the only witness called by Chief Constable S. Newhall. While on duty at the corner of George and Hunter Streets on November 10th, Constable Matthews said, he saw Mr. Knox fail to stop before crossing George Street. Mr. Knox claimed that he always obeyed the law, and never once has he entered or crossed a through street without stopping. Chief Newhall remarked that Mr. Knox was a remarkable man, and wished everyone in the city was like him.

Henry Peterson pleaded not guilty to a charge of non-support, and was remanded until Tuesday for trial. Bail was fixed at one security of $250 and a like amount by the prisoner.

READERS UGED TO RUSH THEIR QUERIES TO RICHARDS

Don't put off writing that question to Richards another minute. Letters already are coming into the office of The Examiner by the dozens, and if you wait too long you may be too late to receive a reply through the colums of this paper.

RICHARDS

Richards, acknowledged leading magician and scientist, brings his big show of wonders, thrills, girls, music and mystery to the Grand Theatre for three days, commencing Thursday, and first answers will appear Thursday.

You may ask any sensible question you wish concerning your business or love affairs, changes, journeys, marriages, investments, real estate, money matters, etc. Just sign your full and correct name and address to your question and mail it to Richards, the magician, care of The Examiner, and then watch for your answer—but only your initials will be used in the published answer. No one will see your question but Mr. Richards.

Richards carries a large company of 18, two special carloads of scenic and mechanical effects and two mechanical crews.

GENEVA COUNCIL TO RESUME DEBATE ON DISARMAMENTS AT RE-OPENING OF CONFERENCE

Faces Its Hardest Assignment in Again Tackling Armaments Question.

IN SESSION TO-DAY.

Hoped Solution Be Found For Problem Effecting Three-Power Collapse.

GENEVA, November 30. — In resuming to-day its disarmament drive the League of Nations again is tackling its hardest assignment, and the League leaders frankly admit that the problems connected with national defence, and particularly the problem of reducing armaments, are questions requiring infinite patience and years of unremitting toil.

The end of the world war left the conquering nations with huge armaments which in many countries has gradually been reduced; nevertheless the burden upon the taxpayer is still so enormous and peace lovers in many countries are so persistently insisting that competitive armaments are endangering new wars, that there is found evidence that the people of many lands want armies and navies reduced to a minimum. The very covenant of the League of Nations declares that armaments shall be brought down to a point compatible with the needs of national security.

The outstanding chapter in post-war disarmament history was furnished by the Washington Conference on limitation of naval armaments convoked by President Harding in 1921, and ended in the signature of a treaty on Feb. 6, 1922.

Three power Collapse.

By the Washington Treaty no limit was placed for the number of cruisers and it was this omission which last summer's three power naval conference tried to correct. More than that, the three power conference endeavored to secure an agreement for the limitation of destroyers and submarines. Success was practically achieved with reference to destroyers and submarines, but the conference collapsed chiefly because the United States and Great Britain were unable to reach an agreement as to the total tonnage of cruisers, and the "eight inch gun cruiser." Great Britain wanted the number of these cruisers reduced to the lowest possible figure. The United States delegation refused to meet Great Britain on the type of future cruiser construction, insisting upon liberty as to size of vessels within the total limitation of tonnage to be prescribed by the treaty.

Some optimists go so far as to hope that the projected general conference for reduction of armaments on sea on land and in the air, may discover a solution of the problems which brought about the collapse of the Geneva three-power conference. The preparatory commission which meets to-day has already prepared a draft treaty on disarmament, but it is generally recognized this draft shows so many divergencies of views on various points that it is practically valueless as an instrument for presentation to an international conference.

New Angle.

The September Assembly of the League of Nations after an unexpectedly promising debate on the whole problem of disarmament, gave a new angle to the question. This was that, after all, men cannot expect really to achieve the goal of disarmament until nations possess a greater sense of security than is afforded by existing agreements, hence the decision to set up a special committee on security which the main preparatory disarmament commission is to appoint to-day and which is to labor simultaneously with the disarmament commission. The security committee is expected to devise means of strengthening those parts of the League covenant which have to do with disarmament, and suggest arbitration or pacts of non-aggression, the conclusion of which would induce nations to accept a reduction of armaments.

With progress made for security, leaders express the hope that governmental delegates, including those of the United States, which is represented on the league commission, may present a suitable draft treaty before next summer and thus pave the way for a general disarmament conference in 1929, or even in the latter part of next year.

Mr. James Brown presented Miss Kerr with a set of dishes, after which she replied. Lunch was then served.

University of California Entry Wins Championship Steer Title At Chicago

CHICAGO, Nov. 30 (Canadian Press).—A cross-bred Angus shorthorn, "California Stamp," bred by the University of California, packed the best beef and won the grand championship steer title, the most highly prized plum of the International Livestock Exposition yesterday.

It was the first California entrant to win this contest since 1921. While the cash prize is but $100, a large cash return will be offered at an auction Thursday, when the new champion will be sold on the hoof.

Normally, this auction nets over $3 per pound, which would give the University of California more than $3,000. "California Stamp" weighs 1,055 pounds, and is 13 months old.

"Jack Horner," an Aberdeen Angus, bred by the University of Illinois, won second prize of the reserve championship.

While Prince Albert de Ligne of Belgium, Secretary of Agriculture William Jardine, and a new record exposition attendance looked on, North American champions in grain and livestock were crowned and uncrowned with great rapidity yesterday as thousands of the continent's bluest blue-blood paraded before the critical eyes of the judges.

RINK PROPERTY PARTLY PUBLIC

Campbellford Council Has Had Report Made By Surveyor.

DECISION WITHHELD.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 30.—The new hockey arena which is to be one of the new local attractions during the coming season, is beginning to take definite shape. The concrete foundation is now complete and the wooden trusses which are to support the roof are almost all made. The contractors are confident that these will be made and the roof frame erected by the end of the week. The ground inside the foundation has been well levelled and there only remains the finishing touches which will be done when the building is completely enclosed and weather-proof. When complete the new arena will have ample accommodation for spectators, and it is expected that Campbellford will see some real lively hockey as soon as the weather will permit ice to be made.

Many rumors are current throughout the district as to the property on which the rink stands. It is understood that the building will, when complete, be partly on the street and partly on other public property. In order to deal with this, a surveyor having the proper authority has been employed and a survey has been made. His report was submitted to the Council. What action will be taken has not yet been made public. The councillors met in the town clerk's office last night to discuss the situation. The decision is, for the present, withheld. It will be made public within a very few days. However, it is generally supposed that some satisfactory mutual agreement will be arrived at, as the rink will tend to attract winter sport to the town and whatever prosperity is attendant upon it. In various ways Campbellford has been handicapped in the past, and now that such an opportunity is at hand, it is expected that those in positions of authority will not be slow to take advantage.

REFUSE ALIENIST RIGHT TO ENTER

Dr. C. A. Neymann Unable To See Mrs. Snyder at Sing Sing.

OSSINING, N.Y., November 30 (United Press). — Warden Lewis E. Lawes, of Sing Sing Prison, yesterday blocked the newest path by which Ruth Brown Snyder hoped to leave the death house at Sing Sing Prison.

With the convicted widow's attorney's seeking to establish a final sanity plea, Warden Lawes announced he would refuse to open the prison gates to Dr. Clarence A. Neymann, Chicago alienist, who had planned to make a psychopathic analysis of Mrs. Snyder yesterday.

Only an order from Dr. Raymond F. C. Kieb, State Commissioner of Corrections, will allow the noted alienist, who figured in the Leopold-Loeb case, to come within the prison walls, Warden Lawes said.

FOUR FRENCHMEN ARE HELD AS SPIES

Agent of Foreign Government Believed Leader of Band.

PARIS, November 30. — Four Frenchmen have been arrested as spies, while the instigator of a supposed plot to steal military secrets is believed to have escaped abroad, it was revealed yesterday.

The men arrested include a tax collector, a government printer and a soldier. They have been charged with spying and with stealing government and military documents, principally dealing with aerial tactics and inventions, from the aviation school near Versailles.

Police said an agent of a foreign government, the leader of the band, disappeared at the moment secret service men planned to arrest him, and probably escaped across the frontier.

It is claimed that the tax collector received voluminous correspondence from men in the army, describing minutely the armaments and new tactics developed.

OTTAWA APPROVES C.N.R. AGREEMENT

Calls For Building of New Hotel at Vancouver, B.C.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 30.— (Canadian Press.)—"The government has approved by order-in-council the agreement between the Canadian National Railways and the city of Vancouver," announced Hon. C. A. Dunning, minister of railways and canals, last night. One of the provisions in the agreement calls for the building of a new hotel in Vancouver at a future date.

As a result of the federal government's approval by order-in-council of the agreement between the Canadian National Railways and the city of Vancouver, construction of a substantial hotel will be begun in the coast city some time between now and the spring of 1929, it is announced here.

Railway officials would not comment last night on the Ottawa despatch announcing that the order-in-council had given approval to the agreement but it is understood that the agreement is the culmination of lengthy negotiations between the railway and the city, dating back to the taking over of the Canadian Northern Railway as part of the Canadian National system

WINNIPEG WHEAT.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 30.—An unexpected decline in Liverpool wheat prices sent values on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange toppling sharply yesterday.

Without the support of exporting houses, the market became glutted with offerings, and resultant pressure forced general declines, ranging from 1c. to 2¾c. at the close. The November option underwent the heavier loss.

Moderate purchases were made early by houses with Vancouver connections, otherwise the seaboard interests were inactive. Spreading operations formed a large portion of the pit trade.

With the exception of rye, which held steady throughout the session, the coarse grains were inclined to follow the trend of wheat.

CHICAGO GROWS TOO ROUGH FOR GANG CHIEFTAIN

"Scarface" Al Capone Leaves City For the North Woods.

ROUND-UP GANGSTERS.

Police Authorities Fear Renewed Outbreak of Underworld Warfare.

CHICAGO, November 30. — While police pondered over the departure of "Scarface Al" Capone, gang leader, on a "hunting trip," bomb warfare for control of the city's vice continued.

The two newest explosions were in a restaurant and a soft drink parlor, both said to be owned by Jack Zuta, one of Capone's minor enemies and rivals. The bombs did little damage, and the police were inclined to regard them as a warning.

Ed. Foster, a lieutenant of Zuta, was arrested in the restaurant building shortly after the explosion there.

Leaves for Woods.

Meanwhile, the sudden departure of Capone, also known as Al Brown, had police perplexed. Friends of Capone said his life had been threatened recently and that, fearing for his safety, he had left for the north woods on a deer and bear hunt. Police were inclined to believe the unprecedented absence of Capone during wartimes presaged a new outburst.

Round Up Gangsters.

The police round-up of gunmen continued, squads toured the city, visiting night clubs, cabarets, prize fights, and restaurants in their efforts to round up all known gangsters.

Six new machine gun squads were organized to pursue gangsters, Chief of Detectives William O'Connor announced.

Four gangsters were arrested when police searched through a crowd of 3,000 persons attending a boxing match.

FOG ENVELOPES LONDON TOWN

Heavy Blanket Turns Morning Into Night—Lights Turned On.

THIRD IN WEEK.

LONDON, November 30 (United Press).—The third fog within a week yesterday brought midnight blackness throughout London.

Without warning, a heavy blanket of fog was suspended several hundred feet above the streets in midmorning, and turned a twilight-like day into night.

There was no interference with traffic, as all lights and advertising signs were turned on immediately, and visibility in the streets was as good as on a clear night.

Yesterday's fog was like the first. The second, however, was one of the choking "London particulars" that hugged the ground and made organized traffic, either afoot or in vehicles, almost impossible.

Anti-Going-Up Society Formed

ALBANY, N.Y., Nov. 30 (United Press). — An Anti-Going Up Society" has been organized on a nation-wide scale it was announced yesterday by Dennis E. Howe, secretary of the Johnstown Chamber of Commerce, who is attending the All-State Municipal Air Conference here.

Howe said the members are persons who have been in at least one air crash but who won't be in any more.

OBITUARY

MRS. MARTHA STINSON.

OMEMEE, Nov. 30. — News of the death of Mrs. Martha Stinson, who passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. D. Graham, of Detroit, arrived in Omemee on Monday. The deceased had been in ill-health for several months so that her death was not unexpected. The body arrived in Omemee to-day by the noon train. A public service was held in the afternoon in the United Church after which interment took place in Emily cemetery.

EVERETT AYOTTE.

DOURO, Nov. 30. — The funeral of Everett Ayotte, the three year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Ayotte of Lindsay, took place on Tuesday, Nov. Nov. 15, from his late home in Lindsay, by motor to St. Joseph's church and cemetery. Death was due to pneumonia. Besides his parents he is survived by three young brothers, and three sisters, namely Peter, Joseph Francis, Rita, Maria and Geraldine.

Those who accompanied the remains from Lindsay were Mr. and Mrs. John Ayotte and family, Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ayotte and family, Young's Point; Mr. and Mrs. John Crimins and family, Lindsay; Mr. and Mrs. Everett Haynes of Hamilton, and others.

Mr. and Mrs. Ayotte resided in Douro for a time, Mr. Ayotte being associated with his brother Harry in the blacksmith business.

MR. WESLEY.

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 30.—Rev. T. M. Wesley was called to Newmarket last week by the illness of his father, Mr. Wesley, who passed away on Tuesday last at his home in Newmarket in his 88th year. He was the son of one of the first North York pioneers, being of Quaker and United Empire Loyalist stock. He was a faithful member of Trinity United church. Two years ago Mr. and Mrs. Wesley celebrated their diamond wedding.

There are surviving besides his widow, four sons, Dr. J. H. Wesley of Newmarket, Dr. W. J. Wesley of Thornhill, Rev. T. M. Wesley of Lakefield, Dr. R. W. Wesley of Toronto, and four daughters, Mrs. William Thomson and Mrs. A. D. Thompson of Orillia, Mrs. W. Haigh of Souris, Man., and Mrs. Thomas Mills of Newmarket.

cently and who are not mentioned in the exceptions to Order No. 86.

Adjustments Made.

The text of the statement issued yesterday by the United States Government reads:

"The Departments of State and Labor, which have had under consideration the situation created on the Canadian border by the Department of Labor's general order No. 86, affecting foreign-born aliens residing in Canada and crossing the border daily for the purpose of engaging in employment in the United States, finds that during the six months period ending November 30, which was allowed for making adjustments in individual cases, so many adjustments have been made that the problem as a whole has largely disappeared. Much of the difficulty in connection with this limited group of British and other foreign-born commuters who desire to continue the border-crossing privilege and who have registered their applications for visas at an American consulate seems to have been due to the fact that many of the alien commuters had failed to comply with the American law and apply for visas under a misapprehension that mere border-crossing permits would answer their purposes. It has now been arranged to give these aliens, who have applied to the consulates on the border for immigration visas, priority status as of the date of the granting of their border-crossing permits. It is believed that this will enable these aliens to satisfy the requirements of the American immigration laws as rapidly as the individuals can be examined by the American immigration authorities on the American side of the border. The Department understands that the situation is now satisfactory to the Canadian Government and the requirements of the immigration law will be met."

THEY WANT MORE PANCAKES

Perhaps you like the Buckwheat flavour

The family demand Aunt Jemima these cool, fall days.

It's simple to satisfy the natural pancake desire which people have when autumn comes. Serve Aunt Jemima Pancakes. To one part of Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour add an equal part of milk (water will do if milk isn't handy). Stir to a smooth batter. Pour on a moderately hot griddle or waffle iron.* Small pancakes are easiest to cook.

Then you have them. Pancakes or waffles—light and delicate in texture—tastily flavored—golden-brown—easily digested. Serve with syrup, butter or brown sugar, or garnish with bacon or sausage. The family know goodness when they taste it. No wonder they ask for more.

Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour is made with a very old recipe. Now the most famous recipe in the world. You could not readily buy all the fine flours it contains nor could you mix them so deftly.

Economical; no waste—for you mix only the quantity required.

Ask your grocer today for Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour.

Aunt Jemima prepared Buckwheat Flour is the Pancake Flour with Buckwheat Flour added. Nothing is more pleasing than the appetizing buckwheat aroma and the delightful buckwheat flavour. No other buckwheat pancakes can be so light. Keep both kinds on hand and have variety.

*Note: Use a thick, cast iron or aluminum griddle when making pancakes as a thin frying pan of steel conducts the heat too rapidly for the best results. Cook with a moderate rather than a hot fire.

Mine Trade Decreases; Most Shares Hold Firm

TORONTO, Nov. 30.— (Canadian Press.)—The volume of trading again decreased on the standard mining exchange to-day, sales being just over the million mark in the first session. For the most part stocks were unchanged from yesterday, with a number of recessions being offset by occasional good rains. The outstanding strong feature was Dome Mines, which soared eighty cents at 13.80 Granada Rouyn was marked up three at 35 and Howey Gold, Argonaut, Potter Doal and Teck Hughes were stronger The weaker issues were Amulet ,Aconda, Barry Hollinger, Bidgood and Vipond. Lake Shore gained another 45 cents at 26.70.

Wheat Prices Drop Following Liverpool

CHICAGO, Nov. 30. — (Canadian Press.)— Fresh downturns in wheat values here took place early to-day, reflecting lower quotations at Liverpool than were due. Increased estimates of Argentine wheat production continued to exercise a bearish influence. Opening at ⅛ to 1c. off, Chicago wheat held near to the initial range. Corn, Oats and Provisions were also inclined to sag, with Corn starting unchanged to 3-8 cent down and later showing a set-back all around.

Opening prices were: Wheat, December, 126 1-8, March 131 Corn, December 87 7-8, March 92 3-8 Oats, December 49¾, March 52 1-8.

Toronto Trading Firm; Most Stocks Are Active

TORONTO, Nov. 30. — (Canadian Press.)—A generally firmer tendency was shown in heavy trading on the Toronto stock exchange this morning, despite occasional recessions. Consolidated Smelters and City Dairy with four poitn gains were the strongest, but not the most active issues. Dairy reached 221 and Smelters 271. Brazilian gained 1¼ at 221¾, Massey Harris a point at 38, and International Utilities nearly two points at 48¾. Seagrams, the most active listed stock, lost a full point at 25¼, but the other liquor stocks tended firmer, with G. and W. gaining 1⅛ at 61 and Walkers 1 3-8 at the same figure. Oils were also firm, led by McColl, which gained 5-8 at 63½, and Imperial Oil, which was a point higher at 61. British American was steady around 35 7-8.

New York Trading Too Fast For Ticker

NEW YORK, November 30. — Violent bidding for special stocks sent more than a score of issues to new high records in to-day's stock market with gains running from one to seven points. So great was the volume of trading however, that the ticker fell twenty-two minutes behind the market by the early afternoon, causing widespread confusion in brokerage houses and bringing about considerable liquidation, with resultant irregularity in prices.

Trading averaged more than 500,000 shares an hour in the first three hours.

POULTRY SHOW LISTS WANTED

Requests For Prize Books in Already From Many Breeders.

PAXMAN SUPERINTENDENT.

A full meeting of the executive of the Peterborough Poultry Association was held last night at President Dawson's store, Water street, and the details for the competition of the prize list for the coming year were further discussed.

That the Peterborough Poultry Show has gained standing in the province can be learned from the fact that requests are already in for the prize list from poultry breeders in Walkerton, Stouffville, St. Thomas, Galt, Markham, Trenton, Port Hope, Waubaushene Ottawa, Toronto and Mount Forest.

It is going to be the endeavor of the committe this year to make the show attractive from more than the angle of the exhibition of poultry, the committee going into the matter of a program, which will be anounced later.

There is no doubt though that a great deal of enthusiasm and work is being put into the show this year and it is expected that a great deal more interest will be taken by the public generally.

At last night's meeting George Paxman was unanimously appointed superintendent of the show and the show will be found to be in good hands.

DOCTORS READY TO START TESTS

Party of Twenty From Canada Arrives in Europe to Examine Migrants.

STATIONS ARRANGED.

LONDON, Nov. 30 (Canadian Press Cable)—Twenty doctors from Canada have arrived here for the inspection of potential migrants from this side of the Atlantic to the Dominion under the new pre-embarkation medical examination scheme which has been placed in operation by the Department of Public Health, Ottawa. It is hoped that by testing the fitness of prospective immigrants before their sale, the possibility of their rejection on arrival in Canada will be practically eliminated. The medical examination will be carried out under the direction of the Canadian Department of Public Health by Canadian doctors secured for the Department by the Dominion Civic Service Commission.

Three of the Canadian doctors will be stationed in London, three in Liverpool, two in Belfast, two in Glasgow, one each in Bristol, York, Inverness, Birmingham, Paris, Antwerp, Hamburg, Danzig, Riga, and Rotterdam. The doctors stationed in British centres will periodically attend more than 300 sub-centres for the inspection of intending migrants.

The British Ministry of Health and the Department mentioned have assisted in securing suitable accommodation for the doctors. The hours of inspection will be arranged as far as possible, to obviate the necessity of the applicants losing time from their work while undergoing the necessary tests.

Radio Announcer's 'Good Night, Everybody,' Enables Little London Girl to Die Happily

LONDON, November 30 (Canadian Press). — How a radio announcer's "Good-night everybody" enabled a child to die happily, was described in the London papers to-day.

The radio announcer was enjoying Sunday night off, when, in response to the request of the mother of the little girl, who was seriously ill, he was summoned from his home. The child had begged to hear "Good-night everybody" spoken by his voice, which always soothed her, as she said it sounded "fatherly."

The announcer hurried to headquarters and gave his familiar "Good-night everybody," which, although heard by thousands, was meant only for the little sufferer. She heard the familiar voice, sighed happily as she murmured "good-night" in reply, and lapsed into unconsciousness Her feeble response was the last word she uttered, for she died during the night.

LITTLE DELAY TO COMMUTERS

U. S. Immigration Authorities Can Handle Large Numbers Daily.

3,000 SEEK VISAS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30 (Canadian Press)—The Immigration Department expects that Canadian commuters living in border cities and working on the United States side will be taken care of without difficulty and without undue delay. Assistant Secretary of Labor Carl White informed the Canadian Press that border immigration officials can probably take care of 75 to 100 permit holders a day, validating their existing permits so as to make it possible for commuters not of Canadian birth to obtain quota visas as places for them fall vacant on the quota lists. Mr. White thought only about a thousand foreign-born Canadians are affected at all the border points.

The Canadian Press learns that some three thousand applied during the last six months for quota visas and some of these may subsequently resume commuting across the border.

There has been a falling off of employment in Detroit during the summer, but renewed employment is expected there during the winter. The Canadian legation expressed satisfaction with the arrangement which the State and Labor Departments have made on behalf of Canadian commuters.

The British government's income from liquor taxes last year amounted to $700,000,000.

FLOOD CAUSES HIGHER GAS TAX

New Hampshire Raises Levy on Motorists to Four Cents a Gallon.

TO PAY FOR DAMAGE.

CONCORD, N. H., November 30.—United Press.—Through a four cent gasoline tax New Hampshire motorists will help to pay for the repairs to the highways and bridges damaged by the recent floods. The state legislature, in special session, has authoried a $3,000,000 bond issue to cover interest and sinking fund on this issue. The Legislature adopted the gasoline tax bill increasing the assesment from three to four cents per gallon.

WOOLLEN MAKERS HEAR OF EFFORTS

Attempt To Get Tariff Revision Dealt With By President.

TORONTO, Nov. 30. — (Canadian Press).—The association's application for an upward revision of the tariff on imports of woollen goods was dealt with by J. A. Burns, Dunnville, Ont., in his presidential address at the convention of the Canadian Woollens and Knit Goods Manufacturers' Association here to-day. One hundred and fifty manufacturers from all parts of Ontario and Eastern Canada were present. While conditions generally had improved, the bulk of the business was still going to the mills in other countries, Mr. Burns said. He pointed out that imports supplied seventy per cent. of the Canadian market for manufactured woollen goods.

PATERSON, N.J., Nov. 30.—(Canadian Press.)—In a drunken frenzy, William Freicler yesterday shot and killed Mrs. Margaret Storms, his landlady, and then committed suicide by discharging the contents of a shotgun into his head. The shooting took place in the woman's boarding house at 79 Fair street.

FLIN FLON AREA TO BE DEVELOPED

Dunning Tells Winnipeg Liberals Development Is Assured.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 30.— (Canadian Press.)—During the Liberal Association banquet here last night, J. T. Thorson, M.P. for Winnipeg, read a telegram from the Hon. C. A. Dunning in which the Federal Minister of Railways declared development of the Flin Flon mining area is now assured.

At the business session in the afternoon, several speakers dealt with the immense mineral deposits in Northern Manitoba and stressed the importance of developing the Flin Flon area, which, if negotiations at Ottawa are successful, will mean an expenditure of thirty million dollars in the north country .

MORRISON DENIES OBTAINING JOBS

Says He Was Not Consulted About Employment of His Relatives.

TORONTO, Nov. 30.— (Canadian Press.)—Replying to charges levelled against him at St. Thomas last night by Mitchell F. Hepburn, member of the House of Commons for Elgin West, J. J. Morrison, secretary of the United Farmers of Ontario, and the U.F.O. Co-operative, to-day said he had never been consulted in the employment of his relatives by the United Farmers of Ontario. Mr. Hepburn had charged there was a "family compact" in charge of the U.F.O., through which Mr. Morrison designed to have complete control. Mr. Morrison to-day said his son was a popular salesman in the live stock department, while his son-in-law had produced a profit of $25,000 in the farm supplies department of the co-operative.

PLANS VISIT TO U.S.

DUBLIN, Nov. 30. — (Canadian Press.)—Eamon De Valera, Irish Republican leader is planning to leave for the United States very shortly.

Mr. De Valera said that his visit is not connected with a drive for party funds but to arrange the details of organization, mainly economic. He has no intention of addressing any meetings.

DESERVING CASES.

The suggestion of the Trades and Labour Congress in regard to the extension of the relief afforded by the Mothers' Allowance Act to widows with but one child, is one that should receive the earnest consideration of the Ontario Government.

Under the present regulations a widow with one child is not eligible for assistance; furthermore, a widow with two children loses her right to share in the mothers' allowance as soon as her elder child reaches the age of sixteen.

Both these classes are entitled to be considered.

The widow with a young child often finds it as difficult to secure a profitable position to take care of herself and her child as does the mother of a larger family, and the extension of the relief to cover such cases would be of very welcome assistance to many women who are finding it a hard battle to make both ends meet.

The woman with two children who finds her allowance cut with the arrival of the elder child at the age of sixteen is also in a position that calls for sympathetic consideration.

The amendments asked for by the Trades and Labour Congress are along the right line.

A PERMIT TO DRINK.

This Liquor Control Act seems to have as many twists and kinks as the intricate piece of restrictive legislation the people of Ontario last year voted to replace.

Suppose, for the purpose of illustrating this fact, Mr. Reader, that you have not purchased a permit.

And then suppose that a friend invites you to have a drink of liquor, which he has legally purchased, and in his own house, where it is legal for him to possess liquor so bought.

If you accept that invitation and likewise the liquor you are violating the Liquor Control Act and liable to a fine, according to a ruling made by the Control Board in answer to a request from a Stratford lawyer who asked for a statement.

The ruling in effect declares that no person may purchase, have or consume liquor unless he is the holder of a Government control permit.

Accordingly, a Stratford man who had no permit and who explained that a bottle of liquor found in his room had been left there by his brother, was fined $100 for illegal possession.

DECEIVING TOURISTS.

A writer in The Financial Post emphasizes the desirability of not deceiving tourists as to what they will find when they visit Ontario, pointing out some instances where United States visitors failed to discover what they had been led to expect from the literature that reached them.

The Examiner associates itself with this warning for the same reason that has prompted this paper to protest against sending the genuine hard-shell fisherman from the other side to such waters as Stoney Lake and giving him the impression that he is going to an angler's paradise.

The truth should bring us all the visitors we can hope to take care of in this Province.

We have plenty to offer them; some of the finest scenery on the continent, wide stretches of beautiful roads, a great outdoor playground where they can paddle and swim and cruise to their heart's content, and good fishing, too, if they are sent to the right places.

But let us stick to the facts if we want our tourists to come back; don't bring them in to lakes where the fishing has almost disappeared if they are the kind of people who want plenty of action when they make a cast.

There are places in Ontario where such visitors can get what they want; on the other hand, across the border there are thousands of people who want just what a holiday at Stoney Lake can give them.

UNEMPLOYMENT AND EMIGRATION.

Sir Robert Horne, President of the Mining and Metallurgical Congress, which convened recently in Canada, presents a new view of the unemployment problem in Great Britain. He says that there are as many people at work as before the war, but that the unemployment figures are heavy because emigration has declined. In 1913, he says, the rate of emigration from Great Britain was 223,000. In 1925 it was only 84,000, and in 1926 115,000, of whom 93,000 went to Imperial settlements. This is notwithstanding the fact that every Government encouragement has been given to emigration. When Sir Robert was Chancellor of the Exchequer in 1922, he set aside a sum of £3,000,000 a year for schemes of emigration involving training, settlement and cost of transport. Only £1,500,000 has been called upon out of £10,500,000 available down to 1926.

It is evident that the cause of the falling off lies in Great Britain and not in the overseas Dominions, although some critics of our immigration policy talk as if the fault lay with our Government. There seems to be no adequate explanation for the reluctance of the people of Great Britain to try their fortunes in a new country when there is so much unemployment at home. Sometimes it is attributed to the dole—the unemployment insurance fund made up largely out of the contributions of workers. But if the unemployed are so well satisfied with this provision that they will not leave Great Britain, what is the explanation for the march of discontented miners to London?

One obvious explanation is the reluctance of a man to abandon the occupation for which he has been trained and take up one that is new and unfamiliar. That is natural enough. Those who are advising people to go on the land would probably look for employment in the city for a long time before hiring out on a farm. But why should this disinclination to change be more evident now than before the war?—London Advertiser.

An editor is a man who keeps things out of the newspaper.—Kitchener Record.

UNPARLIAMENTARY.

If angry passions continue at Westminster what the Mother of Parliaments will require will not be a Speaker, but a referee. Hardly a day passes now without somebody calling somebody else a liar and getting suspended in consequence. And it has been thus for some time. Will Rogers, when he returned from abroad, said that when he first visited London he used to like to go to the House of Commons, but that it got rather boring. "Every day," said Rogers, "it was the same. The Speaker would say prayers, members would take their seats, and then Jack Jones would call somebody a liar, and get suspended. I got tired of it."

Maxton and Buchanan, the chief actors in Wednesday's scene, are of the "wild men" from the Clyde. Of the two, Maxton is by far the more colorful. Somebody once wrote of Keir Hardie that he hated the palace because he remembered the pit. That, it appears, is also the explanation of the bitterness of Maxton. In his youth he suffered extreme poverty, and it has left its mark upon him both physically and mentally, searing, as one writer puts it, "an otherwise beautiful soul." He is an orator of great natural beauty. T. P. O'Connor, who has been watching Westminster for forty years, says that some of his passages are the most poignant that he has heard since John Bright. And, despite his Communistic sentiments, he is popular with all parties. The British House has always pardoned much to real ability.

Nor must it be supposed that violence only invaded Westminster with the advent of the Labor party. It was there in the days of Fox and Pitt; produced all but disgraceful scenes between O'Connell and Disraeli; and continued through the staid days of mid-Victorianism. There was, for example, the unforgettable scene during the Home Rule days when the venerable Gladstone was shouted down by the Tories, and the parties scuffled on the floor. A generation later, Lord Hugh Cecil, a pillar of one of England's greatest houses, led a similar attack upon Mr. Asquith; while Mr. Ronald McNeil (now in the Cabinet) appeased his anger by hurling a blue-book in the face of Mr. Churchill. Only a few years ago, too, a Major Molson struck the Nationalist, Joe Devlin; and Mr. Amery, the Secretary for the Dominions, blooded the nose of a Laborite.

Our own House of Commons, supposed to represent a cruder democracy, has been singularly free from such brawls. There was once a French-Canadian member who was horsewhipped by a compatriot right behind the Speaker's chair; but that was years ago. In our own time we recall the dignified F. D. Monk buttoning his coat about him and inviting a Mr. Gauvreau to go into the corridor; and the fiery Dr. Edwards once issued a similar defi to "Fighting Frank" Carvell. But nothing terrible happened.

The rules governing debate in the Canadian House have, incidentally, been made more rigid. Under the old rules there was a long list of abusive terms which no member was supposed to use against another. But they meant very little. When a member, skilful in the ways of the House, was checked for using them, and asked to withdraw, he simply said something like this: "I regret, Mr. Speaker, that the rules of the House compel me to withdraw language which so adequately described the hon. member's character."

Under the new rules this will not be a withdrawal. And instead of a list of banned words, it will be left to the Speaker to determine what is unparliamentary.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Yes, we have no senior hockey.

There is no lack of candidates in Belleville where three aspirants for the mayoralty and thirty-eight for positions on the aldermanic board have been placed in the field.

The Trades and Labour Congress advocates the sale of beer by the glass in Ontario, and it may be that this recommendation is not as far off from being acted upon as some of the suggestions sometimes brought forward by that body.

CATTLE GRAIN, AND PRODUCE

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, Nov. 30.—There was a very light run of fresh cattle in yesterday, due perhaps in part to Monday's storm, making loading difficult. With the heavy decrease in Monday's initial run, choice quality butcher steers and heifers were very scarce in the market yesterday after Monday's picking.

Prices in all classes are good and firm, with substantial premiums on anything of fancy quality if found.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., November 30 (Canadian Press). — Dullness was the chief characteristic of the export trade in grain here yesterday, there being practically no demand from any source. Trading in cash grain in the domestic market was also slow, but prices were steady.

The feature of the flour trade was the further weakness that prevailed for spring wheat grades, and prices scored another decline of ten cents per barrel. This was attributed to the further break in Winnipeg cash wheat prices.

The condition of the market for winter wheat flour was unchanged, prices being about steady, with a moderate amount of business passing.

The demand for all lines of millfeed continued good, and the undertone to the market was firm. The movement of standard grades of rolled oats was fairly large, and the prices were maintained.

Prices for all grades of fresh and storage eggs were well maintained under an active demand. The receipts were 1,614 cases.

Owing to the unseasonable weather prevailing and the limited demand from outside sources for potatoes ,a weaker feeling developed yesterday, and prices scored a decline of 5 to 10 cents per bag. The volume of business was small. Sales of odd cars of Prince Edward Island whites were made at $1.20 per bag of ninety pounds; Prince Edward Island Green Mountains at $1.25 per bag of ninety pounds; New Brunswick Green Mountains at $1.15 per bag in bulk; Cobblers at $1.10 per bag in bulk; and Quebec varieties at 90c to $1.00 per bag in bulk, ex-track.

The tone of the market for imported beans was steady under a fair demand. Sales of car lots on spot were made at $2.50 per bushel, and to arrive at $2.60 per bushel, ex-track, while broken lots sold at $2.75 per bushel, ex-store .

The butter trade continued dull and the undertone was easy at the late decline noted. The receipts were 203 packages.

The demand from local and foreign buyers for cheese was again slow, and prices were unchanged. The receipts were 2,108 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, November 30 (Canadian Press). — Increasing estimates of the Argentine exportable wheat surplus and rapid piling up of the world's available supply did much yesterday to force wheat prices down.

Closing quqotations on wheat were heavy, ⅜c to 1c net lower; with corn ¼c to ⅝c off; oats unchanged to ⅜c up; and provisions varying from 2c decline to a rise of 25c.

An unexpected sudden downturn in wheat values at Liverpool gave an early advantage yesterday to the selling side of the wheat market here. Indications pointed to prospective large deliveries on December wheat contracts at Liverpool, and it was stated that not only were Argentine offerings to Europe increasing, but were also threepence to sixpence a bushel cheaper. On top of this came unofficial estimates that the Argentine yield of wheat this season would total 245,000,000 bushels, an amount materially surpassing the most recent previous forecast.

Toward the end of the day, suggestions were current also that Argentina would have as much as 160,000,000 bushels exportable surplus, and it was announced that the world's available supply had increased 5,742,000 bushels for the week, making the aggregate 284,333,000 bushels against 244,225,000 bushels a year ago. Under such circumstances, and with fresh notice being taken of the big supplies in Canada moving swiftly to the seaboard, the market here finished but little above the day's lowest level. Evening up of December wheat accounts by active traders who were making replacements in May comprised a large part of the business. Export transactions from North America were slow, about 250,000 bushels all told.

Corn went lower with wheat, a forecast of colder weather had some bearish effect on corn, as being likely to promote husking and facilitate the movement of crops. Oats gave evidence of considerable demand from investors.

Provisions were easier early, but rallied despite lower quotations on hogs. Some improvement was noted in the call for meats.

Life actually prolonged!

By keeping the system cleansed of poisons

MEN of science are constantly working on a problem vital to the human race—longevity! They find that one of the surest ways to increase your span of life is to keep the intestines cleansed of poisons due to wrong habits of living and eating and to delayed elimination. They find everybody in danger of this condition—everybody suffering from it at times.

poisons into the blood. Thus it acts as a preventive. Your whole system will benefit if you learn to use Nujol whenever you feel the need of it. Nujol is so safe that babies, old people, and sick people can take it too. Ask your doctor about it. He'll tell you it can't hurt you. It's not habit-forming, contains no drugs or medicine. Perfected by the Chemical Products Division of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

Many of our foremost scientists recommend the use of Nujol as a harmless corrective and preventive. For Nujol does both things for you because it has the peculiar quality of not being absorbed by the system at all. But Nujol does absorb body poisons. Carries them away right out of the system. Corrects internal difficulties. If taken faithfully Nujol makes impossible delayed elimination and the absorption of Nujol contains no drugs or medicine. It is different from anything else. Absolutely pure and safe to take under any conditions.

You can get Nujol at any druggist. The genuine product comes in the famous Nujol bottle with the label on the back that you can read right through the bottle. Don't delay—get a bottle at once.

ACCEPT LOAN TERMS.

VIENNA, Nov. 30.— (A.P.)— The Vienna city council yesterday unanimously accepted the terms of a $30,000,000 loan by the National City Company of New York.

The terms call for issue at 88.2 with interest at six per cent. The loan is to be used for the development of municipal undertakings.

THE COMPANY—The Lindsay Distilleries Limited is incorporated under the Dominion Companies Act and by its charter is empowered to carry on the business of distillers and to manufacture, deal in, buy, sell, distribute, store, warehouse and export liquors of all kinds, commercial and denatured alcohol and all their by-products. The company manufactures four brands of Scotch whiskeys, rye, and gin, and in addition to their own brands the company have a very profitable five-year contract with one of the oldest Scottish distilleries to bottle three well known brands of high-grade Scotch whiskey.

THE DISTILLERY AND BOTTLING PLANT is in complete successful operation and the companies' brands of liquors are now on the market. The company has its own warehouse in Toronto to give modern and efficient service to its customers.

The MAIN DISTILLERY is equipped with most modern machinery to manufacture high grade alcohol. The capacity of the distillery is now 1,000,000 gallons per annum and as business demands this production can be doubled at a very nominal cost.

THE CHEMICAL DISTILLERY is and has been in operation for 10 years producing methyl (wood) alcohol, charcoal, and acetate of lime.

MANAGEMENT—The company is fortunate in securing the services of blenders, chemists and executives with years of experience and its personnel, coupled with most modern methods and equipment, fully approved by the Dominion Excise Department can only result in the quick establishment of a sound business with substantial profits to its shareholders. The properties are situated in the Town of Lindsay, on the Trent Valley Canal, with railway sidings on both properties. The company has only one class of stock, namely, common shares without nominal par value. Upon completion of present financing the company will have no bonded debt, mortgage, preferred stock, or bank loans. The company will have ample working capital and be entirely free of debt, except current accounts. No valuation has been placed on the charter, license, trade mark, trade name or good will.

The proceeds of the sale of this issue of common shares of Lindsay Distilleries Limited, referred to above is made in order to provide funds to be used for final payment of plant equipment and for working capital.

We are offering a limited amount of stock at $20 per shade, which price is subject to change without notice. Personally, we see no reason for this stock not being worth anywhere from $50 to $100 per share within a comparatively short time.

EARNINGS—Estimated, First Year:

Distillery Plant	$300,000.00
Chemical Plant	30,000.00
	$330,000.00
For Second Year	$500,000.00
For Third Year	1,000,000.00

It is intended in due course to apply to have these shares admitted to the unlisted department of the Toronto Stock Exchange.

All orders taken subject to acceptance or rejection. In case of over-subscription, any monies paid will be refunded.

Price $20.00 per share

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SNOWBALL PARTY

"Oh, dear!" sighed Baby Bunty, the little rabbit girl, one morning on her way to school. "Oh, dear! I wish something would happen so it wouldn't be so long!"

"What is too long?" asked Uncle Wiggily, who was getting ready to twinkle his pink nose. "Are your ears too long, Bunty?"

"Oh, no," answered the little rabbit girl, "it's just the time that is so long. I wish it would hurry up."

"Why do you want something to

"Is that all?" barked Jackie Bow Wow.

happen so time will hurry?" asked the old rabbit gentleman. "Do you want to hurry and grow to be a big bunny?"

"Oh, no!" answered Baby Bunty, "but I wish something would happen to make time hurry so it would be Christmas sooner. It's a long time to wait—almost a month. But if something would happen it wouldn't seem so long until Santa Claus comes."

All of a sudden Uncle Wiggily jumped off the front stoop, caught Baby Bunty in his paws and hid behind a pile of snow at the front steps.

"Oh! What's the matter?" cried the little rabbit girl.

"I was just pretending that something happened!" chuckled Mr. Longears. "I was pretending that the Wolf was chasing you and me and that we had to hide. Do you want something like that to happen?"

"Oh, no!" cried Bunty. "I mean something nice."

"Then you shall have your wish," answered the bunny gentleman. Something is going to happen. I am going to give another party!"

"An icicle party?" asked Bunty.

"No, but one almost like it," said Mr. Longears. "I am going to give a snowball party at my bungalow tonight!"

"Hurray!" shouted Baby Bunty and off she hopped to tell all the other animal boys and girls in Woodland. Soon every one knew about Uncle Wiggily's snowball party. Not much studying was done in the Hollow Stump School that day, for the children wanted to know what a snowball party was like.

"It's like this," explained Baby Bunty, for Uncle Wiggily had told her. "Whoever comes to the party must bring a snowball."

"Just a snowball—is that all?" barked Jackie Bow Wow. "I like good things to eat at a party!"

"No, that isn't all," went on Bunty. "Every one who brings a snowball to Uncle Wiggily's party must put something inside the ball of snow. A peanut or a lemon, or a piece of candy or something good to eat. And if the good things to eat would be spoiled by the snow, Unkie Wig said they could be wrapped in paper before they were put inside the snowball. I'm going to bring a lollypop!"

"I'll bring peanuts—a lot of them!" chattered Jacko the monkey.

"I'll bring candy!" quacked Jimmie Wibblewobble the duck.

"It will be lots of fun," cried Baby Bunty, "opening the different snowballs to see what's inside them! And it will make the time pass quicker so Christmas will be here sooner."

Soon every one was busy getting ready for Uncle Wiggily's snowball party. The mothers of the animal boys and girls gave them good things to eat to be wrapped inside balls of snow and taken to the rabbit gentleman's bungalow. Some took candy, some took cake and others took popcorn and peanuts. When Susie Littletail, the rabbit child, tried to wrap a hot cross bun inside a snowball it melted—I mean the snowball melted—so she had to take a cold cross bun. But that was all right and soon there was a jolly crowd at the rabbit gentleman's home.

One after another of the boys and girls hurried in with snowballs, and such a jolly time there was as the balls were cracked open and the good things taken out! The cracked snowballs were thrown away and the candy, nuts, cake, oranges and other things piled on a table ready to eat.

"But where are Johnnie and Billie Bushytail?" suddenly asked Uncle Wiggily. "Why aren't the squirrel boys at my party?"

No one knew until, all at once, Toodle Flattail, the beaver, said:

"There are two large snowballs outside on your front stoop, Uncle Wiggily. "Maybe Johnnie and Billie left them and ran away."

Uncle Wiggily and Nurse Jane rolled the large snowballs into the bungalow. They rolled so fast that they bumped against chairs and then the big snowballs cracked open and—out from inside jumped Johnnie and Billie, the squirrel boys.

"Hurray!" they chattered. "Here we are with our snowballs!"

"Oh, but you should have put something good to eat inside them!" said Baby Bunty. "It isn't fair!"

"Why, we are good to eat! You should see us!" chattered Billie. Then he and his brother began to eat some nuts they had in their pockets

At this every one laughed, and then the party began after Billie and Johnnie had emptied their pockets of nuts which were added to the good things to eat. So there was a most jolly time and it was soon one day nearer Christmas.

MARKING TIME TILL ELECTION

France Chooses New Parliament Next May—Method Changed.

TOO MANY GROUPS.

There is a tendency both in political and business circles in France to regard the interval intervening before the general elections in May next year as a period of marking time. The vital questions of legal stabilization, the definite settlement of inter-allied indebtedness, and even the awaited revision of the tariff may all succumb to this quite general disposition to postpone action until the country at large has expressed its voice at the polls. In view of the paramount importance attached in France to these elections eight months hence and because the subject will be constantly recurring as influencing opinions of general conditions it may be well now to give a simple outline of the parliamentary situation, according to advices just received by Bankers Trust Company of New York from its French Information Service.

The present parliament is the thirteenth legislature since the formation of the Third Republic. Under the constitution, general elections are held every four years, at which time the entire membership of the Chamber of Deputies is elected, no members holding over as in the United States. Senators are elected for a period of nine years and are chosen by an electoral college composed of deputies, members of the general, district, and municipal councils. Deputies are elected by popular vote and it is upon this forthcoming election of members to the lower house that the public attention is particularly focused.

Until recently the method of election afforded practically all existing political parties in France representation in the Chamber. It quite frequently happened that under this system candidates gained seats in the Chamber who had received less votes that some of their opponents. One of the reforms that has taken place under Mr. Poincare's government has been the passage of a bill modifying very greatly this proportional representation. The effect that this will have upon the complexion of the next Chamber is very much disputed and it is significant that when the bill was before the Chamber many of Mr. Poincare's warmest adherents voted against it, whereas the Socialists and other political opponents of the Poincare government voted for it in the belief that the parties of the Left would benefit. It is impossible to tell which prediction will be justified, but, in any event, the political divisions in the Chamber will be more clearly marked than they are now.

At present there are 565 deputies divided into ten groups. Sometimes the line of demarkation is so slight that it becomes well-nigh impossible to classify the groups accurately in the scale from radical Left to reactionary Right.

For the purpose, however, of presenting a clearer view of the present situation in the Chamber the following necessarily inexact classification may be made. It should be remembered also that, as in the United States, the nomenclature of the parties may mean very little.

1. Communists	28
2. Socialists (Leon Blum group)	95
3. Republican Socialists, and French Socialists (Briand-Painleve group)	40
4. Radical and Radical Socialists (Herriot group)	136
5. Left Radical (Loucheur group)	39
6. Democrats	13
	351
Center or Moderate.
7. Left Independent (Le Trocquer group)	14
8. Left Republican (Leygues-Pietri group)	34
9. Left Republican Democratic (Bokanowski-Picot group)	34
10. Republican Democratic Union (Louis Marin group)	100
Right.
11. Deputies pertaining to no group	2
	214

This last classification is apt to be particularly misleading because although deputies belonging to the Royalists or extreme Right are to be found among these deputies without party, there are also in its number deputies who adhere to the Center or to the Left.

The last general election was in 1924. It was then that the Socialists and other groups of the Left came into power and the Center or Moderates who had been led by Mr. Poincare were reduced to a minority. It is generally believed that this result was in no small measure due to the fact that Mr. Poincare had insisted shortly before the election on putting into force new taxation measures. The Socialists, that is the Leon Blum group particularly, at that time advocated the levy on capital as a way out of the government's financial difficulties. As soon as parliament convened the cartel of the parties of the Left was formed embracing the groups numbered above 2, 3, 4, 5, and 6. The Communists for a while worked with this group but, later, became independent, throwing their votes to either side as the occasion presented to strengthen their tactical position. It was this consolidation, or cartel, that kept Mr. Herriot in power for so long, but later it fell apart; the first dissension arising over the question of levy on capital.

After the breaking up of the cartel it was for a time impossible to form any combination of groups which could keep the power for very long at a time, until at the moment of crisis in July, 1926, enough of the groups got together and, agreeing to sink party politics for the time being at least, appealed to Mr. Poincaie.

Mr. Poincare's present Government, which is known as a Government of National Union, is a coalition cabinet which has representatives of practically all of the groups from number 3 to number 10 inclusive. Mr. Herriot, in agreeing to enter Mr. Poincare's cabinet, brought down upon himself the displeasure of his group which is the largest in the Chamber, with the result that he was formally deprived of its leadership and the group has been divided in its support. The Socialists under Leon Blum, have consistently refrained from any adherence in the present Government. As a matter of fact they would not allow their representatives to enter the Herriot cabinet, but, nevertheless, lent the support of their votes until the break-up of the cartel.

With this picture of the various parties struggling for parliamentary influence it can readily be seen how much importance attaches to the next general elections in regard to the interior and also the exterior policies of France.

It is generally accepted that Mr. Poincare will make no political move that might influence the elections favorably to himself. His action on the eve of the last general election in forcing through the bill for increased taxation and his support of the electoral reform measure in the present legislature are indicative of the aloofness Mr. Poincare traditionally holds from purely party politics.

The next Chamber of Deputies will be slightly larger than the present House but it is quite likely that some of the smaller groups will disappear. Elections to fill vacancies and certain municipal elections have given no definite indications upon which prediction may be based. It is still too far ahead to gauge the popular trend.

The remarkable achievements of Mr. Poincare's Government in restoring confidence; in stabilizing the franc, and the adjusting of the public finances, are constantly being kept before the public by the newspapers supporting the present regime, but other factors influence opinions adversely, such as the increased cost of living, the general slackening up of business affairs which is made all the more obvious by contrast to the fictitious activity when the franc was lower, and the still disgruntled attitude of a body of government employees throughout France who consider their pay inadequate although Mr. Poincare not only favored a measure, which was passed, granting an increase, but also appropriated recently a part of the budgetry surplus to the raising of salaries. As a matter of fact Mr. Poincare has been criticized by the Center and Right for this appropriation as exceeding his constitutional authority. Other subjects of criticism are Mr. Poincare's delay in forcing legal stabilization of the franc and the great freedom he has allowed Mr. Briand in his foreign policies. These criticisms come from those who are naturally Mr. Poincare's political supporters which fact tends to obscure the future prospect.

The celebrated altar-piece, "The Adoration of the Lamb," by the brothers Van Eyck, is regarded by many critics as the greatest painting in the world.

BISONS RAID VILLAGES

Five bisons recently started on a raid of villages of India. In the first settlement, near Bijni, they were met by natives, armed with bow and arrow, who drove four of the intruders away. The fifth continued the tour alone. At Kakra he killed a woman working in front of her home, gored a young man and injured another who went to the victim's rescue. Continuing to Gangtat, the animal attacked a woman, seriously injuring her, and carried on his depredations until killed by four hunters.

How to Play BRIDGE

Series 1927-28 by Wynne Ferguson

Author of "PRACTICAL AUCTION BRIDGE"

Copyright 1927, by Hoyle, Jr.

ARTICLE No. 12

In the preceding article it was pointed out that in many hands where partner, as dealer, has bid a suit and second hand has passed or made an informatory double, it is extremely important to jump partner's bid at once to shut out, if possible, a bid by fourth hand. Here are two more hands, similar to those given in the preceding article, in which the jump bid was a big winner:

Hand No. 1

Hearts — 7, 6
Clubs — 9, 2
Diamonds — 10, 7, 3
Spades — K, J, 10, 9, 7, 5

A B
Z

No score, rubber game. Z dealt, bid one spade and A passed. Y should now bid three spades in the hope of shutting out a possible game bid by B. In this particular hand, A-B had an easy game in clubs but Y's three spade bid prevented B from showing his suit; Y-Z failed to make their contract by one trick but Y's jump bid had saved the game and rubber.

Hand No. 2

Hearts — K, 10, 7, 3, 2
Clubs — K, 9, 8, 5, 4
Diamonds — Q, 9, 5
Spades — none

Y
A B
Z

No score, rubber game. Z dealt, bid one heart and A passed. Y hasn't a spade in his hand so should realize that there is a strong possibility that B has a big spade hand. It is his duty, therefore, to prevent B from bidding spades, if possible, and the only way he can do so is to bid four hearts. B had the following hand:

Hearts — 6
Clubs — Q, 10, 7, 3
Diamonds — A, K, 8, 6
Spades — A, K, 9, 7

This is a very strong hand but when Y bid four hearts, B didn't feel strong enough to bid four spades. He couldn't make an informatory double for the double of a bid of four is always regarded as a business double and he didn't think he could defeat the four heart bid. B therefore was forced to pass and Y-Z easily made four hearts and thus won game and rubber. On the other hand, if Y had not made the jump bid of four hearts, B could have made an informatory double and his partner would have bid spades. At this bid they could have made four odd and thus A-B would have won the rubber. Thus Y's jump bid in this instance was a very big winner. Be on the lookout for such opportunities and don't hesitate to take advantage of them.

Answer to Problem No. 13

Hearts — Q, J, 10, 9, 7
Clubs — A
Diamonds — A, 10, 7
Spades — 8, 6, 5, 2

A B
Z

No score, first game. Z dealt and bid one no-trump. Should A pass, double (informatory), or bid two hearts? This is a very close hand, one of the few that will puzzle even the experts. There are strong arguments in favor of an informatory double in the hope of partner's making a spade bid, which would offer the best chance for game. The objection to this procedure, however, is very strong, because partner is almost certain to bid clubs. If he does, A must then bid hearts with but a slim chance for game if Z has a sound no-trump bid.

This objection also holds for an immediate bid of two hearts over the no-trump. The bid probably can be made but game is very doubtful. On the other hand, if A passes and opens hearts, he is almost certain to defeat the no-trump bid by one or more tricks. At fifty a trick, this seems to be much better strategy than to bid hearts and struggle along at only eight points per trick.

After a careful analysis, therefore, the writer believes that A should pass and try to defeat the no-trump bid. This proved the winning bid in the match referred to in the preceding article. The winning player passed the no-trump and defeated the bid by two tricks, with aces easy, making a net score of 100 points. The losing player bid two hearts and just made his contract, scoring 16 points for tricks and 30 points for honors, a total of 46 points. The net difference in points in favor of the pass was, therefore, 54 points and as the match was won by 34 points, this proved to be the winning hand. Note the analysis of this hand very carefully.

Answer to Problem No. 14

Hearts — none
Clubs — 4, 3
Diamonds — 3, 2
Spades — 9, 4, 3, 2

Hearts — K
Clubs — Q, J, 8, 6
Diamonds — Q, J, 5
Spades — none

Y
A B
Z

Hearts — Q, 10, 7, 5
Clubs — 10, 9
Diamonds — 10, 8
Spades — none

Hearts — A, J, 9, 6
Clubs — K, 5
Diamonds — A, 4
Spades — none

Spades are trumps and Z is in the lead. How can Y-Z win all the tricks against any defense? Z should lead the six of hearts and trump in Y's hand with the deuce of spades. Y should now lead the nine of spades and B is forced to discard. He cannot discard a heart for if he does, Z with two re-entries can set up and make two heart tricks. B must, therefore, discard either a club or a diamond. In view of A's club holding, B's best discard seems to be the nine of clubs; but it really is immaterial, as will appear later, which of these suits B discards. Z's discard should be directed by B's; that is, if B discards a club, Z should do the same; if B discards a diamond, Z also should discard a diamond.

Suppose, therefore, at trick two B discards the nine of clubs. Z should discard the five of clubs. A can discard either the six of clubs or the five of diamonds. We will suppose him to discard the five of diamonds, although his discards are immaterial, as can be seen by playing out the problem with A discarding the six of clubs at this point. Y should now lead the suit which B discarded — in this case, the clubs. Z wins the trick with the king. Z should now play the ace of hearts; A should discard a club, Y should discard a diamond and B follows suit. Z should now lead the nine of hearts. A can safely discard the jack of clubs and Y should trump with the trey of spades, B following suit. Y should now lead the four of spades. B cannot discard his queen of hearts or Z's jack of hearts will be good, so he is forced to discard the eight of diamonds. Z should discard the jack of hearts.

A is now in a difficult position. He has left the queen of clubs and the queen jack of diamonds and must discard one of these cards. If he discards the club, Y's remaining club is good and Z's ace of diamonds. If A discards the jack of diamonds, Y will lead the trey of diamonds and Z's ace and four of diamonds are good. In either event, therefore, Y-Z must win all of the tricks against any defense. It is a very tricky little problem and illustrates perfectly how to force discards from your opponents to their disadvantage.

Is Your Stomach Troubling You?

Hamilton, Ont.—"Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a remedy for stomach and liver trouble that I can highly recommend. Before I took it I would have spells of intense suffering, but through its use I gained in weight and health and felt just fine. My friends even commented on my changed appearance —my complexion was better and my eyes brighter."—Mrs. Caroline Nelson, 74 Steachen St. E.

People in every walk of life today say Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has restored them to health. It is a reliable medicine made from roots and herbs, sold by druggists, in both fluid and tablets. Send 10c for trial pkg. tablets to Dr. Pierce's Laboratory in Bridgeburg, Ont.

MORRISON'S RELATIVES HOLD MANY POSITIONS SAYS M.P.

M. F. Hepburn Charges Them With Forming U.F.O. Family Compact.

DRAW $20,000 A YEAR.

Says "J. J." Aims To Control Organization—Morrison Makes Answer.

ST. THOMAS, Nov. 30.—Addressing a large gathering of West Elgin electors at a political rally in the community Hall at Dutton yesterday evening, Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P. for Elgin West, attacked the United Farmers' organization from a political standpoint, and the present editorial policy of The Farmers' Sun in fostering another political movement among the farmers of Ontario.

He charged that J. J. Morrison designs to have complete control over the U.F.O. and The Farmers' Sun.

Patronage Alleged.

'How well he has succeeded can be realized only when the farmers note the position of importance occupied to-day by Mr. Morrison in what was originally a truly democratic political and co-operative movement," said Mr. Hepburn. "Mr. Morrison has control absolutely of the U.F.O. Co-operative Company, the U.F.O. political machine, and The Farmers' Sun editorial policy. The head office of the U.F.O. is run by the Morrison family compact.

"He, by his dual position as secretary of the U.F.O. and the U.F.O. Co-operative, draws a salary of $5,000 a year; his son-in-law, Mr. Sanders, draws a salary of $4,000; his 20-year-old son, Robert, $3,000 a year; his cousin, McKee, $2,860 a year; McKee's one son gets $1,820 a year; another son a nice fat salary ;and Mr. Morrison's daughter has recently been placed on the payroll of the U.F.O. Altogether, the clan is drawing about $20,000 a year from the farmers of Ontario; yet many times have we heard Mr. Morrison, with sanctimonious complacency, condemn political patronage, and all the evils of the system of using position to help a friend".

"Insult to Democracy."

Mr. Hepburn spoke of Mr. Morrison's Political Committee, or Board of Strategy, declaring it to be more hidebound in patronage than anything else known in Canada, and an insult to democracy. He said a man elected may rightly be called J. J. Morrison's delegate to the House of Commons, because certainly he could do nothing not acceptable to Mr. Morrison without being officially denounced as a U.F.O. member.

Mr. Hepburn again charged the Farmers' Sun with publishing what appeared to be deliberate falsehoods to appeal to the prejudice of its readers. He referred to an editorial in the Nov. 17 issue on the Maple Creek constituency in Saskatchewan, made vacant by the resignation of the sitting member to go to the Saskatchewan Legislature. The editorial suggests, Mr. Hepburn said, that Premier King, as in the case of North Huron, will attempt to wrest the seat from the United Farmers.

"Up to Farmers."

Mr. Hepburn declared that he felt it was up to the farmers of Ontario to clear J. J. Morrison and his family compact out of office. He spoke about the North Huron by-election in which he worked for the Liberal candidate, and of Agnes MacPhail's campaigning for the U.F.O. candidate. He said that he hoped that some day Miss Macphail will stop pricking bubbles and use her talents in a constructive way.

"In her various crusades I cannot but liken her to Chicago 'Bill' Thompson, who having successfully slaughtered the British Empire, now points his dripping sword southward, and shouts 'On to Mexico'" said Mr. Hepburn.

"Mr. Hepburn's unprovoked and cowardly attack upon myself reminds me of the stealthy assassin," said J. J. Morrison secretary of the U.F.O., in an interview last night. "This tirade of abuse is built to deceive the public on matters that concern the U.F.O. members only. Mr. Hepburn did not prepare his lingo. It has been in preparation of weeks by one whom we very well know—a man who would not say it himself. He uses Hepburn and hides behind him.

"Mr. Hepburn permits himself to be used, seeking favors with the party he formerly renounced but now serves. It is not worthy of notice, and the public have not yet heard the last of this kind of attack. Any port in a storm!"

WONDERFUL FOR INDIGESTION!

When you stomach feels bad; when Gas, Sourness, Nausea or after-eating pains make you feel miserable—a single dose of pure Bisurated Magnesia will bring you instant relief!

For Indigestion, the prompt effectiveness of this special non-laxative BISURATED form of Magnesia is really wonderful. Even the most obstinate cases quickly respond. Pleasant and inexpensive to use. Ask your druggist.

SUNSHINE BELT OF THE SOUTH.

The longest beach in the world "Strung away along the Gulf of Mexico, down around Key West, up the coast of blue to somewhere east of Jacksonville" will not mean a thing to those who never see it, nor will the warm tropic suns of mid-winter or the sea bathing of January. There are oranges to be picked when the snow is barricading your door, golf and tennis down South when the weather strips alone will not debar the breath of the North. When you think things at their worst they are really at their best in Florida and along the Gulf Coast. Hotel rates are reasonable and long limit winter tourist fares giving you a wide choice of routes are suprisingly low, why not make a travel investment in health?

SCENES IN EUROPE ON ARMISTICE DAY

Memorable scenes were witnessed in England and France on the recent Armistice Day. On the left is a scene at the special ceremonies held at Rethondes, France, for the inauguration of the new shelter provided for the historic railway coach in which the terms of armistice were discussed. Marshal Foch is seen signing the visitors' book in the coach in which nine years ago he signed the document ending the war. At the right King George, the Prince of Wales and the Duke of York standing bareheaded during the silence at the cenotaph in Whitehall.

BOOKS CRITICIZED.

Rupert Hughes, author and American veteran of three wars, whose recent writings have brought the criticism from Mayor "Big Bill" Thompson of Chicago that Hughes was trampling on the American flag for profit. In Hughes' latest book he pictures the home of George Washington "with its card tables crowded, dancing bouts, drinking feasts and excursions to horse races, balls and play houses."

The Death's Head moth, sometimes found in this country, emits a squeak almost as loud as a mouse.

Less beer is now being drunk in England, the decrease during the last twelve months being 4 per cent.

PONTYPOOL R.B.P. BANQUET SUCCESS

Good Program of Speeches and Music Follows Fine Dinner.

PONTYPOOL, Nov. 30.—The first banquet under the auspices of Sir Sam Hughes R.B.P. No. 1063 was held in the Orange Hall on Wednesday evening, Nov. 23. The hall was tastefully decorated with red, white and blue streamers, especially for the occasion. At 7.30 p.m. over one hundred of the members and friends sat down to well-laden tables which were also decorated with flowers, etc. Dishes of fruit added to the appearance of the table. The menu consisted of roast goose, lettuce, celery, cakes, tarts, pies, bread and butter, salads, jellies etc.

The crowd gathered did full justice to one of the most sumptuous repasts ever prepared in this locality.

At the conclusion of the supper Sir Kt. J. J. Richardson, W.P., acting as toastmaster, called on Sir Kt. W. H. Hooper to propose a toast to the King, which was well done. His toast was responded to by the singing of the National Anthem.

The toast "Our Preceptory" was proposed by Sir. Kt. J. Payne, who spoke about the men responsible for its organization, and gave the W. Preceptor great credit for his untiring efforts in that regard. This toast was responded to by Sir Kt. J. J. Richardson, W.P., and Sir Kt. E. E. Patterson, P.P.

The toast "Our Guests" was proposed by Sir Kt. A. Morton, and responded to by Sir Kt. Brown.

Sir Kt. W. H. Hooper acted as chairman for the concert, which consisted of comic songs by Mr. Hunter Murchison, entertainer of Fenelon Falls; instrumentals by the Edgerton Orchester, and reading by Sir Kt. J. Payne.

The evening was concluded by a dance, which was enjoyed by young and old, bringing to a conclusion at midnight one of the best evenings ever spent in the Orange Hall here.

The committe in charge was Sir Kts. E. Brown J. J. Richardson, and Sir Kt. J. Malley.

At the meeting of the Y.P.L., held in the basement of the United Church on Tuesday evening it was decided to hold their meetings in the future on Wednesday nights. Short talks were given by Rev. Mr. Boomhour and Mr. E. Hinton. The following officers were elected for the ensuing winter:

President, Miss M. Marvin; Vice-Presidents: Christian Endeavor, Rev. Mr. Boomhour; Missionary, Mr. Hinton; Citizenship, Mr. J. Payne; Social, Miss M. Delahaye; Secretary, Miss Ella Wright; Treasurer, Miss G. McMahon; Missionary Treasurer, Miss R. Richardson; Organist, Miss Iva Shaw.

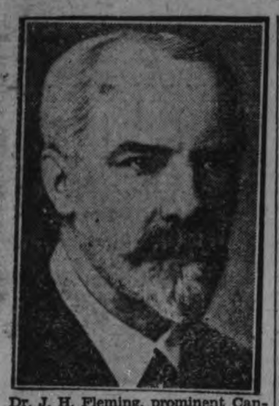
It was decided to have a social evening at the next meeting.

The dance held under L.O.L. auspices was well patronized and everyone enjoyed a good time. The Stewart and Moncrief Orchestra was in attendance.

Miss Kathleen Lerguson, who is a former student of Lindsay Collegiate left on Thursday to go in training in General Hospital, Toronto.

Mr. Milton Payne of Montreal, employed by the Canadian Government Railways, visited friends in this locality recently.

Prominent Ornithologist.



Dr. J. H. Fleming, prominent Canadian, elected first vice-president of the American Ornithologist Union in convention at Washington.

The birth rate in England was the lowest last year since 1860, except for that of 1918, during the war.

YOUNG PEOPLE DISCUSS WORK

United Church Societies of District Hold Conference at Warkworth.

HEAR MISSIONARY

WARKWORTH, Nov. 30. — The Young People's Societies' Institutes for the Cobourg Presbytery were held from Nov. 21 to 24, at Canton, Gore's Landing, Smithfield and Warkworth.

These institutes were a great success for the standpoint of attendance, interest, education and enthusiasm. Much credit is due the executive which, under the leadership of Franklin Bannister, Campbellcroft, put these activities across.

The Warkworth Institute was held in the United Church, beginning at 2.30 p.m. There were delegates present from Castleton, Morganston, Oak Heights, Norham and Seymour.

The afternoon session was opened by devotional exercises led by Rev. W. W. Jones, pastor of the convention church. Mr. Bannister gave his opening address on the subject: "What are we here for?" The speaker pointed out that the delegates were present to become more interested in God's Kingdom, better acquainted with one another, to study problems and to get inspiration and enthusiasm.

After this, four leaders led the group in discussions. Thomas Fry of Seymour led a discussion on The Christian Fellowship Department; the Rev. J. E. Bickel of Castleton on the Missionary Department; Lindsay Anderson of Seymour on the Citizenship Department, and the Rev. W. W. Jones, local pastor, on the Literary and Social Department.

Rev. C. D. Daniel of Campbellford, the past president of the organization, conducted an interesting round table conference in which the questions of better societies, temperance and amusements were keenly discussed.

Supper was served by the ladies of Warkworth Church in their usual good way, and the thanks of the convention was conveyed to them.

The evening session was opened by Orval Kelly, leading the devotional period. Rev. J. E. Beckel, Convenor of Religious Education for Cobourg Presbytery took charge of the meeting.

The candidates for the boys' parliament, Lloyd Dorland, Wooler, and Gerald Wright, Brighton, were the first speakers of the evening session and they presented their platforms and solicited the support of the boys were were present.

The Rev. C. D. Daniel of Campbellford then addressed the group on the subject, "What shall we do? What can we do?" Mr. Daniel, in a very interesting way pointed out the means by which the young people of today can make a success of their Christian life. The Rev. Mr Thompson of Honan, China, a missionary on furlough, spoke of the present problems in China, painting a very dark picture of that land which today is being torn to pieces by selfish military leaders The speaker told harrowing tales of the civil war; tales which became so real, because they are so true. The Chinese have many good qualities and the reason the grave stories, which are all true, are told by missionaries is to impress the people with the need of Christian teachings.

Mr. Thompson closed his message by pointing out that the only solution to the problems of China is the Gosnel of Jesus Christ preached and practiced.

The convention closed with the reminder that the next activity for the young people would be the Winter School, to be held at Cobourg, January 9 to 15.

WOULD BE EMPEROR.

Chang-Tso-Lin, northern generalissimo, said to be almost openly preparing to make himself emperor of China. Even coronation robes are believed to be in preparation.

A metal clarinet introduced from Europe is said to stand changes in temperature better than wood instruments.

New YEAST and IRON adds many pounds of weight.
Pleasant to take—Quick results—or pay nothing

Daily the letters pour in, telling of the amazing benefits in weight and health-building that IRONIZED YEAST gives. They say: "10 pounds gained in 3 weeks." "one full treatment added 7 pounds," "11 pounds and new strength." IRONIZED YEAST has built up weight and new healthy energy in thousands—and it can do the same for you.

IRONIZED YEAST is two tonics in one—weight-building Yeast and strengthening Iron.

The yeast is the same used in making malt and which makes malt so beneficial.

This yeast is treated with iron taken from fresh vegetables —spinach, lettuce and celery. In this form Iron is easily assimilated by the body, making rich, red blood and toning up nerves and muscles.

Only when Yeast is Ironized in this way is it most effective—for Iron is needed to bring out the weight-building values of Yeast. By this formula IRONIZED YEAST gives you results in half the time required by yeast and iron taken separately.

Ask your druggist for IRONIZED YEAST and start to get its amazing health benefits now. Your friends will soon start to praise your improved looks as you gain pounds of weight. Pimples and skin blemishes vanish and ugly hollows fill up. Comes only in pleasant-tasting tablets—60 to a bottle. Sufficient for everybody. Does not upset stomach nor cause gas or bloating.

Start today—first treatment shows results—or no money

Get IRONIZED YEAST today from your druggist. See the amazing gain in weight and strength from just a single course treatment. If you are not satisfied with quick results, money for one bottle will be promptly refunded. If inconvenient to buy from the druggist, send $1.25 to CANADIAN IRONIZED YEAST CO., Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont., Desk 149-Y.

CAUSES SENSATION

Nan Britton, former Marion, Ohio, girl, has caused a row over her claim that she is the mother of a daughter by the late President Warren G. Harding. Attack and counter-attack were made in the open for the first time recently over this claim. Judge Grant E. Mouser, a lifelong friend of Harding family, issued a statement in Marion on his own initiative, but with the full knowledge of Dr. George T. Harding, Jr., a brother of the dead executive, assailing as "infamous" Miss Britton's allegations set forth in her book, "The President's Daughter."

SEEKING NEW SEAT

Hon. H. H. Marler, former minister without portfolio in the King government, may return to political life by contesting the constituency of Stanstead, Quebec, in the event of W. K. Baldwin's resigning the seat which is now rumored.

DENIES RUMORS

Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion, who denies rumors that he will retire from the Ontario Liquor Control Board, of which he is vice-chairman, before the Federal House meets early in 1928.

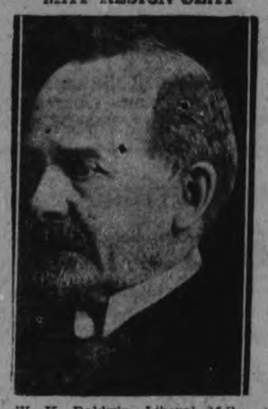
COUSIN OF BALDWIN.

Miss F. Macdonald, M.B.S., who is visiting in Ontario, is a cousin of Premier Stanley Baldwin and Rudyard Kipling. She was decorated in 1918 for service in England during the great war.

FORESTRY PILOTS CRASH

Assistant Pilot Allen Grant, the Ontario forestry department airman, who crashed in an Ontario government plane at Soo, Michigan, will recover. He is a son of Rev. Andrew G. Grant, well known throughout Canada. In the oval is Pilot Jeff Pitchie, who was killed in the smash.

MAY RESIGN SEAT



W. K. Baldwin, Liberal M.P. for Stanstead, Quebec, is reported to be about to resign his seat in favor of Hon. H. H. Marler.

SULTAN IS DEAD

Mouley Youssef, Sultan of Morocco, who died Thursday in the royal palace at Fez. Recent reports about the sultan, who has been in ill-health for some time, were that his condition had improved. The sultan ascended the throne in 1912.

Rev. Ephrem Longpre, noted authority on neo-scholastic philosophy, from the Franciscan school at Quarrachi, near Florence, Italy, who is visiting and lecturing in Canada.

ONCE LIVED HERE

The Misses Winifred and Amy Hammacott of Ottawa, formerly of Peterborough, who are now visiting relatives in England, and recently won prizes as "Canada", and "A Gypsy Dancer" at a fancy dress carnival held at Tiverton, in Devon. They are daughters of Mr. Charles Hammacott, at one time a member of "The Review" staff here.

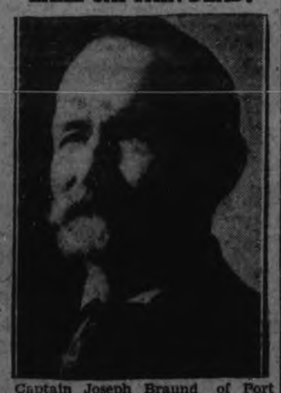
JOKE PROVES FATAL

After announcing to horrified spectators that he was going to commit suicide, a Burlington lightning rod dealer, standing atop a telegraph pole, was hurled to his death on the ground below when a lightning rod in his hand came in contact with an electric wire. He had planned to hang himself in a grotesque manner by making the "drop" when the lightning rod touched the wire, but the rod touched the wire accidentally and he was thrown from the pole instead.

FREED ON RETRIAL.

Practically a year after his first conviction, Bert D'Angelo, Hamilton, Ont., fruit pedlar and bootlegger, was acquitted, on retrial, of a charge of manslaughter, arising from the death of William Maybee, one of the host of poison liquor victims of July, 1926. D'Angelo had been sentenced by Mr. Justice Rose to four years in prison, but he appealed, and won a retrial on the ground of defects in the judge's charge to the jury.

LAKE CAPTAIN DEAD.



Captain Joseph Braund of Port Hope, and widely known great lakes captain, who died recently.

HOME OF WOUNDED LIGHTHOUSE KEEPER

Above at LEFT, the last shack left standing in the deserted village of French River, once populous years ago. In this, Robert Young, the 69-year-old keeper of the lighthouse, lived before a shot came out of the darkness and pierced his body. He had to go twelve miles before reaching the railroad, and another fifty to reach a doctor. He believes that an Indian purposely fired the shot and an investigation is being held, but it is thought that a hunter may have accidentally caused the casualty. CENTRE, shows Young, seated on a wheelbarrow. At RIGHT is the lighthouse, and beside it, the old, deserted postoffice. Dotted lines indicate where Main street would be visible, if the weeds were not so thick as to overrun everything.

STATESMEN MEET AT OTTAWA

The greatest gathering of representative statesmen from all parts of the Dominion, which Canada has witnessed in nine years, assembled in Ottawa, in the interprovincial conference there. At the right, Premier Ferguson of Ontario is shown conversing with Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, prime minister of the Dominion. At the left are, from left to right, His Excellency Lord Willingdon, governor-general; Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Dominion minister of agriculture, and Lady Willingdon, photographed at the flower-house of the Dominion Experimental Farm, which the delegates visited.

TO DEBATE IN U.S.A.

A University of Toronto debating team is to invade the United States early in December, paying a visit to the University of Minnesota. The American university sent a team of debaters to Canada a year ago. The Canadian debaters selected are shown here. LEFT to RIGHT, Melvin K. Kenny, fourth year, Victoria College; A. F. W. Plumptre, fourth year, University College, and W. Lyden Smith, who is doing graduate work in Trinity College.

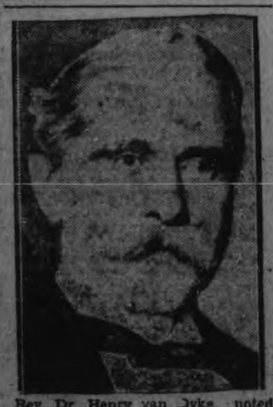
YOUNG CHANCELLOR.

Rev. Dr. J. A. O'Reilly, whose appointment as administrator of St. Mary's pro-cathedral at Hamilton, Ont., makes him, it is said, the youngest chancellor of any Roman Catholic diocese in Canada.

SENTENCED STRANGLER.

Justice A. K. Dysart, of the king's bench division, who presided at the Winnipeg trial of Earle Nelson and sentenced the strangler to death after a jury had returned a verdict of guilty.

Miss Molly Mooney of Port Arthur, who has won an all-Canada competition scholarship for three years' study at the Royal College of Music, London. She will leave for England to take up her vocal studies at the new year.



Rev. Dr. Henry van Dyke, noted author and teacher, who on his 75th birthday recently, looked back with pleasure on 25 years of work in the ministry, four in the diplomatic service and one year in the navy in the war, as probably the best years of his life.

EDUCATIONIST RETIRES

Maurice Hutton, M.A., one of Canada's outstanding educationists, who is retiring as Principal of University College, Toronto. He is a renowned classical authority, has been associated with the University of Toronto for 47 years, which is longer than anyone else there.

Baron Frankenstein, Austrian Minister to Great Britain, who is in Canada in connection with settlement of alien property claims, trade pacts and immigration questions, as well as paying a courtesy visit to Ottawa, the guest of the governor-general.

Maximilian Harden, enemy of the former Kaiser, who died recently at his home in Montana vermala, Switzerland, at the age of 66. He was the first important publicist to predict the world war.

FLYING TO NEW ZEALAND.

Captain Frederick A. Giles, British war-time aviator, who has started twice from San Francisco for Honolulu, the first leg of a 9,000-mile flight to Australia and New Zealand. Giles flew in his biplane, "Wanda."

Henry L. ("George") Wilmot, re-elected president of the Commercial Travelers' Association of Canada at their general meeting.

Chang Chung-Chang, who with the aid of two thousand Russian exiles is defying the Cantonese. He is said to be almost illiterate.

DIRECTING HOTEL WORK

H. S. Bare, superintendent of hotel construction for the C.P.R., who plans to have the new Royal York Hotel, being built by the C.P.R. in Toronto, completed in every detail before May, 1929.

GIVEN NEW TRIAL

Bart J. Brooks, Toronto youth, who will appear again for a new trial for complicity in the performing of an illegal operation on the late Ruth Dembner, as a result of a supreme court decision.

LIBRARY GOES TO U. S.

Late Professor James Mavor, long occupant of the chair of political economy at the University of Toronto and one of Canada's outstanding scholars, whose valuable library, rich in Canadiana and material valuable for students of Canadian economic development, is going to Harvard University, Cambridge, because of failure of the Canadian university to secure it.

DEATH MYSTERY

Ontario police are seeking solution of a strange tragedy in the death of Winnie May Ward, Bowmanville young woman, whose lifeless body was found on the water front, death having apparently been due to drowning. However, investigation showed her watch had stopped 35 minute after she had left her home over two-and-a-half miles away.

GANGSTERS BOMB CHICAGO BUILDINGS

Damage Done By Two Explosions Slight—Fight Between Factions.

CHICAGO, Nov. 30. — (Canadian Press.)— Gangster grenadiers tossed bombs last night at two hostile "hang-outs" in the renewal of the war for control of the city's vice, gambling, and illicit liquor business. In both instances the places bombed were presumed to be under control of that group opposed to the Al Capone-Tony Lombardo faction. One bomb exploded at a West Adams street building known as a clearing house for the Bertsche-Skidmore-Zuta group, whose alleged encroachment in "forbidden" territory has incurred the wrath of Capone and Lamborde. Damage was slight. The second bomb tore away the door of a soft drink parlor on Asland avenue.

MAN FOUND SLAIN.

The body of a well dressed man with a considerable sum of money in his clothing was found lying beside the road on a lonely highway near Bensonville, a short distance from Chicago, today. The man had been shot through the head and immediate efforts were made to ascertain whether he was a member of one of the Chicago gangs who had been "taken for a ride."

A third bomb today, following upon the two exploded last night, wrecked a combined real estate office and soft drink parlor. No one was injured.

AWAITING RELEASE.

Douglas Garage Will Give Out Information on Friday.

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 30.—The management of the Douglas Garage is patiently waiting for the second day of December to appear in order that full details of the New Ford cars may be made public. Mr. Douglas says that he is in possession of many of the official details now, but is under contract not to divulge them till Friday. That is the date set for the first demonstration in certain cities and the smaller dealers will be able, at the same time, to furnish complete information. They will have cars to exhibit, demonstrate and sell in the very near future. For some time the Douglas Garage has not had a car for sale. Now it is starting to deal in used Fords of the older models, the owners of which are desirous of purchasing new cars.

Regarding price, weight and many other details, Mr. Douglas would give no information. He is firmly convinced that the new car will be a good seller and give complete satisfaction to owners. Unlike many other dealers, he will not book any advance orders till he is able to tell his customers exactly what they are purchasing. "Too much like buying a pig in a bag for them," he claims.

FELDSPAR MINED SINCE 1890.

Feldspar has been mined in Canada since 1890, the greater part of the output being exported to the United States where it is used chiefly in the potteries of New Jersey and Ohio, and in the enamelling trades.

POLICE STORM BOSTON HOUSE

Arrest Four Men After Seige of Several Hours' Duration.

TEAR BOMBS USED.

BOSTON, November 29 (Canadian Press). — A furious gun battle between sixty policemen who besieged a south-end house and its four inhabitants who for hours had stood off the attack, during which scores of shots were fired and tear bombs hurled through every window in the structure, was terminated at daybreak, when riot squads stormed the building and dragged out two men, one of them seriously wounded and both negroes, and two women, one of whom was white. Their capture brought an end to one of the most spectacular fights in the memory of the police of the East Dedham District. It had thrown the thickly settled district, inhabited largely by negroes, into an uproar. A police sergeant and two officers sent to investigate a complaint that a fight was in progress in the house last night drew the first fire as they approached the building. They retreated to procure riot guns and rifles, and sent an alarm for reserves. In a short time the streets on both sides of the house were lined with police, and the cracks of the guns roused thousands from their beds. Early to-day, the police squad managed to enter the building and make the arrests. It was reported that one man had been killed in the fight, but this was not confirmed.

MARMORA BAND WORKING HARD

Practising Regularly For Big Season Next Summer.

ROOM FOR MORE.

MARMORA, Nov. 30.—If there is one organization in Marmora that shows no sign of decay or suffering from a slackened interest, it is its Community Band. There they were on Wednesday evening, those disciples of Orpheus (Bandmaster Hunter will not contest this title) seventeen in number, in their chief's rooms, adding to an already excellent repertoire, sparkling compositions of S. Koorjman such as "Smiling Eyes Waltz," "The Boys in Purple March" and "Entre Nous Waltz." One has to cover a large territory to find a bandmaster of Ross Hunter's calibre. Music is the passion of his life and he has the ability to score threefold, that is to say, in the choral, the orchestral, and all that is then left of music's production. His band is his hobby. During practice, he metes out admonitions in the most unexpected yet applicable phrases.

After the concluding number on Wednesday evening, a short homily was given the members, coupled with a few pungent notes from a musical book and nobody sighed or murmured as though it were a drawn-out affair. Two rehearsals and two concerts a month next summer will be attempted if present plans materialize. At present there are over thirty affiliated with the band and "still there is room," says Ross.

MILLBROOK LADIES HOLD ANNUAL SALE

Supper and Concert Under Grace Church Auspices Also Well Attended.

MILLBROOK, Nov. 30. — The Armouries presented a very attractive appearance on Saturday afternoon, the warm and tastefully-decorated interior being in happy contrast to the murkiness and mud out of doors, and the occasion being the annual bazaar under the auspices of the Ladies Aid Society of Grace Presbyterian Church.

Appropriate to Confederation year the event took the form of a Patriotic Bazaar the provinces being represented in a series of booths, with a decorative scheme of red, white and blue, gracefully intertwined over latticed arches before each section. Flags and bunting, with a big "Welcome" sign in front of the gallery, completed the decorative plan.

Ontario was a departmental store, with domestic goods, groceries, luncheon sets, aprons, etc., for sale. Mrs. R. J. McKnight, Mrs. T. C. Ingram, Mrs. T. Wilson, and Mrs. D. Armstrong attending to the wants of the many customers.

Prince Edward Island, next door, was the candy shop, where Misses Lillian Syer, Eileen Hunter, and Ethel McKnight made most obliging saleslad[illegible].

Quebec had dollies and their outfits, with children's wear in dainty materials and colors, and behind the counter were Mrs. W. T. A. Deyell, Mrs. S. E. Eakins, and Mrs. E. Armstrong.

The New Brunswick section was looked after by Mrs. R. McMahon and Mrs. L. C. Russell, while Nova Scotia was appropriately listed as the fish pond. As usual this corner was the centre of the kiddies attention, Mrs. S. Carveth and Miss May Hales having a busy time baiting the hook for the eager fishermen.

Mrs. Milton Fallis, Mrs. Harry Ball, Mrs. W. E. Russell, Mrs. Kennedy, and Miss Kathleen Lancashire were the saleslad[illegible] in the Western Provinces section, a department where a variety of beautiful fancy work was temptingly displayed, and attracted numerous customers.

A hot fowl supper was served from 5.30 p.m. until all comers had been fully satisfied, the five long tables being most inviting with their dainty floral decorations. Big platters of fowl were passed repeatedly, with their accompaniments of hot dressing, potatoes, and gravy, and there were many other good things provided.

Mrs. J. H. Paul was convenor of the supper arrangements, and the organization was both efficient and complete. Assisting in the kitchen were Mrs. W. J. E. Gillott, Mrs. H. Lord, Mrs. E. Syer, Miss Eagleson, and Mrs. G. Thorne. In the pantry were Mrs. R. Wright, Mrs. H. Seton, Mrs. J. D. Armstrong, and Mrs. Thomas Thorne. Mrs. McMahon looked after making the tea.

In charge of tables were Mrs. C. Thorndyke, Mrs. McLeod, Mrs. J. N. McGill, Mrs. R. Brown, Mrs. David Armstrong, Mrs. N. Gilmour, Mrs. G. Bothwell, Mrs. Lambert Gibson, Mrs. T. Gilmour, Mrs. S. E. Eakins, and Mrs. R. J. Doak. The waitresses included: Misses Hazel Thompson, B. McCorry, Eileen Armstrong, Ethel McKnight, Audrey Larmer, Jean Bothwell, Muriel Gibson, Bena Challice, E. Kennedy, Muriel Ball, Margaret Armstrong, and others.

The entertainment at night was held in the Town Hall, the play, "Lena Rivers," being put on by the young people in a most creditable manner. The story centres round the decision of a rich son to sell the old homestead, removing his widowed mother, and her granddaughter to his city home, with the consequent unhappiness and lack of welcome in the new surroundings. Incidentally a love story is interwoven, and the identity of Lena Rivers' father is made known. There was a packed house.

Financially the receipts were satisfactory, and any articles left from the sale may be disposed of at a later date.

Mrs. R. J. McKnight is president of the Ladies' Aid Society, Mrs. J. R. Eakins, Mrs. T. C. Ingram, and W. T. A. Deyell being the other officers.

GENEVA COUNCIL TO RESUME

surest means of increasing international security and improving the chances of success of disarmament efforts, will, it is reported in League circles last night, be proposed by the Soviet delegation.

Maxim Litvinoff and his Soviet colleagues, however, declined to reveal their line of action at the meeting of the preparatory disarmament commission meeting which opened at 11 o'clock this morning.

The most reliable information is that the United States delegation probably will decline to be represented on the special committee for the study of security, the appointment of which is the main question on the agenda. Both the United States and Russia as non-members of the League have been invited to sit on this committee.

As both Russia and Germany will insist on a general discussion of disarmament, with Germany advocating an early conference based on existing security, some opposition will doubtless develop to any plan which France and her friend may have to thrust the disarmament conference temporarily aside until security has been notably strengthened.

France and some other nations point to the text of the resolutions adopted by the last Assembly as justifying emphasis on security. Their spokesmen recall that the Assembly authorized a special committee to consider measures capable of giving all the states guaranteed arbitration and security necessary to enable them to fix the level of their armaments at the lowest possible figure when the disarmament conference is actually convoked to study the promotion of collective agreements on arbitration and, generally speaking, to tighten up the League covenant so that it will operate swiftly and effectively.

The chances are that Russian and German insistence on probing the disarmament problem will make the disarmament meeting overlap the session of the League Council, beginning on Monday, to which, it was officially announced last night, Marshal Pilsudski will come to defend Poland against Lithuanian charges of interference in Lithuanian affairs.

Diplomatic Relations Talk.

The crisis shares popular interest with speculation as to whether Maxim Litvinoff and Sir Austen Chamberlain will meet together to discuss the resumption of diplomatic relations between Russia and Great Britain. While the Russians do not reject such an eventuality, one Muscovite coolly remarked that as the Russians had been kicked out by the Britons, it was for Great Britain to make the first move for reconciliation.

The general impression last night was that the nervousness existing in several regions of Europe, especially the Baltic, owing to the Polish-Lithuanian dispute, and in South-Western Europe because of rivalry over Albania, will have the effect of postponing the disarmament conference until international peace is guaranteed by additional pacts of non-aggression, which the Russians are expected to propose.

The United States delegation apparently is ready to continue the disarmament negotiations, provided they are allowed time to bring the necessary army and navy experts from Washington.

TORTURED FOR SIX MONTHS

Maritime Man Completely Relieved of Kidney Trouble by Gin Pills

When kidneys are inflamed or clogged life becomes a misery, as Mr. W. McArthur of St. John, N.B., realized. Fortunately, he also discovered Gin Pills, and gratefully wrote:

"I suffered for six months with kidney trouble. Doctors said I would have to have an operation before I could go back to my heavy work in the machine shops. I was advised to try Gin Pills by the druggist. After taking three boxes I had no more trouble."

Mr. McArthur is not the first person saved from the surgeon's knife by Gin Pills. For years, Gin Pills have relieved acute kidney conditions.

Never neglect backache, headache, brick dust in urine, swollen joints, dizziness, spots before the eyes, painful, scanty or too frequent urination, Nature's warning of kidney derangement. Play safe. TESTED by RESULTS

Every day in our mill Quaker Flour is tested by results. We bake with it under actual home conditions, in our home baking kitchen, with ordinary kitchen utensils. Bread, cakes, pastry, are subjected to the most severe examination for texture, lightness, flavor, color. The flour must pass this test daily before it can bear the Quaker name. It is the test for results. And only results count.

Successful home bakers have supreme confidence in Quaker Flour. They know it can be depended upon, absolutely. They take no chances with flour. That's why they use Quaker Flour. It always bakes the same, because it always is the same.

Selected wheat and over fifty years' milling experience with the finest equipment give Quaker Flour its assured and uniform quality.

Quaker Always the Same Flour Always the Best

Every bag sold with our money back guarantee that Quaker Flour will give you the utmost satisfaction.

Canadian tariff policy, inasmuch as it raised the import duty on a particular commodity coming in under the general tariff in order to create a preference for the country with which the treaty was made.

"It was inequitable to raise the price of raisins to the consumers, and to tax the people of Canada from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000 annually, in order to secure for capitalists engaged in the paper and automobile industries increased profits from their trade with Australia. We said that the people who paid the price of the concessions to Australia would not get the benefits accruing from them."

"In connection with automobiles, Australia has, without breaking the terms of the treaty, placed the Canadian exporters under a heavy, if not an insurmountable, handicap by increasing her intermediate and general tariff duties on these products while leaving the preference to Great Britain untouched. The differential as between Canada and Great Britain and in favor of the latter in these exports has been greatly increased; so much so, I am informed, as to place the Canadian exporters in a very difficult position. In the case of paper, Canadian exports of newsprint to Australia have increased from $51,183 in 1925 to $2,542,400 in 1927. This is a very remarkable growth. But it loses much of its value when it is considered that very little less was exported in 1922 and 1923, when no special preference was given, than in 1927. The consumers of raisins have thus been penalized to enable one of the richest and most flourishing of manufacturing industries to regain the market in Australia.

ALIENIST BARRED FROM SING-SING

Man Whose Testimony Helped Leopold and Loeb Can't Examine Mrs. Snyder.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30 (Canadian Press).—Efforts of counsel for Mrs. Ruth Snyder to save her from execution by medical testimony similar to that given in the Loeb-Leopold case ran against a snag today. Dr. C. A. Newmann, who testified in the celebrated Chicago case and was summoned here by counsel for Mrs. Snyder, cannot examine her in Sing Sing Prison.

"Regular Commission members are the only experts we will recognize or permit to see an inmate in the death house," Warden L. E. Lawes said.

Raymond Kieb, State Commissioner of Correction, said that only official alienists are allowed to examine prisoners awaiting the death penalty in Sing Sing.

In Peterborough Churches

ST. PAUL'S PRESBYTERIAN.

The Sunday morning theme (the second in the series on the Book of Revelation), in which Rev. Mr. Allan brought out many potent and instructive thoughts, was centered on Revelation 1, 1. The subject title, "A Riddle or a Revelation," defined clearly the present day attitude of the average layman on the great prophetic book.

Some call this book a riddle, and make that the excuse for their neglect of it. Others, no doubt, find it to be a riddle, for which they themselves are entirely to blame. The book itself claims to be a revelation, said Mr. Allan, if the language still serves the purpose for which it came into being, that cannot mean something hidden or concealed, or even difficult to understand. As a certain great writer has said: "If the Book does not speak in the plain language of man, it is because the revelation was not made to man in common."

The natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God; neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned. There is the explanation of the failure of many to see anything more than a riddle in this book. In this respect the Book of Revelation does not differ from other portions of the Word of God. Natural man receiveth not and is incapable of understanding this book....The Bible was not written to gratify idle curiosity but to "furnish the man of God.' Our lack of perception may be due to our inability to measure up to the standard required of "the man of God.'"

Key to All Scripture.

The spirit of Christ, emphasized Mr. Allan, is the key to all Scripture. "As it is written....yea, the deep things of God."

The signs and symbols may be interesting, but the important thing is what is signified. And that, Mr. Allan believed, can be known, by those who in sincerity of heart and simplicity of faith will prayerfully and carefully read this book.

Why and Where.

We are ourselves somewhere in this great unfolding of things. Wouldn't it be well to try and find out where and why? In this book we have before us in full survey the entire field of the future. That should be intensely interesting to us. God is not merely pointing out the path of the future. He is providing equipment for those who have a mind to walk in that path!

The Book is no riddle to those who have a right to be called servants. The trouble is, as was pointed out by Mr. Allan last Sunday, we are living too far from Patmos, and know nothing of what Patmos signifies.

The Evening Service.

The evening service was one of much-to-think-about interest. The splendid organization entered into the spirit of the whole worship period. The music rendered by the soloist, octette, and choir was above the ordinary; the organ recital by Mr. Chenhall was enjoyed; and the singing of the congregation was hearty and appealing. These various parts, with Mr. Allan's sermon on "Curing a Crippled Church" made the diet inspiring and attention-holding.

Dealing with this subject, as found recorded in the words of Acts 2, 41-47, Mr. Allan said it would be strange indeed if, on reading this portion of Scripture, one's imagination is not fired and the heart thrilled. The story contained therein is the story of the very early days of Christianity. Nothing more inspiring has been written as church history. There was an atmosphere of joy pervading all its life and work. Its music was martial and fitting for a militant church. It was not till later that it got to know about "wailing minors and discords strong." The Word of God was received gladly, and with utter abandonment, men and women gave themselves to the business of carrying the glad tidings of salvation to others at home and abroad.

Strong Missionary Spirit.

It was remarkable for the loose hold it had upon the temporal! Social distinctions were not allowed to rise as barriers to the free play of the spirit of God. All that believed were "together" in harmony of heart and openness of hand; for we are told that they "had all things in common; and sold their possessions and goods and parted them to all as every man had need."

It had a consuming passion for, and a consummate power in winning the lost. It enjoyed the reputation of being a power to reckon with in the world. They said: "These men that have turned the world upside down have come here also." It had height of ideals, breadth of vision and depth of devotion that made it the greatest missionary force of all time.

A Change Came.

But it is not long till we hear the greatest of the apostles saying: "And I, brethren, could not speak unto you as unto carnal, even as unto babes in Christ. I have fed you with milk, and not with meat; for hitherto ye were not able to bear it, neither yet now are ye able. For ye are yet carnal; for whereas there is among you envying, and strife, and divisions, are ye not carnal, and walk as men?"

The most casual glance, continued Mr. Allan, is the light of what we have already learned about the early church, will suffice to show that something has happened to cripple her! Where is her joy and all that went with it?—"there is among you envying, and strife, and divisions."

It is almost impossible to believe that the record in Acts and that in Corinthians could have been written of the same society, the society that is known as the Christian church.

Christ Crowded Out.

In Revelation 3, 14-22, we have a letter which was written to the church at Laodicea. And if that church could be reproduced to-day, most people would consider it a successful church. Probably most people would count it an honor to belong to it. It was a church which had struck the happy medium—it was neither cold nor hot. No doubt it could be considered the last word in dignity—stiff, stilted, well provided for, and seemingly complacent. The Divine estimate of this church is quite different. "And knowest not that thou art wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked."

There are those who believe that a correct interpretation of Revelation would teach that this is a prophetic picture of the organized church as God sees it toward the close of the present age. Whether that be so or not need not worry us much at this moment. This much we can say, it is wonderfully accurate as a picture of the church to-day.

The Churches Compared.

When you compare the church to-day with the apostolic church, the comparison is not creditable to the church in our time. That she is in a crippled condition no one can deny. She does not possess the apostolic joy and abandonment. Her hold upon the temporal is almost death-like in its tenacity. If she has any hold upon the eternal it is certainly of the lightest kind. Instead of seeking to realize on her possession and give the proceeds or even a percentage of God's work, she is rather seeking ways and means of adding to her possessions and trying to get by with the smallest possible amount.

She knows practically nothing about soul-winning. Most of her additions are by correspondence or taken in through the door respectability. The new birth is a matter of the past; education is what is needed.

What About a Cure?

In the third chapter of Acts we are told that Peter and John "went up together into the temple at the hour of prayer." And in that opening sentence you have the steps, the initial steps, which must be taken if a cure is to be effected. There must be a getting together in the House of God for prayer. We have lost our way to the upper room because of our preference for the supper room. Petty differences between us cause us to drift apart. But if we really had the cause of Christ at heart, all meanness, bitterness, backbiting and ungodliness would turn tail like whipped curs!

"Now", concluded Mr. Allan, in a stirring appeal, "if you will permit me to use the lame man, who was carried daily to the gate of the temple and left there in the capacity of a beggar, as a picture of the church. I think I can show you where a real cure is to be found. And in doing so, let me point out that unlike this lame man, who was lame from birth, the church has been crippled since her birth. At her birth she had ability to run and not be weary. She had power to persuade men. She was far from being lame in any sense of the word.

"The church must come to see that spiritual values are far beyond material values, such as silver and gold. And it must bow to the authority of Christ and rise out of its crippled condition to leap and praise God! When this comes to pass she will regain the soul-winning power of her early days!"

DISTRICT CHURCHES

ST. PAUL'S, MARMORA

MARMORA, Nov 30.—Based upon the Epistle for the day, an appropriate Advent message, "The Advent Hope," was given to worshippers at St. Paul's on Sunday morning by the Rector, Rev. A. B. Caldwell "The Advent hope," he declared, "has a social and a personal aspect. Christ summed up the Decalogue in these words: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, with all thy mind, with all thy soul and with all they strength, and they neighbor as thyself. Love is incapable of injuring its object. The debt of love is never discharged We have never given to men all the love they can demand of us We still owe one another, no matter what love we have given.

The passages under consideration speaks of waking, warfare and walking. The first message of Christianity is "Awake, thou that sleepest and Christ shall give thee light." The epistle for today gives us the picture of a troop of soldiers wrapped in rough outer garments and lying asleep To them a herald calls that they should awaken for the dawn is near and the dawn must find them at watch. In the days of the Apostle Paul, Advent was always going on, the Church being on the watch for the second coming of Christ. Then there is the warfare of the Christian Church. The waking soldier must throw off the cloak wrapped upon him in the night and gird on the armour of light He is to put on the Lord Jesus Christ as his armour.

The soldier further must walk. Walking, in St. Paul's epistles means our behaviour before men The Christian is to behave as becomes his position. He is not to belong to the twilight world around him. Like St. Paul, with the evil things of the night, he must have nothing to do. These evil things of the night correspond to those mentioned in the threefold renunciation promised for us in Baptism The vain pleasures of the world bring no happiness to anyone. The love of Jesus Christ is the real thing which brings happiness to anyone. The love of Jesus Christ is the real thing which brings happiness. We must put behind us our besetting sins and seek through the grace of God to become more like Jesus Christ Pliny tells us that the early Christians met before daybreak to sing praises unto God; that they turned eastward to recite their Creed and westward as they renounced the works of the devil. St. Augustine, in his Confession, tells the story of his conversion. A voice said to him "Take up and read," referring to the Scriptures. On coming to John 15, Augustine said, "Nor do I need to read any further" When he understood the love of God, all darkness became light to him. "Let us enter this Advent season," urged the preacher, in summing up, "with a wakening up to the sense of having been asleep to the things of Jesus. Let us realize we are in a continual warfare in which we need the armour of Jesus Christ. Let us walk forward recognizing Jesus Christ as a personal Saviour, so that we become more Christ-like."

Acosta Too Large For Plane Passage

CURTIS FIELD, N.Y., November 30 (Canadian Press).—Bert Acosta's broad shoulders and 190 pounds to-day proved the obstacle that forced the postponement of an attempt at a world's endurance flight record. Acosta discovered that the 350 gallon fuel tank in his new plane, Splitdorf, was so big that there was no room for him to crawl from the cockpit to the temporary bunk aft in the fuselage. The passageway will be widened, he said, before the flight is started. Acosta and his co-pilot, Emile Burgin, will try to break the continuous flight record of 52 hours 23 minutes established last summed by the German aviators, Risticz and Edward.

Augustus Bridle, Musical Critic of The Toronto "Star," writing in that publication's issue of Saturday last, refers as follows to his visit to Peterborough the week before, when he spoke to the Women's Music Club:

"Last week the writer gave an illustrated talk on Beethoven and Schubert to the Women's Musical Club in Peterborough and the Music and Literature Club in Newmarket. This is interesting here only for what it revealed of music activity in these two towns—one of which is a city, and because most of the members of these clubs read The Star.

At the Peterborough Kiwanis Club I heard Dr. Routley of Toronto talk on "Capturing and Consolidating Canada." An admirable address, in which he pointed out the need of North European immigration. During the lunch the club sang from the song sheets with surprisingly good vocalism, the secret of which I learned from Mr. Chenhall, who conducts a men's chorus, mainly of British born, that won two awards at the Ontario Festival and later assembled a mixed chorus for The Messiah.

"I wish you could have seen the scores those people had of the Messiah and heard the way they clicked of those difficult choruses," he said.

Thus music illustrates immigration. Most smaller cities have very few incomers who sing Verdi arias, or Ruthenian melodies, or German lieder, or French folksongs, or Russian choruses. But many of them have the people who can sing the Messiah and Sally in Our Alley and Loch Lomond and Minstrel Boy.

At the Music Hall it was remarkable too how well the ladies sang, and how quickly they did the Hymn to Joy at sight from the screen, and how beautifully Mrs. Dorothy Allen Park sang Schubert songs.

In the evening I visited the Conservatory conducted by Mr. Rubert Gliddon, who with his orchestra of 55 won awards twice at the Ontario Festival. Ther are 500 students, a faculty of 20 with teachers of French and of expression, a hall seating 500, with a good stage and rooms in which are displayed the pictures of the Art Association.

During the season many from Peterboro attend Massey Hall events, and plays in Toronto, at a cost per capita of about ten dollars. Once a year a deputation comes from the Music Club to some one event in Massey Hall. The city has excellent soloists, good childrens' choirs, and occasional good programs from Toronto. One of the service clubs brought Edward Johnson there this fall. Another organized a music festival last month. There is a desire for more good programs—but too few supporters to make many a safe venture.

Evidently what Peterborough lacks is not musical people but a thorough civic organization involving both service clubs the Conservatory, the Music Club and the schools—to be able to produce every year one or two big musical events worth motor trips to hear. Already Dr. Craig, Kiwanian, has picked out a site for a possible open air pageant. There is a desire for more carols on stage. This could easily be done and The Star will be glad to help to make it possible in 1928.

Such things done with the unanimity that kills jealousy and apathy would advertise Peterborough more than Board of Trade booklets."

Miss Fairbrother, who has been on the staff for over two years, is leaving this week for Roanoke, Virginia, where she will reside in the future. The high esteem in which she is held was shown by the many friends who were present to bid her adieu. During the evening the staff of the Bank of Toronto presented her with a beautiful leather hat box. Miss Fairbrother, who was deeply affected, said that she could not find words just then to show her appreciation, but trusted they would understand. The novelty dances were enjoyed by all present, the balloon dance being especially delightful. Mr. Newton Culver, one of the guests, played some very pleasing selections on the piano, after which dainty refreshments were served. The evening was brought to a close by such appropriate songs as "She's a jolly good fellow" and "Auld Lang Syne." Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Duck, Mrs. J. T. HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, But Do Not Compel

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

FOR THURSDAY, DECEMBER 1, 1927

Conflicting planetary influences are strong today, according to astrology, which finds a benefic aspect dominant.

The sway favors students and all who use the intellect in abstract speculations. It is friendly to educational institutions.

Under this rule of the stars it is wise to be on the lookout for deceit and it is supposed to be easy to fool oneself.

Imagination is awakened under this sway, which is read as favorable to the planning and starting of big projects.

There may be a tendency toward a too sanguine frame of mind, while this configuration prevails, and so action involving future conditions should be delayed.

This is an auspicious day for reviewing business affairs and for settling old accounts.

Bankers and capitalists are well directed at this time which promises much for the coming year.

It will be luckier today to sign contracts than to begin the carrying out of new agreements.

Women should be exceedingly cautious today and should postpone decisions in business or professional matters.

This is read as rather an unlucky rule for love affairs and men should beware of deception.

Theatres may suffer from unusual conditions that affect public patronage, but they have the augury of a fairly good season.

Persons whose birthdate it is may have mysterious and surprising experiences in the coming year.

Children born on this day may be endowed with artistic talents, but ethics should be stressed in their training.

Hints On Etiquette

1. Is it good form to use a person's name often, when in conversation with him, as "Yes, Mr. B," "No, Mr. B?"
2. What does it indicate?
3. When is it permissible to mention his name rarely?

The Answers.

1. Ues.
2. Proper rearing, good breeding.
3. When you know each other intimately.

CLOTHES LIST.

When packing summer clothes away for winter, list the children's apparel, so you will know what to buy in the spring without going through everything.

Her Color Went Black. She Was Frightened To Death

Mrs. Waite, New Brighton, writes: "That deadly indigestion and gastritis, caused by constipation made my color go black. I was frightened to death, and I feel your laxative saved my life. I take them every night now for precaution, and do not fear an attack of constipation poisoning any more."

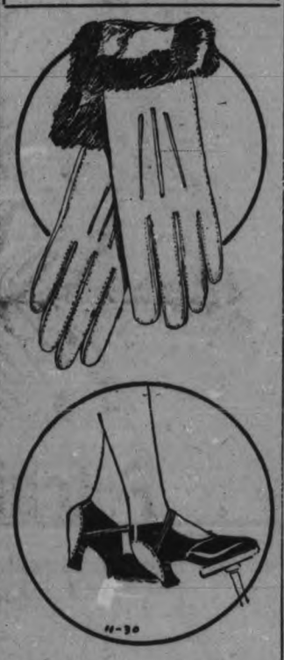
DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL



Heavy kid gloves edged with fur are chosen for winter motoring and to keep the motorist's heels from wearing there are leather protectors that may easily be slipped on and o.ff

Every woman is a possible motorist. The majority of women, of course, don't drive, but nowadays no fashion can very well succeed that does not take into consideration the requirements of the woman who drives or goes about in a car. The continued vogue of the close-fitting hat, and the failure of the designers to put over bouffant skirts for anything more than picturesque evening wear, is due to the automobile.

Capes, and dolmans that hold the arms more or less close to the body and do not permit free arm movement could hardly meet with favor for general wear so long as there are so many women who must consider their convenience at the motor wheel in choosing their outdoor apparel.

Your husband or brother may assure you that it is dangerous if not quite impossible to drive in high-heeled shoes. Even the doctor may tell you that sprained ankles and swollen insteps result from driving in high heels. But most women manage to learn the trick—and now there are neat leather heel protectors for the driver that protect fine shoes from being ruffed up at the heels when we drive.

A pair of warm gloves is a Christmas gift that any woman driver would be sure to appreciate—but they should be chosen a size or so larger than those worn for ordinary purposes. Some women wear their heavy driving gloves over their regular gloves, thus adding warmth and saving time in putting on gloves when the journey is done and the heavy gloves are removed.

PAINT SPOTS.

You can remove paint stains on shoes by rubbing with the tip of sulphur matches and then with a dry cloth.

TIME SAVERS.

It will save time when baking, if you have two measuring cups, one for dry ingredients and one for liquid.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

Cherry, huddled small and speechless in a corner of the couch near the big chair which Bob had drawn up for Nils Jonson, stared at the amazing young man like a person entranced. She had not uttered a word since he had entered the room.

"I was certainly surprised to get Miss Lane's letter,' Nils was saying in the big, cello-like voice of his that made his most trivial words seem important. "I thought Rhoda was with my aunt here. I hadn't heard that my aunt was dead. Rhoda didn't write and somehow I missed seeing anything about it in the papers. Did she tell you why she ran away, Mr. Hathaway?"

Bob shook his head.

"She was making a fool of herself over a no-count young whippersnapper from Chicago," Nils explained ruthlessly. "A tractor demonstrator he was, who came out to the farm to see what ailed one of the machines I bought in the spring. He was a married man and I gave him a thrashing when I found out he'd been putting a lot of fool ideas into my sister's head. Rhoda didn't like my interfering,' he added simply. "I guess I've kept a pretty tight rein on her, but a man has to protect his sister. Our train leaves at 11:10 honey," he said gently, turning toward Rhoda.

"Please, Nils!" Rhoda pleaded.

Nils was shaking his head again, in ruthless negation, when Faith took courage to plead for the girl:

"Mr. Jonson, we sent for you because we are all so positive that Rhoda has a great future as a singer. My husband arranged for an audition for her before San Remo, head of the opera company, you know, and San Remo was amazed at her voice, advised her to study here and then go to New York—" She faltered as Nils kept shaking his head.

"I'm sorry, Mrs. Hathaway, but Rhoda never will be a great singer. She's a parrot, always was. She can imitate any lyric soprano's voice, but she can't single a note by herself. It isn't right to raise her hopes too high, when she's doomed to be a failure."

"I think you're terrible!" Cherry called passionately, springing to her feet and facing the astounded young man. "You're a bully and a tyrant, that's what you are! No wonder Rhoda ran away from you! If you won't pay for her singing lessons, we will! Won't we, Faith, Bob? Won't we? The world shan't lose her marvelous voice just because she has a pig-headed brother!"

Nils Jonson seemed conscious of Cherry for the first time since he had entered the room. Anger sparked in his blue eyes, clashed with the fury in Cherry's golden ones She stood there, trembling with rage, her tiny hands clenched as if they longed to strike him. He rose to his feet, towering so far above her that she seemed like a midget beside him. Then suddenly he laughed a rich, booming, delighted laugh that shook the room.

Reassured by his laughter, Rhoda flew to his side. "Please Nils!"

Nils Jonson did not look at his sister; his blue eyes were upon Cherry's furious little face, as he answered: "All right. You can have six months, but I'm going to check up on you every week or so to see that you're behaving yourself."

ARCHIE BELL HAS CHANCE FOR CROWN

Will Meet Smith in Bantamweight Bout If He Beats Francis.

PAULINO IN TROUBLE.

Promoter Fugazy Starts Action To Satisfy Claim of $8,450.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—An effort to establish a champion in the leaderless bantamweight division is expected to develop from the bouts to be held in Madison Square Garden on Thursday night. Matchmaker Jess McMahon, supervising boxing affairs at the arena in the absence of Promoter Tex Rickard on a trip to Boston, announced his intention of matching the winner of the Archie Bell-Kid Francis bout with Willie Smith, South African bantamweight. He will then ask the State Athletic Commission to recognize the winner of the latter match as champion.

The bantamweight division has been without a leader since Charley (Phil) Rosenberg demonstrated to everybodys' satisfaction that he could no longer make the class weight in his last encounter against Bushey Graham. Bud Taylor, Terre Haute, Ind., was declared the champion by the National Boxing Association, but it is reported that he can no longer make the weight, and few even seriously regarded him as champion anyway.

It is understood that the N.B.A. is agreeable to recognizing the conqueror of Smith as the world's titleholder for the purpose of supplying an incentive to the other ambitious lads in the class and stimulating interest in the division.

Smith Has Beaten Baldock

Bell and Francis are to clash in the eight-round semi-final to the ten-round battle between Tony Canzoneri and Ignacio Fernandez. The Brooklyn youngster has developed into one of the best bantamweights in the country and merits serious consideration as a title contender. Francis is heralded as the Italian champion, while Smith boasts a victory over Teddy Beldock, the English title-holder.

To the defeat he suffered at the hands of Johnny Risko last Friday night Paulino, the Basque woodchopper, must now add the pain of a court battle. Promoter Humbert Fugazy attached Paulino's purse for the recent battle, amounting to $11,477.67, in an action to satisfy a debt of $8,450 he said Paulino owes him since before the Spaniard's battle with Harry Wills at Ebbets Field.

Because he has no manager of record, Paulino's ring money is paid to him through the State Athletic Commission. Promoter Fugazy served notice on Secretary Bert Stand of the attachment proceedings, and Stand was ordered to hold the money in escrew, pending disposition of the matter by the courts.

Ruth, Gehrig and Pie Traynor Standouts In All-Star Major League Team Voting

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 30 (Canadian Press).—A 1926 all star major league team based on the votes of 168 members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America, was announced yesterday by The Sporting News, national baseball newspaper published here.

One of the mots interesting contests was for second base. Rogers Hornsby of the Giants nosed out Frankie Frisch, of the Cardinals for whom he was traded a year ago, but by a close margin.

Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig of the Yankees, and Pie Traynor of the Pirates, were standouts. Ruth gained the majority of votes for both right and left fields, but was placed in the latter position, giving Paul Waner of the Pirates the right field honors. Here is the team:

Left Field.....George Herman Ruth, Yankees
Centre Field.....Al. Harry Simmons, Athletics
Right Field.....Paul G. Waner, Pirates
Third Base.....Harold Traynor, Pirates
Shortstop.....Travis Jackson, Giants
Second Base.....Rogers Hornsby, Giants
First Base.....Henry Louis Gehrig, Yankees
Catcher.....Charles Leo Hartnett, Cubs
Pitchers—Herbert J. Pennock, Yankees; Charles Root, Cubs, and Theodore A. Lyons, White Sox.

SPORT BITS

The report is again with us that Bob Meusel of the Yankees is to be traded. His poor work in the world series with the Pirates as well as his muff in the final game of the 1926 event, which lost the championship for the Yanks, has got him in bad with the New York fans. They don't like his nonchalant, careless style. A deal involving "Bib" Falk of the Chicago White Sox is said to be on the fire.

They are trying to start a four club senior hockey loop in Manitoba to operate this coming winter and the lack of rink accommodation is holding back the men behind the project. Not many years ago Manitoba was the centre of senior hockey in the western provinces but it has fallen off in the last few years. At the annual meeting of the Manitoba A.H.A., Portage La Prairie, Brandon, and the Elmwood and Tiger Clubs of Winnipeg all entered senior clubs. Then the executive pointed out that with the lack of rink space it was likely that the senior league would not be able to function this season.

The announcement is made that the Canadian figure skating championship will be held at Granite Club Feb. 23.

Charles Gorman Not Risking Reputation

ST. JOHN, N.B., Nov. 30.—Charles I. Gorman, world's amateur skating champion, has announced that he will not represent Canada at the Olympic games opening at St. Moritz in February, unless he can be on the scene in plenty of time to become acclimatized and trained properly.

Gorman said lack of proper time to train for the Olympic races in 1924 was the cause of his defeat.

BOWMANVILLE BADLY BEATEN

Marlboros Win S. P. A. Game 10-1—St. Michael's Beats T.C.C.

OVERTIME NEEDED.

TORONTO, Nov. 30.—Two more teams were tumbled out of the tussle for the Junior S.P.A. trophy at the Arena last night, Marlboros knocking Bowmanville out by a 10 to 1 score, while St. Michael's College eliminated Toronto Canoe Club by a 4 to 3 count, after 10 minutes of overtime play. Both contests were interesting, Marlboro having plenty of trouble with the boys from the rubber town, although their large margin on the score sheet would indicate a rampage; while the Irish collegians were forced to overcome a two-goal lead to get the victory from the Canoeists. The contention is now down to five teams, and after Varsity and Oshawa play tonight at the Arena only four semi-finalists will be left. Marlboros meet the winners of tonight's tangle, while St. Michael's play Newmarket, the same teams that fought in the O.H.A. semi-finals before a record-breaking audience last year.

Marlboro's experience and finish gave them a wide margin over Bowmanville, but "Ginger" Edgar's boys will be heard from before the Winter season is over. Every lad on the Eastern team is Bowmanville-bred, and there is plenty of hockey talent in the bunch. Bowmanville made Marlboros go the limit to win, and it is only after they lost the services of Candler, their centre player, who was injured in the second period, and the strain of playing on such a large ice surface tired them out, that Marlboros ran up their big margin. Candler played nice hockey at mid-ice, but in a check he was accidentally cut across the knee, seven stitches being needed to close the wound at St Michael's Hospital.

MONTREAL MAROONS MEET MAPLE LEAFS

Toronto Team To Mix With Montreal Boys on Saturday Night.

TORONTO, Nov. 30.—After a strenuous three-game road trip, the Maple Leaf Hockey Club rests up this week for their game with Montreal Maroons at the Arena Gardens here Saturday evening.

The rest this week is well deserved, for after Saturday's engagement they jump to Ottawa and Montreal for road games with the Senators and Canadiens, then finish up the week with a home game, Ottawa coming back.

On the road last week the Leafs found a close checking style of game successful, and they intend to continue that style of play.

Danny Cox has won his spurs this season and will start Saturday's game as a regular. The former Port Arthur star, along with Dr. Bill Carson carried the brunt of attack in their last three games. Ace Bailey has found his scoring eye and all is well with the Bracebridge Major Hoople.

Maroons, always prime favorites, make their first appearance here without Duncan Munro on the defence. The Toronto favorite was injured in the conflict with Ottawa on Saturday and is out of the game for ten days at least. The Maroons played Boston last night and Rangers on Thursday, which should give the Leafs the edge for their game.

HAVELOCK A.A.A. DISCUSSES PLANS

Will Enter Team in O. H. A. Intermediate Series This Year.

HAVELOCK, November 30. — A meeting of the Havelock Amateur Athletic Association was held in the Council Chamber on Thursday evening, November 24th, with B. Curtis in the chair. Officers present: J. Davidson, L. Jack., T. W. Quinn and A. Caesar.

Moved by T. W. Quinn seconded by L. Jack, that A. Caesar, B. Curtis and J. Davidson form a committee to interview the Park Board and the C.P.R. recreation club in the interests of a rink.—Carried.

Moved by J. Davidson, seconded by G. Thompson, that a banquet be held on December 9 to celebrate the winning of the Trent Valley Baseball League, and Messrs. Quinn, Jack and Curtis be appointed a committee to arrange the banquet.—Carried.

Moved by T. W. Quinn, seconded by J. Davidson, that the secretary forward the entry of the H.A.A.A. and necessary fees for an intermediate team to the O.H.A.—Carried.

Moved by L. Jack seconded by T. W. Quinn, that B. Curtis be manager of the hockey club, the captain to be elected before the first game.

SEWER CONNECTION FOR SCHOOL

matter had not come up until after the Legislature's session. He explained that the legislation sought would be an amendment to the public health act, under which the city now has authority to run its outfall sewers through the township, so that the township can make an agreement for connections to such sewers.

Ald. Macdonald asked if the township could not sign the agreement, on condition that it take effect only if the legislation should be obtained.

Chairman Ald. Stocker stated, his general opposition to connections outside the city but declared that allowing this connection would be a charitable act and that he was in favor of it.

When the motion had been drawn up the vote in favor of it was unanimous.

During the debate the suggestion was made by Mr. Webber that the city ought to close up the connections "stolen" by township people. The Mayor asked if this could be done, recalling that Reeve McIntosh had stopped city workmen from closing one such connection, charging them with trespassing on township land. Mr. Peck expressed the opinion that the city has the right, under the act, to repair its sewers running through the township and that it could, under this right, repair the breaks made by people to make their connections.

A suggestion from a man named Langley that the city buy four acres of land which he owns on the River Road near Dunlop street for the gravel pit it contains was reported by Ald. Stocker, who was commissioned to find out what price he sets. Ald. Denne stated that he was told there was a large amount of gravel in the city's present pit. The city engineer replied that there was but more would be needed some time. It was recalled that the city owns six acres of gravel land at Nassau, bought some years ago for $400, which will be economical to use if trucks are used for the hauling.

There were present Ald. Walter Stocker in the chair, His Worship Mayor W. T. Holloway, and Aldermen Denne, Hancock, Greene, Ackerman, McIntyre, and Macdonald.

AMERICANS WIN GAME AT HOME

Defeat Pirates 1-0 — Ottawa Loses at Home to Rangers.

MAROONS BADLY BEATEN.

NEW YORK, November 30. — Believe it or not, the Americans of Shorty Green are in the throes of a winning streak, just as the time comes for the temporary closing of the hockey entertainment at Madison Square Garden. Losing their first three games in a row, they turned last Saturday in Boston and trimmed the Bruins, and last night they made it two straight at the expense of the luckless Pittsburg Pirates, who have not won a game this year. They have lost five straight where the baseball Pirates lost four. The score last night was 1 to 0 and the game, except in the closing minutes of the last period, was nothing to write home about for speed or excitement.

RANGERS 2, OTTAWA 1.

OTTAWA, Ont., November 30. — An ironclad defence that was near impregnable gave the New York Rangers a 2 to 1 victory over Ottawa Senators in a thrilling intersectional National Hockey League fixture last night that kept 7,000 excited fans almost continuously off their seats. It was the second straight defeat Les Patrick's crew has handed the world's champions in as many meetings this season.

The Senators outshot their opponents almost two to one, but their hopes were shattered against the bulwarks of the sturdy Ranger rearguard.

BOSTON 4, MAROONS 0.

BOSTON, Mass., November 30. — The crippled Montreal Maroons were overwhelmed by the Boston Bruins 4 to 0 in a National Hockey League fixture here last night before a crowd of more than 8,000. It was the most spectacular upset of the local season.

Lacking the services of Dunc Munro, who was injured in Saturday's game in Montreal, the Maroons had the further misfortune of losing Benedict at the end of the first period of last night's game. The lanky goalie became ill, and was replaced by "Flat" Walsh, who, however, performed the duties creditably. But the game was won and lost while Benedict was in action.

Famous Kings

"BLUFF KING HAL" in the earlier part of his reign possessed those qualities which appealed particularly to the English people. He loved the sea and all manly sports, and in addition was a scholar of wide attainments.

Henry's strength was also his weakness. He was fiercely self-reliant and intolerant of advice. Even Wolsey could not move him once his mind was made up.

In spite of his failings, Henry had a mighty influence on the destiny of England. He laid the foundation of the navy which to this day is the pride and bulwark of the nation.

THE "EMPEROR" confers upon you powers undreamed of by any king of old and not surpassed by any reigning monarch. You, too, can command the talent of the hour and enjoy entertainment that would delight a royal audience.

The "Emperor" is a six tube stabilized tuned radio frequency receiver with two stages of tuned radio frequency, detector, and three stages of a newly developed type of audio frequency.

It is specially adapted for use with "B" battery eliminator but will work equally well with dry "B" Batteries. Each transformer coil is completely shielded in copper which eliminates all interference and ensures knife edged selectivity.

The "Emperor" Console is the last word in cabinet design and is a remarkably handsome piece of furniture. It has separate compartments for all accessories including loud speaker.

A demonstration will enlist you under the banner of the King!

Price, including Bulbin Loud Speaker but without accessories, $185.00 Table Model, $150.00.

MARMORA NEWS

MARMORA, Nov. 30.—Mr. H. R. Haaeke is in Toronto for a few days on business.

"Don Juan" was shown in the Town Hall on Wednesday evening, proceeds going to the funds of the Continuation School hockey team.

About thirty of the young people of St. Paul's Church gathered at the Rectory on Thursday evening at the invitation of the rector and Mrs. Caldwell and whiled away three pleasant hours with interesting and amusing contests. Prizes for the best aggregate of answers went to Thorold Bailey and Ada Archer. A delicious lunch was served at the close. The event was a preliminary to the re-organizing of the local A.Y.P.A.

RACING SEASON IS FILLED WITH UPSETS

Trainer Relates Some of Inconsistent Victories Made in 1927 Races.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—A few more weeks and the northern racing season will be over. Veterans who have been following the horses for 30 years say they cannot remember a year which furnished so many upsets as old hectic 1927.

Don't cock a knowing ear, you of snap judgments. The mixups are not attributed to "needlers", better and more vulgarly known as crooks. They were caused by bad horses.

As one veteran trainer recently said, insisting that his name be kept out of it because of fear of offending his boss, who happens to be quite prominent, "there weren't a half dozen high-class dogs seen in competition all season.

"There were more inconsistent, temperamental, unsound nags beating each other all through the year than there ever has been in 30 years of racing.

"Everybody thought Brown Bud was the best of the colts but he flopped like a rug at the Latonia when Rolled Stocking ran off and hid from him.

"Nimba would be a first-rate filly if she were sound.

"Black Maria is the best thoroughbred of either sex in America at even weights in a series of six furlongs to a mile and six furlongs. She has plenty of tough luck, too.

"Mars is not sound.

"With light weight up, Peanuts was consistent early in the season but he went wrong and was retired right after Black Maria gave him a trouncing.

Of course there is Display. He has been an honest fellow on a fast track. He did not win many stakes but always when the track was fast he was mighty close to the winner.

Of all the events of the year the Latonia championship was a stunning blow to handicappers and horsemen throughout the country.

Rolled Stocking, comparatively unknown, or rather unliked, made Brown Bud and Whiskery look like platers. He led from start to finish of the long journey and at the end was driving. He was hustled along in the stretch to keep in front of Woolbridge.

Perhaps the one race most indicative of the whole situation was the $30,000 Washington handicap. It brought together the best horses in training, including Black Maria, Crusader, Mars, Chance Play and Display.

Display won in a driving finish by a head from Black Maria but he carried only 112 pounds to the black mare's 117.

At that his victory was a surprise but it was hardly a reversal. He had won a sensational race only a few days before. But in that event his opponents were not so hot.

DELORO SOCIETY ELECTS OFFICERS

Social and Dramatic Club Has Had Very Successful Year.

MARMORA Nov. 30. — Deloro's oldest society, founded in 1901, namely its Social and Dramatic Society, held its annual meeting at the hall of that village on Saturday evening. After introducing cards and smokes two reels of comics were shown.

Two appreciated numbers were then given by Messrs. Bob Hendry and Dick Devey of Peterborough, the former being applauded for his "I Love ma' Jean," and "When I meet McKie," and the latter taking extremely well with "Chin-Chin-Chinaman," and "Two Minutes too Late."

President A. V. Yates then called the meeting to order, and following the reading of the minutes by Secretary-Treasurer L. B. Cheeseman, Mr. Yates gave a short speech in which after commending the society for its past year's activities, he mentioned that one feature that should not be overlooked was the necessary purchase of a new moving picture machine in the near future. He also alluded to the changes which would be made later on whereby the interior appearance of the hall would be improved, and in conclusion dealt with the organization last year of the Deloro Boy Scouts Troop.

The financial statement was then presented revealing judicious handling of the finances for the past year. Bob Hendry was called to the stage for another song and gave "Bella, the Belle o' Dunoon," with "There is Somebody Waiting for Me," as encore. Dick Devey having obliged with a number for the especial pleasure of the juveniles present, another reel was flashed on the screen.

Resuming the business of the evening the motion that the Hon. Presidents of last year be re-elected was defeated by an amendment to the effect that the retiring president be automatically made Honorary President, and that all retiring presidents be automatically appointed to the executive.

Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows:

Hon. President: A. V. Yates; president, H. A. McNally; Vice-President, S. B. Cheeseman; Master of Ceremonies: E. E. Mantle; Secretary-Treasurer: J. H. English; Librarian, Miss Jean Reynolds; Auditor, C. L. Quinn; Executive: W. Simmons, F. Leal, J. A. Hemphill, C. H. Buskard, R. Hunter, K. Buchanan, W. R. Reynolds, F. Gray, J. C. Quinn F. Melvair, A. Hart, N. Kilpatrick, R. Murray and G. O'Neill.

Mr. McNally mentioned that the date of the annual Christmas tree had not been decided and called for a vote, which favored its being held on December 23rd.

S. B. Wright in a few brief words, referred to the company's interest in the society and support thereof.

F. A. Bapty desired to say that he coincided with Mr. Wright in what he had said and assured the members of his own strong personal interest in the society.

S. B. Cheeseman thought that community singing once a month might be considered. Another reel and the audience was charmed further with Bob Hendry's rendition of "Susie MacLean," his recitation of "Grannie's Laddie," and his final number "It's a Fine Thing to Sing."

The program was brought to a conclusion with "Pack up your troubles," and the National anthem.

The attendance numbered well over a hundred.

Man, 50, Stays Up Late, Runs, Does Many Stunts

"At 50 years, I can stay up late, run and do many strenuous stunts and feel fine. Vinol has done wonders for me."—H. Kimball.

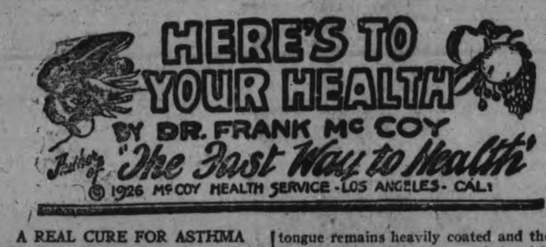
Vinol is a compound of iron, phosphates, cod liver peptone, etc. The very FIRST bottle makes you sleep better and have a BIG appetite. Nervous, easily tired people are surprised how QUICK the iron, phosphates, etc. give new life and pep. Vinol tastes delicious. McDermid & Jury, Druggists, E. L. Payne, McDermid Drug Company.

OUT-PUNTED "PEP" LEADLEY

Yip Foster, husky half back of Balmy Beach, the new Canadian rugby champions, who out-punted the great Pep Leadley in Saturday's sensational grid struggle at Varsity stadium. Foster flailed the soggy spheroid for repeated gains and had the better of virtually all the kicking exchanges with the light-weight Leadley. It was mainly due to his wonderful execution in this respect that the Tiger tails were twisted. There was no one on the Hamilton rearguard who could match kicks with him.

GIRL SHOT FROM CANNON

Imagine a pretty girl loaded into a huge cannon and then to be shot through a solid mass of iron, steel, wood and grass, only to appear again in less than 10 seconds, smiling and unhurt. Impossible as this may sound, it actually is one of the hundred odd amazing wonders and mysteries that will be performed in the big mystery show of Richards, the famous magician, who opens a three days 'engagement at the Grand theatre, starting Thursday. Richards carries almost two carloads of strange, weird effects and scenery, a large company of artists and over 40 head of livestock with the production, which is in three acts and 19 big scenes and requires nearly three hours to present in its entirety.



A REAL CURE FOR ASTHMA

The first thing for the asthma sufferer to do is to stop the use of any drug he is taking. This includes the elimination of adrenalin, serums, morphine, opium, smoking powders, coffee or caffein in any other form.

The next step in the cure is to completely cleanse the alimentary canal of any accumulated food or toxic fecal matter. At least two enemas daily should be taken, and more if necessary, to assist in eliminating intestinal gas.

No food of any kind should be used for at least four or five days—no milk, soup, coffee, cocoa, or any other drinks except whatever water is desired. This is a simple "water" fast and will bring about the quickest relief in getting rid of asthmatic wheezing, and will work wonders in assisting in the elimination of accumulated bronchial mucus.

The water fast should be continued for longer than four or five days if it is necessary, extending it to ten or fifteen days if symptoms persist or the tongue remains heavily coated and the breath foul. No fear need be felt about the consequences of the longer fast as only good results will follow. This fast has been taken by many thousands, and thousands of actual cures reported, without a single harmful experience.

After all symptoms have subsided, and it seems advisable to break the fast, the following dietary regime should be followed: Upon arising in the morning take a few calisthenic exercises in a room with plenty of free circulation of air. Follow the exercises with a cold shower bath, then—

Breakfast: The whites of two or three eggs prepared in any manner except by frying; two or three pieces of Melba toast, browned all the way through. Choice of a small dish of one of the following stewed fruits: Prunes, figs, raisins, or applesauce. These should be prepared without adding any sugar. No cream nor milk should be used.

Luncheon: Choice of one or more, as desired, of the following vegetables: Celery, spinach, small string beans, asparagus, summer squash, cucumber, egg plant, beet tops, turnip tops, small beets, small carrots, small parsnips, small turnips, lettuce, okra, chayotes, oyster plant (salsify), mallow, kale, zucchini, parsley, nasturtium leaves and flowers, endive, avocado (alligator pear), or ripe olives. These may be used either raw or cooked, or both raw and cooked, and in any reasonable quantity.

Late in the afternoon some more calisthenic exercises should be taken, as well as a fairly long walk, followed by a shower bath and thirty minutes' rest in bed.

Dinner: Choice of one of the following proteins: Beef, mutton, chicken, fish or rabbit. No more than one quarter of a pound should be used. The vegetables should be chosen from those listed for luncheon, and the combinations should be kept simple. My suggestion is to use only one cooked and one raw non-starchy vegetable at this evening meal. No desserts.

An enema should be taken just before retiring. The daily use of the enema should be continued for at least several weeks.

If there is any returnof asthmatic symptoms it may be well to return to a fast for a few days and then resume a diet which I have just suggested.

In addition to the calisthenics which I have advised, it is also important to take certain breathing exercises which I will explain in tomorrow's paper.

Questions and Answers.

Question: Mrs. L. W. K. writes: "Am very much interested in your daily health talks. Can you tell me what causes a pain in the back under the left shoulder? It is worse in the morning before arising. Have suffered with it for some time. Am forty years of age."

Answer: The pain in your back may be due to some faulty position of the spinal vertebrae, or to a reflex from some kind of heart disorder. A complete diagnosis would be necessary to find the real cause.

Question: Ida asks: "Is it correct to use fruits with protein foods?

Answer: Any one kind of fruit may be used with any one kind of protein food.

Question: Mrs. A. J. asks: "Are sunbaths as good as the violet ray lamps? How can I really cure pleurisy?"

Answer: I consider sunbathing to be superior to treatments with the ultra-violet.

Answer: I consider sunbathing to be violet lamps, as the sun's rays doubtless contain other beneficial rays besides the ultra-violet. To cure pleurisy, you must first find the cause, which may be due to tuberculosis a tight diaphragm, or the irritation from excessive gas pressure.

Question: R. J. T. writes: "I am troubled with catarrh of the nose, also have acne. Is there any connection between the two diseases? Am also underweight."

Answer: Catarrh of the nose and also acne may be caused by intestinal poisoning. A short fruit fast would be helpful at the beginning of the treatment of either of these disorders. Then use a diet free from fats, sugars, and starches. Do not "stuff" to gain weight, but use a proper amount of the right kinds of food, and avoid constipation.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL.

ERSTWHILE ARMY-NAVY BOYS NOW SAILING UP.

Aviation, now the greatest popular fancy, has its comedy possibilities exploited for the first time in a motion picture by Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton in "Now We're in the Air," the Paramount film which comes to the Capitol Theatre tomorrow.

Against their will Beery and Hatton have been soldiers, sailors, and firemen, and now they are aviators, through no doing of their own. They land in the air service when their employer enlists and they wander into a propeller testing room and have their Scottish Highlander costumes blown off.

Some one tosses them a pair of flying uniforms, and before they know it they have been mistaken for aviators and are in the air. Mistaken identity dominates the plot. Louise Brooks plays a dual role. She is both of twin sisters, one of whom is of French fealty and the other German. Beery falls in love with the German twin and Hatton with the French, but they are unable to tell the girls apart, so all sorts of scrambled complications ensue.

Then Beery and Hatton are mistaken for German heroes, and are acclaimed of the same status by the French. This is too good to last, however, and they are about to be finished off by a firing squad when the war ends and each wins the twin of his choice.

The picture is replete in thrilling aviation situations, but most of the comedy takes place on the ground. Clever gags punctuate the entire production and the picture may be safely said to be the funniest and best Hatton and Beery have done yet.

Frank Strayer directed "Now We're in the Air," and the cast includes Malcolm Waite, Emile Chautard, Duke Martin, and Russell Simpson.

AT THE REGENT.

AERIAL TRICKS IN "ROOKIES", THRILL

World war aces who think they know the last word in hazardous flying, may be able to learn some new aerial tricks with the showing of "Rookies," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's nest farce comedy coming soon to the Regent Theatre

The story, an original by Byron Morgan, is laid against a background of citizens' military training camp life, and is directed by Sam Wood, who made a name for himself by directing many of the most successful Wallace Reid productions.

Wood, who is an authority on film thrills, is said to have injected airplane and balloon stunts which are almost blood congealing to the spectators

The plane shots were filmed at altitudes varying from twenty-five feet to more than a mile and the balloon thrills were taken at heights which sometimes carried cameras, director and cast far above the clouds

The picture was produced with the co-operation of the government and many officers detailed to the training camps appeared in the production and acted as technical advisors

STARRED IN TIGERS-BALMY BEACH GAME

The surprise Balmy Beach, senior champion of the O.R.F.U., handed Hamilton Tigers, senior champions of the "Big Four" and conquerors of Queens, the Intercollegiate champions, Saturday at Varsity stadium, will furnish fan fodder until long after another Dominion Eastern championship is decided. Standing out in the sensational and well deserved victory of the Toronto team were four of the five players shown above. On the left is Harry "Yip" Foster. His heavyweight booting and sterling backfield play made him one of the big stars of the final tussle in the mud. Next to Foster is Alex. Ponton, the well-known sprinter, who played quarter for his team. Ponton handled his team in heady style and scored the only touchdown Beaches secured during the afternoon, when he faked his way around the end on a last down and ran 25 yards unopposed for the major score. Ponton's move was entirely unexpected and had Tigers anchored and flabbergasted. The third man is Ernie Crowhurst, star bucker of the champion Beaches team. The fourth player from the left is "Red" Moore, the outstanding individual star of the game. Moore, a running and catching backfielder, stood out all day. The player on the extreme right is "Scotty" Cawkell, captain of the victorious team, and one of the strongest players Beaches have had for the last three seasons.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

THE FERTILE SOIL

You think of your soil as a thing to sow
With the best of seed, that the best may grow.
You plough the ground with a steady hand
And a heart of pride, for you love your land.
Then you sow the seed of the things to be
The yellow grain and the fruitful tree,
And you watch the crop with exceeding care,
And you pull the weeds that may gather there.

Well, father, what is the soul of a child?
When He gave you that, God also smiled.
If a little land or a bit of soil
Is worth your study and care and toil,
Then what is the soul of a youngster worth?
As much, I hope, as a square of earth.
If the weeds you watch so the good survives,
Then what of the weeds in children's lives?

Whatever the joy of a growing field,
How great the joy that a child may yield!
You walk abroad on a Sunday morn
And gaze with pride on your rows of corn,
But a greater pride will be yours, I know,
If your hand is helping a child to grow.
For neither your farm nor field nor ditch,
But a little child, shall make you rich.

enjoyed it to the utmost, especially Nana and others of her kind.

The Comte crouched behind Manon like a frightened hound, at the same time attempting to preserve his dignity. His eyes were as roving as his thoughts and he was distressed about the incident, not for Manon's sake as much as for his own.

Fabien took in every detail of Manon's attire, concentrating for a moment on the priceless emerald pendant which hung just between her white breasts. Fabien thought of how quickly she had forgotten his locket and the fact that her breast had been a sacred resting place for his head.

Manon had wanted Fabien so terribly during her enforced life with the Comte that she felt he must have wanted her too. She had given him up to save him from ruin. It was a sacrifice that nearly broke her heart, and this was the way he treated her after all these torturing days following their separation. It must be that he did not quite understand! With this hope in mind, Manon reached out to touch him with a pleading, piteous expression on her face. Then she saw Fabien recoil. He did not want to come in contact with her! A quick cry of anguish rose to Manon's lips and she pressed her jeweled fingers to her throat in an effort to suppress it.

Fabien's self control snapped with the destruction of his dream. "The clink of a gold piece is louder in your ears than a loyal heart," he said, scathingly, "Is it not, Manon? You prefer gold—here it is!" and as he spoke he threw hands full of gold pieces in her face, against her body and at her feet, all the gold he had won on her age at the table.

The Comte cursed angrily. The crowd was stunned with amazement, although no one made a move to do anything as Fabien's fury dominated the scene. Poor Manon stood with bowed head, crushed and humiliated beyond belief. Her hands covered her burning face but could not suppress the heart-broken sob that forced its way through her lips.

Having finished with Manon, Fabien turned his attention to the Comte and said, with derision, "Monsieur, your success with Manon will depend upon the size of your fortune, you have nothing else to commend you." He waited mockingly for the Comte to take offense at the insult. To his surprise the invited attack was ignored.

FIRE DESTROYS CAR.

Leaky Carburetor Cause of Blaze on Road Near Madoc.

MADOC, Nov. 30.—A large car belonging to William Storing of Crookston was completely destroyed by fire about nine o'clock on Sunday night near O'Donnell's Hill ,about a mile and a half south of Madoc. A leaky carburetor was the cause and the drip falling upon the exhaust caused an explosion, which completely destroyed the car.

When a Man Loves

By ALLIE LOWE MILES

Copyright 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
John Barrymore in "WHEN A MAN LOVES" is a Warner Bros. Picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Fabien, good and handsome youth of France, trains for the priesthood; but meets and loves Manon Lescaut, beauteous orphan, whose rascally brother, realizing her worldly value, barters her for gold to Ravoir, rich connoisseur of women. Fabien saves her and carries her off to Paris, where they live happily together. Manon's brother steals her for Ravoir; she escapes, and searches vainly for Fabien. Circumstances force her to surrender to Ravoir. Later, hearing she frequents a gambling place, Fabien goes there and wins while waiting for her.

CHAPTER XI.—Continued.

"Yes." Fabien managed to reply with great effort. Not that he cared to play, but it was the quickest way to end the situation. The money would be lost and he would not have to pick it up and store it in his pockets.

Fabien was bored. The pleasant anticipation of seeing Manon had been crushed and he was more heartsick than ever before. The continued conversation about Manon fascinated him, in a strange way, and he listened while a woman whose love for jewels was very apparent said:

"I wonder if the old cabbage will buy Manon that Kasha emerald she has set her heart on?"

Nana replied cattily, "Trust her! If she works that baby stare on De Ravoir he will go out and buy her the left bank of the Seine!"

Fabien's face grew ghastlier with each word that Nana uttered and it was a great effort for him to refrain from choking her.

Too bad that Nana did not know how cruelly she was hurting the youth she had sworn to torture. But she did not think of a possible connection between Manon and the stranger and, therefore, did not have the satisfaction of witnessing his discomfiture.

Again the ball stopped at eighteen. This time Fabien mechanically stacked the gold on the table and filled his pockets, but he had lost all desire for money as Manon would not share it with him. Eager to get away from the gossiping women who were slandering Manon's name, Fabien turned away, disgusted with the whole beastly place and life in general. But he had not taken a step before the great entrance doors at the head of the stairs were opened and he saw—Manon! Manon, standing alone, framed in the enormous arched entrance. She was so divinely beautiful that Fabien could not still the rising tumult in his heart. It seemed ages since he had seen her and with every fiber of his being he longed to rush forward and take her in his arms. Even at the distance that separated them her beauty appeared more radiantly sweet and adorably feminine than ever before.

The sight of Manon's exquisite presence had blotted from Fabien's mind the current rumor's defaming her character. He stood as one before a deity, his hungry heart taking new life from her very presence. Suddenly his whole attitude changed. His hands clenched and the happiness faded from his face leaving it white and tense with cruel drawn lines that made him appear ten years older. The Comte De Ravoir had appeared at her side. She had been waiting for him.

CHAPTER XII.

Whispers announcing Manon's arrival spread through the room like a breeze; the kind that was ill for the women and good for the men; for Manon had become the idol of Paris night life. Her incomparable beauty, so youthful and charming, had captivated the hearts of all men who beheld her and she had unconsciously set a style for envious women who tried in vain to make themselves as attractive.

Practically every eye in the room focused on Manon and the Comte as they moved down the stairs. She was gowned in lustrous black velvet, very decollette, leaving room on her neck and arms for a fortune in glittering jewels.

Nana noted with a jealous pang that the Comte had given her the famous emerald pendant.

Conscious that they were the center of attention the Comte glowed with pride and drew Manon's arm closer as he patted her hand with an air of proprietorship, as if to say, "This is my property."

Sharp swords piercing his body could not have caused Fabien greater pain than this incident with its accompanying realization. It transformed him from a youth to a broken hearted man. However, his outward composure was admirable and with perfect poise he slowly advanced to meet Manon, never taking his burning eyes from her face.

Smiling an acknowledgment to a friend's salutation Manon turned and saw her young lover. Her face lighted up with a glad welcome as she impulsively held out both hands in eager greeting and whispered, "Fabien."

With a suave bow and a bitter mocking smile Fabien ignored her hands and said, "Allow me to compliment you, mademoiselle, on your taste in jewels."

Manon's flush of pleasure vanished with his mocking tone and odd behaviour, "Fabien!" she said again this time with trembling lips.

"I could never have afforded emeralds," he continued mercilessly, "You were wise to discard me quickly and exert your arts on richer men."

Hurt beyond belief the tears flooded Manon's eyes, yet she looked at Fabien tenderly, searchingly, to see if he had lost his mind.

The Comte glared threateningly and the crowd buzzed its excitement. Nana had never had such a surprise, although it is only just to admit that her estimation of Fabien rose rather than fell as she sensed the situation in its entirety.

After a moment's hesitation the Comte advanced with as threatening a mien as he could muster, but after two steps he cowered before Fabien's deadly gaze.

The buzz of excitement rose in volume until the room was filled. The people could not remember a more sensational incident and the women

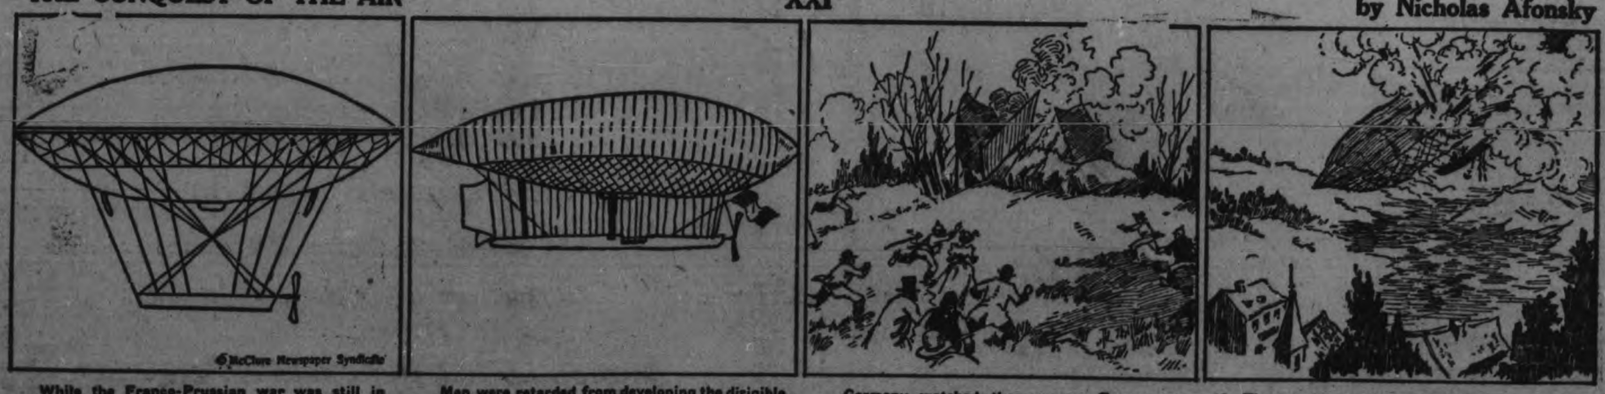
THE CONQUEST OF THE AIR XXI by Nicholas Afonsky



While the Franco-Prussian war was still in progress, the first military dirigible was built by Dupuy de Lome for the French government. It was successfully tried out in 1872.. Though a light steam engine had been used in other balloons, its propeller was driven by hand by a crew of eight men.

Men were retarded from developing the dirigible by the lack of a light, powerful engine. Renard and Krebs developed their dirigible, driven by an electric motor. They christened the balloon "La France" and gave an exhibition near Chalais on August 9, 1884. They made fourteen miles an hour in a successful trip.

Germany watched the progress France was making in the development of balloons, and in 1880 Baumgarten and Wolfert, two Germans, ascended in a cigar-shaped dirigible, with wings or sails at the sides, and three cars suspended below it. One of the passengers overbalanced the ship, and it crashed to earth.

They used a benzine motor. A few years later, after Baumgarten's death, Wolfert built a new dirigible. He made several successful ascensions, but finally his benzine vaporizer caused an explosion, from which the ship caught fire in mid-air. He and his assistant were killed, as the ship crashed flaming to the ground.

PETES TO STAY IN SENIOR RACE PLAYERS VOTE

Team Members Unanimous About Remaining in Series.

OUT OF S. P. A.

But Will Be in Shape When the Scheduled Games Begin.

Well, here we are again, playing Senior Hockey!

At the meeting of the executive of the local club yesterday, it was impossible to have the players present and express their opinion, so last evening Manager Wright had a talk with all of them, and the result is the players are unanimous in favor of entering the Senior series, and if enthusiasm and condition will get them anywhere we may have a repetition of the experience of the baseball team this year, which, much to the surprise of every fan and despite every kind of a handicap, put up the best baseball argument seen here in years.

As said before, if co-operation, enthusiasm and intense interest in the team this year means anything, the players are "right on the bit" and again to the surprise of every hockey fan we may see, as we should, some well-fought-out Senior games that would do credit to any team in the league.

Percy Bond, Peterborough's representative, has forwarded a wire to the O.H.A. as to the changed state of mind of the team here. The team has dropped out of the S.P.A. series, as not having ice of any kind, they know they would not have a chance in the world, but the regular series games are another thing and the boys can be depended on to furnish some surprises.

MISER MORE DANGER

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, Nov. 30. — The concert given by the Rylstone district Women's Institute in the Union Schoolhouse on Friday evening was a wonderful success. The building was packed to the doors, with the proceeds amounting to over $26.00. Mr. Fred Barnum acted as chairman, and led the community singing, which helped to keep the audience in good humor.

A splendid programme was put on which was quite lengthy owing to the fact that the crowd encored practically every number. Vocal numbers by Miss Ruth Lawrence and Messrs. A. Gifford and C. Rowe were excellently rendered and received much applause. The comic dialogue presented by Misses Gladys Simpson, Gladys [illegible]ncer, Evelyn Totton and Bessie [illegible]klejohn, was a side-splitting affair, and the chorus following with this group, assisted by Messrs. E. Anderson, W. Jones R. McKeown, and G. Barnum was equally well received. A splendid reading by Gladys Petherick and a chorus by younger members of the community were other programme numbers. Misses Winnie Spencer, Jennie Fry, and Iva Rowe acted as accompanists for the evening.

One of the main items of interest was the debate, "Resolved, That the spendthrift is a greater menace in the world than is the miser." The affirmative was upheld by Thomas Fry and Fred Rutherford, with Earl Fairman and Lindsay Anderson supporting the negative. The judges, Misses Evelyn Bonnycastle, Evelyn Totton and Emma Totton gave their decision in favor of the negative, although the winning margin was a very narrow one.

At the close of the programme, Mrs. Fred Barnum president of the Institute, thanked all who had taken part, on behalf of the society. The Women's Institute does a great work in bringing modern, helpful, and labor saving ideas to the farm homes, and this work is one which should receive hearty support from the community, she said.

League Holds Service.

The regular Zion League service was held on Wednesday evening last with Gladys Simpson, social convenor, in charge; Granville Meiklejohn as leader, and forty five present with the Reds leading.

A rousing song service opened the meeting followed by the devotional period conducted by Fred Barnum, with Miss Bennett and Mr. Forde assisting.

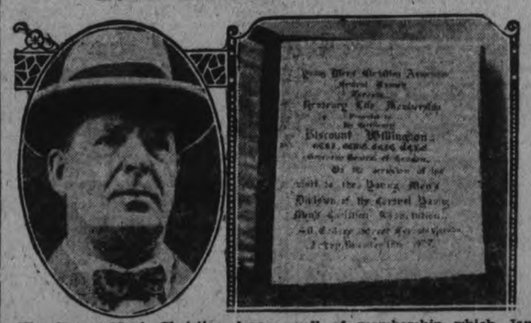
A hymn by the Red group, a reading by Gladys Petherick and a vocal duet by Miss Jennie Fry and Mr. Thomas Fry, were other programme numbers. An interesting Bible contest on the books of the Old Testament was won by the Khaki group with the Whites second.

Attended Conference.

Representatives form the local League attended the Young Peoples' Institute, or as it is better known, the Echo conference at Warkworth, on Thursday afternoon and evening. Splendid sessions were held and many excellent ideas were brought forwards. The afternoon session was quite informal, with discussion the main feature.

Those attending from this community were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barnum, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fry, Earl Fairman, Thomas McKeown and Lindsay Anderson.

LORD WILLINGDON JOINS 'Y'



The Young Men's Christian Association, Central Branch, Toronto, now numbers Lord Willingdon among its life members. Here is shown the scroll of membership which James Armand, left, presented to His Excellency in token of the mutual conferring of honors.

Pieces of oak dating back to 1092, taken out of Lincoln Cathedral, England, during rebuilding, have been sold to swell the restoration fund.

GORGEOUS SHOW OF MYSTERY OPENS AT GRAND, THURSDAY

The largest, most stupendous and gorgeous mystery - musical - comedy production on tour today is the big show presented by Richards, the world's greatest magician, and his large company at the Grand Opera House for three days starting Thursday. The amazing three-hour performance is in three acts and 19 elaborate scenes, and among the noted performers with Richards are Miss Jean Lewis, the dainty little movie star appearing in person at each performance; Doray and Nese, the internationally known dancers; Miss Marion DeMorto, and others. Two special railroad cars are required to transport the company and baggage and without question this is the greatest amusement value ever brought to Canada. A special matinee will be given Saturday afternoon at 2.30.

TRINITY CLUB HOLDS CIRCUS

Novel Entertainment in Sunday School Hall Well Patronized.

PERFORMANCE IS GOOD.

A novel and decidedly interesting entertainment in the form of a "circus" or "fair" was held in the Trinity United Sunday School Hall last evening, under the auspices of the Young People's Club.

The hall, which was artistically decorated with streamers of pink, white, and rose crepe paper, Chinese lanterns and palms, presented a very attractive appearance.

Wilfred Derry, the genial and energetic president of the club, acted as chairman, explaining in a few humorous remarks, the nature of the evening's entertainment.

The following program was rendered: Miss Trucie Pearson in a costume representing "Evening Star," sang "Rest at Eventide." Responding to an encore, Miss Pearson gave a charming number, "The Enchanted Glade." Miss McFadden, club pianist, accompanied both selections.

Then came two 'cello solos by Jack Thackeray, "Londonderry Air" and "Ivy Green," with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Thackeray.

Miss Helen Ross, winner of an oratorical contest at the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, followed with some clever impersonations from Shakespeare's King Henry VIII. Dressed as Anne Bullen (later Anne Boleyn), Miss Ross gave all of Scene 3, Act II., taking the parts of Anne, an Old Lady of the Court, and the Lord Chamberlain.

Miss McFadden concluded the program with two delightful piano solos, "Country Gardens" and "Sparklets," the latter played with a charming daintiness of touch and execution.

The audience was now free to visit the various booths and side attractions, all of which were well patronized.

The home-made candy table was in charge of Miss O. Armstrong, assisted by the Misses Dorothy Roberts, Hazel Wilson and Leona Wright, all wearing black frocks with dainty white caps and aprons.

The fish pond and dart-throwing game did a rushing business; the three greatest attractions, however, being the gymnastic exhibition, the Follies, and the hot dog booth, all of which were suitably advertised by clever and humorous posters.

"The World's Greatest Tumblers" were four "Y" boys, Gordon Ham, Hector McLeod, Newton Hamilton and Ted Bradshaw (Clown), whose acrobatic performance would do credit to professional artists.

Ted's tightrope walking feat was particularly funny. Indeed all his antics were mirth-provoking and thoroughly enjoyed by those who visited this show.

In the Follies, a high-class vaudeville performance was put on by several young people.

The Misses Hamilton and Marvin Hamilton, who gave several Hawaiian numbers on ukuleles and guitars, wore suitable costumes, making a decided "hit" with the audience.

Albert Wright, dressed as a gypsy musician, gave two lovely violin numbers, "The Sweetheart of Sigma Chi," and "The Russian Lullaby," while in Indian garb, Miss Irene Cox, a talented young reader, gave a number of dramatic selections from Pauline Johnson.

Miss Bertha Hill made a cute little Jackie Coogan, singing "Three Little Foxes" very acceptably.

The refreshment booth was deservedly popular throughout the evening. W. J. Fanjoy and Vernon Skitch in immaculate chef's outfits, loudly proclaimed the advisability of tasting their wares. Assisting in this booth were Mrs. Fanjoy and Miss Marion Deyell.

An Orthophonic Victrola, loaned by E. V. Warne, added much to the enjoyment of the evening.

In Memoriam

BALL.—In loving remembrance of our dear brother, James, who passed away November 30, 1916.

In the City of Light, on the hill far away,
Where the sun never sets, nor the flowers decay,
He has gone from this world, free from sorrow and pain,
Where in God's own time we shall meet him again.
—Sadly missed by Brothers and Sisters.

BALL.—In fond and loving memory of our dear son, James, who died on November 30, 1916.

Mourn not for him whom God hath blest
And taken to his eternal rest
Free from all sorrow, grief and pain,
Our loss is his eternal gain.
Our lips cannot speak how we miss him;
Our hearts cannot tell what to say;
God only knows how we miss him
In a home that is lonesome today.
—Ever remembered by Father and Mother.

OLD MASTERS

I stand upon the summit of my years:
Behind, the toil, the camp, the march, the strife,
The wandering and the desert: vast, afar,
Beyond this weary way, behold! the Sea!
The sea o'erswept by clouds and winds and wings,
By thoughts and wishes manifold, whose breath
Is freshness and whose mighty pulse is peace.
Palter no question of the dim Beyond;
Cut loose the bark; such voyage itself is rest,
Majestic motion, unimpeded scope,
A widening heaven, a current without care.
Eternity!—Deliverance, Promise,—Course!
Time-tired souls salute thee from the shore.
—Joseph B. Brown: "Thalatta! Thalatta!"

BRIAND IS OPTIMISTIC OVER POSSIBILITY FRANCE AND ITALY COMNG TO AMIABLE AGREEMENT

European Troubles Given an Airing Before French Chamber of Deputies.

WAR IS UNTHINKABLE.

Radical Faction Believe Italian Activity Turned Against France.

PARIS, Dec. 1.—(A.P.)— Accumulating threats of trouble between European nations were given an airing in the French Chamber of Deputies yesterday, particularly friction between France and Italy.

Several radical deputies professed to see a great many war clouds in the European sky, but Foreign Minister Briand, in an eloquent resume of the foreign situation, was his usual hopeful self. He even was optimistic as to the possibility of France and Italy straightening out their difficulties amicably.

War between the countries, M. Briand declared, was unthinkable and impossible. Some other deputies seemed to think otherwise. They repeated a few of Premier Mussolini's ambitious orations about Italy's rights and her dreams of empire. The Radical Socialist Montigny went so far as to say that there could be no doubt that Italian activity has turned against France.

"Italian youth has been worked up to a red hot pitch" said Montigny. "The Italian newspapers pound away on the idea that Italy ought and must be the greatest nation in the world, the writers in these papers say that the League of Nations disarmament policy is for Italy a poisonous tonic of Nessus which would paralyze Italy's movements and is therefore unacceptable.

"There is a systematic effort to show the Italian people that France has become their mortal enemy."

War Clouds Everywhere.

The Communist Deputy Cachin was even more pessimistic. He saw war clouds everywhere, even in America. He pictured Uncle Sam as gazing greedily at Central and South American countries. M. Briand in a long speech repeated once more that it has not only nothing to worry about in the recently signed Franco-Jugoslavian treaty of amity and arbitration, which was criticized in Italy as inimical to that country.

"It was," said M. Briand, "because a warship went to Tangier that we discovered Jugoslavia." (An Italian warship recently visited Tangier in French Morocco with resultant criticism and comparison with the prewar incident of the visit of the German war vessel Panther to Agadir at a time of tension). We knew her during the war and the treaty merely consecrates a situation which has existed for years. It was negotiated after Italy had refused France's suggestion for a tripartite agreement between the three nations."

Worked for Allies

M. Briand then spoke of Mussolini himself and his land beyond the Alps. "We must not forget," he said, "that Mussolini was one of the workers for Italian intervention in the world war on the side of the Allies. He is defending the interests of his country, which has some desires, perhaps rather extensive in their nature.

"In this defence I recognize that he sometimes does not show all the friendliness we would like to see, but that is no reason for losing our heads. People say to me 'Why don't you talk with Italy?' But I always have been a partisan of these direct conversation and I have already encountered Mussolini at Rome and Locarno and I would see him again today without displeasure.

"The French government is inclined toward any proposition of accord and arbitration susceptible to bringing the two nations to an understanding. Despite existing frictions I have the firm conviction that an accord will come about. The two countries cannot do otherwise. The consciences of their people would not permit them to think of war.

War Impossible

"I am sure that Italy, despite certain polemic suggestions—as in France—if something came up that was of a nature to throw the two peoples against each other, why it is unthinkable—there would be such a cry of reprobation that war would be impossible."

M. Briand spoke of France's reduction in armaments to show that it was peacefully inclined. He declared that France had only twelve armored ships in 1927 compared with 39 in 1914; 68 destroyers compared with 270 before the war, and two fast

Twenty Trade Unions Registered Under Act

OTTAWA, Ont., December 1 (Canadian Press). — More than twenty trade unions have registered union labels under the Trade Mark and Design Act since legislation for this purpose was passed at the last session of Parliament. Approximately 50,000 workers are represented by the registrations, most of whom are engaged in the clothing, boot and shoe, cigar making and the printing trades. There are forty-six label trades in Canada, affording employment to over 65,000 workers. In many cases labels are not in active use.

Prior to the recent legislation, union labels could not be registered and action could be taken to prevent their unauthorized use only when the infringement amounted to duplication. Forgeries and counterfeits are now not only prevented, but before the trade mark of a manufacturer can be registered a search is made for similarity of design to union labels of previous registry. Where it appears that purchasers desiring union-made goods might be deceived, registration of the trade mark is refused.

YEAR'S BUILDING TOTAL IS LARGE

November Figures Lower Than Same Month in 1926, However.

YEAR'S TOTAL $614,770.

The building permits issued for the first 11 months of this year are within $624 of the grand total for the years 1925 and 1926. During November twenty-three permits were issued by the City Engineer, involving an amount of $24,485.00, and the total for the eleven months is $614,770.00.

In November, 1926, there were ten permits issued valued at $25,140.00 and the total then was $324,442.00.

Construction work was started during the month on nine garages, two dwellings and twelve miscellaneous buildings. The estimated value of the garages was $5,280, the dwellings $9,500 and the miscellaneous buildings $9,705.

Although the amount of new building started in the city fell off during the month of November from that of the same period in 1926, it is more than double that of November, 1925.

C.M.A. MEMBERS WANT ROAD FIXED

Local Branch Passes Resolution Regarding Gooderham Road.

At a recent meeting of the local branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association a resolution was introduced by W. C. Ackerman and second by J. R. McDonald asking the government to make a suitable grant towards improving the roadway in sections of the country to the north, northeast and northwest of this city. The resolution deals with extensive sections of road but the part in need of immediate repair stretches from Swamp Lake north of Catcheconia Lake to about four miles this side of Gooderham, a distance of twelve miles. Re-surfacing this stretch would open the north country to tourist traffic through the Gooderham, Kinmount, and Bancroft areas. The townships and municipalities in that section of country are willing to fix up some of the road. The resolution was:

"Whereas, a demand has been made by the people residing in a north, northeasterly, and northwesterly direction from Peterborough for the improvement of the roadway leading north from Lake Catchecoma to Gooderham, westerly from Gooderham to Kinmount, and easterly from Gooderham to Bancroft,

And whereas, the above-mentioned country is very attractive to tourists and to thoroughly open it up by improving above-mentioned roads would undoubtedly have a favorable effect upon local trade,

Resolved, that the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Peterborough, does hereby petition the Government of the Province to consider making a suitable grant for the purpose of improving the above-mentioned roads by such methods and by such persons as would be deemed by the Government to be most suitable. Copy of this resolution to be forwarded to Mr. W. H. Braduburn, M.P.P., and the Chamber of Commerce, Peterborough.

Says Government Settle Tax Errors

WINNIPEG, Man., December 1 (Canadian Press). — The Government will undertake to see that all arrears of taxes on soldier settlers' land will be paid before December 16, Hon. Robert Forke, Federal Minister of Immigration, told the delegates to the Union of Manitoba municipalities' meeting here yesterday.

Mr. Forke declared that he was especially anxious to see all taxes paid before the date of delinquency to save the settlers the additional ten per cent. tax, which, if applied, in many cases would mean the financial ruin of the settlers.

OSHAWA CHIEF REFUSED RAISE

Will Be Replaced Immediately Unless Content With Present Salary.

FIRE FIGHTING CRITICIZED.

OSHAWA, Ont., December 1. — Unless Angus C. Cameron, Chief of the Oshawa Fire Department, and a member of the department for the past twenty years, is content to continue at his present salary of $2,600 a year, he will be replaced immediately. This decision was arrived at a meeting of the City Council, when the special committee appointed to consider the question of additional fire protection recommended that the chief's request be refused.

The Council had previously received a letter from the Chief, in which he stated that unless he was given a "very substantial increase," he would be obliged to resign, as he could not meet his expenses on his present salary. The matter gave rise to a great deal of discussion, in which the Chief was severely criticized for his inability to secure the co-operation of his men.

Alderman Swanson declared that the manner in which the Fire Department was conducted had been highly unsatisfactory for some time.

It was finally decided to ask for the Chief's resignation and to call for applications for a successor, with the understanding that Chief Cameron could make application for the office, if he were willing to accept the same salary as he now receives. Interviewed yesterday, the Chief stated that he had not changed his attitude, and was ready to resign.

FALL FATAL TO LITTLE BOY

Stuart Wood, 5, of Keene, Dies Few Hours Later.

SKULL FRACTURED.

KEENE, Dec. 1.—Stuart Wood, five-year-old son of Mrs. Mary Wood, yesterday fell on the steps at the home of William Comrie and fractured his skull. The little chap was rushed to St. Joseph's hospital and medical attention possible was given but he died about 7.30 last night. The little lad was playing at the home of Mr. Comrie. He rushed out of the house to see who was coming up the lane, and in doing so he slipped on one of the steps and fell, striking his head.

The boy was playing with the dog at the time and the animal knocked him down causing him to strike his head.

CUSTOMS RETURNS LOWER LAST MONTH

For the first time during the present fiscal year the customs receipts at the Port of Peterborough have fallen below those of the same month a year ago. This year a record has been made in two different months, but November was an off month, and the receipts showed a decrease of $18,686.88 from the same month a year ago. Last month the money collected amounted to $120,225.63, and in 1926 the total was $138,912.51.

THE WEATHER

December has brought with it wintry conditions. To many it is an agreeable change from rainy murky weather. During November we had rain or snow on 20 days. The total precipitation was 5.71 inches. This is unusually heavy, and I think constitutes a record for this month. The highest temperature during the month was 63 degrees, on the 1st; the lowest was 15 degrees, which occurred on several dates. This is also "Gauge Day," the day which is supposed to regulate the weather for the next three months. Perhaps it does, but I have been taken to task by believers in Gauge day for evincing a little doubt. In this respect I am a "modernist." Real winter weather set in last year on December 4th, with zero weather on four days. Good sleighing continued from Dec. 5th onward.—W. P.

INTERIM RECEIVERS NAMED FOR DEPARTMENT STORES

G. T. Clarkson and Canadian Credit Men's Association in Charge.

CREDITORS PETITIONED.

Complained of Slow Payments —Directors Say Finances of Firm Sound.

TORONTO, Ont., December 1 (Canadian Press). — An order was granted to-day by G. S. Holastead, Registrar in Bankruptcy, appointing G. T. Clarkson and the Canadian Credit Men's Trade Association interim receivers of the Canadian Department Stores, Limited.

TORONTO, Dec. 1.—Three different petitions were filed at Osgoode Hall yesterday afternoon to put Canadian Department Stores, Limited, into bankruptcy. The petitions were filed by firms which claim to be creditors and which make the usual allegation that the Canadian department Stores, Limited, are unable to pay their accounts when they become due.

Large Consolidation.

Canadian Department Stores, Limited, was incorporated last February, and effected the consolidation of 21 department stores operating in the principal cities of Ontario, and one in Montreal. The stores which entered the consolidation were: The Ritchie Company, Ltd., Belleville; Duncan Ferguson Company, Ltd., Stratford; E. J. Coles Company, Ltd., Woodstock; the Charles Austin Company, Ltd., Chatham; A. Bristol & Company, Picton; the Robert Wright Company, Ltd., Brockville; Dundas & Flavelles, Ltd., Lindsay; H. H. Engel & Company, Ltd., Hanover; Bryans, Ltd., Sault Ste. Marie; the Robinson Company, Ltd., Napanee; Ogilvie-Lochead, Ltd., Brantford; A. A. Fournier, Ltd., Ottawa; Beamish & Smith, Ltd., North Bay; Huntingdon's, Ltd., Midland; the Cressman Company, Ltd., Peterboro; Beamish & Adams, Huntsville; McLaren & Company, Ltd., St. Catharines; I. L. Matthews & Company, Port Arthur; Letendre, Ltd., Montreal; F. M. Stafford, Ltd., Sudbury; Fenton & Smith, Pembroke; F. Pratt, Ltd., Hamilton.

Statement to Be Issued.

The owners of the stores above mentioned were all elected directors of the Canadian Department Stores, Limited. There was a meeting yesterday afternoon of directors, and another will be held to-day, after which a full statement of the affairs of the company will be issued. Last night, following the meeting of yesterday, it was stated that the company is in a strong position financially, the assets and liabilities being in the ratio of 2½ to 1.

G. H. Rennie, the president and general manager, was for several years assistant general manager of the Robert Simpson Company, Ltd.

Great Territory Served.

The individual concerns which went into the consolidation were in successful operation for a period averaging more than 44 years, and in the majority of cases were leading merchandising institutions in their respective communities. The territory served by the stores embraces more than half of the population of the Province.

A balance sheet of the 22 stores as of Dec. 31, 1926, after giving effect to the consolidation and the financing connected therewith, and including fixed assets as appraised, showed net tangible assets of $8,672,000.

Baldwin Humorous Addressing Scientists

LONDON, December 1. United Press. — Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin spoke to the Royal Society last night, with humorous intent. Comparing politics and science, he asked to be excused of his ignorance of science.

"But I know something of the nature of gas," he said, "You deal with stars and electrons; I with rates and taxes.

"You prophesy the tides and eclipses; we politicians prophesy the direction of the political tide—but I never yet met a politician who would prophesy his own eclipse."

He was warmly applauded.

WILL RELEASE 13 YEAR OLD BOY

Ontario Authorities To Put Edwin Horlick Under C.A.S. Supervision.

AT PARENTS' HOME.

TORONTO, Dec. 1 (Canadian Press). — Thirteen-year-old Edwin Horlick, Port Burwell, Ont., who was sentenced to thirteen months for selling liquor, will be released from the Victoria Industrial School at Mimico and allowed to return to his parents. He will be under the supervision of J. J. Kelso, of the Ontario Children's Aid Society. Representations had been made from boys' work organizations, urging that the parents should have control of the boy, stated the Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney-General, to-day. "We propose to suggest to the Industrial School Board, through Mr. Kelso, that the boy be released in care of his parents and under the supervision of the Children's Aid Society," Mr. Price said. "We think it might be better to start him off in life that way than to start him from an industrial school."

The boy had been sentenced at St. Thomas. A youth to whom he sold liquor later committed suicide.

SOUTH END LADIES IN CHARGE OF MEALS

Sacred Heart Parish Has This Part of Bazaar For Two Nights.

At the bazaar being held in the market hall this week, in aid of St. Joseph's Hospital, hot meals for Wednesday and Thursday are being looked after by the ladies from the Sacred Heart parish. Mrs. D. O'Toole of Otonabee is in charge, assisted by Mesdames B. Law, Paquette, E. LaPlante, H. Duffus, Noble and F. Grady, looking after the tables, and a corps of energetic helpers.

Members of the orchestra from the Sacred Heart Parish provide music during the supper hour both nights, with Harold Armstrong at the piano, Jerry Collins and Cecil Gallagher playing violins.

The name of Mrs. Fred Crowe was included in the list of ladies helping with the Country Store. This should have been Mrs. Ted Crowe.

Yesterday afternoon, children from the Separate schools of the city thronged the market hall, each receiving a gift of candy from Santa Claus, assisted by Mrs. L. LeBarr, Junior. This afternoon children from the Orphanage and the Shelter were entertained at the bazaar.

RICHARDS, THE MAGICIAN, SOLVES FIRST PROBLEMS FOR READERS

Since the first announcement was made that Richards would answer questions through the columns of The Daily Examiner, letters have been pouring in from various sections and Richards is going to be kept busy every minute of his spare time, that he is not at the theatre, preparing the answers, the first instalment of which appears below. They run the gamut of human emotions from birth to death, from love to divorce.

Richards is appearing at the Grand Opera House for three days, starting to-night, and he brings to Peterborough the greatest attraction of this nature that has been here for years.

Everyone in this vicinity is invited to take advantage of this offer to have questions answered, either in The Examiner or at the Grand Opera House, as Richards has a very massive production. It is the largest of the kind ever brought here, carries nearly two carloads of scenery and effects and an excellent company and orchestra. The entire production lasts over two hours and it is in three parts and 19 elaborate scenes. If you have not already sent a question to Richards, do so right now or you may be too late. Answers will appear in The Examiner again to-morrow, and Saturday. Look for them. Be sure to sign you full and correct name and address to your questions, but only your initials will appear in the published answer. The following is the first installment:

M.J.—Please tell me where I can find my jade bracelet that I lost.

Ans.—The bracelet is among some blankets or bedding in the bottom drawer of your dresser.

C.T.—Do you think I will win first prize in the contest I have entered?

Ans.—No. However I see you returning to England late next year.

G.V.M.—My brother has not been heard from in almost four years. Is he alive or dead?

Ans.—He is now married and living at 1018 Granville street, Vancouver, B.C.

H.A.—Who and when am I going to marry?

Ans.—You will marry Fred J. who you are now going with. You will be married the last week of next April.

State Bears Burden For Reconstruction

MONTPELIER, Vt., Dec. 1.—(Canadian Press.)—The Vermont legislature met here in a special session yesterday to act upon the recommendation of Gov. John E. Weeks that it authorize issue of $8,500,000 in bonds for state highway and other flood reconstruction purposes.

Important among his detailed recommendations was a plan for the state to take over the entire burden of rebuilding all roads and bridges.

Present laws limit bridge relief to towns to $5,000 for each new span but with 1,258 bridges either destroyed or severely damaged, the Governor urged that new enableing legislation be adopted.

MORE WEDDINGS, BIRTHS, DEATHS

Increases Shown Over November of Last Year In All Departments.

DEATHS DOUBLED.

During the month of November there were eleven more births in this city than in the same month a year ago. Marriages increased by one, and the deaths more than doubled those of November, 1926. Last month there were 18 marriages, 51 births, and 39 deaths, and in November of a year ago there were 40 births, 17 marriages and 19 deaths.

COLD FOLLOWS VIOLENT STORM

Adds Terrors To District Already Damaged By Wind and Rain.

IN EASTERN STATES.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1 (Canadian Press).—The storm swept districts of New York State, Pennsylvania, and Maryland today faced the prospect of freezing weather as they took stock of the damage of high winds, rains, and flood. A wind and rain storm of almost hurricane force swept Williamsport, Pa., and Cumberland, Md., late yesterday. At Williamsnort the storm was followed by a thirty degree drop in temperature. No lives were lost, so far as was known.

Hornell, N.Y., in the western part of the state, was under four to five feet of water this morning and three hundred families were marooned in their homes. Other points in the Canisteo River valley were said to be imperilled as the river, swollen by twenty-four hours of rain, was out of its banks. The damage will run into thousands of dollars.

At Rochester, N.Y., a water main burst, flooding five city blocks and pouring into Rochester's new subway, which has just been completed.

HUNDREDS MAROONED.

HORNELL, N.Y., December 1 (Canadian Press). — The waters of the worst flood in the history of this city, receding after causing damage that will run into hundreds of thousands of dollars, to-day left more than three hundred families marooned in their homes. The dikes constructed under the city's $450,000 flood abatement programme gave way last night, letting the flood waters of the Canisteo River into the city.

The Canisteo Valley has been inundated for miles, and fears are felt for the lives of many people in that section.

CORNING, N.Y., December 1 (Canadian Press). — The Canisteo River, swollen to unprecedented heights by the recent rains, went over its banks at Addison, near here, today, and was reported to have inundated the business section and part of the residential district. Live stock and small buildings were reported seen in the swiftly flowing streams.

MUSSOLINI STILL ALIVE

Rumors of Assassination Are Denied From Official Sources.

IN PERFECT HEALTH.

ROME, Dec. 1 (Canadian Press).—Rumors circulated abroad that Premier Mussolini had been assassinated were denied emphatically today through the Italian news agency Stefani. The rumors were described as "absolutely fantastic." Contrary to reports circulated on the London Stock Exchange that the life of the Italian Premier had been attempted, he was stated to be enjoying perfect health and that so far as known no one ever dreamed of approaching him to attempt his life.

ONE YEAR IN REFORMATORY GIVEN FOR GRAVE OPENING; BOTH MEN ARE FOUND GUILTY

Illinois Cattle Win Eight First Prizes

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—(A. P.)— Blue-blooded cattle from the grassy slopes of the Edellyn Farms of Wilton, Ills., led North America's best to capture every single international trophy in the cattle division at the International Livestock Exposition yesterday.

Added to their impressive record the Illinois aristocrats won eight first prizes in other contests at the exposition, thereby becoming sound contenders for class championship as the exposition closed its third day of judging

The international trophies won by the Edellyn Farm blue-bloods were the Emilie R. Casares Trophy, offered by Emilie R. Casares, of London and Buenos Aires, South Africa; the Charles M. Duggan trophy, offered by Don. M. Duggan, of Buenos Aires, and the medal given by the Shorthorn Society of Great Britain and Ireland The Edellyn cattle have won the Casares and Duggan trophies two consecutive years Three victories are necessary for permanent ownership.

HOG SALES DOWN IN PETERBOROUGH

Locals Head County, 190 Being Sold—Great Number High Class.

There was a considerable decrease in the number of hogs sold in Peterborough during the week ending November 24. Peterborough locals headed the list with 690 hogs being sold; 219 of these were selects, 384 thick smooth ,37 heavies, 21 shop hogs, and 13 lights and feeders. Hastings was second with 82 sold. Of this number 33 were selects, 43 thick smooth, 1 heavy, and 5 shop hogs. Keene sold 91, with 30 selects, 46 thick smooth ,and 4 heavies. Havelock shipped 57, with 12 of these being selects, 41 thick smooth, and 4 heavies. Indian River shipped 22, 13 being selects and 9 thick smooth.

Train Smashes Car; Driver Is Not Hurt

OTTAWA, Dec. 1.— (Canadian Press.)—J. Rodger Binks, of this city, is ready to admit that November 30 is his lucky day. Driving his car to Kingston through a rain storm yesterday, Binks was traversing a railway crossing near Hartington when a train rounded a bend and struck his car almost broadside. The train screeched to a halt and the engine crew searched the auto wreckage, which had been carried some hundred yards from the crossing, but could find no occupant. Later Binks was discovered back at the scene of the crash, slightly dazed and with a bruise or two on his legs, but otherwise uninjured. He returned home by train after medical examination failed to reveal internal injuries.

Frank Sullivan and Phillip Revoy Sentenced For Marmora Crime.

ARREST DESCRIBED.

Revoy Takes Interest in Trial But Sullivan Appears Bored.

BELLEVILLE, Dec. 1 (Special to The Examiner—Trial of Frank Sullivan and Phillip Revoy concluded at 5 o'clock yesterday, both being found guilty and having sentence of one year's imprisonment in the Ontario Reformatory, with a further indeterminate sentence of two years imposed upon them. Judge Deroche, in passing sentence, said he was sorry both men came before him with previous convictions, because they were married men with families who must suffer. They might be imprisoned for five years, but he took into consideration the fact that their intention was not to molest the body but to obtain financial reward from what they hoped to find in the coffin.

Upon Court resuming after lunch, Mrs. Milred Warren was called. She said the accused men called at the home of her uncles in Deloro, where she was staying on October 25th. She went to Marmora with the three men but heard nothing of their plans. She heard Sullivan remark, "If things go alright we will be in New York this time next week," but did not know to what he referred and heard no further conversation. In the car was a bag of stuff. She had seen neither Revoy or Sullivan since her return to Toronto.

Cross-examined at length by E. J. Butler for the defence, she admitted that her husband had asked if she knew where Mrs. Hubbell was buried, to which she had answered "No." Her husband told her of receiving ten dollars for telling the location of the grave to Sullivan and Revoy. She had not discussed the matter with any one since, taking no interest in the affair.

Soil Similar

David Sylvester, Provincial officer engaged on the investigation, gave his description of the discoveries at the desecrated grave. He mentioned that footprints belonging to four different people were visible. Later he discovered those of Mr. Hubbell to be included. He took a picture of the grave and identified the negative produced. After having the casket raised and discovering it had not been opened, he visited Mrs. Baker, where he was shown the pick and shovel. The soil on the shovel was the same as in the grave. He found marks of auto tires near the fence where those implements were discovered and a patch of soil twelve by nine inches on the side of the tracks corresponding to that in the grave.

While witness was drawing out the line of the tire tread imprints, Revoy leaned forward displaying keen interest while Sullivan sat back rigidly, staring with an air of indifference. So unconcerned was he throughout the trial, that in a pose he leaned toward hte press box and said smilingly, "Lots of news for the papers tonight."

Continuing the evidence, Officer Sylvester told of a tarpaulin being obtained at Maudsley's covered with fine earth similar to that on the shovel. He arrested Revoy first whilst he was painting the cornice of a building. Revoy said, "I expected something like that." He also said that Warren had borrowed the pick and shovel. Revoy professed the grave affair was news to him, but said that Warren had told him about the jewellery and other things at different times. The witness narrated Sullivan's hiding in a cupboard when he went to arrest him in company with Inspector Gurnett and Sergt. Clarke. Sullivan, however, did not resist arrest. When the charge was read to him, Sullivan said, "Marmora! That's a new one to me."

Philip Revoy said he was a painter of smokestacks, and for two or three months in the spring and again in the fall went all over. He knew Warren slightly. He had come again and again to him for a job. Warren had travelled to Marmora with Sullivan and himself. They only stayed three or four hours in Marmora. They visited the place at Deloro where Warren's wife was and her mother's home in Marmora. They had a meal there, but did not stay in Marmora all night. He was in no cemetery and interfered with no grave. Warren borrowed the pick and shovel a week previous, saying he had a job in Deloro. There was no canvas in the car. The canvas borrowed from Mr. Maudsley was in connection with some painting at his own home. They left Marmora about 6.30, and reached Peterborough about seven next morning. Warren did not return with them. Three or four days after Warren called up Sullivan, saying he wanted work, for he was going crazy. The Marmora affair was not then mentioned.

$50,000,000 COAL MINE DEAL PLANNED IN U. S.

Merger Would Mean Amalgamation Involving Millions of Dollars.

HOLD CONFERENCE.

Believed Two Largest Pittsburgh Producers Will Not Be Represented.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 1. — Excitement reigned in coal circles yesterday when the news that a coal conference was scheduled in Pittsburgh to discuss a gigantic merger of a number of coal companies which might have a capitalization of $50,000,000.

The general impression in coal circles was that the conference which was not expected to meet until late yesterday would bring about developments. Many rumors of conference and mergers in Western Pennsylvania in the past few years have failed to materialize.

"I do not know what will come out of the conference," said Samuel A. Taylor, an engineer, in whose office the conference was to be held. "It is unfortunate that the news got out."

"Neither Pittsburgh Coal Corporation, claiming to the world's largest bituminous coal produce, nor the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation, another large producer, were to be represented at the conference, it was understood.

"Strangler" Hopeful Escaping Sentence

WINNIPEG, Man., Dec. 1.—(Canadian Press).—Earle Nelson, found guilty three weeks ago of having murdered Mrs Emily Patterson in her home here on June 10 last, has not given up hope of escaping the death sentence. The "Strangler" told newspapermen to-day that if he escapes the penalty, he will devote his life to study of religion.

The condemned man spends his time in his cell drawing and making little bags of knotted cord, quaint little knick-knacks that might well grace a lady's dressing table. "Love's labor," he commented when reference was made to the patience and industry involved.

Nelson complained of pains in his head between his left eye and left ear, and stated that he had been subjected to spells throughout the greater part of his life During these spells, he said, he remembered nothing

College Training Prevents Divorce

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Dec. 1 (United Press).—College training prevents divorce, Dr. Ethelbert D. Warfield of Chambersburg, Pa., president of Wilson College, has concluded after a careful survey. Dr. Warfield said that marriages among college graduates are more successful than marriages among other classes. He pointed out that there are comparatively few divorces among college trained married couples.

"College training teaches adaptability to every circumstance," he said "and this is the foundation of every successful marriage."

LLOYD GEORGE GIVES UP FUNDS

Vests Party Chest in Group of Trustees Because of Criticism.

MUCH SPECULATION.

LONDON, Dec. 1 .— Lloyd George has bowed to Tory criticism and Liberal anxiety with regard to his enormous political fund by formally vesting it in a board of trustees. Lord St. Davids is to be the chairman of this board, and it is understood that other members will be Sir Robert Hutchingson, the chief Liberal whip, Sir Charles Barry and Sir William Edge, with Sir J. T. Davies as secretary. The whole administration of the fund is placed in the hands of these trustees, who will decide on any expenditure to be made to promote Liberal plans.

There is much speculation with regard to the guarantee which Lloyd George has received as to his personal interest in the fund, because it is considered certain that he would not hand over the full control without something of the kind. Liberal headquarters are entirely reticent on this point.

NEW TURNTABLE STARTED AT MADOC

C. N. R. Preparing To Use Heavier Engines On This Line.

MADOC, Nov. 30.—The C. N. R. has placed a good staff of men at work here on the new turn-table. This has been made absolutely necessary as the company has decided to put on heavier engines to handle the freight on the road.

For some months now it has been found necessary to have "double-headers" on account of the large amount of freight carried over the road between here and Belleville

WHITNEY BUYS FLIN FLON MINE

Estimated To Have 16,000,000 Tons, Valued at $192,000,000.

PAYMENT IN CASH.

TORONTO, Dec. 1.—The Mining Corporation of Canada Limited announces that Mr. Harry Payne Whitney yesterday exercised in full his option to purchase the Flin Flon properties, the corporation retaining a 15 per cent. interest, and also acquiring a 15 per cent. interest in all the claims and interests separately owned by the Whitney interests in the Flin Flon district.

Payment in full of the purchase money has been made in cash, the corporation receiving $854,000. The original option provided for payment of much the greater part of the purchase price in bonds secured upon the property, maturing over a period of years but not bearing interest until September 1st, 1929. Subsequent negotiations resulted in these terms being altered and a cash purchase price being agreed upon. From the sum received the corporation, in accordance with the terms of the original option is contributing slightly less than $75,000 towards the expense incurred in connection with the experimental work carried on at Denver and on the properties themselves, which expense totalled almost a million dollars.

Discovered By Hammell.

The Flin Flon mine, situated in Northern Manitoba, lay for a long time unoperated owing to the fact that its huge deposits could not be profitably separated by any known metallurgical process. The property itself was originally discovered by Jack Hammell, the famous prospector and mining operator, who has since won himself distinction in developing the Howey Mine in Red Lake. Mr. Hammell sold the Flin Flon to Mining Corporation, who spent approximately a million dollars on it before giving the option to the Whitney-Channing group, who have now bought it.

In an interview given in Winnipeg by the president of Mining Corporation last year the president outlined in figures what the deal with the Whitney - Channing people would mean. The mine at that time was estimated to have about 16,000,000 tons of ore valued at approximately $192,000,000. The deposit is made up of zinc, copper, gold and other metals. The gross value of the principal metals were estimated as follows: Zinc, $79,000,000; copper, $76,000,000; silver, $62,000,000, and gold, $25,000,000. It is understood that under the development of the Whitney-Channing interests these ore reserves have been added to in a large way in the past two years.

Cement Firm Makes $1,000,000 Addition

WINNIPEG, Man., December 1 (Canadian Press). — A one million dollar expenditure by the Winnipeg plant of the Canada Cement Company as the result of the proposed Flin Flon development in the north, has been announced here. The company will supply the cement for the Flin Flon work, which includes construction of the shelter at the Flin Flon mine and the dams at the water power plant.

The work of constructing additions to the cement plant here and installation of machinery and equipment necessary for the new process and large production, will begin at once.

ARMY TRANSPORT UNDER QUARANTINE

U. S. Vessel Has One Case of Spinal Meningitis Aboard.

MANILA, Pi., Dec. 1.—(Canadian Press).—The United States army transport Thomas, which arrived here yesterday from the United States with one thousand troops aboard, was placed under modified quarantine as a result of the finding of one case of spinal meningitis aboard. The quarantine period is to last twenty-one days.

OLD MASTERS

How oft against the sunset sky or moon
I watched that moving zigzag of spread wings
In forgotten Autumns gone too soon,
In unforgotten Springs!
Creatures of desolation, far they fly
Above all lands bound by the curling foam;
In misty fens, wild moors and trackless sky
These wild things have their home
They know the tundra of Siberian coasts
And tropic marshes by the Indian seas;
They know the clouds and night and starry hosts
From Crux to Pleiades.
Dark flying rune against the western glow—
It tells the sweep and loneliness of things,
Symbol of Autumns vanished long ago!
Symbol of coming Springs!

WARSAW PRESS UNEXCITED OVER BORDER DISPUTE

Optimism Felt in Polish Capital Regarding Lithuanian Question.

INCREASE PATROL.

Believed Government Victory of Premier Waldemaras Will Be Short-lived.

WARSAW, Dec. 1 (A.P.)—Warsaw newspapers printed reports yesterday that Lithuanian troops along the entire border have been greatly increased in order to prevent refugees and army deserters from going into Poland

The papers also report that a battle took place Tuesday night just across the border near Olkienniki between Lithuanian troops and insurgents, the latter finally being dispersed.

(No reports of disorders in Lithuania have been received by the Associated Press from its correspondent in Kovno).

There is considerably less excitement in the Polish press and public opinion generaly concerning the Lithuanian question and optimism is felt regarding the results of the next session of the Council of the League of Nations when the matter comes

The evening press states that Premier Pilsudski will visit London and Rome immediately after the League meeting, at which he will present the Polish viewpoint on the Lithuanian question

Victory Short Lived

RIGA, Latvia, Dec. 1 (A.P.)—Latest reports from Kovno, Lithuania, seem to show the victory by Premier Waldemaras over those who demanded that the government be reconstituted will be short-lived

The army is declared to have wavered before deiding to support him and it is said that the Cabinet will be reformed as soon as the Premier returns from Geneva, where he has gone to place Lithuanian grievances against Poland before the League of Nations

Residents of Kovno are stated to be still uneasy and many persons are laying in stores of food Queues may be seen outside of shops in many parts of the capital

Ministers at Geneva

KOVNO, Lithuania, Dec. 1 (AP)—Premier Waldemaras of Lithuania, accompanied by Dr. David Zaunius, former Lithuanian representative at Geneva, will leave for Switzerland Friday afternoon to represent his country at the forthcoming League Council discussion on Polish-Lithuanian relations

No new coalition government has been formed as yet to take up the task of handling Lithuania's relations to Poland and it is not likely that one will be formed before the Lithuanian-Polish questions come before the League, because of the shortness of time.

The Kovno government yesterday instructed its representatives abroad to deny various reports published in foreign papers These reports are attributed here to press manoeuvres against Lithuania.

Among the reports denied by the government are that pogroms are being prepared in Lithuania and that the Jews sent a delegation to the president; that Premier Waldemaras invoked German and Russian aid if Poland should invade Lithuania, promising in return to give Memel back to Germany, and that the British, French and Italian ministers, with representatives of the Baltic States, have made fresh representations to Premier Waldemaras concerning regulation of Lithuania's relations with Poland. All these stories were declared "pure inventions."

OBITUARY

MRS. JOHN NORTHCOTT.

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 1.— The death occurred on Wednesday afternoon of Mrs. Mary Northcott, after a long illness and patiently borne suffering. The deceased was born in Devonshire, England, on May 24, 1846, and there also she was married to the late John Northcott. They came to Canada 56 years ago, coming straight to Lakefield, where Mr. Northcott built the house on Chippewa avenue in which the family still resides.

Mrs. Northcott was a faithful and devout member of St. John's church and a member of the W.A., in which for many years she held the office of Dorcas secretary until failing health made it impossible to continue longer in office. For the past few years she has been honorary president and although for the past three years she has been unable to attend her interest has never flagged.

Her husband predeceased her eight and a half years ago, and her eldest daughter, Mrs. John Lynn, of Peterborough, died four months ago. There are surviving three daughters, Mrs. Blackstock of Detroit, Mrs. Trude Waldon and Miss Northcott of Lakefield. Miss Northcott, who is a trained nurse, was for years a medical missionary in Swatow, South China, and came home two and a half years ago and has nursed her mother devotedly. Two sons, John of Detroit, and William of Toronto, also survive, and Mrs. John Hearne of Peterborough, is a sister.

The funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Miss N. Dency, of Toronto, is visiting friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Cavanagh are spending a few days with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Herlihey, of Downeyville.

Messrs. P. J. Killen, Elmer Crough, and Harold Crough, of Peterborough, attended the social here on Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. O'Donohue motored from Toronto and spent Sunday with the latter's mother, Mrs. M. Cadigan.

ASSUMES BLAME FOR COLLAPSE

Japanese Prince Was Head of the "Peers Bank."

WOULD ABANDON TITLE.

TOKIO, Japan, December 1. — Prince Iwao Matsukata, holding him self responsible for the failure of the Fifteenth bank called the "peers' bank," because its stockholders and directors numbered most of the Japanese peerage has requested permission to abandon his title.

The prince who was managing director of the bank, has decided to sell his remaining property, donating the proceeds to the settlement of the bank's affairs. The prince, who was a multi-millionaire before the bank's failure last April, is now living in a small house on the outskirts of Tokio.

C.P.R. INQUIRY IS POSTPONED

Railway Wishes To Avoid Prejudicing Coroner's Jury.

WRECKAGE CLEARED.

ENTERPRISE, Ont., Dec. 1 (Canadian Press)—Fearing to prejudice the Coroner's jury which will shortly hold an inquest into the fatalities in the train wreck at Dockrill on Sunday, the Canadian Pacific Railway will make no official enquiry into the disaster until the jury's decision has been made known. This is the statement of H. C. Grout, Superintendent of the railway's Central region, who is supervising the clearing up of the wreckage which yesterday was nearly all removed. Six adults and a child were killed, the child being still unidentified. Only a portion of its leg has been received.

KEEPING THEM AT HOME.

The Globe points out in discussing the exodus of trained Canadians to the United States that "as a general rule brilliant men are lost to the service of the Dominion through the short-sighted parsimony of some individual."

That undoubtedly is the milk in the cocoanut.

Young Canadians equipped by their training and education to give valuable service take their wares to the best market and the majority of them will continue to do so long as scientific and expert knowledge does not command a better reward in Canada.

We can keep Canadian brains at work at home by making it profitable for brainy Canadians to remain at home.

We cannot keep Canadian brains at home, however, unless we show a better appreciation of the situation than was displayed in the proposal to grant increases from $5 to $15 per month to the technical men of the Dominion Civil Service to keep such men from going to the United States?

Did any one seriously think that an increase of $1.25 a week would keep trained men at home?

SPEEDING ON THE BRIDGE.

On the instructions of the Board of Works a by-law is being prepared by the City Solicitor limiting the speed of all vehicles over the Hunter street bridge to ten miles an hour.

The regulation is long overdue and should be strictly enforced.

Ever since the bridge was thrown open to traffic it has been regarded as a speedway.

There has been a series of traffic accidents as a result and in addition pedestrians are continually complaining during bad weather of being splashed with mud and water thrown up by speeding cars.

The Examiner has frequently drawn attention to this condition of affairs as the result of complaints received by this paper, and it is with satisfaction that the adoption of a speed limit is noted.

Some of the wildest driving seen anywhere in this neighborhood has taken place on Peterborough's costly bridge and the City Council is quite justified in serving notice upon motorists generally that the structure was not erected for speedway purposes.

When the by-law comes into effect it should be made to mean something and that can only be done by seeing to it that those who exceed the limit are penalized.

KEEPING THE STREETS OPEN.

The contract that is to be entered into between the City Council and the Border Transit Company, by which the bus company will provide equipment to keep the bus routes free of snow and lease these facilities to the city for use on other streets at a total cost of $2.50 per hour, seems to be a business-like method of dealing with a problem brought about by the popularity of motor transport.

The keeping open of streets for motor vehicles is a modern responsibility that follows the adoption of winter driving on a large scale.

More cars were used in Peterborough during last winter than ever before during the cold period and the indications are that the winter about to open will see an even larger number of automobiles in commission.

It has become necessary, therefore, to provide for that traffic and in coming to an agreement with the Border Transit Company, which in any event must keep its routes open, the Council has probably adopted the most satisfactory and economical method of handling the problem of keeping the city streets free from snow.

The Company showed its good faith by offering to pay the same rental for snow-cleaning equipment, if the city preferred to buy its own plow but probably the policy preferred by the Council will prove the more satisfactory.

THE FUTURE OF HOCKEY.

The exodus from the ranks of the Ontario Hockey Association of so many hockey players makes the question of the future of the professional game one of absorbing interest.

Canadians, proud of ice hockey as a Canadian game that offers the spectator the utmost in thrills and calls from the player courage and stamina as well as skill, are watching with mingled feelings the game spread itself over the map of the United States.

With New York, Pittsburgh, Boston, Chicago and Detroit represented in the National Hockey League, Kansas City, Minneapolis, and other mid-western cities in the American Hockey Association, and Detroit in the Canadian Professional League hockey is well established in the leading cities across the border.

And it is gaining a foothold elsewhere.

The organization of a professional league in Texas is a sign of the progress that has been made and there is no reason to suppose that the limit has been reached.

What is to be the result so far as Canadian hockey teams are concerned?

Inevitably the loss to professional organizations of the majority of the most skilful players on this side as well as of many others who are far from being of stellar calibre.

Already players are being signed who have never been regarded as in the front rank, and if new organizations continue to multiply the demand will be intensified.

It is possible, of course, that some of these professional loops will prove to be of the mushroom variety and that financial weakness will eventually clarify the situation by the elimination of the weak sisters.

But that development will not come in time to save the day for Canadian amateur hockey teams, the managements of which will have to accept the conditions as they find them and carry on with the best material available, always prepared to face new desertions as promising players come to the front.

Probably the most unfortunate part of the situation is that many young players whose ability has not been thoroughly tested are being snapped up by the professional organizations and that a considerable percentage of these hockey rookies may find themselves rejected by the monied clubs and debarred from participation in the amateur ranks.

COMMERCIALIZING SANTA CLAUS.

(From the Kitchener Record)

Where dollars and cents are concerned commerce refuses to be swayed by sentiment. It seems a pity, however, that one of the most sacred traditions of childhood should be robbed of much of its meaning and all of its mystery by the commercialization of Santa Claus.

Time was—and not very long ago either—when Santa and his reindeers made one delightful swoop from the North Pole and left ample evidence of their visit on Christmas Eve. No one ever heard or saw him but there was no denying the fact that he had come and gone.

Nowadays it is vastly different. For fully six weeks before Christmas Santa appears in many places and in varied guise. He parades the streets as a shabby sandwich-man, ballyhoos from street corners, presides in the top department of half the stores in the country, or in an up-to-date motorcar rolls smirkingly along crowded thoroughfares.

All the glamor, the mystery, the kindly secrecy, the exquisite intangibleness of the jolly saint have vanished. He is here, there, and everywhere, regardless of season or of place. He squawks over the radio, drops notices from aeroplanes, and in general conducts himself in a manner too familiar by half. Santa has become common. His omnipresence must put a severe strain upon the most trustful and believing of his admirers. Their credulity is tested almost to the breaking point.

And where is it going to end? Soon it may be found necessary to bring him down for a reconnoiter in mid-August or give his rendeer a preliminary canter around Labor Day. But it seems that poor old Santa Claus is being ridden to death. It is only a matter of time until the sophisticated discerning young folk will demand in disgust—"Shucks! Give us something new."

A DOUBTFUL PROPOSITION.

Dairy Council of Canada are sending representatives to Ottawa to ask the Government for repeal of that clause in the Canadian-Australian treaty which admits Australian butter into Canada on preferential terms. Imports of Australian butter, it is held, is ruining the Canadian dairy industry.

With butter selling at 45 cents a pound and showing no noticeable tendency to decline, most Canadian consumers, we think, will have some difficulty in seeing the force of the Dairy Council's argument. If there were a surplus of butter being dumped on the Canadian market, lowering prices below a legitimate profit for Canadian producers, there would be reasonable ground for complaint. But, so far as we can see, there is no surplus, and no lowering of prices. Indeed, according to statements appearing in the Western press, there is an actual butter shortage on the prairies.

Such being the case, the Government, we imagine, will conclude it necessary to think over the situation rather carefully before taking action along the lines intended by the Dairy Council.

The Journal has been a consistent advocate of adequate protection—particularly for Canadian agriculture But it has never believed, and does not now believe, that protection should be carried beyond a point where it provides a reasonable margin of safety for Canadian enterprise and works as a hardship to the Canadian consumer. If, for example, it can be shown in the case of the dairy industry that it cannot produce butter at a profit at 45 cents a pound, and that the Australian imports render it impossible for our dairy industry to live, something may have to be done about it. But the mere say-so of the Dairy Council is not quite enough.

Further: We are not going to get very far in the development of inter-imperial trade if, every time we make a preferential treaty, some industry comes along and wants it altered simply because some clause in it seems to operate to that industry's disadvantage.—Ottawa Journal.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE REVOLTS.

The other day we mentioned that President Coolidge had revolted against the idea that he is the servant at the beck and call of every civic group, lodge, or Board of Trade that wishes to "dress up its speakers" at a Washington banquet. From one report we gather that he is quite in earnest about this as he walked out at a dinner party after his own speech was finished, without waiting for the rest of the programme. This was taken as a sign that he was putting his revolt into deeds.

It is rather a wonder that some leading man has not led a revolt of this sort before. To have to go to banquets is an unfair tax upon such men. Quite apart from the time which is occupied one United States paper points out that first comes the worry of preparing the speech (even if a secretary writes the draft of it.) Then comes the memorizing of it. Next comes the inconvenience of going out on a night when you would rather stay at home. The the dinner—deadening to eloquence. The the chairman's fulsome remarks. Then the speech itself. Then the vote of thanks. And the performance is repeated a score of times during the year.

The late King Edward, when Prince of Wales, did lead a revolt. It was formely the practice at banquets to have a very lengthy list of toasts. It began with the Queen, and went on to the Royal Family, the Army, the Navy, the Reserve Forces, the special person or object of the banquet and various others, while to some of the toasts two or three speakers might reply. The Prince gave orders that at all the banquets he attended the toasts were to be but three, and the speakers were expected to be brief. It probably will be noticed that when the present Prince of Wales speaks that he does so briefly but very concisely and to the point. It would be a good thing for everybody if public men not only followed this Royal example, but also, like President Coolidge, refused to be at the beck and call of civic groups, lodges and so on. The few banquets that would then be given would be worth attending most likely.—Kingston Whig-Standard.

EDITORIAL NOTE SAND COMMENT.

No, we have some senior hockey!

The weather bureau and the Liquor Control Board had better fight it out as to whether November or August was the "wettest" month of 1927.

There are complaints of drinking at the senior rugby final. Probably the refreshment was in the nature of anti-freeze.

And tomorrow Henry Ford will say: "Now it can be told."

With thunderstorms in the east and zero temperature on the Prairies Canada is prepared to meet all tastes in the weather line.

If thirty-eight people are anxious to be aldermen in Belleville there should be hundreds willing to serve in a similar capacity in a live city like Peterborough.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Dec. 1 (Canadian Press).—The export trade in wheat with the United Kingdom and the Continent was again of a very disappointing character here yesterday, there being practically no demand from any source. The demestic trade in grain was quiet.

The demand for Spring and Winter wheat grades of flour was steady and prices were unchanged.

An active business was done in all lines of millfeed and the tone of the market was firm. The trade in standard grades of rolled oats was fairly active and prices were steady.

A feature of the egg trade was the firmer undertone for fresh firsts and pullet extras and inside prices were advanced two to three cents per dozen. This was attributed to the improved demand. Pullet extras sold at 60c per dozen. The demand for storage grades was fair and prices were unchanged. The receipts were 1,121 cases.

The potatoe trade was quiet but the undertone was firm. Sales of odd cars of Prince Edward Island whites were made at $1.20 per bag of 90 pounds, Green mountains at $1.25 per bag of 90 pounds; New Brunswick Green Mountains at $1.15 per bag in bulk; and Quebec varities at 90c to $1.00 per bag in bulk, ex-track.

A fair trade was done in imported beans and the tone of the market was steady. Sales of car lots on spot were made at 2.50 per bushel and to arrive at 2.60 per bushel, ex-track, with smaller quantities selling at $2.75 per bushel, ex-store.

Extreme dullness again marked the butter trade, but prices ruled firm. The receipts were 101 packages.

The cheese trade was without any special feature to note owing to the fact that business was generally quiet on account of the indifferent demand from English and local buyers. The receipts were 383 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 1 (Canadian Press).—Assertions that world import requirements of wheat this season are likely to be the largest on record helped to tighten up wheat values yesterday. After an early decline based a good deal on Liverpool quotation lower than due, the Chicago wheat market closed firm at precisely the same as Tuesday's finish, with corn ½ to 1 cent lower; oats unchanged to 1 cent down and provisions varying from 15 cents decline to a rise of 2 cents.

According to a forecast by a leading British authority, Europe's import needs of wheat this season are 36,000,000 bushels in excess of last year and will total 633,840,000 bushels. This estimate did much to stimulate buying and to overcome bearish sentiment that was associated with weakness of the Liverpool market and with liquidation of December contracts both at Liverpool and in Chicago. Heavy tenders of wheat at Liverpool today were looked for, and deliveries here were expected to aggregate 1,000,000 to 1,500,000 bushels.

Meanwhile, Winnipeg is getting a world of wheat, having arrivals of 2,639 cars yesterday against 1,057 cars a year ago. Apparently every effort is being made to move Canadian wheat down the lakes before the close of navigation, December 12. Lake shipping insurance charges, it was announced yesterday, will be doubled before that time, it was reported.

However, new export business in wheat from North America was described yesterday as slow.

Likelihood that deliveries of corn today on Chicago December contracts will total two million bushels had a bearish effect on the corn market. Colder weather, an aid to husking, was also a bear influence. Oats eased down with corn.

Provisions averaged lower, reflecting weakness of hog values.

CHICAGO CATTLE.

CHICAGO, Dec. 1 (Canadian Press).—Cattle receipts 11,000; bulls strong at recent 25 to 40c advance; good market on stockers and feeders at $8.75 to $10.50; best fed steers $19.00; yearlings $18.25; bulk $12.00 to $16.00; sausage bulls with weight $7.50 to $7.75; best $8.00; vealers $12.50 to $13.50 to big packers; outsiders $14.00 to $14.50.

Hog receipts 27,000; uneven; 10 to 25 cents lower; top $9.10; bulk desirable 210 to 300 pounds $8.65 to 9.10; 160 to 200 pounds weights, largely $8.25 to $8.65; bulk pigs $7.00 to $7.60; selected lots $7.75; most packing sows $7.50 to $8.00; best light weights $8.10 to $8.25.

Sheep receipts 18,000; top $14.35; bulk $14.00 to $14.10; heavy lambs $13.25 to $13.65; culls $10.50 to $11.00; fat ewes steady, $6.00 to $6.75; yearling wethers $10.25 to $11.50; depending on quality and weight; feeding lambs strong to 15 cents higher; demand active, $13.00 to $14.00.

NEW CENTER FOR SYDNEY

Sydney, N.S.W., plans one of the finest civic centers in the world. The buildings will surround a city square which will be made into a park. The city railway will erect an ornamental two-level station, capable of accommodating 200 trains an hour, and landing visitors for a pleasant first-view of the city. A large war memorial building, ornamental in design and to be used for national festivals, will be erected. Municipal buildings and a bridge over the river will harmonize with the general architectural scheme.

Women outnumber men by about 40,000 in northern Ireland.

DE FOREST CROSLEY RADIO

These Features Have Won

Batteryless Supremacy

Uniform perfection of tone at any volume—absolute freedom from hum and AC interference—cannot howl or squeal—a new speaker-unit reproducing notes formerly lost—exquisite cabinets—these are some of the features that have won Batteryless Supremacy for the "Royal Series" AC Models.

Standardization Makes Possible Outstanding Values

De Forest Crosley is an all-Canadian organization manufacturing and distributing a complete line of sets, speakers, tubes, batteries and power devices. Through the application of the principle of standardization to tremendous volume of production, De Forest Crosley has raised quality to new high levels and yet cut costs to rock bottom. Never before in the history of radio have such values been offered to the Canadian public.

Seven Models $44—$450

Built to Meet Canadian Conditions

De Forest Crosley radio is highly specialized to meet the peculiar reception conditions prevailing in Canada. Visit a nearby Authorized DC Dealer, and ask for a demonstration in your own home. Get him to explain why the new "Royal Series" Models excel in range, tone and selectivity compared with sets not specifically designed for Canadian use. Inquire, too, about the DC budget plan of buying.

Beware! No other equipment possesses all the outstanding features of DeForest Crosley sets. If someone tries to divert your interest, look for a reason.

COBOURG MAN IS PRESIDENT

D. C. Dick Heads Canadian Woollen Manufacturers' Association.

LOCAL MAN OFFICER.

TORONTO, Dec. 1.— Co-operation between farmer and manufacturer, and the need for higher tariff protection, formed the two chief topics of discussion at yesterday's convention of the Canadian Woollen and Knit Goods Manufacturers' Association, held in the King Edward Hotel. Problems and activities of the association were aired, and plans made for the coming year.

At the annual election of officers, D. C. Dick, of Cobourg, was unanimously elected president, succeeding J. A. Burns, of Dunnville. Mr. Dick during the past year has been vice-president of the organization. Succeeding him in that post is C. G. de Tonnancour, of Montreal, who was also elected by acclamtion. Two new members of the executive were returned unopposed, in the persons of J. D. Woods, Toronto, and H. Quarmby, Guelph.

The following section chairmen were chosen at the convention: Fine hosiery, M. B. Holton, Hamilton; heavy hosiery, Joseph Beaumont, Glen Miller; knitted outerwear, Bertram Davis, Toronto; men's underwear, H. W. Lundy, Paris; yarn, William Tinker, Peterborough; felt, C. AIR FORCE HAVE EXTENSIVE YEAR

Annual Report Shows Dominion Planes Up 5,229 Hours During One Year.

MILITIA COSTS DOWN.

OTTAWA, Dec. 1 (Canadian Press).—Militia sevices in Canada during the year 1926-27 necessitated expenditures totalling $10,402,651, according to the annual report of the department of national defence (militia and air services), made public yesterday.

This figure does not include $803,154 for general air services.

Expenditures show a remarkable decline when compared with the preceding ten years, with the exception of 1925-26. Other statistics contained in the report serve to illustrate how extensive the air services have become throughout the country.

In the year 1917-18 the grand total of expenditure for militia services was $320,744,270 and for the next two years the expenditures were in excess of $300,000,000. For the year 1925-26 the expenditures were $10,344,334, slightly lower than those of the year just ended. Expenditures by the air services during 1925-26 were $787,106.

Flying operations by the Royal Canadian Air Force during the year were very extensive, a grand total of 5,229 hours and 10 minutes being recorded. Service flying constituted the greatest activity, 2,823 hours and 57 minutes being devoted to that work.

Forest fire protection and aerial photography were also extensively worked, the former requiring 1,132 hours and 43 minutes of flying and the latter 1,116 and 17 minutes.

Fishery protection constituted another important branch of the air services as did also the preventive service. Eleven hours and four minutes of flying were devoted to fishery protection and 27 hours and 51 minutes to preventive service.

In the report of the adjutant-general dealing with permanent active militia, the strength on March 31, 1927, in warrant officers, non-commissioned officers and men was 3,189.

Many Moderate Losses As Mine Trade Increases

TORONTO, Dec. 1. — (Canadian Press.)—A long list of moderate losses was recorded on the standard mining exchange this morning when the volume of trading slightly increased to eleven hundred thousand shares in the first session. The numerous losses were mostly of a point or so in extent, save for Dome's twenty cent recession at 13.60. A bright feature of the session was Granada Rouyn, which was marked up three points at 38¾ on the heaviest turnover of any stock. Bidgood, gaining six at 168, and Potter Doal, with a point gain at 23 ,were also conspicuous against the generally depressed list. The excise of an option of the Flin Flon field which had been held by the Mining Corporation did not produce any remarkable stir. Mining Corporation stock eased six at 4.60, while Central Manitoba Mines firmed three at 210.

Deliveries Are Lighter And Wheat Prices Go Up

CHICAGO, Dec. 1, — (Canadian Press.)—With Deliveries on December contracts lighter than were looked for both here and at Liverpool, wheat values showed an early upturn to-day. A contributing factor was unsettled weather in Argentina and a falling off in shipments from there. Opening at ⅛c. to ¾c. higher, wheat subsequently advanced a little more. Corn, Oats and Provisions were also firmer, Corn starting at ¼c. to ¾c. gain and later continuing to point upward.

Opening prices were: Wheat, December 127⅜, March 131¾. Corn, December 87⅜, March 92½. Oats, December 49¼, March 52⅜.

Toronto Trading Heavy On Unsettled Market

TORONTO, December 1. —Canadian Press. — With trading extremely heavy in volume, the market on the Toronto stock exchange this morning was unsettled. Good advances in the active leaders were offset by a downward tendency among the rest. International Nickel was the dominant stock of the session, climbing 2 3-8 at 69 3-8 at noon. Brazilian at 225¾. American Sales Book at 72 7-8, and Abitibi at 142 were about 2 points higher. Industrial Alcohol, Alberta Pacific Grain Canadian Canners, City Dairy, Massey Harris, and others weakened. Seagram's, Carling's and Walker's sold lower, but two other and Canada Malting, gained fractionally. The oils were led by McColl, losing 3-8 at 63 3-8, though British American was steady at 36, and Petroleum slightly higher.

CROSSING GATES BROKEN BY CARS

Motorists Drive Through Railway Barriers On George and Charlotte Streets.

DURING SNOW STORM.

During the blinding snowstorm last night motorists crashed through the railway guard gates on George and Charlotte Streets. H. Hogan of Otonabee drove his car through the C.N.R. gates on Charlotte streets, breaking both gates on the south side of the street. Vernon Spilsbury of Downie Street broke through the ones at the C.P.R. crossing on George Street.

The C.N.R. gateman reports that people disregarded his lantern signals, driving right up to him, in spite of his swinging red light after the gates had been broken.

Hon. G. S. Henry Receives Deputation From This District.

FOR WESTERN ROAD.

TORONTO, December 1. Canadian Press. — Consideration to their Port Hope-Peterboro highway so that it would connect with the Lindsay-Whitby Road, was promised a deputation from Peterborough by the Hon. George S. Henry, Minister of Public Works to-day. W. H. Bradburn, member of the Legislature for Peterborough, headed the deputation which also represented the interetsed villages.

FAIR DIRECTORS REVIEW FINANCE

Discuss Ways and Means of Adding To Their Receipts.

At the meeting of the Peterborough Exhibition Board last night, the directors review the receipts and expenditures of this year's exhibition. Ways and means of reducing some of the expenditures and adding to the receipts were discussed by the members who braved the snow storm to make an appearance at the meeting.

W. S. Merrell, manager of the dog show, submitted his report of the operations of that part of the Fair. The dog show this year showed a deficit of $154.20. The total receipts were $1,045.92, and the expenditure $1,199.12. The gate receipts fell down $200. Mr. Merrell blamed the hot weather for this, as the sides of the tent had to be lifted and people could see the dogs without paying an admission. He emphasized the need of a building, as it costs nearly $400 every year for renting and erecting the tent and installing lighting and benches for the dogs.

The total gate and grand stand receipts showed a big increase over last year. The debt has increased, but this year's Fair was a paying concern. The increase in debt is due to the permanent improvements made during the summer.

cruisers against 35 before. He also mentioned that reduction of conscript service from three years to one had reduced the size of the French army.

The Foreign Minister referred to the Russian army of 700,000 which he said, was paraded on all occasions, even at fetes of a peaceful nature. He remarked that Russia's intervention in the Polish-Lithuanian dispute had not lessened the difficulties of those striving for peace.

Deputies on the right side of the Chamber applauded M. Briand warmly and Premier Poincare shook hands with fervor, but the Moderates in the Chamber were rather cool to him.

Later, answering a question by the Communist deputy Berthon, M. Briand said: "We are having a friendly conversation with Spain with the object of finally fixing the definite status of Tangier and assuring the security of the Spanish zone in Morocco." He denied categorically that there were any projects for a pecuniary compensation to Spain in consideration for the abandonment of Morocco by her.

M. Briand said that no military expedition was in view against the Moroccan tribe that captured the nephew of Resident-General Theadore Steoeg and three companions, and held them for ransom. "There have been assassinations, however, and the assassins are known. The prestige of France requires that crime shall not remain unpunished," he added.

CAMPBELLFORD NEWS.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 1. — Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Hagermon of Belleville were guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Riendeau for a few days. Mr. Haggrman was recently a business man in Campbellford, and is well acquainted locally.

Lawrence McGaughey, Lindsay, is spending a few days in town attending to business matters.

Mr. and Mrs. Gus MacDonald and family, Welland, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Thompson, Bridge Street, yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Tumey, who have been spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Riendeau, Rear Street, have returned to Oshawa.

War veterans, whether members of the Canadian Legion or not, are asked to attend the meeting to be held in the armories tonight. One need not necessarily have seen service in the line to become a member of the Legion in Canada. It is only necessary to have been in uniform during the Great or any other war in which Britain was engaged. At the coming meeting, the local Legion will elect its officers for the coming year. It is up to every ex-service man to be present and vote for the men who, in his opinion, are most suited to the office for which they are being nominated. The local branch is still in its infancy. There is a brilliant future before it if every one-time soldier gives his whole-hearted support.

Fortunately, Campbellford has no serious accidents to report in connection with the recent icy roads. A truck carrying over three tons of merchandise managed to slide down the School Hill without doing any serious damage to either itself or its load. Garage and motor supply men report an increased tire business and the sale of several pairs of chains. This speaks well for the local motoring public and its regard for the safety laws.

Many Deaths Result Of Cholera Epidemic

CALCUTTA, India, December 1 (Associated Press). — A cholera epidemic is sweeping Bengal. Three thousand seven hundred and three cases, with 2,139 deaths, have been reported from all parts of the province, with the exception of Calcutta for the week ending November 19.

It is estimated here that if the epidemic follows the ordinary course, it will increase fifty per cent. in December.

claimed he had not seen this gentleman before ,and their car was not repaired at the latter's garage. He denied the car having stopped outside Baker's, and the statements of Provincial Officer Sylvester. He confessed to serving two terms of a month each at Peterborough and Toronto. The car was not damaged by him, but it did leak at the radiator.

Frank Sullivan's story was similar.

Harry Crossen was brought from the cells to testify that Warren had said he had driven directly to Niagara Falls from Marmora on a transportation waggon.

Witnesses for the prosecution were recalled to clear up several points, and then both counsels addressed the Judge. E. J. Butler pleaded for leniency, while Crown Attorney Donnan contended that with both men having bad records and not being innocent youths, their sentence should not be lightened.

Dyspepsia Troubled Him for Many Years

Mr. J. Savoy, Loggieville, N.B., writes:—"I have suffered for many years from dyspepsia and could not seem to get any relief.

"One day I told my wife I thought I would try a bottle of and when I had half of it taken I felt a lot better, so I continued until I had taken two bottles, and now have no pains and no coated tongue, and feel that I am completely rid of my trouble."

DISTRICT CHURCHES

BRIDGENORTH UNITED CHURCH

Rev. J. V. McNeely of Bridgenorth United Church preached a biographical sermon on John Wesley on Sunday evening, taking as his text, Mark 12, 34: "Thou art not far from the kingdom of God."

He said: "This was the commendation of our Lord in regard to one of the scribes, who plied him with captious questions in the temple, in the hope of finding a pretext for condemnation. It was the text that paved the way to the re-birth of John Wesley. Wesley had returned from America, where he had gone as a missionary, only to discover the waywardness and wickedness of his own heart. 'What have I learned?' he asked himself when he was once more on English soil. 'What have I learned? Why, I have learned what I least of all suspected, that I who went to America to convert the Indians, was never myself converted to God.'

"He set himself this task of seeking God, and on May 24, 1738, on a Wednesday morning, he opened his Bible carelessly and this text leapt out at him, 'Thou art not far from the kingdom of God.' It strangely reassured him, 'not far from the kingdom of God.' How far? He was so near that, on that very evening, he entered it. His journal is one of the monuments of English literature, and in it the entry reads thus: 'In the evening I went very unwillingly to a society in Aldersgate Street where one was reading Luther's preface to the Epistle to the Romans. About a quarter before nine, while he was describing the change which God works in the heart through faith in Christ, I felt my heart strangely warmed, I felt I did trust in Christ, Christ alone for salvation, and an assurance was given me that He had taken away my sins, even mine, and saved me from the laws of sin and death. Here is a sailor. He finds himself far, far from port, with no chart, no compass, no hope of ever reaching his desired haven. Later on he shades his eyes, for he actually beholds the bluff headlands, that mark the entrance to the harbor; he is not far from the city of his desire. Later still the bar is crossed, the channel forced, and he finds himself riding at anchor in the bay.'

"So it was with John Wesley when he returned from Georgia. He was far, very far, from the kingdom of God. But on this Wednesday evening, May 24, 1738, at Aldersgate Street, he passed into the light and liberty of the kingdom. The pity of it is that John Wesley was thirty-five when he entered the kingdom. The zest and vigor of early manhood had passed. He was late in finding mercy. Thirty-five! Many men before that age have finished their life-work and fallen into honored graves. Why was conversion so long delayed? He always felt the fault was not altogether his own. He groped in the dark for many years, and nobody helped him—not even his ministers. William Law was one of them and he wrote him a very pertinent letter, really a reprimand for his silence toward him in this matter. Many a minister has since read this letter on his knees, praying that he may never deserve such a criticism.

"Many influences combined to bring Wesley near to the 'kingdom of God.' He had a mother, one of the most amazing mothers that even England, that land of noble mothers, has produced. Susanna Wesley was a marvel of nature and a miracle of grace. To begin with, she was the 25th child of her father, and the mother of a family of nineteen herself, and she found time for each of them. In one of her letters, she tells how deeply impressed she was on reading the story of the evangelistic efforts of the Danish missionaries in India. She says, 'It came into my mind that I might do more than I do. I resolved to begin with my own children. I take such proportions of time as I can best spare to discourse every night with each child by itself. There is no mystery about the matter. I just take Molly alone with me every Monday night, Hetty every Tuesday night, Nancy Wednesday, and so on all through the week—that was all.' Yes, that was all, but behold how it turned out. John Wesley says, 'I cannot remember ever having kept back a doubt from my mother; she was the one heart to whom I went, in absolute confidence, from my babyhood until the day of her death.'

"Then there was the fire. John never forgot that terrible night. He was only six. He awoke to find the old rectory ablaze from cellar to garret. By some oversight he had been forgotten when everybody was dragged from the burning building. In the nick of time, before the roof fell with a crash, a neighbor by climbing from another's shoulders, contrived to rescue the terrified child at a window. To the last day of his life, Wesley retained a vivid memory of this experience. Underneath it is written as it were, 'Is not this a brand plucked from the burning.'

"At Oxford he read such writings as 'Imitation of Christ,' by Thomas A. Kempis; 'Holy Living and Dying,' by Jeremiah Taylor. These books were of an ascetic, mystical, and devotional nature, and had a morbid effect in the formation of his theological opinions. He with his brother Charles, George Whitfield and others at Oxford formed the 'Holy Club,' whose rules were that they frequently interrogate themselves, and that they pray with fervor on Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday noon, also make use of a devotional at 9, 12 and 3 o'clock; duly meditate on Sunday from 3 to 4. They frequently partook of the communion. They visited alms houses and prisons and were diligent in these efforts to instruct and console the suffering. For the reason that they lived by rule, they were dubbed 'Methodists' by their fellow-students.

"Methodism arose within the borders of the Episcopal church. By force of circumstances, and contrary to the preference of its founders it drifted into a separate organization. The pioneers in the religious revival of which Methodism was the offspring were John Wesley and George Whitfield, but to the indomitable will and organizing genius, joined with the religious fervor of Wesley, its existence as a distinct and influential body is chiefly due.

"Methodist preachers found little favor with the majority of the clergy, and had to choose between preaching in halls, barns, the open air, or silence. John Wesley, when denied admittance to the pulpit at Epworth preached at sunset every day standing on his father's tombstone in the church yard. His preaching created all manner of emotional results. Methodism started in a great outburst of religious feeling and as might be expected at such an epoch, evil was mingled with good.

"John Wesley was a trained man, possessed of scholarly acquirements. He was more of a logician than a philosopher but the combination in him of qualities moral and intellectual, entitles him to a distinguished rank among religious founders. Notwithstanding his incessant missionary labors he found time to publish about two hundred volumes, translated and abridged by himself, treating theology, biography, history, philosophy, poetry, medicine science, all from the popular point of view. He even kept before him certain definite objects of endeavor and advanced with clear vision and dauntless spirit to their realization.

"The results of Wesley's work were greater in the last ten years of his life than in all the years previous. When the conference met in 1790, there were 115 circuits in the United Kingdom, 294 preachers, 71,568 members. The number of circuits in different countries was 240, of preachers 541, of members 134,549, with 19 missionaries in foreign parts. In view of the effect of his labors, as seen in so many lands, he could say without boasting these memorable words: "The world is my parish."

"So the man who at 35 applied to himself the text 'Thou art not far from the kingdom of God,' not only by the grace of God found the kingdom but by his labors, and those of his friars, nearly 135,000 found the kingdom before his death 53 years later. He was taken very ill when he was 50 years of age at Bristol, and it was feared that the end was near, yet the people fervently prayed for his recovery. He reflected on his past life during his enforced rest; this was the summary he gave :I the chief of sinners am, but Jesus died for me.'

"When he passed away in 1791 this was still the language of his heart. This then was the burden of Wesley's tremendous ministries more than 52 years. It was the confidence of his life and the comfort of his death. This was the gospel that transfigured his own experience, and this was the gospel by which he changed the face of England. No man ever lived nearer to the centre than John Wesley — not even Clive, Pitt or Johnson. No single figure influenced so many minds no single voice touched so many hearts.

"The Eighteenth century," say. President Wilson, "cried for deliverance and light, and God prepared John Wesley to bring to the world the light and blessing of His salvation.'"

PUPILS RECEIVE CERTIFICATES

Also Give Recital in St. John's Parish Hall.

THREE TEACHERS.

A recital of exceptional merit was given on Tuesday evening in St. John's Parish Hall by the pupils of Mr. F. G. Mann, organist of St. John's Church, Mrs. M. B. Hoyland, and Miss M. Weatherhead. It is very hard to discriminate, as each number was very well rendered, and the teachers are to be commended on such a fine showing. The singers showed the result of careful training. The tonal qualities were clear and true. "Oh, Hush Thee," sung by N. Stanger, A. Pink, and R. Pitchford, was well done. Outstanding in the evening's performance was the singing of Miss M. Elson, whose voice is of a clear, birdlike quality. She sang "Absent," and was encored. The violinists showed great promise, playing with care, precision and ease.

Before the certificates were presented, Rev. Dr. Blagrave gave a brief address, speaking of the Faculty of Arts of McGill University. He said the standard was high in McGill, 65 for pass and 87 for honors. Dr. Blagrave is a McGill man, and said that McGill was recognized by all the universities of the Old Country. He congratulated Mr. Mann, Mrs. Hoyland, and Miss Weatherhead on the proficiency of their pupils. He said a few words of commendation to each one as he presented the certificates.

The second half of the programme included a number of beautifully rendered songs, pianoforte solos and violin numbers, with an exceptionally fine offering in the violin solo, De Beriot's "Sixth Air Varie," played by Miss Catherine Taylor.

A sympathetic comprehension of tempo and rhythm of the selections, and a smooth, pleasing tonal quality, were characteristics of the pianoforte numbers presented.

Accompanists were Miss A. Price, A. Collison and H. Armstrong. Mr. Mann also accompanied several of the numbers. He was in charge of the recital and is to be congratulated on the manner in which the programme was presented. Each number went smoothly, and there were no waits. The performers did their best, and in every instance were a credit to their several teachers. Altogether it was a most pleasing recital.

The programme included the following numbers:

"Priere" (Rieding), M. Braund.
"Marche Militaire" (Sartorio), J. O'Leary.
"O Hush Thee" (Sullivan), N. Stanger, A. Pink, R. Pitchford.
"Friendship" (G. Lange), J. F. White.
"Angels' Voices" (Kron), C. Collins.
"Scherzo and Cradle Song" (Muller), C. Gibbons.
"Fan Dance" (Bonheur), Mary and Veronica O'Leary.
"Fairy Suite Nos. 1 and 2" (Baynton-Power), I. G. F. Borland.
"Berceuse de Jocelyn" (Godard), Miss A. Mills.
"Morning Prayer" (Streaborg), Miss C. Fitzgerald.
"Absent" (Metcalfe), Miss M. Elson.
"Theme and Variations" (Arne), Miss M. Wyllie.
"Concerto, D major" (Seitz), K. Collinson.
"Overture" (Rhys-Herbert), Jack Wyllie.

Presentation of certificates (local examinations, McGill University Faculty of Music, Rev. R. C. Blagrave, D.D.)

"In a Monastery Garden" (Kettleby), R. Wyllie.
(a) "Moonlight" (Moss), (b) "Prayer in Absence" (Brahe), Mrs. L. Groombridge.
"Liebestraum" (Lizst), Miss M. Hemphill.
"Concerto G Minor" (Seitz), J. Collins.
(a) "Rose Softly Blooming" (Spohr), (b) "Bid Me Discourse" (Bishop), Miss R. Quartermaine.
"Sixth Air Varie" (De Beriot), Miss C Taylor.
"L'Adieu" (Farvarger), Reg. Howden.

POLICE BELIEVE BANDITS TIPPED

Think Men Who Robbed Club Members Came From States.

NO COMPLAINTS LAID.

TORONTO, December 1 (Canadian Press).—The theory that the trio of armed robbers who robbed forty members of the Riverside Athletic Club here yesterday were from the United States, acting on a tip from men who bet large sums of money on the Belanger-Genaro fight, was expressed today as police continued their search. The authorities were doubly handicapped because no official complaint was made. The bandits are believed to have secured at least $3,500 in cash and a quantity of jewellery.

MARTIN URGES CO-OPERATION

Woollen Manufacturers and Farmers Can Work Together, He Says.

COMMENDS RESEARCH.

TORONTO, Nov. 30 (Canadian Press).—Co-operation between Canadian farmers and manufacturers of woollen goods and efforts to develop the sheep industry in Ontario were subjects taken up by the Hon. John S. Martin, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, in his address to the 150 Canadian manufacturers of woollen good at their annual luncheon today. He also complimented the association on its research activities, which resulted in improving the quality of Canadian produced woollen goods.

Referring to the association's demand for increased tariff protection, the Minister made the statement that he believed public opinion is "prepared to endorse any measures, either tariff or otherwise, which will place the industry on a prosperous basis, because such prosperity would be shared by the entire community.

GREASE EXPLOSIONS HAMPER FIREMEN

Men Unable To Get Close Enough To Packing House Fire.

CHICAGO, December 1 (Canadian Press.)— A spectacular fire, accompanied by machine gun like explosions, destroyed the two storey brick building occupied by the Pork Product Packing Company early to-day with damage estimated at $350,000. Several tons of grease in the plant began to explode successively and the flames were so hot that the firemen were unable for a time to get near enough to fight them.

On Tuesday evening, the members of St. George's Church Choir assembled at the Rectory to spend a social time together. Community singing and other musical items made a good beginning to the evening's entertainment, after which several games were played. The main feature of the evening was a "treasure hunt." All were blind-folded and asked to walk into an adjoining room, where a "treasure" would be placed, the finder of the "treasure" to become the possessor of it. By the careful manipulation of those who had arranged the hunt, a silk-covered umbrella with silver monogrammed band found its way into the hands of Mr. Bruce Quinn. Amid great surprise on the part of Mr. Quinn, and to the amusement of everyone else, it was here explained by the rector, Rev. J. L. Hughes, that in this way the choir wished to show their appreciation of the services of Mr. Quinn, whose duties as church organist terminated last Sunday. Later in the evening, in a lucky number contest, Mr. Quinn was also the winner of the prize—a brass ash tray and cigarettes, which was a further token of esteem from the choir. Mr. Quinn replied by expressing his sincere thanks for the useful gifts, and spoke of his attachment to St. George's Church during the seven years he had held the position of organist. Two other contests resulted in Mr. Quinn being the winner of the first prize, in one, with Miss Mabel Scott receiving the consolation prize, and Mrs. Kitchen carrying off the prize in the second contest. The service of refreshments brought a very enjoyable evening to a close.

W.C.T.U. APPOINTS THREE OFFICERS

Will Fill Vacancies Until Annual Meeting in May.

The regular meeting of the W.C.T.U. was held yesterday in the Green Room of the Y.W.C.A., with a fair attendance, considering the inclement weather. The president, Mrs. K. Throop, was in the chair. The meeting opened with the singing of a hymn, followed by the repetition of the Lord's Prayer in unison. Short prayers were offered by Mrs. J. H. Rowe and Mrs. Throop. The devotional exercises were in charge of Mrs. J. G. Plunkett, the members responding by reading different paragraphs and verses of Scripture, followed by prayer offered by Mrs. J. Speer. Three members were elected to fill vacancies until the annual elections in May. Members taking the places of retiring officers will be Mrs. G. A. Gillespie, in charge of parlor meetings, Mrs. C. R. Banks, third vice-president, and Mrs. Ed. Manning working in connection with Sunday Schools.

It was decided to hold no meeting in December, and a birthday tea will be held early in January.

Mrs. Throop spoke briefly regarding items of interest at the recent convention. The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction.

RICHARDS, THE MAGICIAN, SOLVES

E.H.F.—What is wrong with my health? Is an operation necessary?

Ans.—Your trouble is due to kidney and blood disorders. You need expert medical attention, but not an operation.

A.M.—Should I make the change in work?

Ans.— Yes, go right ahead with your tentative plans.

G.R.—How much should we be able to make on our recent investment in oil stocks?

Ans.— You will make absolutely nothing. This company will never produce oil.

J. L. H. (Lakefield, Ont.)— Should my husband continue to work here?

Ans.—I advise your husband to continue as he is for another year and then return to farming in 1929.

F. P.—Kindly tell me where I lost my class ring and if it can be found.

Ans.—Your ring is simply misplaced behind some bottles on a shelf in the bath room.

M.D.—My husband has a lot for sale. Will he sell it and for how much?

Ans.—He will sell the lot for $1,400 next July.

M. I. P.—Will I ever be any better off or out of debt?

Ans.—A change will be offered you early next year. Accept this and it will bring considerable improvement for you financially.

H. W.—Is my husband true to me? Does he still go with Margaret?

Ans.—He is as true as the average married man. However Margaret will never interest him again.

R. J. S.—What line of work should I take up to be most successful in life?

Ans.—You are best adapted for law or journalism, especially law. You would not succeed at medicine as originally planned.

C. M.—My nephew, Walter, went to the States two years ago, but has never been heard from. What became of him

Ans.—He is connected with the iron or steel business at Birmingham, Alabama, and mail or wires will reach him at 706—25th street, that city.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

Faith had tactfully conducted Rhoda and Nils to the sun-parlor, as warmly heated and as charming as the living-room itself, so that they might discuss their family affairs privately. While they waited for the conference to end, Bob read aloud from the book review department of a sophisticated magazine.

Faith tried to listen, but her attention could not long be diverted from Cherry's little huddled figure and brooding, pale face. The anger which had flared in her golden eyes, making them look like blazing coins, had long since died out, but Faith could not read the emotion which held the little face in frozen immobility now.

"Shall we order this book?" Bob's voice cut into Faith's troubled revery. "Sounds pretty good. We ought to keep up with current literature better than we do."

"Yes," Faith aroused herself to nod and smile, though she hadn't the least idea which book he was speaking of.

Faintly from the sun-parlor came the boom of a rich, masculine voice, then suddenly the door was opened and Rhoda came out, followed by Nils, whose great hand lay fondly upon her shoulder.

"Nils is going to stay over until Sunday night," Rhoda announced rapturously. "He wants to hear what Madame Renaud has to say about my voice and arrange for my lessons if she's willing to take me. And he wants to pay for my board here, but I won't let him. I want to work, if you'll have me and if you like my cooking, Mrs. Hathaway."

"I certainly do like it. We all do," Faith smiled. "We shall treat her exactly like a sister, Mr. Jonson, if you'll let her stay."

"I suppose it won't hurt her to work—keep her out of mischief," Nils said. 'But there's no need of her to work as a servant. Half of the farm belongs to her, you know."

"I want to work here," Rhoda reiterated stubbornly. "And Miss Cherry, Nils wants us to go to the opera with him to-morrow night. He knows a lot more about music than I do. They're going to sing 'Carmen.' Will you go, Miss Cherry?"

Cherry rose slowly from the couch, swaying a little as if she were ill. Her wide eyes blazed in the whiteness of her small face as she answered in a queer, monotonous voice, so unlike her usual high, lilting tones:

"No, thank you, Rhoda. I have another engagement. I—goodnight!"

Her eyes swept over the amazing young Viking, fluttered toward Faith and Bob, and then she turned away, sharply but unsteadily.

"I'll call for you and Miss Lane at eight, honey," Faith heard him saying, amazingly, to Rhoda.

"But she said she couldn't go!" Rhoda protested, her turquoise-blue eyes wide with surprise.

"She'll come with us!" Nils laughed. Then as if nothing at all unusual had happened he strode toward Faith and Bob, extending his enormous, golden-brown hand.

13-Year-Old Girl Flies Own Plane 138 Miles

KANKAKEE Ill., December 1. United Press. — Cozette Parker, 13, flew in an airplane 138 miles to visit her grandfather, who lives here.

The flight was not unusual for her, according to Cozette.

She is a freshman at the Anderson, Ind., high school. Both her parents have been pilots for 20 years.

A brother, Farnam, piloted a plane from Anderson to Washington, D.C., when he was 13 years old.

"I did not make the flight for publicity," said Cozette, "but to satisfy mother and dad I was capable of flying my own ship."

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

The "flannel nighty" is no longer forbidding when it may take the form of smart pajamas like those shown in the sketch. They are of pink and white striped light-weight wool flannel or cotton flannel, trimmed with solid pink.

You might hesitate about wearing a flannel night gown—for no other reason than because you felt that no one but very old-fashioned grandmothers wore them. But you probably feel no such prejudice against the sleeping pajama of outing flannel or fine washable woolen flannel. And if you know that these comfortable sleeping garments are now chosen by most of the girls in boarding schools and colleges you can certainly not feel that there is anything old womanish about them.

Some women follow the French fashion of wearing their usual transparent nightgowns all the year round, providing necessary warmth over shoulders and arms by means of dainty little bed jackets of silk or fine flannel more or less elaborately trimmed. But American women generally need warmer sleeping garments in winter than the French, for the reason that they sleep with windows wide open.

Just because French people retain a prejudice against cold sleeping rooms that strikes us as quite prehistoric does not mean that they really get less air in the course of the twenty-four hours. As an American who has lived long in France observed: "The American gets fresh air while he sleeps—and then eats and spends most of his waking hours indoors. The Frenchman sleeps with closed windows and then lives as much as possible outdoors while he is awake. He sits at a little table in front of the cafe when he takes his apperative, he dines outdoors when weather permits and spends his holidays in the parks. The housewife, as soon as her work is done, takes her endless bits of needlework—her baby or her dogs—and spends all her spare time sewing on a little chair in one of the parks."

Hints on Etiquette

1. If invited, informally, to a dinner and you are uncertain whether to "dress" or not, what can you do?

2. What, ordinarily, should a woman wear to a dinner?

3. When in doubt, is it better to wear a decollete evening dress or a long sleeved frock?

The Answers.

1. Call your hostess and ask her frankly.

2. An evening gown, if one does not possess a dinner gown.

3. The latter.

BEATING HELPS.

Icing For Cakes Is Smoother if Beaten Briskly.

A hint to those interested in cake-making is contained in the experience of a reader, who has discovered that a very energetic beating of an icing will result in a creamy, smooth finish to a cake, with an icing that does not harden as readily as the ordinary type.

LADY BEAVERBROOK DIES THIS MORNING

Wife of Canadian Owner of London Express Passes Away.

LONDON, Dec. 1. (United Press) —Lady Beaverbrook, wife of the chief proprietor of the London Daily Express, died to-day from heart disease.

She married the future Baron Beaverbrook in 1906. She was born in Halifax N. S., the third daughter of the late General Charles William Drury. Her husband was born in New Brunswick. After they were married the couple went to England, where Beaverbrook was created a Baron in 1916.

Lady Beaverbrook is survived by her husband, two sons and a daughter.

Lord Beaverbrook and all the members of her immediate family, were present at her bedside when her death occurred at five o'clock this morning.

Lady Beaverbrook had been subject to heart attacks for some time. She was taken ill on the summer holiday this year at Le Touquet. She recovered at the time and after her return to England had relapsed. She has been an invalid for several weeks. No arrangements have been made for the funeral.

Lady Beaverbrook's gracious and vivacious personality will be greatly missed in wide and varied circles here. She never aspired to social leadership, in the common acceptance of the term, and even less was she attracted to the hurly-burly of political platform life. Nevertheless she dispensed hospitality and performed good works in many directions and with charming and unaffected pleasure she gave happiness to others which will remain fragrant memory with all who were privileged to be included among her many acquaintances.

Lady Beaverbrook's entertainment of the New Brunswick school teachers who visited Great Britain last summer when she was at their head in their tour to some of the most celebrated places in the British Isles, was not only a well devised matter of organization, but a shining example of her ability to tender to Canadians and others a hearty welcome, which was all the more attractive because of its unassuming character.

The wedding of the Hon. Janet Aitken, only daughter of Lord and Lady Beaverbrook, and Ian Douglas Campbell, heir to the Dukedom of Argyll, was announced recently to take place on Dec. 12 at the famous Presbyterian church, St. Columbus, but at the moment no decision has been arrived at as to whether the wedding will be postponed or not. Invitations have been issued, and they request the guests to attend a reception at Stornoway House, after the Wednesday ceremony.

SHE GAINED WEIGHT WITH McCOY'S COD LIVER EXTRACT TABLETS

You remember of course—not so long ago she was a regular scarecrow—skinny is a mild word for the way she looked.

Just look at her now—if ever a woman had a perfect figure she has it—she is the envy of half the girls in town.

It's nothing to get excited about—all she did was to take on weight—filled out the hollows in face, neck and chest—any skinny, weak, run down woman can do the same and gain a clean, clear complexion at the same time.

McCoy takes all the risk—Read this ironclad guarantee. If after taking 4 sixty cent boxes of McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets or 2 one dollar boxes any thin, underweight man or woman doesn't gain at least 5 pounds and feel completely satisfied with the marked improvement in health—your druggist is authorized to return the purchase price.

Lumbago

When Lumbago yields to the influence of Thermogene it is only the natural result of an intelligent treatment. When Lumbago succumbs to that treatment, as it inevitably must, it does so from natural causes, and there is no rider to the verdict.

Lumbago cannot resist Thermogene because it cannot resist the glowing, soothing, healing warmth that Thermogene supplies. That, in plain terms, is the case for Thermogene versus Lumbago. It is the case also for Thermogene versus many of the aches and pains which winter's cold and dampness bring in their train.

When its healing warmth has done its work, Thermogene may be removed layer by layer—safely and comfortably.

BECAUSE women feared them, and because they presented endless opportunity for embarrassment, old-time sanitary "pads" had to go. Now one goes about for hours, wears sheerest frocks and gowns under the most severe hygienic difficulty without a moment's fear.

Kotex is a new-found scientific protection that virtually 8 in 10 better-class women now employ.

Filled with Cellucotton wadding, science's remarkable, new super-absorbent, it is 5 times as absorbent as ordinary cotton pads. Also, it deodorizes while it acts. AND—you discard it easily as tissue; no laundry, no embarrassment!

Obtain at stores; 12 in box. If box is not marked "Kotex," don't accept it—it is not genuine Kotex.

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S PEANUT SLED.

(Copyright, 1927, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Jingle and Jangle, Scooter and Tooter, and Stumble and Tumble rushed into Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow, laughing, shouting and yelling with glee. The little rabbit boys and girls of the old gentleman bunny were as happy as could be.

"Oh, what fun we had; didn't we?" asked Jingle.

"'Specially when Stumble popped into the snow bank," added Jangle.

"And Tumble fell in with him! Ho! Ho!" giggled Scooter.

"I don't care—we had lots of fun!" said Tumble.

The rabbit children were covered with snow which they shook off as they crowded close up to the fireplace to get warm at the leaping, crackling blaze of logs.

"Tweet! Tweet! Tweet!" sang a voice in a snug corner between two bricks of the hearth. "Tweet! Tweet! Tweet!"

"What's that?" asked Scooter.

"Why that's daddy's rolling cricket. Don't you remember?" asked Jingle. And then Scooter recalled how his father, the other day, had found a cricket inside a walnut shell, rolling himself along to find a warm place to stay during the winter. So Uncle Wiggily brought the cricket home with him to be an alarm clock.

"Tweet! Tweet!" sang Skipper, which was the name given the cricket, for he really could skip very well. "Tweet! Tweet! What is all the noise about?" and he peered from his snug, warm hole between the red bricks. "Why all the shouting?"

"Oh, we had such fun sliding down hill in the snow!" said Jingle.

"Stumble and Tumble fell off their sled," added Jangle.

"Tweet! Tweet!" sang Skipper. "I wish I could ride down hill on a sled."

"Oh, didn't you ever go coasting?" asked Tooter in surprise.

"No, never!" answered Skipper. "You see we crickets cannot live in the cold and even if I had fur, like you rabbits, I never saw a sled little enough for me to ride on."

"That's so!" said Jingle. And then she added: "Oh, but I think daddy could make you a little sled, Skipper. And he could line it with some warm, fluffy cotton from inside a milkweed pod and you wouldn't get cold. Oh, I'm going to ask him!" She ran from the room and bumped into Uncle Wiggily who, at that moment, hopped in.

"What are you going to ask me, Jingle?" chuckled the rabbit gentleman, rubbing his watch chain, which was the place where his little girl had bumped into him. "What's up now?"

"Oh, Daddicums!" cried all the little rabbits at once. "Will you please make a little, teeny sled for Skipper the cricket? He has never coasted down a snow hill! Will you?"

"Hum! I'd like to," said Uncle Wiggily. "But how could I make a sled small enough for a cricket?"

Just then Jacko Kinkytail, the monkey boy, wearing a new, warm fur coat, scrambled into the bungalow. His mother had sent him over with some cocoanut pudding for Uncle Wiggily. Jacko was eating peanuts as monkeys often do, and when he dropped half of a large shell on the floor, Jingle saw it and said:

"Oh, Daddicums! I think you could make a sled for Skipper out of half a peanut shell. The cricket would just fit, and you could put milkweed fluff in to keep him warm."

"Ha! So I could!" exclaimed Mr. Longears. "And I will! Jacko, please give me a large peanut—the largest you have. When the peanut was cracked open, and Jacko had politely eaten the meat, since the rabbit children didn't like peanuts, Uncle Wiggily took the shell and painted it blue. Then from an old milkweed pod the bunny uncle pulled some of the soft, cotton-like fluff and lined the peanut shell sled warmly. Next he fastened on it a string to pull it and called to Skipper to crawl out from between the bricks and try it.

"Oh, it's a lovely sled!" chirped the cricket, as Jingle pulled him around the kitchen floor. "But would it be safe for me to go riding in it out in the cold snow?" he asked, "Do you think it would be safe?"

"We shall try that to-morrow," answered Mr. Longears. "At any rate we have the peanut sled. It is too late to go out to-night. To-morrow I will take you for a ride."

"Jacko, please give me a large peanut."

VERY HARD LARGE PIMPLES

Spread Over Face and Hands, Cuticura Heals.

"My trouble began with a few pimples on my face and hands and soon spread all over them. The pimples were very hard, large and red, and festered and scaled over. They itched and burned so that I scratched them, which caused eruptions. My face was disfigured, and I could not put my hands in water and could hardly do my work.

"A friend advised me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment so I purchased some, and in about two months I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Jennie Ducharme, 481 Giroux St., Norwood, Man.

MANY REQUISITES IN GOOD BEE CELLAR

Evenness of Temperature Is Necessary—Must Be Underground and Well Ventilated.

(Experimental Farms Note.)

The first requisite is a comfortable temperature of about 45 degrees Fahrenheit, which should be maintained throughout the entire winter. To acquire this evenness of temperature, the cellar must be well insulated in order that changes in the weather may not affect the inside temperature. The cellar, therefore, must be completely underground or that part of its walls extending above the ground must be banked by four feet of dry earth. Its ceiling, too, must be below frost level and covered with three feet of sawdust or dry earth. The entrance to the cellar should be protected by a vestibule with inner and outer close-fitting doors and the value of the insulating material should be maintained by a tight roof.

The second requisite, ventilation, is a very difficult one to adjust to a nicety, for in the desire to secure pure air, too large a shaft may be used, resulting in the temperature of the cellar being lowered. A 6-inch square air-shaft through the ceiling is about the right size for an ordinary cellar and even this, during the early winter, may have to be reduced. Also an intake of a similar size should be supplied with its inlet close to the floor of the cellar. As a supplement to the air-shaft, an electric fan is very useful for forcing fresh air into the cellar or, better still, forcing foul air out. When the cellar temperature cannot be lowered and the bees start to roar, the use of an electric fan quickly produces quiet. Furthermore, do not overcrowd the cellar. Allow approximately 10 cubic feet of air space per colony.

Still another requisite is darkness. The ventilator should not admit any light nor should white light be used in the bee cellar, particularly in the late winter when the bees, which are weary with waiting for daylight, are easily disturbed.

Drainage, too, is necessary, but boney-dryness not essential.

By placing his fingers on a cone-type loud speaker, F. J. Shaunesey of Rochester, N. Y., who is deaf and dumb, is able to "listen" to music and pick out the various instruments in an orchestra.

A GRATEFUL LETTER TO PROF. MURPHY FROM ONE OF HIS CURED PATIENTS

Hamilton, Ont., 400 Mary St. Aug. 16, 1027.

Prof. Murphy, Box 281, Toronto.

Dear Sir,—I write you these few lines in gratitude for what your remcost me my savings and two months of my time endeavouring to get redy has done for me. For eight years I tried every possible method to rid myself of a tapeworm which was harbouring in my intestinal tract. It lief at Hot Springs in Arkansas, but without avail. My nerves were unstrung and I always seemed to be hungry at all times of the day.

I would wake up during the night and cough blood which the doctors told me came from ulcers on the stomach.

Perhaps it was a favour from God that a friend told me what Tonine had done for his stomach trouble and rheumatism and that it might be of some use to me.

Feeling that I had nothing to lose and everything to gain I started the treatment of Tonine. After I had taken the second bottle of Tonine I passed a tapeworm from my body measuring eight feet in length. After the fourth bottle the ulcers were permanently healed. I continued the treatment until I took ten bottles as you advised me, and to-day as I write you these few lines I am minus that craving appetite, drowsiness, and sluggish demeanor, and can conscientiously say that I am permanently cured.

I will need no more of your medicine, but I will continually recommend your great remedy Tonine to all suffering people whom I come in contact with, in appreciation of the wonderful change you have brought about in my life. Wishing you and your medicine every success.

Yours truly, James Douglas.

JUST A FEW TESTIMONIALS OF PROF. MURPHY'S TONINE "THE NEW HERBAL WONDER"

I do not know of any better evidence; please read these letters; you may know some of the writers, and if you wish to satisfy yourself that they are genuine, write any one, or all of them,

Sarlingford, Ont. April 18th, 1927.

Dear Prof. Murphy:—

I received your medicine on time and am quite satisfied that it is helping me. I am not by any means cured yet, but mine is a bad case of nervous indigestion. My doctor calls it the most stubborn case he ever came in contact with. Nothing has ever helped me like Tonine and I am going to stick to the treatment as I have every confidence it will pull me through.

Yours truly, G. Sprung.

May 11, 1926 Muskoka Sanitarium Gravenhurst, Ont.

Dear Sir:—

I am sending for some of your medicine Tonine. I have taken a few bottles and find it wonderful for my stomach and as a system builder. Enclosed find money order for $2.00 for two more bottles.

Yours truly, James Gloster.

Aurora, Ont.

Dear Sir:—

Please find enclosed two dollars for two bottles of your Herbal Wonder Tonine. I got a bottle of it from you at Newmarket and it did me more good than anything I ever had. I told two others about it and they said it had done wonders for them.

Yours truly, Albert Taylor.

Bouchette, Que. May 10th, 1927

Dear Sir: —

I am enclosing two dollars for two more bottles of Tonine. I certainly am glad that I heard about this medicine as I thought I would die with the agony that I went through with pains in my back from kidney trouble. Send the medicine at once. I don't want to be without it.

Yours truly, Mrs. Arthur Pelletier,

Grand Rapids, Mich. August 10, 1927.

Dear Sir:—

Will you please send me two bottles of Tonine. I am enclosing $2 and 20 cents for postage. I first got some of your medicine when I was living in Toronto. I am taking it for rheumatism and find that it does the work.

Yours truly, M. Williams.

900 Baxter St., Grand Rapids, Mich.

Cosgrove, Sask. Sept. 28, 1926

Dear Sir:—

I have been taking Tonine for one month and I find it the best thing I have ever had for my complaint which is kidney trouble. My sister came to my place for a visit and she had a bottle with her which she got in Toronto, and she gave me half of the bottle and the medicine did me so much good that I am enclosing one dollar and twelve cents in stamps for which please send me at once another bottle.

Yours truly, Mrs. R. N. Rasell.

Scugog Ont., R.R. No. 3 June 2nd, 1925

Dear Sir:—

Send me two more bottles of your Herbal Wonder Tonine. I have been taking it since March and I want to tell you that it has put me on my feet, after everything else failed.

Yours truly, Robert McKnight.

Coldwater, Ont. March 3rd, 1927

Dear Sir:—

About a month ago my husband was in the city and knowing I was troubled with pains in my back, weak and nervous he bought a bottle of your Tonine from you. It has done me so much good, helped build me up and made me feel so much better that I would like you to send me two more bottles, and oblige,

Yours truly, Mrs. Henry Lye.

Campbellford, Ont. Aug. 14, 1927

Prof. T. P. Murphy, 73 Ossington Ave. Toronto.

Dear Sir:—

My husband who was gassed in France has been taking your medicine and he has gained such strength that I want to take this means of thanking you. It has taken all the gas from his stomach and formerly he used to have dizzy spells when he walked down the street as though he were intoxicated. Now he walks as steady as he did before his illness.

Yours truly, Mrs. G. H. Flint.

Sahamatlen, Ont. via Bala June 6th, 1927

Dear Sir:—

Enclosed find $1.00. Send me more Tonine, as the first bottle I bought from you has helped me wonderfully.

Yours truly, Mrs. Zeb Rondes.

Mountain Grove, Ont. June 7th, 1927

Dear Sir:—

I have taken two bottles of your Tonine and I find it real satisfactory. Before starting to take the medicine I felt drowsy, sleep, tired and had no appetite. Now I feel like a new person. Will you kindly send me two bottles more by return mail.

Yours sincerely, Mrs. Burton Bradley.

Oshawa, Ont. R.R. No. 3, Base Line

Dear Sir:—

Will you please send me a bottle of Tonine at once. It has done wonders for me and I want to keep it on hand all the time. Hoping to receive a bottle by return mail.

Very sincerely yours, Jason Shields.

Prof. Murphy Speaks

Dear Friends:—

Perhaps you have wondered why I have not been lecturing in your city lately. The reason is that the last six months has brought about such a change and increase in my business that I have had to devote nearly all my time to answering letters from my thousands of patients and supplying over 500 druggists in Canada who now handle my Herbal Wonder—Tonine.

I have arranged with your leading drug stores, McDermid & Jury, and McDermid Drug Co. Ltd. to represent me exclusively in Peterborough and district and you will be able in the future to buy Tonine direct from them at the same price you formerly bought it from me, $1 per bottle or 3 bottles for $5.

To those who have used Tonine before and as an inducement to those who have not yet used it I have arranged with McDermid & Jury, and McDermid Drug Co., Ltd. to make you a special offer never made before and never to be made again. For one day only, Saturday, December 3rd.

GENE TUNNEY IS AGAIN IN LEGAL SPOTLIGHT

HOFF'S PAPERS ARE SERVED ON HEAVY CHAMP

Philadelphia Promoter Seeks To Collect Part of Champion's Earnings.

PADDED SQUARE GOSSIP.

Tunney Must File Answer To Charge Within Twenty Days.

NEW YORK, December 1. — With the former heavyweight champion temporarily out of the legal spotlight, his conqueror has moved into the defendant's dock.

In papers served upon him, Gene Tunney was notified that the time has arrived when he must explain whether or not he assigned 20 per cent. of his earnings to Max "Boo-Boo' 'Hoff, of Philadelphia. If so, why ,and what for?

The Hoff action, which has been threatening since September 23, 1926, the night that Tunney defeated Jack Dempsey in Philadelphia for the world's championship, materialized on Tuesday. Billy Gibson, manager of Tunney, admitted that process servers have tapped the champion on the shoulder, but denied that he had been served.

Under the rules governing the contest, Tunney must answer the bell within twenty days. That is, he must file his answer to the charge by that time, at which time the date of a trial may be set.

Hoff claims that Tunney and Gibson "cut him in" on the champion's earnings while Tunney was training for the first Dempsey fight. Hoff claims that he was to receive 20 per cent. in the event that Tunney won the title, but that the contract was to be regarded as null and void in the event that Tunney lost.

Tunney has taken the news of the suit quite calmly. He is proceeding with his plans as if nothing had happened. He intends to leave for Miami for a short rest about December 15, and will jump from Florida to Chicago for a Christmas fund benefit during the holidays. His attorneys are preparing his answer.

The weird logic by which George "Tex" Rickard reasons out who is a heavyweight contender broke out in another strange manifestation. He announced that Jack Delaney has been chosen to meet the winner of the Jack Sharkey-Tom Heeney match.

Risko Is Ignored.

Before Paulino Uzcudun met Johnny Risko, Rickard said the winner of that match would meet the winner of the Sharkey-Heeney bout. He frankly admitted that he expected Paulino to win.

But the wrong man won, so "Texie" has decided that it wasn't an elimination contest after all. If the eliminators do not eliminate according to the Rickard schedule, the results will be disregarded.

Taylor Suspended.

Bud Taylor, of Terre Haute, Ind., who is recognized by the National Boxing Association as the world's bantamweight champion, was suspended indefinitely by the State Athletic Commission, making the fourth boxer of the championship distinction or claims thereto to be banned by the Empire State solons. The others are Mickey Walker, world's middleweight champion, who is on the ineligible list; Joe Dundee, world's welterweight champion, and Charley (Phil) Rosenberg, undefeated world's bantamweight champion.

Taylor's suspension was automatic, in accordance with the commission rules affecting boxers who sign for bouts here and fail to fulfill their engagements. He was signed to fight Tony Canzoneri to-night, but withdrew from the contest because of a fractured right hand. He was suspended until such time as he fulfills his contract. In the meantime Ignazio Fernandez, Filipino, has been substituted against Canzoneri.

Many Applicants For Vacancy at Syracuse

SYRACUSE, Dec. 1.—More than a score of applications for the managership of the Syracuse Stars of the International League have been received by Warren Giles, president of the club. Burt Shotten's advancement to the management of the Philadelphia Nationals created the vacancy. Giles said he would make no decision until after the minor league convention in Dallas, Texas, next week.

Billy Southworth, Danny Clark and Pancho Snyder of the Saint Louis Cardinals; Patsy Donovan and Spencer Abbott, former International League managers; Mike O'Neill, colorful figure of the old New York State League, and Joe Mathes, manager of Houston (Tex.) club, are among those being considered.

YANK GRIDDERS NOT TO STRIKE

Promoter Pyle Denies That He Threatened To Disband Team.

WILL NOT CUT SALARIES.

NEW YORK, December 1. — C. C. Pyle, co-owner with "Red" Grange of the New York Yankee professional football team, yesterday afternoon emphatically denied there was mutiny in the ranks of his players over money matters or that the present team was to be disbanded for the purpose of organizing a new eleven.

"It would be foolish to consider such a thing at this late date in the season," Pyle said.

Earlier reports said that Pyle had stormed at his men because of recent defeats, and that he informed them that their games at Syracuse and New York this week would be played on a "half pay" basis.

The report went on to say that the players "struck," causing Pyle to declare that he would recruit a new team by Saturday, when the Yankees play the Providence Steamrollers at Syracuse.

Pyle was said to have effected a truce yesterday. With the exception of Glenn Tryon ,who has a seasonal contract for $6,000, and Red Grange part owner, the players average around $150 per game, it was said, and they refused to play for less.

SPORT BITS

Whether Belanger or Jarvis wins the title affair slated for the 19th at the Caliseum there will be a follow up in the shape of a bout between Genaro and the winner. Both Jarvis and his Toronto rival have agreed to give the New Yorker a chance to get in the picture again.

Many things may happen in the meantime and perhaps Genaro will not be so anxious to try his luck against the champion, whoever it may be, when the opportunity presents itself. He is not the boxer that he was when he whipped the late Pancho Villa and had the bout on Monday night been over a longer route would probably have been licked decisively.

WILL REPRESENT CANADA AT THE OLYMPIC GAMES

The Toronto Varsity Grads, winners of the Allan Cup at Vancouver last winter, who will represent Canada at the Olympic games at St. Moritz, Switzerland, next February, will meet Marlboros tonight at Arena Gardens in an S.P.A. senior game. This is the regular team that won the Allan Cup, but there are five other members of the team who are eligible for the trip. No. 1 is Frank Sullivan, 2 Charlie Delahay, 3 Ross Taylor, 4 Joe Sullivan, 5 Dr. Lou Hudson, 6 Jack Porter (captain), 7 Hugh Plaxton, 8 Dave Trottier.

BELANGER SIGNS FOR JARVIS BOUT

Match Between Rivals For World's Title To Be Boxed on 19th.

TORONTO Dec. 1. — Genaro and his party, including the voluble Joe Jacobs, had no complaints to make, at least audibly, regarding the decision in Monday night's bout, although there is little doubt but that the little fighter thought that he should not have got worse than a draw

Jacobs has asked on behalf of his diminutive veteran that he be given a return bout with his conqueror, a request which Belanger had no hesitation in granting The latter is satisfied that he can "take" Genaro in a second meeting and nothing would suit him better than to prove this fact "Frenchy" realizes that he didn't show his best form the other night He was too keen to win decisively and in his anxiety to topple over the elusive New Yorker allow himself to be outboxed for the major part of the time.

At that Belanger had his foxy opponent wobbly on occasions but he was wily enough to fall into a clinch and rest up whenever he was in trouble.

It was Genaro's grab and hold tactics that slowed up the contest and hampered the winner's style. Belanger complained more than once about the catch-as-catch-can methods employed by his rival but without avail.

That Jarvis and Belanger will battle for the world's championship here on the 19th of next month is assured. The principals got together and accepted the terms offered by the Shamrock club and all that is now needed is the sanction of the National Boxing Association which is likely to be forthcoming in due course.

Not even Chicago, or for that matter New York, could do better in the way of financial inducements than the Toronto club The attendance on Monday night, in the opinion of Secretary Treasurer Berg of the N.B.A., was the largest on record for a bout between flyweights.

It is not known definitely yet how many attended but it is assumed that in the neighborhood of 9,200 passed or were shoved through the turnstiles. The gate amounted to $16,680, Genaro getting $4,050 as his share, while Belanger, who was working on a smaller percentage, drew down $3,170. Considering that the Toronto youngster until his battle with Brown which netted him something like $1,000 had never before earned more than $175, and that he boxed in the semi-final to the Burnlie-Newsboy Brown last spring for a paltry $100, he did pretty well. And the end is not yet.

New Edinburghs champions of Ottawa City and district hockey, have been invited to tour Europe this winter under the auspices of the Berlin hockey club, of which Dr. L. Roche, an Ottawa boy, and son of Dr. J. W. Roche, civil service commissioner, is one of the palyers. It is hoped to secure permission from the Ottawa City League and the Ottawa District A.H.A. after the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has passed on the matter. The Burghs are invited to play the Varsity Grads in Berlin Feb. 26.

FORMER PETES PLAYING WELL

McDougall and Bogardis Among Stars—Stratford Beats Ravinas.

FINAL SCORE 2-1.

TORONTO Dec. 1. — Stratford took a 2 to 1 decision at the expense of the speedy Ravinas here last night in a game that provided plenty of fast hockey and not a few thrills and spills. It was a tight fit all the way with Rene Fourgetting the winning marker fifteen minutes after the last period began. The count at the end of the first period was 0 to 0 and at the end of the second it was 1 to 1.

Coach Frank Selke has his men in fine condition for the test against the Red and White machine and they turned in their best effort of the season. However, Goalkeeper Dobson was on his finest behavior, which means that counters were hard to get and the locals just could not negotiate the distance.

Penalties were costly. Stratford scoring a goal to tie the count in the second period while Captain Bert Corbeau was in the box, and Fournier getting the winner when Corbeau was banished again. All penalties were for minor offences and for the most part the players, while strenous stuck to their knitting.

The Stratford defence was airtight most of the time but there were occasions when the elusive Joe Primeau the hard shooting Elliott and the good goal-getter Jerry Lowery, were close in for dangerous shots at Dolson. Carl Voss, too, laid some terrific drives on the Stratford cage guardian's pads and Corbeau dashed in several times to test him with scorchers.

Young "Shrimp" McDougall, late of the Owen Sound juniors, made his debut in professional ranks and did fine work. It was only the second time that he has been on skates this season, but he was as tricky as ever, and his fast skating put him in right with the small crowd that braved the wretched weather to get a glimpse of Canadian Professional League hockey.

Bogardis, Quesnel, Reinikka and the defense pair, stood out for the visitors. Horne and Kelterbourne, counted on to do a lot of damage, were well looked after by Selke's improved team. Fournier was there in the pinch but for the most part was checked closely and couldn't get set for his fast shots.

KITCHENER 7, HAMILTON 2.

KITCHENER, Dec 1.— Kitchener retained first place in the Canadian League by defeating Hamilton, 7 to 2, here last night. It was the second time this year that the team has conquered the Hamiltons. There was not as much to choose between the two teams as the score indicates, except in the goal, where there was a wide margin, Fisher playing steadily throughout, while Taugher was erratic. This was particularly noticeable in the final period, when the winners whipped in four goals in a three and a half minute period, just when it appeared that Hamilton had fought its way back into the game.

LONDON 2, NIAGARA FALLS 2.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Dec. 1.— Last night's Canadian League fixture here between London and Niagara Falls ended in a 2—2 deadlock. It was an excellent exhibition of hockey throughout, and, though the inclement weather kept many away, some 2,000 fans were present. The teams battled even-stephen for the greater part, but on the night's play the Falls had a little edge and lost more good chances to score than the visitors. Hughes, Holmes, Roach and Herrington turned in strong games on the Falls attack, while Spring and Speyer on defense were airtight, making most London shots come from well out.

Jackson, Groh, Starkings and Pilmore were the most effective London performers. McCormick in goal had more to do than Ironstone and made some very clever saves.

WILL RE-ENTER LISTS.

BERLIN, December 1. Canadian Press. — Dr. Emmanuel Lacker, who for 27 years successfully defended the title of world's chess champion which he eventually lost to Capablanca in 1921, yesterday indicated a readiness to re-enter the lists for another try for first honors.

American Association Plans to Prohibit Major League Ownership, Says T. J. Hickey

CHICAGO, December 1 (Associated Press). — The American Association is going to close the door to major league ownership of its clubs.

President Thomas J. Hickey said last night that the club owners were unanimous in this decision, and legislation barring the American or National League clubs from owning or controlling franchises in the American Association would be adopted at the meeting to be held in Dallas, Texas, on Saturday.

"The major leaguers are fast getting hold of minor league clubs, using them as farms," President Hickey said. "Their interests conflict with ours; we have reached the conclusion that de do not want them."

The Columbus Club is the only team in the association at present owned by major league interests. It is controlled by the Cincinnati Club of the National League.

Adoption of a schedule for the 1928 season will come up at the Dallas session, with prospects that the usual 168 games will be played next year. President Hickey has three drafts of dates to submit. All offer a schedule of 168 games with the West and the Eastern clubs in the Eastern end of the circuit.

The club owners will assemble here on Friday, leaving for the South on a special train with other baseball leaders going to Dallas to attend the meeting of the National Association of Minor Leagues opening there next week.

OSHAWA LOSES IN S.P.A. GAME

Varsity Juniors Come From Behind To Win Out 3-2.

FOUR TEAM LEFT.

TORONTO Dec. 1. — University of Toronto juniors eliminated Oshawa from the S.P.A. series at Arena Gardens last night in a game of hockey that provided few thrills until the final period. The score was 3 to 2. Only a small crowd witnessed the contest and the majority of those present were from Oshawa, judging from the rooting in the first period.

The collegians appeared to be in for a trimming in the first period, when Oshawa had a big margin of the play and left the ice at the first rest period with a 2 to 0 lead. But the students braced up in the second period and livened up the game by keeping Oshawa off the score sheet and running in a couple of goals to tie the score.

The third period was a battle. Both teams were after the winning goal and after the university boys took the lead Oshawa made frantic efforts to secure the equalizer. Amid shouts of "Come on Oshawa!" the youngster from the Motor City worked hard but they were not equal to the task of beating Hunniset who gave an impressive performance of good goal keeping. Persistent backchecking on the part of the students broke up the team play of their opponents and there was a noticeable improvement in the college team's defence ,which appeared to be very porous in the opening period.

NEWS REGENT ORCHESTRA REVIEW

THEATRES

AT THE REGENT.

SCENES STAGED IN AIR BALLOON.

Like Alexander the Great, who sat down and sighed when there were no more worlds to conquer, Frank Currier, veteran actor of stage and screen, now bemoans the fact that there is nothing more in the line of thrills for him to experience.

Currier, who plays the role of the judge in "Rookies," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's riotous comedy, now playing at the Regent Theatre, spent a week above the clouds over Hollywood during the filming of the balloon sequence. Every morning Currier, who has spent more than fifty years on the American stage and screen, went up in the basket attached to the big army balloon and worked his eight hours before the camera.

It is true enough that Marcelline Day, heroine of the film, was there, as were George K. Arthur and Karl Dane, new film comedy team, that is making its debut in the production. But these are younger people and take the matter of a ride in the sky figuratively speaking, as a skylark. Most men of the age of Frank Currier are content to sit back in an automobile and let a good careful chauffeur drive them slowly on a paved thoroughfare.

But Currier, according to Director Wood, got as much kick out of the filming of the aerial sequence as any body else in the basket.

The original screen story was written by Byron Morgan, noted fiction writer and was directed by Sam Wood. It is chuck full of comedy, and said to be one of the funniest pictures of the season.

CANADIENS WIN GAME IN CHICAGO

Defeat Black Hawks 5-2, Superior Speed Giving Advantage.

CHICAGO, Ills., Dec. 1.—Canadiens, the fast flying Frenchmen, were too much for the Chicago Black Hawks in their National Hockey League game here last night, outspeeding the locals to romp off with the game, 5 to 2. The spectacular play of the Canadiens kept the crowd seething with excitement. Canadiens scored in every period and in the first and second periods they scored a pair of goals.

Mackay and Captain Irvin scored for Chicago in the second and third periods, counting the first goals the Black Hawks have registered on the home ice this season.

FOWL SUPPER IS SUCCESSFUL

Women's Guild of St. Luke's Church Serves Nearly 400 People.

GOOD PROGRAM AFTER.

The annual fowl supper held under the auspices of the Women's Guild of St. Luke's Church in the parish hall, on Tuesday evening, was extremely successful, with an attendance of between three and four hundred people for an excellent supper. Arrangements were carried out in the best possible manner, and the evening included an entertainment following the service of supper, with Rev. G. J. Bousfield as chairman, and an auction conducted by Reg. Turner.

Mrs. J. M. Gemmell, president of the Women's Guild, was the energetic convenor of a group of able assistants, who looked after every detail in a very satisfactory manner. The tables were attractive with their floral decorations of pink 'mums and white narcissus and smilax, and pink candles in silver candlesticks.

The four tables from which supper was served were in charge of Mesdames E. A. Heap, C. Hughes, W. Davies, G. Lipsett, S. H. Long, R. Wilson, J. Mackin, R Maniece, assisted by Mesdames S. Whitaker, C. Joyes, M. G. Hardill, S. Perry, C. Brownlee, and the Misses F. Adams, F. Pammett, C. Long, Helen Lipsett, L. Stewart, Audrey Heap, Edna Thompson, Maude Joyes, Grace Simpson, Eulah Simpson, Amy Doupe. Other ladies assisting in various capacities included Mesdames J. J .Turner, D. G. Sloane, R. H. Parsons, Ronald McKee, M. Curtis, W. H. Thompson, T. Moore, J. Scott, Alex. Butcher, F. C. Burgess, J. S. Mason, H. Fitch, H. Butcher, F. Findlay, G. Logan, Charles Butcher A. Nickels, F .H Adams, T. Maniece, R. Simpson, and the Misses E. Graham, A .Shaw, M. Calcutt.

During the evening entertainment, the Wilson Orchestra provided excellent music, and the play "Mr. Bobs" was repeated by the Girls' Auxiliary, with the following taking part: Mrs. W. Hepburn and the Misses Queenie Hope, Army Doupe, C. Long, A. Simmons, and Messrs. R. Krant and Cecil Hope. Stage managers were Messrs. J. Grierson and V. Sedgewick.

MINERAL WEALTH IN THIS DISTRICT

Provincial Geologist Believes Region Contains Valuable Deposits.

OTTAWA, Dec. 1 (Special dispatch).—Yesterday was an eventful day in the history of mining in Canada. Hon. Charles McCrea is leading the mining administrations of the various provinces in new ideas and progressive policies. The Mining Act of 1927 has many new provisions and all in favor of the genuine prospector or investor. The first trains over the Nipissing Central stub, hitching up Toronto, Ottawa with Rouyn mining camp, from Swaskika, went over yesterday Many business houses from Ottawa, Montreal and Toronto were represented The majority were agents of big machinery plaints. The line runs through McGarry and McVeigh townships where new gold and copper finds have been made The Taschereau line from Montreal into Rouyn is being rushed. The two big mail order houses in Toronto will now try the chain stores.

Probably the most popular branch of Ontario's mining innovations is the free lectures by travelling geologists. Dr. E. M. Burwash, formerly of British Columbia University, and now of the Mining Department at Toronto, concluded his series of discourses on mining, minerals, rock formations, and the surface evidence of precious metals. The day classes from 10 to 12 and the evening lectures from 8 to 10, with pictures, drew large gatherings, regardless of weather or counter attractions. There were many capitalists, distinguished engineers, prospectors, and many ladies attended these letures. Dr. Burwash hints that the Grenville zone of Eastern Ontario from Kingston to Perth, Peterborough and Belleville limestone region, very probably has valuable hidden deposits of lead, zinc, or iron. Northern Ontario and Quebec, he claims, is the present most attractive gold mining camp in the world.

Dr. Burwash did not say, but it is hinted that Peterborough district will produce radium. The presence of N. Timmins, the president of Hollinger Company, and financial experts of the M. J. O'Brien Co., and others known to fame in the mining world, added interest to the gathering.

At the request of the class of prospectors, the thanks of the meeting was moved by J. D. G. Grace and Dr. R. Ruddick. The latter was the first to find gold in Northern Ontario. Mr. Grace was loudly applauded when he said the best services that any Canadian could render his country at this time was to convince foreign capitalists that our Departments of Mines were in the hands of honest, able administrators. He named Hon. Charles McCrea of Ontario; Hon. William Sloan of British Columbia, and Hon. Mr. Perrault of Quebec.

Toronto General Trusts Corporation, Transfer Agents. Royal Trust Company, Registrars. Clarkson, Gordon and Dilworth, Auditors.
Bankers: Canadian Bank of Commerce

THE COMPANY—The Lindsay Distilleries Limited is incorporated under the Dominion Companies Act and by its charter is empowered to carry on the business of distillers and to manufacture, deal in, buy, sell, distribute, store, warehouse and export liquors of all kinds, commercial and denatured alcohol and all their by-products. The company manufactures four brands of Scotch whiskeys, rye, and gin, and in addition to their own brands the company have a very profitable five-year contract with one of the oldest Scottish distilleries to bottle three well known brands of high-grade Scotch whiskey.

THE DISTILLERY AND BOTTLING PLANT is in complete successful operation and the companies' brands of liquors are now on the market. The company has its own warehouse in Toronto to give modern and efficient service to its customers.

The MAIN DISTILLERY is equipped with most modern machinery to manufacture high grade alcohol. The capacity of the distillery is now 1,000,000 gallons per annum and as business demands this production can be doubled at a very nominal cost.

THE CHEMICAL DISTILLERY is and has been in operation for 10 years producing methyl (wood) alcohol, charcoal, and acetate of lime.

MANAGEMENT—The company is fortunate in securing the services of blenders, chemists and executives with years of experience and its personnel, coupled with most modern methods and equipment, fully approved by the Dominion Excise Department can only result in the quick establishment of a sound business with substantial profits to its shareholders. The properties are situated in the Town of Lindsay, on the Trent Valley Canal, with railway sidings on both properties. The company has only one class of stock, namely, common shares without nominal par value. Upon completion of present financing the company will have no bonded debt, mortgage, preferred stock, or bank loans. The company will have ample working capital and be entirely free of debt, except current accounts. No valuation has been placed on the charter, license, trade mark, trade name or good will.

The proceeds of the sale of this issue of common shares of Lindsay Distilleries Limited, referred to above is made in order to provide funds to be used for final payment of plant equipment and for working capital.

We are offering a limited amount of stock at $20 per shade, which price is subject to change without notice. Personally, we see no reason for this stock not being worth anywhere from $50 to $100 per share within a comparatively short time.

EARNINGS—Estimated, First Year:

Distillery Plant	$300,000.00
Chemical Plant	30,000.00
		$330,000.00
For Second Year		$500,000.00
For Third Year		1,000,000.00

It is intended in due course to apply to have these shares admitted to the unlisted department of the Toronto Stock Exchange.

All orders taken subject to acceptance or rejection. In case of over-subscription, any monies paid will be refunded.

Price $20.00 per share

When a Man Loves

By ALICE LOWE MILES

Copyright 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
John Barrymore in "WHEN A MAN LOVES" is a Warner Bros. Pic turization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Fabien, good and handsome youth of France, trains for the priesthood; but meets and loves Manon Lescaut, beauteous orphan, whose rascally brother, realizing her worldly value, barters her to Ravoir, rich connoisseur of women. Fabien saves her and carries her off to Paris, where they live happily together. Manon's brother steals her for Ravoir; she escapes, and searches vainly for Fabien. Circumstances force her to surrender to Ravoir. Later, hearing she frequents a gambling place, Fabien goes there, reviles her and insults Ravoir.

CHAPTER XII.—Continued.

The Comte had long since cultivated the habit of suppressing his anger and saving his energies for pleasure rather than for combat. It was far more gratifying.

"I see that Monsieur is not even man enough to defend his lady! I bid you both good—bye." With a final significant look at Manon, Fabien bowed low and approached the stairs with a deadly calm that struck terror to Manon's numbed heart.

The people watched his departure with breathless silence and not until the massive doors had closed behind him did the tension relax. Then everyone began talking at once. "What a night—What a situation. Now, Manon could not hold her head so high in that sweet, innocent way of hers. Now the men could not refer to her as such a paragon of all that a woman should be." Thus the women's tongues rattled on.

As for the men: some were decently sorry about the whole wretched affair, while others were encouraged to think that, now, they too might have a chance with Manon. They had thought her different; apparently she was not.

The Comte had never experienced such annoyance. Trembling with resentment, one could hardly call it by a stronger name, he guided Manon from the room. In a few short moments the pomp and splendor of their arrival had vanished revealing, not the idol of Paris with her wealthy and polished escort, but, two ordinary people stripped of all glamor and exposed to their friends and enemies as a common woman and a cowardly man.

Nana's laugh of deep, amused and satisfied revenge was the last sound Manon heard as the great doors closed behind them.

After leaving the gambling room, Fabien calmly walked outside of the building and with studied deliberation tipped the doorman. He overcame the desire to collapse by tensing every muscle and forcing his legs to move.

Faithful Tiberge emerged from the shadows where he had been waiting ever since Fabien entered the Club. He knew that his friend would be disillusioned and greatly in need of a guiding hand before the night was over, and he had appointed himself for the task, knowing that it would be both difficult and thankless.

Sensing Fabien's anguish, Tiberge followed and gripped him tenderly by the shoulder. At the touch of a comforting hand Fabien's control gave way. All of his pent up emotions broke loose and for a moment he rested against Tiberge, taking all the support that was offered.

"You were right," said Fabien simply. It was a tortured admission that meant the end of all earthly happiness.

"No wonder he looks crucified!" thought Tiberge. Although he had never experienced Fabien's emotions or known a woman's love, he understood the pangs of sorrow and suffering and knew the welcome comfort that comes from silent sympathy.

The two men went down the street, arm in arm, thinking—each one in his own way but neither saying a word.

It was dawn before they turned in at Tiberge's lodgings to discuss the future.

CHAPTER XIII.

In the south of France was, and probably still is, the great Chateau Des Grieux where Fabien spent his early youth as the favored son of devoted parents.

It was a rather austere and well ordered home radiating dignity and supreme respectability. From the time that Fabien was a boy soloist in the church choir it was planned that he should some day become a Priest. Consequently, it is easy to picture the sorrow and disgrace that descended upon his Mother and Father and brothers when word came that Fabien had forsaken his vows to live a life of shame with some unknown girl in Paris.

Tiberge was a life long friend of the family and went to them with the hope of assuaging their grief. "Your son is not lost to you, Sir," he said. "Perhaps even now he repents of his boyish folly."

"Every ambition I had was centered on him," tonelessly replied the grief-stricken father, "He has betrayed my faith and broken his mother's heart."

For a moment Tiberge stood with bowed head, then with face alight he continued, "But his natural piety will outlast this whim of the senses."

"I wonder—I wonder!" reflected the Father.

"It is true, sir. You need worry no more about Fabien. He has at last given up all thought of Manon, and is entering St. Sulpice to resume his studies for the Priesthood."

A wonderful sense of peace and relief spread over the fine old gentleman's face, "Thank God," he said fervently. "When you return take him our love, our blessings and our forgiveness."

When Tiberge delivered this message, the repentent son was deeply grateful and it lifted a great burden from his soul. He dearly loved his family, and now that the harrowing incidents of the past few months were over it was difficult to understand how he had been so able to completely forget and neglect them.

However, Fabien's resolve to re-enter St. Sulpice came only after a tremendous struggle to forget the Manon he loved and the perfidous woman he thought she had become. In the end it was Tiberge who persuaded him to renounce the pleasures of the world and enter into holy orders. The plan also suited Fabien's changed outlook on life. He imagined himself entirely safe from the dangers of love and honestly believed he had reached the stage in life where prayerful meditation was worth more than the gratification of his earthly appetites, even those he had enjoyed with Manon.

Fabien was determined to lead a holy and Christian life with the hours so divided between study and religion that there would be no leisure for the perilous pleasures of love. He was convinced that he had lost all esteem for Manon. Yet her image, with its exquisite features, was engraved on his very heart's core and would always remain uneffaced. He was, also, positive that no other woman could tempt him because he detested them as a class and as individuals he did not care to even converse with another.

For nearly a year now, Fabien had been devoting himself to study. His peace of mind was restored. His past contact with love enabled him to understand many passages in the classics which had been previously obscure, and he looked upon the world with new eyes—eyes that saw in the beautiful influence of the Church another life extending into the years ahead. In this other life the memory of Manon would be consigned to eternal oblivion.

The time was drawing near for Fabien to take his public examinations in theology, and at such events it was customary for the names of students to be posted so that the public could attend if they were interested.

It happened that Manon saw Fabien's name in this connection and lost no time in availing herself of the opportunity to attend. Ladies were forced to sit in special seats behind a screen so that Fabien had no idea of her presence. Every day for a whole week she was there, watching and waiting, longing for a chance to see and speak with him privately. The examinations ended and Manon's wish remained ungratified.

She knew that Fabien was to take his final vows on the following day, and as her whole future happiness depended upon seeing him before that time she determined to throw convention to the winds and seek him out at the Church. Her love was not dead, in fact it had matured until it was the only vital thing in her life.

FALSE TEETH
made spotlessly clean without any tiresome brushing

TO keep false teeth glisteningly white, gold work unclouded—cleanse them every day by the easy HYGEOL method. Tiresome brushing is done away with entirely. The teeth are purified (completely sterilized, as well as cleansed) by a twenty-minute immersion in a solution of one part HYGEOL to three parts water. They can be left to clean while you dress. At the end of that time, remove and rinse. The teeth will be sweet and fresh, freed from all food particles, discolorations, germs, and that mucous film which resists brushing so stubbornly.

If you prefer, teeth can be left overnight—a much milder solution sufficing under this method—one teaspoonful of HYGEOL to a glass of water.

A trial costs nothing. Get a sample bottle by mailing the coupon and put HYGEOL to the test. The booklet which accompanies the sample will show you many other ways to use HYGEOL.

THE CONQUEST OF THE AIR — XXII — by Nicholas Afonsky

The researches of John Stringfellow in England led to progress, though the aeroplane he made, which flew perfectly in a big hall, never flew outdoors. About the same time, 1854, Le Bris, a French sailor, inspired by the steady flight of the albatross, which kept pace with the swiftest ships, decided to experiment with flying.

After studying a dead albatross, Le Bris, as he said, "comprehended the whole mystery of flight." He built an artificial bird, which could float on water. To gain impetus for flight he fastened the bird to the rail of a horse-drawn cart by a rope which he could loosen quickly. Men walking by the cart held the bird in place.

At a signal from Le Bris they let go the bird. It rose to a height of 300 feet. The driver of the cart had become entangled in the rope which had tied the bird to the cart. He served to balance it beautifully, like a sort of dragging anchor, but his frightened screams forced Le Bris to descend.

In his descent he only broke one wing of his plane. After he had it mended, he rose again, but his machine descended in a quarry and was smashed, along with the daring aeronaut's leg. He later made another machine that would fly, but it, too, came to grief. Then Le Bris gave up flying, and later served in the Franco-Prussian war.

No Time To Waste In This Title Bout

NEW YORK, Dec. 1 (Canadian Press).—There can be no loitering on the part of Tony Canzoneri, New York's challenger for the bantamweight title, and Ignacio Fernandez, the Filipino flash, when they meet tonight in a ten-round bout at Madison Square Garden. In the "wings" of the arena, three hundred carpenters will be grouped for a concerted dash on the ring the moment the bout is over. Between midnight and three p.m. on Saturday, forty thousand feet of lumber and a ton of nails will have joined to make a ten-lap-to-the-mile saucer on which fifteen teams will pedal to nowhere in the six-day bicycle race that opens on Sunday night.

OBITUARY

MRS. JENNIE MAY REDMOND.

The death occurred in this city to-day of Mrs. Jennie May Redmond, beloved wife of L. H. Redmond, 268 Aylmer street. Funeral announcement will be made later.

MRS. CHARLES CROWLEY

Mr. Charles Crowley wishes to thank the clergy, doctors, relations, friends and neighbors, for the kindness and sympathy during the sickness and death of his wife, who passed away on Sunday evening, November 29, from her residence, 352 Mark Street, to the Church of the Immaculate Conception, where High Mass was sung by Father Carrol, and her remains were taken to St. Martin's Cemetery, Ennismore, where Father McAuley officiated at the graveside.

The pall-bearers were, two brothers, Denis and Francis; two cousins, John Perdue and Dan Donoghue; two brothers-in-law, T. J. McMurray and H. O'Rourke.

She leaves to mourn her loss, her husband and one child, Joseph, eight years old. Also her mother, Mrs. F. O'Donoghue; one sister, Margaret; one brother, Denis, all of Ennismore; and a brother Francis of Robinson Street, Peterborough, and Daniel, of Calgary.

CARD OF THANKS.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Low and family, wish to thank the nurses of Nicholls' Hospital, and the doctors attending Mr. Low during his recent illness, and the Peterboro Chapter of the Hadassah, for the beautiful bouquet of flowers sent by them.

CANADIAN LEGION NOTES

The regular monthly meeting will be held tonight from 7.30 to 8.30, to be immediately followed by an entertainment provided by some of the best artists in the city under the capable direction of Comrade Arnold Everett. Every member of the branch is requested to attend and spend a pleasant evening.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action, is soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Germany Makes Move For Revision Of Treaty

SAYS REGIONAL AGREEMENTS BECOMING MENACE TO PEACE

Have Tendency To Introduce Pre-War System of Alliance.

SOVIET REPRESENTED.

French Delegate Tells Special Committee of Preparatory Disarmament Commission.

GENEVA, Dec. 2 (A.P.).—Before an audience of two non-member nations, the United States and Russia, the League of Nations yesterday began efforts to arrange international affairs so that the war god will be driven out of business for jack of customers.

The special security committee of the preparatory disarmament commissions held its first session yesterday. It was promptly warned by Joseph Paul-Boncour, chairman of the French parliamentary commission on National Defence and President of the Foreign Relations Committee of the Chamber of Deputies, that regional agreements are becoming a menace to world peace because they tend to introduce the pre-war system of alliance.

The committee saw in this an allusion to the recently concluded Italo-Albanian pact of defensive alliance, which the French concede to be in opposition to the Franco-Jugo-Slavian treaty of amity and arbitration, ratified shortly before.

M. Paul-Boncour declared that all regional pacts must be co-ordinated and brought within the scope of the League of Nations, and that efforts must centralize in building up a general agreement for security which would prevent misunderstandings.

Russia, represented by an observer and not participating in the security committee meetings, nevertheless contributed an admonition to the frenzied piling up of armaments amply justifies the fear of another gigantic war. The admonition was contained in a supplementary communication which Maxim Litvinoff, head of the Soviet delegation, deposited with the preparatory disarmament commission.

Does Not Spare U.S.

Litvinoff did not spare the United States in his general condemnation of what he termed a dangerous state of affairs, especially mentioning the advocacy by some Americans of the use of poisin gas. Litvinoff seemingly thought a great deal about the United States when he penned his communication, for he warned that the well-known expert, General Frey, was convinced that an aero-chemical bomb weighing 1,000 pounds and charged with Lewisite could render ten districts of New York uninhabitable, while hundreds of tons of Lewisite dropped from fifty aeroplanes would make all of New York uninhabitable for at least one week.

Emphasizing the peril to humanity in man's experiments to make poison gases more deadly, Litvinoff declared that empty promises and chimerical hopes have caused the people of the world to become alarmed, and that the only means of preventing a new cataclysm is to destroy all arms, close all war material factories, disband all general staffs and scrap all warships.

Edouard Benes ,of Czecho-Slovakia, was unanimously elected president of the security committee after nomination by Lord Cushenden of Great Britain.

The Englishman appealed to the committee to get down to clear cut proposition as soon as possible. His appeal made a deep impression on the delegates.

Litvinoff, who is closely following the negotiations, told the Associated Press that the speech of the British representative was very timely. "There is very much in it to which I can heartily subscribe." he said.

Delegates Not Present

Although the United States delegates were not present at the meeting of the security committee yesterday, their position is that the United States will gladly give due consideration to its recommendations.

A Chinese delegate remarked last night that it was a hopeful sign that both Russia and the United States are at least showing an active interest in the security negotiations.

The impression here last night was that the United States would not send any official observer as it has been urged although it is recognized that the presence of a Russian observer at the committee meetings may affect Washington's attitude.

(The State Department in Washington has already decided not to send an observer to the security committee meetings).

Carry On Propaganda.

LONDON, Dec. 2. — (Canadian Press Cable.)—The Daily Telegraph will publish the following despatch from its Geneva correspondent:

The Soviet delegation are not wasting their time at Geneva but profiting from their stay to carry on propaganda After the extaordinary statement made by Maxim Litvinoff Wednesday before the Preparatory Disarmament Commission the Soviet delegation yesterday issued what they describe as an addition to their Wednesday's declaration. Given One Month For Stealing Coal

STRATFORD, Ont., Dec. 2.—(Canadian Press).—Charged with stealing a bag of coal from J. J. Wolcott, coal dealer, Milton Street, Harry Kunder, 327 Brunswick Street, appeared in police court yesterday. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to one month in jail. A sealed bottle of liquor was found on him when arrested led to a Liquor Control Act charge being laid against him. He claimed he was taking the bottle home and had gone out with it again. On this charge he was sentenced to a month in jail, sentences both to run concurrently.

DE HAVILAND PLANS BRANCH

F. E. N. St. Barbe, Business Manager, is Looking Up Sites in Canada.

WILL VISIT PETERBOROUGH.

F. E. N. St. Barbe Business Manager, De Haviland Airplane Works, England, who is visiting Ontario looking up possible sites for a Canadian branch of their plant, has promised to visit Peterborough in the near future, and seemed to be already well acquainted with the activities of Canadian Air Services Company, Peterborough.

He was interviewed in Toronto by George A. Gillespie, President, and Frank G. Stinson, Secretary, Peterborough Chamber of Commerce, who were in that city with a deputation from west of here to interview the Minister of Public Highways, in connection with the proposed Bethany-Port Perry Highway.

In interviewing officials of the License Department, Mr. Stinson was able to obtain the information that the license fee for cars next year will be $5.00 flat for all pleasure cars. The gasoline tax will be advanced to 5c the gallon. The information was given unofficially, but Mr. Stinson believes that the regulations issued to issuers will be as above.

FLOOD RECEDES; DAMAGE SMALL

Two Men Meet Death Indirectly Caused By High Waters.

ONE BURNED TO DEATH.

ALBANY, N.Y., Dec. 2.—(Canadian Press.)—Cold weather, with clearing skies to-day, placed a restrained grip on the flood waters of New York State. The rivers in the south-western counties of the State, swollen for the past two days until they invaded portions of villages and delayed railway traffic, were receding. Although a few bridges and many small buildings were swept away ,no extensive damage was reported.

Two deaths were attributed indirectly to the floods. A man was smothered to death by a cave-in as he worked at the base of an endangered bridge abutment and another burned to death in his flood-surrounded home as neighbors, lacking boats, helplessly watched the fire from a distance.

WEATHER STOPS RISE.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Dec. 2. Canadian Press. — Cold weather has forestalled threats of flood menace in Ohio, and no serious damage is expected by the weather bureau observers although many streams and rivers have reached flood cress.

WIDOW WINS SUIT.

Note Given By Late Husband Ordered Cancelled By Judge.

TORONTO, Dec. 2. — (Canadian Press.)—Judgment in favor of Emma Jane Vance of Belleville, in the claims she filed against the Belleville Milling Company and the Canadian Credit Men's Association, has been handed down by Mr. Justice Kelly at Osgoode Hall. Mrs. Vance claimed $250 paid by her deceased husband for stock in the company, claiming there was misrepresentation by the company in inducing her husband to buy the stock. Mr. Justice Kelly also ordered the note of $425 held by the defendants to be cancelled and entitled the plaintiff to rank on the assets of the milling company's estate now in the hands of a trustee.

STATE RESTS ITS CASE IN LILLIENDAHL MURDER TRIAL

MAYS' LANDING, N. J., Dec. 2.—(A.P.). — The Lilliendahl murder trial moved toward a speedy conclusion yesterday at a tumultous scene just before adjournment when State unexpectedly rested its case, a defense attorney asked and was denied a directed verdict of not guilty, and Mrs. Margaret Lilliendahl broke down and sobbed in court.

The State's case against the widow and Willis Beach, charged with the murder of the woman's aged husband, opened Monday, and had been generally expected to continue into next week. Only 65 of the 100 witnesses the State had said it would call had occupied the stand when Prosecutor Hinkle suddenly turned to the judge and said: "The State rests."

Court Room Buzzes.

The court room was thrown into a buzz of excitement as uncalled witnesses expressed their relief or disappointment, and reporters elbowed their way out to their telegraph wires. Robert H. McCarter, counsel for Mrs. Lilliendahl, recalled one State witness for two questions of cross-examination and then made his plea for a directed verdict.

As he delivered an impassioned argument to sustain his motion, Mrs. Lilliendahl began to cry quietly and then her shoulders shook with convulsive sobs. Her eight-year-old son, Alfred, ran to her side and she embraced him fervently. He also wept.

When court opens today McCarter will make his opening address to the jury and begin to parade his witnesses through the stand. He and counsel for Beach together only expect to produce forty witnesses, so that court attendants predicted that the trial would probably, with the help of a Saturday session, reach the jury stage by Monday night or Tuesday.

UPPER LEFT shows Willis Beach, the little white-haired, first-foot poultry dealer, and next him is Mrs. Margaret Lilliendahl, widow of the slain doctor. LOWER LEFT is Edison Hedges, the youthful lawyer who is defending Beach. In the CENTRE is Mrs. Anna Cavalier, whose home is near the secluded spot where the aged narcotic expert was shot and killed while riding in his auto with his wife. At the LOWER RIGHT is Mrs. Thomas Tamberlaine, postmistress at Vineland, N. J., who revealed how Mrs. Lilliendahl had been receiving letters under the assumed name of Peggy Anderson.

RICHARDS AMAZES PETERBORO; MORE ANSWERS APPEAR BELOW

A great flood of letters greeted Richards, the magician, at the office of the Examiner and the questions are coming in from all parts of the district. Richards opened a three days' engagement at the Grand Opera House last night with the greatest performance of its nature that has been seen in Peterborough. He has a whale of a big magic show, music, comedy, sensational surprises and an elaborate display of scenery and costumes, enhanced by catchy music from the orchestra.

RICHARDS

During the mental portion of the performances, Richards easily demonstrates his superiority over any mind reader that has been in Peterborough, and due to this fact everyone should take advantage of the offer to have the mystic answer questions through these columns. Watch for your answer. Only your initials will be used in the published answer. If your question is not here to-day look for it to-morow, as an additional installment will appear to-morrow. Following is the second installment:

W. S.—Can you give me the present address of my brother, James? Is he alive?

Ans.—He is alive and married and living at 1018 Grand Ave., Los Angeles, Calif.

M. McL.—Will I get a better position in the spring.

Ans.—Yes, you will get more money and a better position after you complete your course in stenography.

H. T.—Kindly tell me where I can locate my wedding ring.

Ans.—This ring is under the davenport or "day-bed" back next to the wall. Your little girl was playing with the ring when it fell from her hand and rolled to the place stated.

W. D.—Is there oil on my father's land?

Ans.—No, this property is only good for agricultural purposes.

D. B.—When will I sell my house and what will I get for it?

Ans.—You will not sell until July next year. You will receive $6,500. After the sale you will move to Seattle, Wash., as you are now planning.

M.B.—Will our next child be a girl or a boy?

Ans.—It will be a girl between the 18th and 25th of May, 1928.

C. P.—What is wrong with my health? Shall I have an operation?

Ans.—You are afflicted with stomach and intestinal trouble from improper eating. An operation is useless. I advise you to consult a physician who thoroughly understands stomach troubles, etc.

V. U.—I have been going with a boy for eight months. Had a little quarel. He does not see me any more. Does he love me?

Ans.—He does not love you or he would have tactfully "made up" with you long before this. I advise you to look elsewhere for more desirable company.

E. P.—Where can I find my pearl ring that I lost?

Ans.—Your ring is behind some pictures on the book case at you home. Your sister, who wore your ring a couple of days, misplaced your ring where it is.

J. D.—Will my father ever come back to live with us again?

Ans.—No. When he skipped out he left for all time. Your mother can easily get a divorce on grounds of de-

Falls 17 Stories And Breaks Arm

CHICAGO, Ill., December 2 (United Press). — James J. Murphy, a plumber, fell 17 floors down an elevator shaft yesterday, and physicians said he probably would recover from the injuries sustained. Murphy was found at the bottom of the shaft fully conscious. The only visible injury was a broken arm, but he was believed to be internally injured.

EWART WARREN GIVEN FREEDOM

Third Toronto Man in Grave-Digging Case Out on Suspended Sentence.

PAYS OWN COSTS.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Dec. 2.— Ewart Warren, the third member of the grave digging gang appeared before Magistrate Casement of Marmora here yesterday afternoon and was given suspended sentence of one year and given his freedom upon furnishing $500 of his own recognizance. He was ordered to pay his own costs of the case which amounted to $17.45.

Warren left on the afternoon train for Toronto where the Salvation Army officers have arranged employment for him Warren was advised to tread the straight path in future and he promised to keep out of trouble. Magistrate Casement remarked that he felt an exceedingly light sentence was given Sullivan and Revoy, the other two men who were sentenced to a year in the Ontario reformatory.

The unexplored regions of Canada's national parks are now more and more proving a loadstone to out-of-doors adventurers, explorers, and nature lovers. Surplus in Prospect in Part of Province Where Scarcity Now Exists.

TORONTO, Ont., December 2. — Important new contracts which the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission expects to complete at an early date for the benefit of Eastern Ontario were heralded yesterday at the Parliament Buildings. Intimation of them was given by Premier Ferguson when he received a deputation representative of the Central Ontario Power Association.

The arrangements which the Hydro Commission was on the verge of negotiating, Hon. Mr. Ferguson told the deputation, would place it in the position of requiring to push the sale of power within the coming year, whereas it now faced the problem of apportioning as equitably as possible the inadequate amount which it was able to deliver. The new contract will be in the nature of a purchase of power similar to the Gatineau deal. It is understood that the Graustein interests are the vendors and that the total horse-power involved is in the neighbourhood of 100,000.

Sales Campaign Forecast.

The Hydro Commission is sensible of the position of Eastern Ontario, and is determined that it will have the opportunity of coming into its own," Hon. Mr. Ferguson assured those who waited on him. He believed that during the coming year, as soon as the Hydro should have a sufficient power surplus to justify a sales campaign, the Commission would be found ready to co-operate vigorously with any efforts which the Eastern Ontario municipalities might take to attract industries to their district.

The Central Ontario Power Association is an organization representing the power users served by the Central Ontario system of the Hydro enterprise . Their activities have ensued largely as a result of an increase in rates which the Commission enforced on the system in January last, and their visit to Hon. Mr. Ferguson yesterday was undertaken in the hope that certain concessions might be secured.

Rate Cup Is Sought.

The deputation urged first a reduction in power rates and based its claim on the allegation that the Central Ontario system was over-capitalized and that, whereas the Government had paid $7,632,663 to acquire it, the replacement value of the system was only $5,055,992. The municipalities, it was urged, had not been partners in this allegedly improvident bargain, and should not, accordingly, be required to suffer because interest had to be earned on an unjustifiable capitalization.

The deputation also wished the government to continue in ownership for the present and not turn it over to the Hydro Commission, the view being that since the question of additional power was largely one of negotiation in several directions it could best be handled by the Prime Minister's Department. It was further urged that the power affairs of the various municipalities on the system should be kept separate, so that surpluses which any of them might earn could be applied to the reduction of the rates in that particular municipality and not simply refunded for the benefit of the system as a whole.

Sale of Plants Urged.

The final change which the deputation urged was that the government should discontinue its operation of pulp mills, gas works, water works and other non-electric undertakings which had been acquired with the system. While the necessity of continuing to operate these projects for some time after they had ben secured was conceded, it was held that a sufficient period has now passed to have made possible their disposal. Sale of them at the earliest date possible was strongly urged.

Upon these specific requests Hon. Mr. Ferguson declared that he could give simply the most general answer, namely, that they would receive consideration. Some of them, he said, were under review at the present time and upon the others data would immediately be gathered. Hon Mr. Ferguson's belief was that "the increase in rates imposed upon the system had been due to the need of making provision for replacements. He stated however that he would study the whole matter most carefully and would communicate to the municipalities fully what the government's decision must be.

The spokesmen for the deputation were: F. L. Mason and J. O. Herity, president and secretary, respectively, of the association; J. D. Conant, ex-mayor of Oshawa; Dr. W. T. Holloway, Mayor of Peterboro; H. B. Stark, City Auditor of Belleville; R. D. Preston Mayor of Bowmanville; and Mayor McGuire, of Cobourg.

Society Lady Offers $2,500 For Left Ear

CHICAGO, Dec. 2 (Canadian Press).—The "personal" column of The Tribune today carried this advertisement:

"An attorney, representing a non-resident society woman will pay $2,500 for one left ear to be removed and grafted on my client. The operation will be performed by a competent surgeon and will keep the matter strictly confidential. The applicant must be young, not over 25, light skinned. Applicant will submit name and photograph to attorney."

NEW FORD CARS NOW ON DISPLAY

Factories Will Shortly Swing Into Production in Large Volume.

MANY NEW FEATURES

The advance showing of the New Ford Car is now on display at the local Ford dealers, Hood and Cummings Motors, Ltd. The big factories at Ford, Ontario, are beginning to produce cars in limited number, but they have not yet swung into the enormous volume of production that will be necessary to satisfy the demand for this extraordinary car and New Ford Dealers expect additional models for show and demonstration purposes shortly.

Large display pictures showing each of the six passenger models—the Tudor Sedan, Fordor Sedan, Coupe, Sport Coupe, Phaeton, and Roadster—afford an idea of the splendid consequence of the Ford Company's long and enormous task in designing and perfecting the new car.

The new Ford Dealers have just returned from Toronto and had the pleasure of inspecting new car thoroughly and listening to lectures on mechanical features that cannot be seen with naked eye.

This new car surpasses their greatest expectation in every respect.

It is of handsome appearance available in a wide range of color or combinations, combining all the best features of contemporary car design irrespective of price and incorporating a number of features which have never before been available. "It offers great power, comfort, high speed, flexibility, unusual getaway, remarkable roadability, economical operation and rugged, simplified construction. It is a car of the highest quality through and through."

The lines of the new Ford are distinctive. A wheelbase of 103½ inches, lower suspension, improved lines, gracefully contoured one-piece fenders command attention and suggest speed and stability. But it is in performance that it is most striking. It is capable of more than 60 miles an hour for hours on end, and will hold that speed without discomfort to passengers and without injury to the mechanism. It accelerates at a terrific pace and can be made to literally leap forward when the clutch is engaged. It has been driven at more than 40 miles per hour in intermediate gear. It manoeuvres with great ease, holds the roughest roads at speed, holds on sharp unbanked curves at 45 miles per hour and has a turning radius of only 17 feet.

Bodies of the new Ford car are of all-steel construction, and a new type of one-piece steel-spoke wheel employing a drop centre tire and eliminating the old fashioned rim and rimp clamps is employed. The transmission is selective sliding gear with three forward speeds and one reverse and the clutch is of a plate multiple dry-disc design, patterned after the famous Lincoln clutch. Rear axle is of the three-quarter floating design which employs the axle shafts for driving only and does not require them to carry the weight of the car. Final drive is by spiral bevel gear permanently adjusted and noiseless.

Full torque tube drive is used and relieves the springs of all starting and stopping strains. Four-wheel, internal expanding, mechanically actuated brakes are employed. Throughout the design, ease and quietness of operation, great strength and accessibility of all parts, and economical operation have been kept in mind. The purpose back of the new Count Bernstorff Points Out Provision For Changing of Treaties.

IN INTEREST OF PEACE.

Delegates To Conference Believe Germany Wants Versailles Treaty Revised.

GENEVA, Dec. 2 (Canadian Press).—Germany today made what is generally regarded here as the opening step in the campaign for eventual revision of the treaty of Versailles. Speaking before the security committee of the preparatory disarmament conference at today's session, Count Von Bernstorff, German delegate, declared that any study of means of promoting international peace through the strengthening of international security should give importance to Article 19 the League Covenant.

This declares that the League Assembly may from time to time advise consideration by members of the league of treaties which become inapplicable and consideration of internation conditions whose continuance might endanger the peace of the world. A commotion was caused among delegates by the reference, and comments among them as they left the meeting indicated the existence of a general conviction that Germany had made the opening of a drive for the goal of alteration of the Versailles document.

RECEIVERS HOLD STORE CONTROL

Will Be in Charge Until Feb. 15th, Judge Orders.

PETITION GRANTED.

TORONTO, December 2. — Canadian Press. — That interim receivers of the Canadian Department Stores Limited, with stores in practically every city of Ontario and in Montreal, be allowed to carry on the affairs of the four million dollar concern at least until the Christmas trade has been exhausted, was the request made to Mr. Justice Fisher at Osgoode Hall today.

S. M. Mohr, solicitor for the petitioners who sought to put the concern in bankruptcy, applied for an order to this effect in conjunction with G. T. Clarkson and the Canadian Credit Men's Association, interim receivers.

Four petitions had been filed to put the firm into bankruptcy. Mr. Justice Fisher ordered that the interim receivers carry on until Feb. 15. They are to give a bond of $50,000 and until Feb. 15 all further proceedings by any one are stayed. It is hoped by that date sufficient money will be on hand to carry on the company.

NAPANEE SALE BREAKS RECORD

Amount Paid For Poultry in Two Days Is Over $100,000.

GAIN OF $20,000.

KINGSTON, Ont., December 2 (Canadian Press). — A record was established at the conclusion of the poultry fair at Napanee yesterday, when a total of $100,000 for two days was paid out by the banks for sales. On the first day $65,000 was paid out and on the second day $35,000. The previous record for two days was $80,000. Turkeys were sold at 25 to 35 cents a pound and chickens up to 27 cents a pound.

DEPUTATION ASKS ADJUSTMENT OF THE ONTARIO POWER RATES

Complain of Rate Increases in Oshawa and District.

12 PER CENT. JUMP.

Produce Figures Showing Comparison in Rates For 1926 and 1927.

TORONTO, December 2. — A deputation of some 50 members of the Central Ontario Power Association waited on Premier Ferguson yesterday afternoon to ask for a readjustment of the Hydro-electric rates in Central Ontario.

Since February 1927, the deputation contends that they have been unable to secure relief from the Hydro so that they are bringing the matter before the Provincial government as they deem it a matter for the latter to deal with. They produced a table which showed a comparison of Hydro-electric rates in Oshawa for 1926 and 1927, in every instance the rates had been increased very materially.

The smallest increase was 12 per cent., and this was for large dwellings, whereas the greatest increase amounted to 80 and 100 per cent. for large stores. Street lighting had increased 18 per cent., whereas average commercial users of power paid 60 per cent. more in 1927; the largest user (General Motors) had been increased 16 per cent.

Belleville, Cobourg, Picton and Bowmanville, formed part of the delegation.

At the conclusion of the meeting Premier Ferguson pointed out that the demands of the delegation were briefly that the government should absorb the losses of the old system, that it had purchased to supply Eastern Ontario with power, that it give a reduced rate, and that it should maintain the present system in the municipalities which did not wish to purchase the same.

"However," he continued, "seeing as how the government has bought the old system to supply you with power that you are paying less money for now than you did formerly, I think you will realize that the government has the best interests of Eastern Ontario at heart.

"We have now completed a new contract to take care of the central system in the province and hope soon to be able to take care of Eastern Ontario," he continued.

Speaking of the purchase of the privately owned system which formerly supplied the eastern districts with power, Premier Ferguson said: "We step into the shoes of the old company, a private organization, to prevent the exploitation of consumers. We were not interested in setting aside private contracts. When we took over the system you were paying higher rates than are now being charged.

"Under new transmission lines power will be transmitted in Central Ontario next year, the commission anticipates having about 400,000 horse power available for Eastern Ontario also. This means that the commission will have to co-operate with the industrial expansion of that section for the absorption of that power."

Flood Waters Rise In New York State

ALBANY, N.Y., Dec. 2 (A.P.). —The western half of New York State last night watched with apprehension the gradual encroachment of flood waters from scores of streams and lakes upon the settled communities and farm lands.

With one death indirectly attributed to the flood, many families temporarily homeless and facing hardships with the prospect of colder weather, transportation facilities badly crippled, and the limit of the rise not yet reached in some places, widely separated communities were bending every effort to avert a repetition of the disaster which a month ago befell the neighboring states of Vermont, Massachusetts and New Hampshire.

The cause in both instances was the same—excessive rainfall over a period of several days. In some cases the precipitation in the flooded districts has been unprecedented.

WEST IS MAKING FINAL CLEAN-UP

Last of Grain Dragged Into Storage Over Snowy Roads.

WINNIPEG, Man., December 2.—Twenty-six lake freighters loaded on Wednesday grain cargoes from the terminal elevators at Fort William and Port Arthur, with joint capacity of over five million bushels, while cargoes aggregating 2,630,000 bushels moved out from pier heads on Tuesday, part and parcel of tremendous effort to clear as much grain out of the storage bins as possible before the freeze-up.

Alberta and Saskatchewan are still threshing, Alberta in weather ranging from zero to 23 degrees below, and Saskatchewan nearly as bad. Alberta reports 85 per cent. of threshing completed.

Marketing by farmers is keeping pace with threshing, three million six hundred thousand bushels having been drawn over crunching snow to elevators along railway lines.

Storage at Lake Front is still going down bins this morning containing twenty-one million bushels.

Twelve boats came into port to continue the work of freighting the grain out. Insurance rates went up yesterday.

Operators' Scheme Affect Mine Workers

LONDON, Dec. 2.— (Canadian Press Cable.) — The projected scheme by Yorkshire, Nottinghamshire and Derbyshire mine owners aiming at the limitation and regulation of the coal output to counteract the depression prevailing in the industry has added to the grievances of the miners' federations. Leaders of the latter anticipate that in effect the scheme from the workers' viewpoint will be a sort of points out that the three countries not included in the amalgamation.

Secretary Jones of the Yorkshire miners in an interview points out that the three countries mentioned include the best and most modern undertakings in the country. They thus hold the whip hand and the scheme would tend to crush marginal districts out of the inland market altogether and seriously prejudice districts catering for export trade from the River Humber ports.

Lithuanian Premier Does Not Disclose Program For Laying Complaint at Geneva

KOVNO, Lithuania, Dec. 2 (A.P.).—The programme of Premier Waldemaras for laying Lithuanian complaints against Poland before the League of Nations, was his own secret last night on the eve of his departure for Geneva.

That he will have a hard row to hoe appears probable, partly in view of lukewarmness for Lithuania on the part of the great powers alleged here to exist.

Leon Bistras, former premier and a leader of the Christian Democratic party, who is one of Waldemaras' chief opponents, is also going to Geneva as an observer for his party. It is also understood that Jeronimos Pieshkaitis, a leader of Lithuanian malcontents, who is in more or less voluntary exile in the border districts, will put in his appearance at Geneva to spike Waldemaras' guns whenever opportunity offers.

Public offices, hotels and stores in the Lithuanian capital are displaying notices such as "We shall never rest until Vilna is returned to us." "Lithuanians never forget Vilna is under a foreign yoke," and "Lithuanians, let your morning prayer and evening song be Vilna."

The only hope of Kovno citizens is that Waldemaras will not yield to any vital point, and if he does, some of them say he may as well stay out of the country.

Premier Waldemaras yesterday telegraphed to Sir Eric Drummond, Secretary of the League of Nations, a denial of a statement by Premier Pilsudski of Poland, that Lithuania had begun to mobilize and Pilsudski would need to take counter-measures. M. Waldemaras declared that there had been no mobilization and would not be any, either open or veiled. He declared that the Lithuanian Cabinet had decided not to resume diplomatic relations with Poland if Vilna was not restored to Lithuania.

CANADA WINS HIGH HONORS IN STOCK CONTEST

Among Blue Ribbon Classes at Chicago Livestock Exposition.

GRAIN SHOW CLOSED.

Annexes the Grand Championship in Clydesdale Stallion Competition.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2 (Associated Press).—A stripling prince of the Belgian animal husbandry world, Lordban II., pranced before European royalty and won the coveted silver cup awarded by King Albert of Belgium at the International Livestock Exposition yesterday.

The cup was given to the famous stallion's owners, Charles A. Wentz and Son, of Kirby, Ohio, by Prince Albert de Ligne, special emissary of King Albert. The trophy is one of the most highly prized among Belgian horse owners.

A chestnut sorrel mare, Pervenche, owned by the Michigan Agricultural College, was a close second in the royal judging.

Because they had won the Belgian Cup previously, Waynedale King, owned by Everett King, Chicago, grand champion stallion of this year's exposition, and Marretta de Rubis, the grand champion mare of the exposition, owned by Michigan State College, were ineligible at yesterday's royal competition.

Another international medal, offered by the South Bonn Sheep Society of England to the best class of purebred South Bonn sheep, was won by a flock from the Mountain Farm, Bradstreet, Mass.

The auctioneer's hammer banged merrily yesterday before spirited bidding on the championship steer, swine and sheep, and a new high record price was established in one sale — that of the champion carload of steers, owned by Ed. P. Hall, Mechanicsburg, Ills., and was sold to Swift & Company for the Palmer House Hotel of Chicago.

The carload comprised 15 head of Aberdeen-Angus steers averaging 1,068 pounds, and sold for 45.5 cents per pound, bringing Hall $7,289.10.

In Blue Ribbon Class.

Iowa, Illinois, Indiana and Canada won most of the blue ribbons in the live stock contest yesterday. In the grain and hay show, which closed yesterday, Montana farmers romped away with all-exposition honors, winning six grand championships and reserve titles. Individual honors of the grain show went to C. Edson Smith, Corvallis, Mont., the wheat and barley king. Herman Trelle, Wembley, Alta., was second, winning one championship and two reserve titles.

Other all North American grain championships include:

Flax—L. E. Peterson, Victor, Mont.; reserve champion, Sebns Bros., Milner, N.D.

Rye—George and L. G. Hultzer, Manitou, Mich; reserve champion, Edmund Stafford, Attica, Ind.

Canada annexed the grand championships in the Clydesdale stallion competition, the award going to Sam Sansovina, owned by John Sinclair, Congress, Sask. The reserve title went to Arnprior Emigrant, shown by the Reston Clydesdale Syndicate, Reston, Man. B. Engairn, owned by A. M. Montgomery, Hartland, Wis., was named as junior champion.

Other champions in the live stock competition:

Champion Oxford breeding ewe, exhibited by R. Russell Fleming, Toronto.

Breeding sheep division, Southdown, Class 54: Ram lamb under one year, first, Robt. McEwen & Sons, London.

Class 55: Champion ram, Robert McEwen & Sons, London, Ont.

Class 56: Three rams, first, Robert McEwen & Sons, London, Ont.

Class 83: Ram, one year and under two, first, Humphrey Snell, Clinton, Ont.

Class 85: Champion ram, Humphrey Snell, Clinton, Ont.

Class 86: Three ram lambs, first, Humphrey Snell, Clinton, Ont.

400 ALIENS ARE BARRED FROM ENTRY

New Immigration Regulation Put Into Force Along Border.

INCREASE INSPECTORS.

Several Special Courts of Inquiry To Consider Cases of Debarred.

DETROIT ,Mich., Dec. 2.—(A.P.)—An augmented force of immigration inspectors inaugurated the new modified alien immigration order here yesterday by barring more than 400 residents of Ontario border cities from entering Detroit to work. The foreign born commuters affected took steps to obtain non-quota immigration visas from the United States consul in Canada.

Several special boards of inquiry will begin sessions here shortly to consider the cases of those debarred, it was announced by John L. Zurbrick, district director of immigration. Five additional inspectors from Montreal have been summoned.

Approximately 3,500 commuters employed in factories in the Detroit district were permitted entrance under the eleventh hour modification agreed to Tuesday by the departments of state and labor.

The immigration inspectors detained 27 persons for investigation by the special boards of inquiry. Those denied entrance to-day were quota aliens who had failed to obtain quota immigration visas before December 1, and native Canadians who failed to obtain non-quota immigration visas.

No Confusion.

ST. ALBANS Vt., Dec. 2.—(A.P.)—Immigration authorities last night reported that no confusion had resulted in the Vermont district under the new modified Federal immigration order which went into effect yesterday at points of entry between Canada and the United States.

Federal Immigration Inspector J. C. Ford said that every case which came under the new order had been adjusted without protest from any individual or from the Canadian government.

The town of Derbyshire was the point most affected by the order. One of its industrial plants is located partly in the United States and partly in Canada and about 300 aliens are employed there. The immigration officers said that fifty per cent. of these workers were Canadians who had obtained passports, while the remainder had fulfilled the requirements of the law by registering or paying a head tax.

Immigration authorities at border points in Maine also reported that few alien commuters had been refused admittance under the new order. Of the 275 Canadians who daily cross the international line from St. Stephen, N.B., to Calais, all but a few had met the requirements. Similar conditions were reported at Van Burne, where about 30 Canadians cross the border to work in Maine.

At Sarnia.

SARNIA, Ont., Dec. 2.—(Canadian Press.)—While the regulations passed by the United States Department of Labor last summer were given effect at the border yesterday there was no interruption in the passage of Sarnians who go to their work at Port Huron daily. Yesterday morning all the workers from the Canadian side turned up as usual and all were in possession of the necessary visas, Chief Inspector of Immigration Coe of Port Huron said. We had all our arrangements made some time ago. We never did anticipate any trouble at this point," Mr. Coe said.

OBITUARY

STEWART WOOD.

KEENE, Dec. 2.—The funeral of Stewart Wood, young son of Mrs. Mary Wood, who died in the city on Wednesday night, will be held on Saturday at 2.00 p.m. in the Presbyterian church here.

MARIE ENGLISH.

After a lingering illness, the death occurred, at her home, on Friday evening, November 25th, of Marie English. She was twenty-four years of age. For the past few years she proved herself to be a successful stenographer with the Dominion Stores Limited, Toronto. Some six months ago ill health forced her to give up her position and return home. She was very popular with her friends, who regret her death. Her coffin was adorned with many spiritual and floral tributes including two wreaths donated by the Dominion Stores, which showed the high esteem in which she was held.

She is survived by her parents and three brothers, Joseph of Norwood, Lou and Gordon at home.

The funeral which was largely attended took place to Our Lady of Mount Carmel church where solemn Requiem Mass was sung by Rev. Father Bretherton for the repose of her soul. After the mass interment took place in the Catholic cemetery. The pall bearers were Messrs. Cecil Lynch, James Crowley, Harry English, John Boland, Fred Barrie, and Vincent Keogan.

FREDERICK F. FITZPATRICK.

The following article, which appeared in the New York Times of a recent issue, refers to the death of Frederick F. Fitzpatrick, a native of this district and having many relatives in the township of Douro:

"Frederick F. Fitzpatrick, President of the American Locomotive Company, died suddenly on Wednesday evening of heart disease at his home, 20 Maple avenue, Larchmont, in his sixty-first year. He had suffered for several months from chronic myocarditis, but apparently had been much benefited by a recent vacation. A radio message was sent to the widow, who is due here next Wednesday on the liner Paris. Also surviving are a daughter, Mrs. W. Kenneth Watkins; two sons, Paul J. and Frederick F., Jr..; a sister, Mrs. T. McNally, and two brothers, John and Robert Fitzpatrick.

"A native of Peterborough, Ontario, and of Irish descent on both sides of his family, Mr. Fitzpatrick was brought to the United States as a boy and was educated in the public schools of Chillicothe, Mo. He was only fifteen when he went to work as a Western Union operator in Kansas City.

"In 1886 he entered the executive department of the Missouri Pacific, where for twelve years he held a variety of increasingly important positions. Then he became St Louis representative of the Charles Scott Spring Company, which merged with the Railway Steel Spring Company in 1902.

"Mr. Fitzpatrick was also President of the Montreal Locomotive Works the Canadian Steel Tire and Wheel Company, and the American Locomotive Sales Corporation and Vice President of the Railway Business Association. Among his many directorships were those in American Car and Foundry Company, Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank, Safety Car Heating and Lighting Company, Seaboard National Bank, and United States Life Insurance Company.

"His clubs included the Apawamis, Bankers, Canadian, Catholic, Larchmont Yacht, Metropolitan, New York Athletic, Railroad and Union League and the Duquesne of Pittsburgh."

THOMAS HEFFERNAN.

NORWOOD, Dec. 11.— The death of Mr. Thomas Heffernan took place very suddenly on Wednesday morning. The late Mr. Heffernan, who was in his 88th year, had been a highly respected resident of Asphodel for the past sixty-three years. Surviving are a family of three daughters and four sons, namely: Mrs. Michael English and Mrs. Ed. English, of Asphodel, Mrs. T. McLean, of Peterborough, Patrick, Richard and Michael of Asphodel and Thomas of Windsor.

RUSSIANS UNFITTED AS WELL AS UNWILLING TO MAKE LEAGUE EFFECTIVE, GUARDIAN CHARGES

Disarmament Proposal Likely To Be Used For Anti-League Activities.

TRAP FOR OTHER STATES.

British Paper Points Out Contrast Between Its Plan and Those of Others.

LONDON, December 1 (Canadian Press Cable). — The Manchester Guardian, which is noted for its pacific tendencies, made editorial comment to-day on Russia's urging total world disarmament. "The Russians are as naturally unfitted as they are unwilling to make the League of Nations an effective instrument of peace," the Guardian says. "They know as well as the rest of the world that, apart from such states as are virtually disarmed already, there is not one ready even to consider such a proposal. Its formal registration at Geneva will make little practical difference except so far as it may enable the Russians to prosecute their anti-League propaganda with greater vigor than ever."

The Guardian continues by asserting that the Soviet Government is a pariah among the nations, and that it may be taken for granted that its proposal for the forming of non-aggression pacts among the nations "will be generally held up to ridicule and contempt either as mere foolishness or as a trap for other more civilized and progressive states."

Continuing, the Guardian says: "Nevertheless, the contrast will remain between its professions and those of its mentors to which ridicule and abuse are no effective answer."

Big War Predicted In Famous Annual

LONDON, Dec. 1. — (United Press.)—Old Moore's Almanac, issued to-day, predicts for 1928 "a war for which the struggle of 1914-1918 was but a dress rehearsal."

The famous almanac with its annual forecasts of events during the year, has predicted many correctly, but its prescience is somewhat detracted from because many predictions are worded in such a fashion that anyone of several things might fit in.

DISTRICT CHURCHES

SPRINGVILLE UNITED CHURCH.

The pastor, Rev. A. H. McConnachie continued the study of the Lord's Prayer for the children at the Springville church on Sunday, beginning with a short review of the previous Sunday's lesson on "Our Father" and proceeding to the words "Which art in heaven." He brought out clearly the thought that Heaven was not merely a place but a state and condition—something lofty, high and lifted up, and that it is a suitable setting in which to think of God, the all-perfect power, who is high and lifted up in his perfection.

The text was taken from Galatians the 2nd chapter and the 20th verse: "I am crucified with Christ; nevertheless I live; yet not I, but Christ, liveth in me; and the life which I now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me, and gave Himself for me."

Mr. McConnachie began his sermon by telling of the two gospels—the one devised in the heart of God for sinners and the other for believers in Christ, or Christians.

Paul in his letters refers repeatedly to his great desire to be in perfect unity with Jesus, to be identified with Him.

Men in time become like the object of their worship. Paul makes no secret of the fact that he copied Christ. He studied Christ's life so closely that he reflected the Master and before his life on earth was ended he was able to say to his followers, "Be like me in so far as I am like Christ."

It was God's pleasure to send Christ to bear the sins of the world, and it was a pleasure to Christ to do his father's will and finally to suffer death on the cross for man's redemption. It follows from this that the first step in the way of salvation must be identification with Christ on the cross, to be able to say, "I have been crucified with Christ."

Paul was identified with Jesus in death and resurrection. He says as a personal testimony, "the life I now live I live by faith in the son of God Who loveth me and gave Himself up for me." This is Christian doctrine. If we were tested by it, how would we stand today?

Mr. McConnachie followed this discourse by numerous interesting Bible readings showing the close parallel between the life of Christ and Paul. He concluded his sermon by impressing the fact that this is what the church needs today. That which was suitable and necessary for Paul is also suitable and necessary for us.

Rev. J. H. Dudgeon of St. James' church, Peterborough, was in charge of W.M.S. thank-offering service on Sunday evening at Springville.

Mr. Dudgeon chose for his sermon the very appropriate subject, "The feeding of the five thousand", Mat. 14, beginning with the 13th verse.

Attention was drawn to the fact that John is the only writer who mentions that the five loaves and two fishes were to have been the lunch of a small boy who was present at this gathering to hear Jesus.

Jesus is always more than equal for all emergencies and difficulties. He can take the small things given Him and magnify them until they are large and wonderful. With the boy's small lunch which was willing'y given to Jesus, He fed at least ten thousand people and "all were filled", the boy having more to eat than he would have had in his own lunch basket.

The subject was divided under four distinct headings which were provided by the verbs, took, blessed, brake, and gave.

From the first heading, "He took the five loaves and two fishes", he showed that private ownership of possessions and services must be given over to Jesus and dedicated to Him.

The second heading, "He blessed the five loaves and two fishes", shows that all that is given to Jesus is blessed by Him and although the gifts are necessarily small, they will be miraculously transformed and used for the extension of His Kingdom.

"He brake the five loaves and two fishes", tells that just as the acorn must be broken before the oak will grow, or the grain of wheat before the plant spring up, so Jesus must be broken before salvation will come to the world. God wants to make all people successful in this life and the life to come but to do this he sometimes must break them as he broke Paul and others of His saints to make them realize their relationship to Him.

The last heading, "He gave the five loaves and two fishes", shows that as God gave His only Son for him, man should look to Jesus as a brother, share his troubles and pleasures with Him and give back to God all he possibly can give of money or talents.

The sermon was brought to a close by urging that all people should get in tune with God and help Him by giving all they are able to give to bring light to China, India, Japan, Africa and all other countries that are now struggling in the darkness.

TRENT RIVER UNITED CHURCH

TRENT RIVER, Dec. 2.—At Trent River United Church on Sunday, the Rev. W. R. Archer delivered an interesting sermon, taking for his text Exodus 32, verse 26: "Then Moses stood in the gate of the camp, and said: "Who is on the Lord's side? let him come unto me." The text was taken from the time of Moses, when Aaron commanded all the people to bring their ear-rings and other jewelry which he melted and made into a golden calf for worship. Moses was angered at the idolatry and took the golden calf and burned it into ashes which he sprinkled on the water, which he commanded the people to drink. Aaron tried to make excuses for his sin. Moses called on the people who were on the Lord's side to come to him.

The minister stated that there came a time in every man's life when it is necessary to make a decision for Christ, if he has not vigorously and enthusiastically allied himself to God. The worship of Jehovah must triumph. He further said that foreign countries were not the only places where idols were worshipped but anything in one's heart that takes the place of God is an idol. Some think money is the only thing to live for. The ritual at the graveside shows that there is no pocket in the shroud. When man dies he cannot take his wealth with him. He referred to Shylock, who thought of nothing but gold. King Midas wanted everything he touched to turn to gold, but he realized gold was not all. The ambition of men today is that everything they touched would turn to gold. It is still the worship of the golden calf.

Too much amusement was another idol. Moses went to the topmost part of the mountain to be with God alone and remained 40 days, and when he returned to his people and found them repenting and worshipping the true God, his countenance was transfigured with the Divine Light. Jenny Lind, the beautiful singer, had the face of an angel when she sang as the money she earned by her voice was used for the founding of an orphanage.

Abraham Lincoln was not handsome, but when he spoke, pleading for the slaves, his face was transfigured.

Miss Irene Petrie, an Indian missionary, was called a "Sunbeam" on account of the kind of light which radiated from her works.

Helen Keller, who was born blind and deaf, became a college graduate, and always had a radiant face all the while, entered in her diary, at the age of 12 years that, She was the happiest girl in the world. There is a way to be happy from "within."

The speaker concluded by saying, "Let us have this radiant light. Take thought of the shining countenance. Let us look for it and thank the Lord for having made this world brighter, and pray we may have illuminating lives. The worship of Jehovah must triumph."

LAKE SHIPPING SEASON ENDING

Insurance Rates Go Up To-day and Again on Monday.

CANAL CLOSES DEC. 15.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Dec. 2. — Canadian Press. — With an increase in marine insurance rates effective last midnight and the arrival of a storm which practically tied up the shipping yesterday, all traffic on the upper great lakes has received a severe set back.

Vessels passing through the Sault will dwindle until on December 15 they will cease, with the suspension of all navigation aids on the canal for this season Marine rates will be further boosted on December 5th, owing to increasing hazards, and no insurance at all will be allowed on vessels leaving for their final destination after midnight of December 12th. A number of the late steamers tied up for the season to-day.

DENOUNCES LYNCH LAW

Virginia Governor Says That State Will Not Countenance It.

WILL PUNISH GUILTY.

RICHMOND, Va., December 2 (Canadian Press). — Governor Harry F. Byrd has given warning that the lynch law will not be countenanced in Virginia. Describing a recent lynching near the Virginia-Kentucky border as "a dastardly and cold-blooded crime," Governor Byrd declared in a statement issued last night that "it is full time for Virginia to make an example of those committing the crime of lynching and to punish the guilty as other murderers are punished."

THE USE OF THE LASH.

A woman correspondent of The Globe writes to urge the abolition of the use of the lash as a punishment for criminals, declaring it to be "brutalizing and demoralizing."

Admittedly there is nothing very pleasant about it, but neither is there in the experience of having a loaded revolver poked into the pit of your stomach by a drug-crazed young crook ready to pull the trigger at the least sign of resistance.

The gunman, the potential murderer, who commits robbery under arms must be taught the lesson that as an enemy of society he has to be prepared to have society strike back, and all students of criminology seem to be agreed that there is no weapon more effective, no punishment more dreaded by the crook, than the lash.

Hardened criminals who will accept a long penitentiary term with a smile have been known to turn pale when lashes were added to the sentence.

Most of them would rather take another five years than face the cat-o'-nine tails.

The lash is not a pretty thing, but if it convinces potential bandits that legal methods of getting money are safer, its ugliness can be overlooked.

Robbery by violence has to be stamped out, even if the methods used are not gentle.

COMMUNITY SERVICE.

The Examiner's news columns are open at all times to contributions in regard to the activities of churches, fraternal societies and other organizations, so long as the articles are written by responsible persons and are of reasonable length.

It is an obvious impossibility for The Examiner's staff, no matter how willing or industrious its members may be, to cover all such activities by its own news-gathering forces, and the alternative is to extend the use of our columns to those who wish to place news of their organizations before the public.

This opportunity, extended to all without reserve, except as to restrictions already mentioned, is being taken advantage of by some contributors, and the same facilities for reaching the readers of The Examiner are at the service of all who chose to avail themselves of them.

The Examiner is a community newspaper, endeavouring to serve all citizens of Peterborough and this district, and it believes that in extending the use of its columns in this way it is carrying out its mission and proving of service that might be even greater were more general advantage taken of the opportunities offered to contributors.

MONEY FOR ROADS.

Ontario has been spending large sums of money upon improving her system of roads, and The Examiner is sure that the huge amounts spent in this way will prove a profitable investment.

At the same time, however, there is the danger that too much attention may be given to and too large a share of the expenditure made upon the main arteries of travel.

In this connection such stretches of road as have been brought to attention by the resolution passed by the local branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association need to be considered.

This motion calls upon the Provincial Government to make a grant for the improvement of the road from Swamp Lake, north of Catchecoma Lake, to about four miles this side of Gooderham.

This stretch, about twelve miles in length, would be a very important link in opening the north country to tourist traffic, and at the same time to give residents of the district easier access to Peterborough and other centres.

Money spent upon such roads would give speedy returns in the revenue from the tourist traffic, and the proposition, it is hoped, will be strongly urged upon the Government.

CANADA DOES WELL.

Canada's showing at Chicago's big international show continues to prove the fact that the agriculturists of this country are well to the front, and that the possibilities of the Dominion from a farming standpoint and unsurpassed.

Herman Trelle, the Wembley, Alberta, grain wizard, who last year won both the wheat and oats sweepstakes, came very close to repeating his wonderful record this week.

He has once again carried off the championship for the best exhibit of oats, and his sample of wheat was good enough to earn him the reserve sweepstakes and to give the judges plenty of difficulty in deciding between it and the exhibit that eventually was awarded premier place. In addition, he captured the reserve sweepstakes championship ribbon in field peas.

While Trelle's victories are understanding, other Canadian farmers and producers have been making an impressive showing, and ribbons in many classes will be brought north as a result.

The value of these successes to Canada is great.

Doubtless many of the farmers from the Western States who have taken up land in this country during recent years have been led to come to Canada because of the triumph of Canadian exhibitors at the Chicago show.

THE MOTOR CAR AND DEVELOPMENT.

This year Canada is celebrating the Diamond Jubilee of Confederation. Perhaps the greatest obstacle to Confederation in 1867 was the problem of transportation. Unless at least a partial solution had been found at that time, Confederation would have remained an empty dream. And it was found in the building of the Canadian Pacific Railway. The stalwart minds of the day, with indomitable courage, set themselves the stupendous task of building a road of steel across the wide domain of Canada from sea to sea, and they accomplished it strange to say, in a wonderfully short time.

Everyone in Canada should turn over in his own mind what was then done and what has since followed. The railway, for the first time in Canada, provided transcontinental transportation of an adequate kind, and wholesale development in the region along the railway line began to come swiftly into operation. Agriculture, trade and commerce, the building of towns and cities, the growth of a nation, all became possible. Then followed the Grand Trunk Pacific and the Canadian Northern railways, and with them all, as the groundwork of transportation, Canada has made her way, perhaps rapidly enough, to her present state of development, wealth and prosperity.

But in the last twenty years or better, a splendid new agency for transportation has been well nigh perfected in the modern motor vehicle. One of the most wonderful outcomes of modern science and industrial methods, the motor vehicle has arrived to help overcome this difficulty of transportation.

Rightly considered, the motor vehicle is not in competition with the railway train. Rather has it specialized in a particular class and range of transportation. It may perhaps have restricted, in a measure, the function of the railway. It has done that because, within that class and range, it is incomparably better adapted to serve the community than the railway train ever was or ever could be. The motor vehicle is a hundred times more flexible than the railway train and lends itself readily to the infinite variety of personal travel and to short haul freight traffic, in a way and to an extent which the latter could never hope to achieve.

There is nothing in this to alarm the presidents of our railways. It simply means recognition on their part of the place of the motor vehicle in transportation requirements and a corresponding adaption of railway policy and function. The fact is that the motor vehicle increases, almost indefinitely, the trade and commerce within the country—much of it quite outside the range of the railways—and in the result, the latter will find themselves handling a much increased volume of both passenger and freight traffic, especially of the long haul class.

These thoughts are assembled here to bring more easily to mind something of what it is that the thousands, nay millions, of motor vehicles are doing on this continent. They are doing in their own way and in their own department the very something which the Canadian Pacific Railway did for Canada at and after Confederation, and that is, solving the transportation problem. It was found that the advent of the transcontinental railway made possible the development of Canada as a whole. Precisely for the same reasons the modern motor vehicle is quickening and extending that development. It is the flexible and quick-moving instrument which individuals, in ever increasing numbers, are using to overcome distances. It is helping materially to annihilate those geographical restrictions which have made it so difficult for Canada to come into her own. It is destined to play a tremendous part in producing the Canada of tomorrow.

But the motor vehicle implies the modern highway almost in the same way that the railway train implies the lines of steel. And this article is written for the purpose of suggesting to the people of Canada, in the year of their Diamond Jubilee, that there is the same need as in 1867 to build transcontinental roads, but this time it is not railroads; it is national all-weather motor highways which are required.

Such highways are national as well as local in their objective and public opinion must become insistent in demanding that the Government at Ottawa immediately develop plans on a large enough scale to overtake the situation. The Dominion grant of $20,000,000 in 1919 will all be spent by the end of this year and no arrangements have yet been made for further appropriation nor are they likely to be made unless and until public opinion expresses itself in no uncertain tones.

It is for this reason that the Alberta Motor Association recently forwarded to Ottawa a resolution calling on the Dominion Government to set aside a further $50,000,000 to be made available to the Provinces over a period of five years for the continuing of construction of main highways throughout Canada. This time, however, the grant must be apportioned to the Provinces according to the mileage to be constructed in each rather than the population there. That is the wise and proper thing to do. The national factor in such highways means that every part of Canada and all the people throughout the Dominion have a real interest in their construction.

Every intelligent voter in Canada, whether he or she owns a motor car or not, should inform himself or herself on the subject and then write the local member of the Dominion Parliament urging the carrying through of this policy. It is not motorists alone who benefit by main highways any more than it is only those who travel by train who profit by the railroad. Main highways throughout Canada mean stimulation of business and trade everywhere, greater prosperity, higher farm land values. They constitute perhaps the best agency and the quickest for speeding up the development of the whole country. Think it over and write that letter.—Alberta Motor Association.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

As the movie writers would put it, "Came the Winter."

It looks as if the coal man's family will be able to have turkey for Christmas after all.

Herman Trelle, of Alberta, winner of the oats championship at Chicago, and last year winner in both oats and wheat, is just a farmer who knows his seeds.

Said Model "A" looking at Model "T," "Alas, my poor brother!"

The worst feature about the Flin Flon mines is that somebody is liable to twist the name into Flim Flam.

Miss Agnes MacPhail says that you cannot hit J. J. Morrison without hitting the whole U.F.O. organization. Well, wasn't that about what Mr. Hepburn said?

Canadians are being asked to eat more scallops, and the advice will serve to teach the public that a scallop is something to eat and not as some folks perhaps think one of the auxiliary vessels of the Canadian navy.

That Chicago gunman who shot the wrong victim and then apologized was evidently for "courtesy" if not for "care."

An Anti-Going-Up Society has been formed in the United States, but unfortunately it has to do with aviation and not with prices.

It must be hard for any outside entry to win the title of champion bull at Chicago against the local competition.

Rugby players will be able to put their training into practical use during the Christmas shopping rush.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., December 2 (Canadian Press). — Little business was transacted with foreign buyers in Canadian grain here yesterday owing to the fact that the majority of the bids were out of line with local exporters' views.

Owing to the sharp advance in future prices for oats at Winnipeg yesterday a stronger feeling prevailed in the local market for the cash grain, and prices were marked up one cent per bushel. The demand was limited.

The trade in spring wheat grades of flour was moderate and the undertone was firm. The demand for winter wheat flour was fair and the prices were unchanged.

The inquiry for all lines of millfeed continued excellent and values ruled steady. A fairly active business was done in standard grades of rolled oats, and the tone was firm.

The exports of baled hay to the United Kingdom from the Port of Montreal from November 19 to November 30, 1927, were 47,476 bales. Yesterday's demand from English buyers was limited.

A fair volume of business was done in eggs, and prices were unchanged. The receipts were 245 cases.

The demand for potatoes showed some improvement and the tone of the market was better. Car lots of Prince Edward Island whites were quoted at $1.20 per bag of ninety pounds; while Prince Edward Green Mountains sold at $1.25 per bag of ninety pounds; New Brunswick Green Mountains at $1.15 per bag in bulk; Cobblers at $1.10 per bag in bulk; and Quebec varieties at 90c to $1.00 per bag in bulk, ex-track.

The market for imported beans was without any special feature to note, prices being steady under a fair demand. Sales of car lots on spot were made at $2.50 per bushel, and to arrive at $2.60 per bushel, ex-track, while broken lots sold at $2.75 per bushel, ex-store.

The demand for butter was confined to small lots, but the undertone was steady. The receipts were 157 packages.

Extreme dullness again marked the local and export trade in cheese, but prices were well maintained. The receipts were 1,746 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, December 2 (Canadian Press). — With first December deliveries of all grain yesterday showing less volume than had been looked for, commission house demand increased, and prices went sharply higher. Unfavorable weather conditions in Argentina, higher Liverpool quotations than due, and better export call for North American wheat aided the advance in wheat values. Rye established a new top price record for the season.

Chicago closing prices on wheat were unsettled, 1 to 1¾c net higher. Rye finished at 1¾c to 3½c gain; corn 1½c to 1¾c up; oats showing 1¼c to 1¾c advance; and provisions unchanged to a rise of 32 cents.

Aggressive purchasing of the May delivery of wheat by houses with Eastern connections was a feature in the wheat market here, and it was also noted that North American export business had picked up, to the extent of 500,000 bushels, whereas Argentine wheat shipments for the last week amounted to hardly a third of the previous week's total. Wheat prices were also bullishly affected by the fact that previous sellers of rye were showing a right-about-face change in market position and had become active bidders.

December rye at one time yesterday showed a 4½ cents a bushel advance, and all deliveries of rye sold at new high points for the 1927 crop. Barley also made a new high mark here for the season, and highest prices yet for 1927 were noted as being bid at Kansas City on Kaffir corn and Milo for export. The immediate occasion for the advance in rye was that no deliveries whatever on December rye contracts were made in Canada yesterday.

It was pointed out by authorities yesterday that any deterioration in Argentine wheat quality during the harvest now going on might develop a much stronger European demand for good quality United States hard and winter wheat. Gulf premiums were strong yesterday with offerings light, and there was talk current of likelihood later on of all rail shipments out of here going to the East.

Outside winter corn was lighter, and offerings scarce, except to take profits. There was some talk of a demand for No. 2 mixed by exporters at the Gulf of Mexico.

Oats developed independent strength. Arrivals here were small, and liberal premiums were being paid for all grades.

Provisions were firmer, sympathizing with grain.

BARN RAISED IN SHORT TIME

Neighbors Assist W. Murney in Task — Farms Flooded.

RIVER VERY HIGH

SPRINGVILLE, Dec. 2.—On Tuesday, November 29, a barn raising took place on the premises of H. Murney, Cavan. About fifty of Mr. and Mrs. Murney's friends and neighbors gathered at their home on Tuesday morning to lend a willing hand to the task before them.

C. Morden of Bethany was the carpenter in charge of the job and under his capable leadership the work was well under way shortly after nine o'clock. By noon the framwork was completed and the sheeting begun.

Dinner was served by Mrs. Murney, assisted by six of the neighbor women, to those taking part in the raising.

After the noon hour the number of helpers was slightly diminished but those remaining carried on until about four o'clock. By this time the sheeting was completed with the exception of the gable end and the roof.

The men then had to leave for their respective homes in order that they might do their chores early and be able to return to the Murney home in the evening for a dance and social time.

The farmers of the lower sections of North Monaghan are wondering how much larger the ponds of water in their fields can grow without whole farms being submerged. The water in the ditches is very high and is flowing with great force toward the river but the river level is little lower than the ditch level so the water only backs up again on to the farms.

In some places the roads are washed away as they sometimes are in the spring of the year. The T.A.S. wharf is under water and the road leading to it is almost impassable. Rafts will soon be a necessity in the cellars of residents in the vicinity of the river unless the weather changes.

Plowing has been continued at intervals until this week but the recent rain has made further efforts along that line impossible for some time.

On Wednesday, November 30th, Mr. H. Seymore, Mr. J. Grandy, Mr. D. Wood and Mr. P. Seymore motored to Cobourg to attend the Holstein sale. They report that the selling was fairly good, the prices ranging from $135 to $240.

Miss L. Robinson has returned home from a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Mesnard, Hamburg, N.Y. On her return trip she spent a short time with friends in Brantford, Ont.

NEW FORD CARS NOW ON DISPLAY

car is to provide a small car which will incorporate all light car advantages with the features of comfort, speed and safety hitherto regarded as peculiar to heavy and expensive machines.

The four-cylinder powerplant of the new Ford developes 40 horsepower at 2200 revolutions. The S.A.E. rating for license purposes is 24.03 h.p. This great power has been effected without sacrifice of economy and the new car will give 30 or more miles to the gallon. Through use of a larger cylinder bore and shorter stroke, by static and dynamic balancing of flywheel and crankshaft and by the use of light reciprocating parts and careful balancing of all parts the new motor is practically vibrationless.

The Model A Ford motor incorporates a number of unusual features of design which have been born of years of experiment. Most of these features make for long life, simplified service and more economical maintenance. Lubrication is a combination of pump and splash systems while cooling combines thermo-syphon and pump circulation of water. The action of the water pump is so designed that it comes into effect after the motor has reached the ideal temperature for engine performance, and overcooling at low engine speeds or in cold weather is thus avoided. The motor itself is essentially a low-speed motor, developing its maximum power at 2200 r.p.m This is consistent with established Ford practice which always has aimed at securing a minimum amount of piston travel per mile of road travel, with a resultant minimum of strain and wear on moving parts.

The motor is set in the frame at an agle of 3 1-3 degrees which affords practically a straight-line drive to the rear axle. The clutch comprises four driving and five driven discs which operate without lubrication. A feature of the clutch is that on disengagement it immediately and completely neutralizes the driven discs with the result that the gearshift lever may be snapped across immediately without fear of clashing gears. Clutches of this type have hitherto been peculiar to high-priced cars.

The transmission departs from conventional light car practice in the use of ball and roller bearings instead of bushings. These bearings make for more satisfactory operation, smoother performance and longer life. The steering gear also is unique in the light car field, being of the irreversible worm and sector type with the worm carried in ball bearings. Front-end weight of the car also is carried on roller bearings which are placed at the top of the spindle bolts, resulting in unusual steering ease.

Transverse semi-elliptic springs are used, and for it Ford engineers claim the following advantages: that the springs contact with the frame at only one point and that at the centre line of the chassis with the result that the chassis is subjected to no twisting strains even on the worst roads; that it permits full torque tube drive; that it reduces unsprung weight to a minimum and improves riding qualities; that the springs have only their natural function of absorbing road shocks to perform; and that danger of uneven application of front wheel brakes is avoided because the front axle is held rigidly at right angles to the centre line of the chassis and there is no possibility of uneven tension upon brake rods.

The brakes are of special Ford design and operate on the inner surface of substantial steel drums. All brake parts are cadmium plated as a precaution against rust and each brake is instantaneously adjustable through manipulation of a small adjusting stud on the exterior of each brake drum. Brake pedal or hand lever will apply all four brakes simultaneously. Sixty per cent of the braking effort is applied to the rear wheels and forty per cent. to the front wheels.

The new Ford car is completely equipped with five steel spoke wheels, Alemite-Zerk chassis lubrication, four hydraulic shock absorbers, speedometer, windshield wiper, rear-view mirror, remote door-latch controls, etc. There are six body models: Tudor, Fordor, Phaeton, Coupe, Sport Coupe, Sport Roadster, each available in a number of color options. The new Ford dealers expect to have Tudor and Phaeton models on display here soon.

The new Ford model, now on exhibit at Hood & Cummings Motors, Limited, sales room, reached Peterborough late last night.

His Worship Mayor Holloway was the first Peterborough citizen to view the car, a representative of The Examiner next.

No one could help being struck with the difference in the old and the new models, nor could one ever conceive that it was a Ford car of the old type, as there is as much difference as between daylight and dark.

ROOM FOR ARGUMENT.

Editor Evening Examiner:

Dear sir:

I quite agree with our Scotch friends that bagpipes will drown most all other instruments when it comes to making noise of a certain kind, but since when have they and all that goes with it, been leaders in everything known to God's creation?

I suppose the rest of us inferior Britishers will have to submit to another drubbing very soon to celebrate their victory at Bannockburn, but let me say a word on the authority of a great historian: Had it not been for a handful of Irish bowmen under O'Niel who did great execution to the English cavalry there would probably have been a different outcome to that great engagement.

Yours for fair play,
P. T. SHERIDAN,
Peterborough, Ont.

LEGION ELECTS OFFICERS AFTER STORMY DEBATE

Campbellford Branch Discusses Changes in Provincial Command.

EXECUTIVE CRITICIZED.

Major J. M. Bygott Re-elected President—Capt. Hyland First Vice-President.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 2. —The Campbellford Branch of the Canadian Legion enjoyed the largest attendance in its histoy when the meeting to elect the officers for the coming year was held in the armouries last night. The room was jammed to the doors when the time to open the meeting arrived and the usual routine business was hurried through as quickly as possible in order that the election might proceed. The first item of interest was the six applications for membership. These were accepted and the legion roll now contains over sixty paid members. The new members are the Rev. N. Clarke Wallace, Clarence B. Williams, Hubert Lawrie, Charles Duncalfe, who is a veteran of the South African war, George Nicol, who served as an officer of the Royal Navy, and James Jacobs.

At the previous meeting there was no unfinished business left over so the financial statement was read. It shows a very acceptable increase and speaks well for the manner in which the affairs of the legion here are being administered There were but three items of correspondence, the first an account, the second a letter from the Vetcraft Shops in Toronto asking that the returned men patronize the local businesses which are handling the vetcraft work. These were named as Tripps, Bennets, and Hubbles. Major Bygott, chairman, took the opportunity to remark on the wide and attractive lines which these stores were showing of the work of the disabled veterans He thought that many suitable Christmas gifts could be purchased from these wares.

The third letter was from the Ontario Command of the Legion. It stated that after the end of November, the organization department would no longer continue to function. This would automatically relieve Comrade MacLeod of his position as organizer for Ontario. This bit of news caused considerable unofficial discussion among the members, and the secretary read a second letter from the Earl Haig Branch, Toronto, which threw a little more light on the subject. It stated that that branch had forwarded a protest to the command and requested all other branches to do the same. The letter further urged prompt action on the matter.

Prompt action seemed to be the desired thing with the local branch. Mr. MacLeod is held in high regard by the local veterans, and most of them seemed anxious to forward a protest at once. It was, however, pointed out that since the date of dismissal had been set for the last day in November, it was probably too late to forward any protest. This information caused Captain Hyland to comment sharply and with uncalled-for severity on the methods employed by the officers of the Campbellford Branch. He claimed that the matter should have received immediate attention through the executive committee, but his objections remained unanswered as Comrade Wilkinson gained the floor long enough to make a motion to the effect that a protest be forwarded at once and a clause commending the work of the organizer be contained therein.

Red hot discussion followed the motion. At times it seemed as though the order of the meeting would be blasted to atoms. Major Bygott required no small amount of tact and determination in order to keep control of the argument, and not allow several to speak at once. As a pause came in the argument, Comrade Dickson moved an amendment to the effect that no protest be forwarded until full particulars were available. He thought it was unwise to act too hastily in this matter. The amendment found a seconder, but before the question could be put, the argument was on again with all the fierceness it had attained since its beginning.

At last a lull came and the chairman asked if the men were ready to vote. They were. But the secretary thought it advisable to recall the names of the provincial executive who had been responsible for the change in affairs and explain that these men had nothing to gain, and were acting in what they considered the best interests of the Legion. They were, every one, successful business men and therefore their tactics ought to be beneficial to the Legion, but his action was not approved by all the members. Captain Hyland gave him a call for reading the names and speaking as he did regarding the affair. But all this was getting nowhere and the major asked if they were ready to vote.

"Comrades," he said, "There is a motion and an amendment for you to deal with. I will read them both. The amendment will come first, of course. The vote on the motion will follow."

The chairman read the amendment and then the motion, then asked for the vote on the amendment. It was a standing vote and the secretary counted noses. The vote on the motion followed, and the counts were even. Then Comrade Morgan noticed that one of the members had stood up both times, and declared his vote on the motion improper. The member admitted he had done this, and Major Bygott ruled in favor of the amendment. Captain Hyland protested against the ruling and a bitter argument followed between the two factions. In order to settle the matter with all possible despatch, Comrade Dikson expressed his willingness to have a second vote taken on his amendment if it would be allowed. Comrade Wilkinson proved a sportsman by also agreeing to let his motion stand a seond vote. This seemed satisfactory to both sides and just as the vote was about to be taken, there came a late arrival. Captain Hyland wanted a section of one of the letters read for this member's information, and it was done. Immediately the opposing faction ordered all of both letters read in the interests of fair play. This was done and the vote was again taken. The second time the amendment carried by a majority of two votes, and the protest will not be sent. At least it will not be forwarded till further information is forthoming.

This seemed to en dthe stormy part ofthe meeting and the election of officers was begun. Before leaving the chair, Major Bygott expressed his pleasure with the co-operation of the members during his term, and asked that they support their new officers with the same consistency. Captain Hyland regained considerable favor when he explained that a meeting was dead unless there was at least one hot argument.

Officers Elected.

For the president's chair there were four nominations, but Comrades Morgan and Ironsides withdrew, leaving Major J. M. Bygott and Captain Hyland to contest the office. Major Bygott was returned with a majority of sixteen, but Captain Hyland secured the office of first vice-president by a plurality of three over Free and four over Ironsides. Comrade Ironsides was elected to the position of second vice-president and had the honor of being appointed secretary-treasurer by acclamation as well.

The first committee to be formed was the executive. It consists of seven members. These are Comrades Watters, Armstrong, Wilkinson, Claverly, H. Smith, McCulloch and Long. The Pensions committee of three is composed of Comrades Bert Jones, Messenger and Smith. Dickson, Hyland and Ironsides compose the Sport committee and Free, Hyland and Wilkinson are the three members of the Social committee. It is perhaps a good thing that all the names mentioned for the Sick and Visiting committee were not allowed to remain on the list. There were as many nominations for this one office as there were for all the others combined. After many withdrawals of names, there still remained seven from which to select three. The three chosen are Free, Bygott and Watters.

For some time there has been agitation in the branch for an employment committee, so the matter received due attention last night. The proper men to attend to this item are J. H. Jones, Smith and Wilkinson. The appointing of Comrades Stevens and Free as auditors completed the list and Major Bygott returned to the chair. He remarked that he thought bi-weekly meetings sufficient for the transacting of the Legion affairs and expressed a sincere wish that the members would continue their efforts and co-operation toward success. Two accounts, one for flowers and one for printing were passed. Major Bygott spoke briefly on a Legion at home being held in Brighton Friday evening and extended an invitation on behalf of the Brighton Legion to any Legionaire who wished to attend. He also placed several formal invitations at their disposal.

A motion by Comrade Wilkinson setting the next meeting night as December 15th and beginning with the New Year, every second and fourth Thursday night, was passed unanimously. This will bring the first meeting of the New Year on Thursday, January 12, 1828.

Thus the most interesting meeting in the history of the Campbellford branch came to an end. Practically every member was present. A few who were on duty were unable to be present, and their absence was regretted though unavoidable. When such keen interest is displayed, the officers of the branch and the citizens generally will not be slow to assist the Legionaires.

SAYS REGIONAL

dum consists of eleven closely-typed pages in which it is stated among other things that "the World War was utterly inevitable and the outcome of competition among the great capitalists states driven as they were to extend their colonial possessions and markets for their greatly increased output."

After giving figures showing the growth rather than the decrease of the standing armies of "victorious and neutral countries" they call attention to the air forces of the various countries namely: France, 6,114 aeroplanes, Britain 3,460, Italy 1,000, United States 3,300, Poland 398 and Rumania 257.

Although the Soviets talk ceaselessly against what they call the capitalist states it is rumored that the Moscow delegation have tried to get in touch with the League of Nations financial committee at present in session here, with the view of obtaining an international loan on the same basis as that granted to Austria and Hungary I am in a position to state that the financial committee as a whole have had no direct or indirect communication with the Soviet delegation, but it is stated that they did approach Jeremiah Smith, formerly League Commissioner of Hungary, with a view to sounding him on the subject of League support. I give this with all reserve.

Dr. Eduard Benes, representing Czecho-Slovakia, was yesterday appointed chairman of the security committee on a proposal of Lord Coushendun's. In his opening statement Dr. Benes summarized the work hitherto done by the League in regard to security and arbitration up to the adoption by the last Assembly of a resolution which constitutes, strictly speaking, the programme of the committee.

M. Politis of Greece, Vice-President of the Preparatory Commission, agreed with Benes that it would be necessary to examine the enormous number of arbitration treaties that have been concluded in order to coordinate ideas common to all and to reach general understanding. He insisted that they could not hope to achieve better results than those embodied in the Protocol.

Apparently Dr. Benes and M. Politis who were the chief sponsors of the Protocol have the intention to resurrect this work of theirs and make it the basis of proceedings before the security committee. Lord Cushendun, however, let apostles of the Protocol understand that the attitude of the British Government had not changed on that point. He recalled that for a long time Britain had had to recourse to arbitration as a means of settling her disputes and in his opinion the most practical method for the committee would be to draw up concrete proposals on each point of the Assembly resolution.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

HEALS ECZEMA IN 7 DAYS OR LESS

Or Your Money Back.

Here is a surgeon's wonderful prescription now dispensed by pharmacists at trifling cost, that will do more towards helping you get rid of unsightly spots and skin diseases than anything you've ever used.

Not only does this great healing antiseptic oil promote rapid and healthy healing in open sores and wounds but boils, abscesses and ulcers that are discharging are almost immediately relieved and cleanly healed.

In skin diseases its action it little less than magical. The itching of eczema is instantly stopped; the eruptions dry up and scale off in a very few days. The same is true of barber's itch, salt rheum and other irritating and unsightly skin troubles.

You can obtain Moone's Emerald Oil in the original bottle at any modern drug store. It is safe to use, and failure in any of the ailments noted above is next to impossible. C. M. Moncur, Bert McLeod, McDermid Drug Co., Ltd., and McDermid & Jury can supply you any time.

WILD FLOWERS OF THE ROCKIES

One of the great charms in the national parks in the Canadian Rockies is the variety and beauty of the wild flowers. At first thought one would perhaps not expect to find an abundant and interesting flora amid the higher altitudes, but, strange as it may seem, the wildflower gardens which bloom above the clouds in the upper regions are among the most beautiful in the world. Over five hundred varieties have been identified by botanists, and their exquisite color, fragrance, and delicate loveliness add the last touch to the charm of that wonderful region.

FEDERAL POLICE FIND COLLUSION

Amazing Evidence Found, Chicago Paper Says—Indictments Prepared

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.— (Canadian Press.)— The Herald and Examiner to-day said that "amazing evidence" of collusion between Chicago police officials and politicians and the operators of liquor and gambling resorts has been obtained by the United States government in a secret investigation during the last month. Every police captain, said the newspaper, has been continually shadowed by Federal operatives during the past few weeks. The newspaper said it had been indicated that a number of indictments already have been prepared but were being withheld until the government's case is completed.

HUNTERS SPEND NIGHT IN WOODS

Two Men From Prince Edward County Lost Near Madoc.

FOUND BY RESIDENTS.

MADOC, Dec. 2.—tI was reported on Tuesday evening that two men from Prince Edward county were missing—lost in the woods, back of Queensboro, in Elzevir township. They are known to have gone into the woods deer hunting early on Monday morning. On Tuesday evening their car was still standing in a lane where they had left it, so a search was instituted. They were found during the evening. They had spent Monday night in the open, but in spite of the pouring rain and sleet are apparently not much the worse for their untoward adventure.

It was Bert Franklin, of Elzevir township, who first found the men and it was discovered that they had spent many hours of intense anxiety after being lost The men were named Kerr and Rabby.

TREATY CLAUSE IS BROUGHT UP

German Delegate To Security Committee Refers To Article 19.

ADVISING PACT CHANGES.

GENEVA, December 2 (Canadian Press), — Count von Bernstorff of Germany caused a sensation at the Security Committee meeting of the Disarmament Commission to-day by insisting that importance be given to Article 19 of the League of Nations covenant. The article provides for the revision of treaties. The delegates immediately deduced that he referred to the Treaty of Versailles.

Article 19 of the League of Nations covenant, to which Count von Bernstorff referred, reads:

"The Assembly may from time to time advise reconsideration by members of the League of treaties which have become inapplicable and consideration of international conditions whose continuance might endanger the peace of the world."

PEOPLE SEND IN MONEY FOR STAMPS

Make Payments For Those Sent Out By Health Association.

It is just exactly a week since the letters from the Health Association, containing the Christmas seals reached the persons to whom they were addressed. They were sent to a selected list of names, covering the city, and returns thus far have been very gratifying Many people immediately upon receipt of their seals and the return envelope which accompanied them ,placed their dollar within the envelope and sent it back Others have dropped in at the Bank of Toronto and paid the money directly to Mr Vanston, treasurer of the Health Association, without sending it through the mail

The most gratifying of all is to know that the Peterborough Health Association have friends in every part of the city and they are all anxious to help the worthy cause

Among the letters received to-day were those from:

Rogers Street, Ashburnham,
River Road
Downie Street,
Romaine Street,
Boswell Avenue,
Frederick Avenue,
Bridge Street,
Hunter Street,
Aylmer Street,
Stewart Street,
Bonacord Street,
Water Street,
Dalhousie Street,
Armour Road,
Mark Street,

Showing that in every part of the city the people were heartily in accord and ready to support the work of the Health Association.

NEW MEMBERS ARE INDUCTED

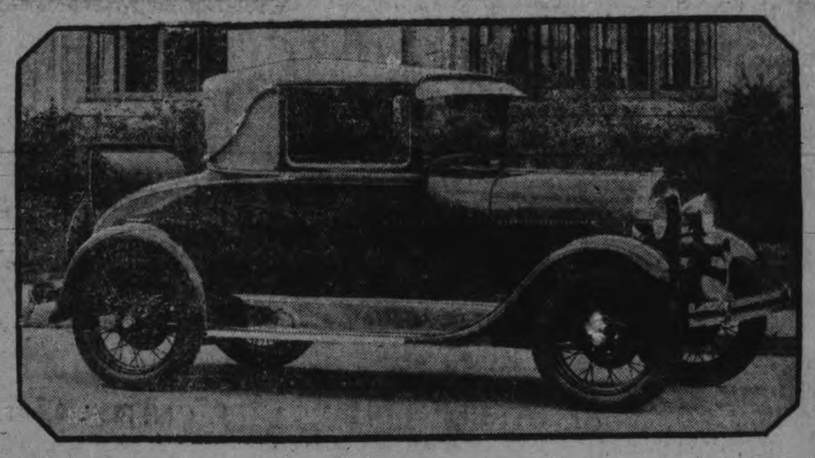
Y's Men's Club Holds Open Meeting To Discuss Business.

Several new members were inducted at last night's meeting of the "Y's" Men's Club, the ceremony being carried out by Bill Giles, Elmer Brown, and Howard Woods, who explained the duties and wisdom of the "Y's" man.

Last night's meeting, held in the Y.M.C.A., with President Roy White in the chair, was an open meeting and plans were discussed for holding some form of entertainment for raising funds for carrying on the club's work.

It was also decided to withdraw the meetings scheduled for the Thursdays before Christmas and New Year's days, as many of the members are in the midst of their busy season during those two days.

G. H. Roper, general secretary of the Association, urged the members to take some part in its government by nominating candidates and attending the annual meeting to vote for members of the board.



Here is the Sport Coupe, or Cabriolet. Note the rumble seat—something never before seen on a Ford. The lines in general are much "jazzier" than former Ford models.
